Last summer King George paid a state visit to the French Republic with the Queen and took part in many ceremonies in Paris and dedicated the Australian war memorial in France.

Canadians would rejoice to have also Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, whom the people of the Empire treasure as their guests during the royal visit the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, whom the people of the Empire treasure in their heart.

The National War Memorial at Ottawa will be dedicated and unveiled by the King.

Close relations between King and Dominions exist and have always existed, but with the coming of the reigning sovereign, this Dominion of Canada is brought very close to the Throne. The closer relationship of Dominions was established by the Statute of Westminster during the reign of King George Fifth and when his son King George Sixth comes to Canada with the Queen next year he will come actually as the ruler of Canada. Canadians rejoice that Their Majesties have consented to come and will demonstrate their loyal and sincere devotion to the Throne in no doutful acclaim.

"HAZING"

Dwellers in university and college, cities and towns these days see odd sights, the product of "hazing" by the sophomores of the freshmen. Hazing is not what it used to be, for heads of universities have frowned upon a type of hazing which was likely to do arm, such as initiations in which severe nervous strain or physical injury was the result of the methods of 'breaking in' the new students But milder forms remain at many institutions, which provide the sophomores with opportunity to use their imagination in a way which will cause no real suffering hardship but create fun for the students of senior years.

According to the Windsor Star, there is at Western University, London, a girl student, the Baroness Helle Anna Vibeke Holgesdatter Rosenkrantz of Denmark, who has made herself popular because she went to the trouble of finding out what hazing was like, though it is forbidden at Western. The Windsor Star tells the story:

Enrolling at the University, the Danish girl was the subject of "hazing" by the other girls, her face being liberally smeared with lipstick. She took it all in good part, and entered into the spirit of the "ceremony."

"'Hazing' of first-year students was a common practice for years at Canadian universities, and still is at some. The youth, boy or girl, whi could take it in good spirit was readily absorbed into the life on the campus. Those who could not were eyed with something of disfavor.

"Unfortunately, however, at some universities the sophomores went too far, and practices indulged in were too disagreeable physically, or in other ways. Accordingly many authorities have frowned on the practice. It is forbidden at Western but the Danish student had heard of "hazing" and wanted to find out what it was like. Her initiation was something of an illustration of what the real thing is like. In the case of the Baroness the "hazing" has probably been a good way of making her acquainted with, and to feel at home among, the other girls on the campus."

It is better to create than to be learned; creating is the true essence of life.—Niebuhr.

"THE COMMONPLACE"

By Helen Welshimer

"I have deep love for kindly, simple things—
—The hot, sweet smell of jam on summer stoves;
The humming song an old teakettle sings;
The fragrant towels which wrap brown-crusted loaves,
For white clothes, clean, wind-swept upon a line
Where sun beats down; a playhouse children keep;
A window dim with honeysuckle vine,
And smooth, crisp sheets when it is time for sleep.

"For yellow bowls where I stir batter cakes;
The flower buds outside a kitchen door;
Toy boats in puddles small boys use for lakes
And sunlight in a rug across my floor.
I pray each day that I may win the grace
Which God gives those who love the commonplace."

WHEN A SHOWER OF DIAMONDS CAME TO THE GROUND at their feet the simple shepherds minding their flocks on a hillside in Albania, one of those pocket countries of Europe which have afforded Anthony Hope and other authors great scope for weird novels, it was all in the day's work. If the gods want to shower diamonds it is all right with the Albanian shepherds. However, behind the diamonds rests a tale. His Royal Highness, King Zog, of Albania, was preparing to get married, and must choose a kingly gift for his prospective bride. 22-year-old Countess Geraldine Apponyl, of Hungary, so he sent word to a Paris jewellry firm to send samples. The samples came, a collection valued at $600,000, and King Zog selected a diamond tiara, brooch, and two rings. The courier and his jewel box then boarded an Italian air-liner for Paris. The plane encountered a mountain which had not been removed from the right of way and was smashed, the passengers being burned to death. The jewel box flew out of the courier's hand when the impact came and sailed serently down into the valley below, where it struck a rock, burst open, and the shower of diamonds and miscellaneous jewellry resulted. The shepherds promptly pocketed as much of the diamond windfall as possible then inspected the blazing plane where passengers and crew all perished. When the police came only $50,000 worth of jewels was recovered. A few weeks later the police of Naples heard tales of magnificent jewels being offered at unbelievably low prices. Two men were arrested and half a million dollars worth of the missing gems recovered. The shepherds had sold the gems for $158.

STORIES ODD AND INTERESTING ARE STILL COMING OUT OF THE HURRICANE ZONE along the Atlantic Coast. One incident which reminded newspapermen of "Admirable Crichton", that marvel of efficiency, created by Sir James Barrie. At the summer home of a millionaire on Long Island, a Norwegian butler proved to be the hero of the occasion when he rescued a house party of 23 from imminent danger. When the hurricane struck and the tidal wave began to hammer against the mansion of the millionaire the butler took charge, went to the housetop and with a bed sheet signalled for assistance. Not satisfied with that he braved the elements and set out on foot for help. This he succeeded in getting and bringing back to the stranded house party. With the help of three stout lads he had commandeered he led the party of 23 across a sinking bridge to safety, and through it all was as cool as the proverbial cucumber.

UNEMPLOYED AND RELIEF WORKERS OF THE UNITED STATES met in Convention recently in Cleveland, Ohio. There were some 400 delegates representing 400,000 members, Cleveland was the right place for such a convention with local relief shut off and people fighting in the streets for food, according to current report. Treasurer's report showed that $56,783 had been collected during the year by the association and all but $2,435 expended. For funds the association had to depend on general collections, for the members seldom had any money they could spare for dues. Many of the delegates were billeted with Communists in Cleveland, although as an organization Communism is given the soft pedal.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 11TH, 1918

Mr. Will Hawkins of Stirling is some steeple jack. The ropes on the flag staffs at the High School and the Public School in that village had to be renewed. To do this formerly it was necessary to take down the poles. In this instance, however, Mr. Hawkins climbed the poles, the height being 72 feet and 65 feet respectively, and put on the new ropes

OCT. 11TH, 1908

Those little piles of mud which dotted Front Street for several days, may have been picturesque, but hardly anybody will say that they were not out of place. A little more expedition in their removal would have been appreciated by the merchants and their customers from the country.

Col. W. N. Ponton is attending the Supreme Court sitting in Ottawa.

Mr. William Collins, Reeve of Huntingdon Township, was a visitor in the city today.

Mr. J. Moran, the well known piano tuner, is in the city.

The big schooner, Dundee, is in port unloading coal.

40 YEARS AGO

OCT. 11TH, 1898

Mr. E. H. Finkle has gone to Stratford, Ont., where he will be engaged in connection with the evaporating business which Mr. R. J. Graham has established in that city.

Mr. C. M. Tripp is spending a few weeks at his home in Bloomfield.

Messrs. George Leavens, Henry Leavens, Charles Kyle and W. H. Campbell have gone north partridge shooting.

Mrs. R. M. Roy has returned to Peterboro after visiting friends here. Mrs. May accompanied her.

Mr. W. B. Walker is spending a few days vacation down the bay.

Mr. Sid Vandervoort is home on a short visit.

OCT. 11TH, 1888

The police found every business place in the city securely locked last night. This is indeed a record.

The office of the Chief of Police has been painted and looks neat and clean.

Mr. W. C. Mayo, son of the late Henry Mayo, has purchased Easelstine's grocery at the Grand Trunk. Mr. Mayo is a young man of good ability, is well known and popular, and should be successful in his undertaking.

Mr. W. H. Biggar is attending the asize at Peterboro.

Mr. John Yerex will leave tomorrow for New Zealand. We wish him bon voyage.

NEW CHEESE FACTORY

The southwest corner of Ontario —Essex, Kent and Lambton— has been unrepresented for years in the cheese classes at dairy exhibitions, for the good and sufficient reason that no factory cheese was being made in those countries, Essex has seven dairy factories, the other counties eight each, all making butter, and Kent and Lambton have a very substantial output. But they have been out of the picture for years, as far as cheese is concerned, notwithstanding government advice about increasing the export volume.

Now the cheese factory at Arkona, closed 10 years ago, is again in operation. F. E. Ellis tells the story in the Family Herald and Weekly Star. ohn Edlington, maker and manager, took over on April 1, and 12 patrons shared in the first pay-off on May 1. Now there are 211 patrons, who have sent as much as 27,000 pounds of milk in a day, making this revived business one of the largest in Western Ontario. The manager plans to install a cool curing room and refrigeration.

Favorable price of cheese was a factor in the support given the venture, but it is also evident that an imporant change has taken place in regard to area of supply. Years ago it was considered that cheese factories could be operated successfully only in sections where there wa sufficient milk within two to four miles, as farmers did not care to draw for longer distances. Now the milk is trucked, and the Arkona factory draws from territory with a radius of 15 miles. One trucker covers 74 miles a day and brings in two tons of milk.

This development, which is not altogether recent, seems to point to a likelihood of fewer and larger factories, especially in the eastern part of the province, In fact, there has been a gradual decrease for six years in the number of cheese factories in Ontario, while the total of patrons has increased.

HE TAKES THE RAPE

Heywood Broun paused in his routine the other day to say a few words in the New York World-Telegram about how hard a job is that of the President of the United States. A a columinist Heywood Broun is more in favor of Franklin D. Roosevelt than against him. but it is what he says about the office rather than the man that at this time is more han worth aying.

Said Broun:

"Yes, I know that Franklin D. Roosevelt smiles a lot in the newspaper pictures, and they say that more than any other man he loves the give and take of political conferences or waving a cheerful greeting for the photographers. His shoulders are broad, but there is no living American who moves about with a heavier millstone chained around his neck. It just can't be fun. That isn't human nature.

"De have heard much of the scheme which the founding fathers drew up for checks and balances and divided powers. But they forgot one little thing. They neglected to divide responsibility. When the state of the nation is gripped by gales the citizen does not cry aloud for Congress or the Supreme Court to do something. The man in the White House, whoever he may be, must take the rap. This has always been so Geroge Washington found that out, and, granting a lapse of time, so did Herbert Hoover."

THE MANXMAN

Out in the Irish Sea, half-way between England and Ireland, the Isle of Man seems to be witnessing the passing of its ancient Manx language. A London correspondent who has recently visited the island writes that fifteen years ago, 896 out of a total population of 50,000, could speak the native tongue. By 1931 the figure had fallen to 529 and over 60 per cent. of those were 65 years old and up. When they have passed there will apparently be little more than 200 Manx-speakers left. Having no commercial value, the language seems destined to fade away into a memory of the days when Manxmen were a race apart from the English.

A few proficients are doing their best to stem the passing of the old language, we are told. The venerable John Kewley, archdeacon of Man, for many years read all the newly promulgated laws to the ancient Parliament on Tynwald Hill in Manx, although very few of his thousands of hearers could understand him. Today he has reached a compromise and now reads in Manx only the title and the dates when they received the royal signature.

The old Manx race belonged with the Scottish and Irish, to the Goidelic branch of the Celts. Manx fishermen had little trouble in conversing with Scottish and Irish fishermen, but actually they found it easier to make themselves understood in the Scottish islands that at Kinsale.—Montreal Gazette.

That Body of Yours

The Four Outstanding Features of Stomach and Intestinal Ulcer

Generally speaking, physicians, when there is pain in the stomach, have in mind always the possibility of cancer in patients past 40 years of age and ulcer in patients under 40. He keeps in mind also the fact that most pains in the stomach are due to liver and gall bladder conditions.

There are a great many young adults, especially the nervous or emotional type, who fear that if their stomach pain or distress is not cancer it must be ulcer, yet their very nervousness or their emotional upsetments can cause disturbances of the stomach and intestine.

There are certain points about ulcer of the stomach and of the first few inches of the small intestine (duodenum—into which the stomach empties) which stand out so clearly that they are considered to be practically proof of ulcer.

Dr. Charles Gordon Heyd, in American Journal of Science states

"The indigestion of stomach and duodenal ulcer is a chronic condition ,characteried by four outstanding features:

1—It is tolerated without great distress. That is, patients can usually bear the pain or distress but are always aware of it.

2—The pain of distress always bears a relationship to the eating of food, as it comes on from 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 hours after eating.

3—It is cyclic in character, coming on day after day at the same period after meals.

4.—This pain occurring every day and at the same time after meals is present in the history of most patients.

This regularity and cyclic occurrence (2 1-2 to 3 1-2 hours after meals) of the symptoms in ulcer makes it easy for the physician to tell what is wrong with the patient before even the Xray examination or the examination of the test meal is made. Sometimes ulcers heal of themselves and the scar formed when the ulcer heals may almost close the passage from the stomach to the small intestine. This would of course cause other symptoms besides the four above mentioned."

BACK IN CUSTODY

James Godwin, who talked his way out of jail at Lexington, N.C., is pictured after recapture, during which he was slightly wounded. Godwin gained freedom for himself and a pal when Lula Belle Kimel 18-year-old daughter of the jailer, listened to his promise he would go "straight" and released them.

Theatres

AT THE McCARTHY

"Sins of Children"

As romantic young lovers, Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker, the stellar team heading the cast of "Sins of Children," the Grand National screen triumph which opened at the McCarthy Theatre to large audiences, proved themselves screen favorites of today. Their brilliant and sympathetic performances fascinated and delighted both the adults and children patrons to the theatre, from start to finish of the picture. Those who have seen this perfectly matched young couple in "Ah, Wilderness" and in "Old Hutch", their previous hits under the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer banner, declare that they surpassed their previous performances in this production.

Be that as it may, it is sufficient to testify that the audiences found "Sins of Children" satisfying and completely entertaining. More screen fare of this type should come out of Hollywood. As to the story of "Sins of Children" suggested to the producer, B. F. Zeidman, by the Charles M. Sheldon classic "In His Steps" which has outsold any book published with the exception of the Bible, it is a simple romantic drama of two youngsters, a boy and a girl, whose love for each other prompts them to defy social conventions and the objections of their parents, between whom there has developed a bitter feud, and run off and elope.

How they are made the innocent victims of their parents' selfish antagonisms, how the boy faces a long jail term, under a technical interpretation of the States' strict kidnapping law, and how the unfortunate youthful pair are supported and strengthened during the hour of their darkest despair by the spiritual comfort and sympathy of a sort of "miracle man" whose simple faith and high example in the end saves the lad and regenerates the others, forms a tender, human story which must be seen to be fully appreciated.

In its picture form the story has been modernized completely and religious aspects of the books, retained in essence, have been so toned down as to meet with the requirements of the times. This has been carried out successfully by Karl Brown, who wrote and directed the screen story. The film also credits Hinton Smith with being responsible for much of the sparkling dialogue which adds effectively to the dramatic situations.

Eric Linden, of course, plays the part of the Boy, Tom Carver, the victim of his millionaire father's greed, and Cecilia Parker, exquisitely blonde and youthful, [illegible] the role of Ruth Brewster, the [illegible] who loves him. They are supported by an exceptionally able cast. Harry Beresford, the "grand old man" of the screen, for one, who portrays the character of Davidson, the "miracle man," gives one of the finest and most convincing characterizations of his notable career. Henry Kolker, as Tom's father, and Charles Richman and Olive Tell as the parents of Ruth Brewster, all register splendidly. Others in this strong cast who deserve special mention are Roger Imhoff, Clara Blandick, Robert Warwick, Warner Richmond, Donald Kirke and Stanley Andrews.

"Sins of Children" ranks among the notable pictures that have been shown here so far this season. It is dramatic entertainment of premier quality, which will give the youngsters as many thrills and pleasurable emotions as it will their parents.

Outstanding Featurettes

The short subjects preceding the feature presentation, "Sins of Children", are outstanding and give splendid variety to the entire two hour program. Floyd Gibbons, in another screen true adventure story presents ten minutes of the most dramatic and interesting subject so far in the series that he has been dramatizing entitled "Alibi Mark." This one concerns a young man who without work, makes his way to the West and is accused through unforeseen events, of committing robbery. How he finally is proven innocent, forms one of the finest dramatic subjects that ever has been presented on the screen. Do not miss it. Also a screen vaudeville hit, "The Juggling Fool" is excellent from start to finish and never lets up a fast and amusing assortment of juggling feats. The comedy offering, "Fiddling Around" with Monty Collins and Tom Kennedy providing the side-splitting slapstick action, will keep you laughing the entire twenty minutes that it is presented. It's the best yet.

AT THE BELLE

"Four's a Crowd"

With a cast topped by Errol Flynn, Olivia de Haviland, Rosalind Russell and Patrick Knowles, "Four's a Crowd," Warner Bros.' swiftly-paced comedy romance is the attraction coming to the Belle. Walter Connolly, Hugh Herbert, Melville Cooper and Franklin Pangborn are also featured.

In the filming of "Four's a Crowd," the objective of every one concerned was to set a new all-time record, and, in keeping with this laudable purpose, there is not a single moment in the picture which is intended to be taken seriously.

The quartette to whom the title refers is made up of Errol Flynn, as a former newspaper editor who has become a high-powered public relations counsellor; Olivia de Haviland as an heiress to many millions; Rosalind Russell, as a clever and witty, as well as good-looking newspaper reporter; and Patrick Knowles, rich playboy engaged to wed Olivia, who inherits the paper on which Rosalind works.

The crowding to which the members of the quartette subject each other begins when Pat decides to end his newspaper's existence because it is losing money, but is roundly denounced by the outspoken Rosalind, who ends her tirade with the advice that all the owner needs do to turn his paper into a moneymaker is to hire a live-wire newspaperman like Errol as managing editor.

Pat takes the advice, Errol returns to the newspaper business, and, looking for a sensational issue to arouse interest, launches a series of attacks on Olivia's grandfather, played by Walter Connolly, who is an irascible and unscrupulous millionaire business brigand with two hobbies—miniature railroad trains and a pack of eighteen Great Danes which he is wont to sic on unwelcome visitors to his estate.

Errol meets Olivia and gives her the romantic rush, although he is also courting Rosalind. He is so successful with Olivia that she breaks her engagement to Pat, and the latter turns to Rosalind for solace. He gets it—and an elopement. This merry mix-up proves the truth of the title, but the final scene in the office of a bewildered justice of the peace clears up the matter.

That the justice is played by Hugh Herbert is a cue to the hilarious aspects of the dual wedding scene. He tries his best to dissuade the foursome from their marital intentions, but after much switching of partners, two pairs are wed, and set off on a honeymoon with Connolly and the Great Danes in hot pursuit.

Throughout the story are scattered scores of hilarious incidents, such as the race of the miniature railroad trains, in which Errol resorts to trickery to insure victory of his entry over Grandpa's pet flyer. Responsible for most of these incidents are Casey Robinson and Sig Herzig, who wrote the screen play, which is based on a story by Wallace Sullivan. Michael Curtiz directed.

"The Chaser" Unusual

In a world which has legislated the highly profitable racket of ambulance chasing out of existence, the antics of one of the most notorious members of this profession are perpetuated in "The Chaser," a gay comedy which combines fact with fiction to present an historical record of some of the deeds ascribed to an agile and active attorney. "The Chaser" is announced as the companion feature attraction.

Dennis O'Keefe, because of his outstanding performances in "The Bad Man of Brimstone" and "Hold That Kiss" is given the leading role, that of an ambulance-chaser. Opposite him is a newcomer to the screen, Ann Morriss, hailed by the studio as the biggest "find" of the season.

Ginger Rogers Leaving

Melody, comedy, romance and dancing form the quadruple basis of "Carefree," RKO Radio's new musical hit reuniting Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, with lyrics and music by Irving Berlin announced for presentation at the Belle with an interesting newsreel, a very funny Leon Errol comedy and an excellent Walt Disney cartoon.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Letter of Introduction"

Four years ago an ambitious (and hungry) vaudeville performer haunted the offices of theatrical agents in search of an engagement. There were none to be had. Vaudeville was dead. The future seemed very bleak indeed.

He sent telegrams to all advertising agencies, offering his services for a pittance but was refused.

He offered to forget ventriloquism and go on the air as a "two-act." He "auditioned" to no avail.

Now Leads Field

Today Edgar Bergen, one of the stars in "Letter of Introduction" now playing at the Capitol Threatre is counted the best entertainer in the entire amusement field. Offers pour into his office with every mail. He has radio contracts, motion picture contracts, night club contracts. So voluminous is his business that he maintains a staff of five men to supervise details.

A year or so ago Bergen, failing in getting vaudeville or radio engagements, was eking out an existence about New York, appearing in night clubs and as an entertainer at private parties. And it was at one of Elsa Maxwell's gatherings that Noel Coward took an interest in him and persuaded Rudy Vallee to try him on his program.

Bergen went on the air, repeating the same material he had used in his first radio auditions. It was a sensational hit.

Bergen was born in Chicago, the son of Swedish parents. When he was about 13, he discovered he had a voice with which he could do strange tricks. Bergen realized he had the physical equipment of a ventriloquist. He developed the gift into an art.

Charlie McCarthy was already taking form in his mind. He wanted as his dummy a character patterned after a tough Irish newsboy he had known.

For $35 he bought Charlie's head from a Chicago carpenter named Mack. "I tacked the McCarthy to Charlie's name in memory of Mack," Bergen reveals.

Charlie helped Bergen through Northwestern University. When Bergen's study-marks dropped below passing average, he brought Charlie to school and entertained the professors, who thought so much of the act that they gave Bergen passing grades.

After graduation, Charlie and Bergen played vaudeville for eleven years. They toured the small circuits, ultimately graduating to the two-a-day, but never were considered a top act. It took the death of vaudeville to convert Charlie from a bright, saucy kid of the streets into a brazen, impertinent sophisticate. Bergen took McCarthy into the night clubs.

He gave Charlie a monocle, a dress suit and a top hat. It was during this period he attended the Elsa Maxwell party.

Bergen's appearance in "Letter of troduction to Adolphe Menjou ventriloquist, out of work who, through Andrea Leeds' letter of introduction to Adalphe Menjou, climbs the ladder of success. Many of the incidents of Bergen's life and his later successes, are reproduced in the picture.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, October 12

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A PARTICULARLY eventful and progressive day is presaged by important planetary aspects. Much will be stirring in both private and business lives, with new matters of moment in each direction being put over at high tension and with much commotion, gratification and pleasure. All may entail rather generous expenditure or financial outlay, with probable later embarrassments or anxieties. Secret or subtle affairs may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of splendid enterprise and attainments, in which undercover agreements, co-operation or even collusion may give the desired "boost." Personal friendship or intrigue may be influential, with much social indulgance and possibly heavy expenditures. These may later be a matter of embarrassment or concern, unless moderation be employed.

A child born on this day may be very energetic and productive in large enterprises or organizations, in which its engaging personality and popularity should assist its fine creative talents.

Replica of Regular Army

"The new scheme," said the Times (Independent) "makes the Territorial Army technically a replica of the regular army. It reflects the fact that we cannot afford in these days to depend upon improvisation. The only possible criticism which can be levelled against the scheme is that, like many other reforms in our system of national defence, it ought to have been carried out long ago.

"Herr Hitler said: 'I am of the opinion that it is cheaper to arm before events than to be unarmed at the mercy of events.' Mr. Chamberlain expressed exactly the same thought last Thursday.

"Mr. Chamberlain said in March, in a notable speech in the House of Commons, that 'the sight of this enormous, almost terrifying, power which Britain is build'ng up has a sobering effect, a steadying effect on the opinion of the world.' Unhappily, even since he spoke, the connotation of the words 'enormous' and 'terrifying' has changed.

"Finally, the review of our armed forces is only part of the task of organizing the whole nation which is now more than ever incumbent on the government. Indeed, it is difficult to see how the armed forces can be made adequate until the civilian front has been made sound."

The Daily Mail

The Daily Mail (Independent) wrote on the theme of conscription, emphasizing that unemployment is undiminished in Great Britain while "in Germany rearament has abolished unemployment." The paper mentioned the many letters it has received from its readers favoring a more or less definite form of "conscription without the name."

The Daily Express (Independent) demanded that Great Britain be prevented from lulling itself to sleep again. It featured a cartoon showing the British lion asleep before the recent crisis, half awaking during the crisis, and preparing now to settle back to sleep.

GIANT TRANS-CANADA AIRLINERS CONDUCT DAILY TRIAL FLIGHTS

W. M. S. Convention Held At West Huntingdon Church

West Huntingdon—The 13th annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, Belleville section, was held in the United Church here on Thursday, Oct. 6, 1938. Two sessions were held at 9.30 and 1.30 respectively.

Mrs. S. W. Spafford, vice president, presided over both services.

The Belleville section comprises 35 auxiliaries and there were 33 represented at the rally, with an attendance of 250 members. Mrs. J. S. Wilson of the local branch gave the address of welcome and Mrs. Harold Martin of Stirling replied. Mrs. W. J. Fitchett of the local branch contributed a solo.

The special speaker was Miss Cora Kilborn, Reg. N., of Chengtu Hospital, West China. This is the first time the ladies here had the honor or entertaining this outstanding rally, and they appreciated very much the inspiration that was brought to their missionary endeavors by the special speakers. Those contributing were Mrs. E. Denyes, Mrs. W. Osborne, Miss Eileen MacMullen, Mrs. J. W. Robbins, Mrs. E. Farnsworth, Miss Rachel Fox, Mrs. F. L. Hooper and Mrs. Frederick.

Dinner was served in the shed and Orange Hall. Next year rally will be held at Zion's Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. John McLeod, Roy and Marjorie left on Thursday for their new home at Bayside.

Mr. Samuel Donnan has purchased a new tractor and accessories.

Rev. E. H. Thompson, minister of the Standard Church at Ivanhoe, has been appointed Bishop of the Standard Church. Mr. Thompson's many friends wish him every success in his new field of duties. His new home will be at Brockville and he will be leaving in about 10 days.

Mrs. Fred Barlow of Thurlow is visiting her daughter Mrs. Foster Wilson.

The school children enjoyed a two day holiday while their teacher Miss Wright was attending the teachers' convention on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alle Brummell of Massassaga and attended church on Sunday evening at the Regular Baptist Church, Belleville.

Weddings

PURDEY—COOKE

The living room of 221 Bleecker Ave., Belleville, decorated with regal lilies and michaelmas daisies, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Thanksgiving Day afternoon, Oct. 10, 1938, when Gladys Eileen, daughter of Mr. George and Mrs. Cooke of Stirling, Ont., was married to Mr. Francis Lee Purdey, son of Mr. Francis and Mrs. Purdey of the Kingston Road.

Major the Rev. W. T. Keough, M.A., was the officiating clergyman.

The bride, who as given in marriage by her brother, wore a French model gown of vintage wine with black and gold accessories and carried Premier roses and violets.

Mr. Raymond Baker of Stirling, was groomsman.

SCHOFIELD—SEMPLE

At Bridge Street United Church parsonage, on Saturday, October 8, the wedding of Miss Agnes Semple and Mr. Davis Henry Schofield, took place, Rev. Dr. J. Semple officiating.

SHERRY—ADAMS

The marriage took place at Bridge Street Church parsonage on Wednesday October 5, of Miss Mildred Adams and Mr. Harry Milton Sherry, Rev. J. Semple officiating.

GURNSEY—GURNSEY

Quietly married on Saturday evening at 8.30 at Holloway Street United Church parsonage, 44 Hillside Street, by Rev. R. E. Newman, Mrs. Leona Gurnsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gilmour, Bloomfield, and Mr. James Eric Gurnsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gurnsey, Bloomfield. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gurnsey. The bride and groom will reside in Bloomfield.

CONLEY—DOW

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock at the Holloway Street United Church parsonage, 44 Hillside Street, by Rev. R. E. Newman, when Alice Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dow of Shannonville, became the bride of Mr. Elmer Conley, son of Mrs. Gay and the late William Conley, Sidney Township.

The bride wore a smart frock of navy blue chiffon with blue accessories. She was attended by Mrs. W. J. Conley, who also wore navy chiffon. Mr. W. J. Conley was his brother's groomsman.

Following the ceremony which took place in the presence of immediate relatives of the couple, there was a buffet luncheon. After a wedding trip to Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Conley will reside in Belleville.

LONG—JUNKIN

With the Rev. W. Sterling officiating, a charming wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Junkin, Fenelon Falls, when their daughter, Norma Jean, was married to Mr. Basil E. Long, Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Long, Trenton. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Fred Jackett, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white taffeta, made on princess lines with bolero jacket, and white tulle shoulder-length veil and carried a bouquet of red roses. Miss Beryl Bowhey, Lindsay, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of pink taffeta and carrying a bouquet of Butterfly roses. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Arthur Long, Oshawa.

A reception was held, the bride's mother receiving in rust sheer crepe and the mother of the bridegroom in wine triple sheer. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Long left on a trip, the bride travelling in a navy sheer dress, burgundy coat and black accessories. They will reside in Hamilton.

PRESENTATION

On Thursday evening a large number of friends gathered at the Stone Church hall to honor Mr. and Mrs. Farley Vermilyea, (nee Vera McAdam.)

The gathering was called to order by Rev. H. B. Johnston and after community singing and games Mr. and Mrs. Vermilyea were called to the front. The following address was read by Miss Mary MacPherson to which the bride and groom responded. Several were called on for speeches and all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows."

4th Sidney, Oct. 6 1938.

Mr. and Mrs. Farley Vermilyea,

Dear Vera and Farley:

We, your neighbors and friends have gathered here this evening to offer to you both, our heartiest and most sincere congratulations on your marriage and our deepest wish for a long and happy married life.

To you, Mrs. Vermilyea or Vera, as no doubt you will be known, we extend a hearty welcome and know that in a short time you will be counted one of our dearest friends. It would be needless to tell you to take excellent care of your husband. It may be your greatest worry, but remember that pillows were made before rolling pins. May all your fights and arguments be short lived.

To you, Farley, who are so popularly known and liked by everyone here, we extend congratulations on securing so lovely a bride. May you continue to be the same good sport as in the past, with your friendly and cheerful nature, that has won you many friends.

Besides your home and business interests, may you and your wife take an active part in the affairs of the community and church.

We trust that his clock will find a useful corner in your home and may serve as a pleasant remembrance of the people who have gathered here this evening to wish you the best of luck and God's richest blessing.

Don't Punish Child for Truth

MOTHER WAS angry, and her voice showed it. "Where's my perfume?" she asked loudly "Bessie, have you seen it? Esther, did you take it?"

No one had, of course. No one, Mother had discovered, was ever at fault in these cases.

"It couldn't have flown away," she went on irritably. "Oswald, did you knock it over? You know I've forbidden any of you to play with the things on my dressing table." Little Oswald joined the group, scowling and with fists clinched. He was undergoing a struggle. He knew perfume was one of his mother's chief weaknesses; he knew too, that she was in no mood to be trifled with. But in spite of all that, he finally admitted it.

"I did it, mother," he said. "I tipped it over and it broke. I didn't mean to."

Mother turned on him furiously. "You and Bessie were rough-housing?"

"N-no, Bessie was doing her lessons. I—I was alone."

A sudden change of expression came over his mother's face. She smiled and held out her hand to him.

"You're a brave, honest boy, Oswald. You came and told me what you did, and you didn't try to shove the blame onto anyone else. I'm not going to punish you. Just please be careful next time."

Oswald had been forbidden to go near Mother's dressing table. He had disobeyed. He had been guilty of carelessness and lack of consideration for the possessions of others. And yet, because of a voluntary confession, his mother had praised him instead of punishing him. Was she wise?

She was extremely wise, and far-sighted.

You see, it was the first time Oswald had summoned enough courage to behave in that way. Previously, when guilty of a misdemeanor, he had hidden. When cornered, he had lied or shifted the blame to someone else.

If mother had punished him on top of his first confession, he would have learned just one thing —not to confess next time. He would promptly have reverted to his previous method.

Disobedience is a fault in a child, of course. But it's not nearly so serious as lying, shifting the blame, or otherwise refusing to take the blame for his own misbehavior. Oswald should be taught to obey, certainly; he should be taught not to be careless and to respect the belongings of others But, above all, he should be encouraged to form the habit of honesty and truthfulness, and to have enough courage to face anyone with a frank confession of guilt.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

This Girl Should Make Up Her Mind

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For five years I have been going with a man who treats me swell. I've no reason to get angry with him, but I do, if he doesn't come over to see me. If he goes out with other girls I am jealous. But if he visits me for several consecutive evenings, I get bored and disgusted with everything he says and does.

He tells me he loves me and has asked me to marry him. I don't think it would work out under the circumstances. Do you?

Still I don't care to go out with anybody else, because I keep thinking of him. I've been told if I really loved him, I'd know it right away, but I don't. Should we break up completely, or wait and see if I change?

Bewildered

If you break up completely, you will probably write me in a few weeks time. especially if you see him out with another girl, that you never knew till now how much you were in love. Have you ever heard of "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary?" Cultivate decision, make up your mind, instead of indulging in jealousy when this long-suffering young man goes out with other girls.

Wife Has to Pay Her Share

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When we were married seven years ago, I borrowed the money on which we lived. We took over a small business and, by working early and late, I helped my husband to make a success of it. He managed the money end, and I had to ask for every penny I needed. He said we'd divide the profits, but there was trouble about that.

Now whenever he takes me out, which is seldom, I have to pay my share of the outing, even to the tips. I want to keep a safety deposit box which contains my will and a few valuable papers, in my own name, as I have a son by a previous marriage. He objects. I believe if he has access to the box he might destroy my will.

Now he threatens to sell out the business and leave me, if any little thing doesn't go to suit him. I've had several serious sick spells as the results of his fits of temper and the way he yells at me before people.

Disheartened

If you helped to establish the business, particularly if you have put money in it, you must have certain legal rights to the property. I should advise you to consult a lawyer. You are certainly entitled to have your own safe deposit box.

Good Reason for Disgust

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I worked hard to put my husband's daughters by a previous marriage through high school and two years of college. For the past eight years I have had a steady job in a store, keep house, do the cooking, washing and ironing, and have to count pennies. My husband's daughters, who are in the late twenties, and his widowed sister, demand money constantly, saying they're not well enough to work.

My sister-in-law has grown sons. My husband's daughters are well educated. I was glad to do what I could when the girls were small but now I'm gettin pretty tired of this proposition.

Disgusted Wife

Why do you keep on, my dear lady. Don't you know that in some instances, as long as one member of a family agrees to be the draft horse, the others will climb right in the wagon and do the driving? Why not save the salary you make in the store and play invalid yourself for a while? Judging from what you've written me, I don't wonder you're disgusted.

Giving a Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman—

A very dear girl friend of mine is to be married very soon, and there are several questions I would like answered.

I would like to have a linen shower for her. I do not know many of her girl friends, as she is from out of town, but works in this city. There are four girls whom I know I can invite, and two girls whom I have met about six times. I can invite these girls also, making six in all. Do you have any ideas on giving showers, bridge-showers, shower luncheons, or any party where I can invite the groom-to-be, if necessary, as long as I do not know so many of her friends.

My main idea is to give her a party of some kind, where the guests will bring gifts, and I hope you can give me ideas as to this.

R.

You do not, apparently, have much "social material" for the giving of a shower, for the guests that one invites to a shower should be intimate friends of the bride-to-be. In other words, it is appropriate for us to suggest to a bride-elect's close friends that they bring gifts to a shower, but we naturally hesitate about making this request of casual friends or mere acquaintances.

Are the six girls you mention as possible guests close friends of this girl? If they are, why not limit your girl guest list to them. Make your party an evening party, invite the groom-to-be and some other men guests. Then plan to have your shower the early part of the evening, with only the girls as guests at the shower, and the men invited to come in afterward. Then, since you mention bridge, you might have some tables of bridge, and, afterward, the serving of the refreshments. Your buffet table might be charmingly set to carry out the bridal motif, with white flowers, or white and pink flowers as a centrepiece.

Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please help me with my wedding plans. The prospective groom is having his brother for his best man. The brother is married. I have met the brother's wife a few times, but do not know her well. I would like to have my sister as my maid of honor and my girl friends, of years standing, as bridesmaids. It has been said that if the best man is married, his wife must be invited to be a bridesmaid.

I have no feeling for the best man's wife, other than mere acquaintanceship. The wife has never been too friendly to me. How can I slight my own dear friends in order to provide a bridesmaid's place for her? After all, my wedding is the most important thing in my life, and I do want to be happy about it.

Is it absolutely necessary that the married best man's wife be a part of the ceremony, when it would cause me a little distress? To extend her this invitation would make me a hypocrite, as I do not want her for a bridesmaid.

I hope this is plain to you so that you can help me.

Bride-to-be

I can put your mind at rest at once concerning this problem. There is no reason in the world why a bride should invite the best man's wife to be in her wedding party, unless she really is her closest friend and therefore especially wishes to invite her. It is definitely taken for granted that the bride selects whom she wishes for her attendants, and the groom selects whom he wishes for his best man and ushers.

It is also definitely customary for the bride, if she has a sister, to invite her to be her chief attendant, her maid of honor. For her bridesmaids, she should invite her close girl friends.

Whoever told you that, "If the best man is married, his wife must be invited to be a bridesmaid" just isn't correct about this. Pay no attention to this misinformation, and carry out the plans as preferred.

NEW GOLD AND CHERRY MAKE-UP FOR BRUNETTE

By HELEN FOLLETT

FOR THE BRUNETTE who fares forth to the merry evening party arrayed in a black gown, there is nothing lovelier than the new gold and cherry make-up.

Powder is a deep ivory with a golden cast. Almost any complexion will "cuddle" up to it; it's nice for blondes and redheads as well as those with raven locks. After fluffing it on lightly, the candidate for charm touches her cheeks and temples with a faint rose rouge—not carmine, mind you; that's too scenic.

The cherry lipstick then is put to use. Select one that is fairly oily so lips will appear moist. The broad line isn't fashionable now. Lips are well veneered, but there's no effort made to widen them after the manner of some of our movie stars. The pigment must be smoothed onto the inner surface, but not so far that the teeth will pick up patches of the ruby film.

No eye shadows are used with this make-up. When eye shutters are painted, it is wise to omit commercial blushes.

Lady for Shanghai

—By—

Kaye Fox

But it was a long time before she could get him to go to sleep. Christine, sitting by his bed with his small hand in hers, talking to him in a low, soothing voice. Christine's thoughts wandered to Fay, whom she had hushed off to sleep so often, years ago. She had not seen Fay since their quarrel, and she had been so harassed by all the trouble about herself and Grant, so nerve-racked by Perrin's bullying, that her anxiety about Fay had slipped into the background.

Closely watched as she was, now, it would be almost impossible to see Fay alone, even for a few moments. The chances were that at this very minute Pussyfoot was looking out for her hoping to get some real evidence to back the fantastic story which he had set about.

CHAPTER VIII

SPY IN THE DARK CABIN

"What on earth is the matter, stewardess?" Mrs. Farrant, turning on the light as she came into the room, stared at Christine in astonishment.

"Dion couldn't sleep—he's frightened of being alone in the dark," Christine said uietly. "He's asleep now, and I was just going."

"He's a naughty little boy, simply making a silly fuss because he wants attention. You should take no notice of him, stewardess," Mrs. Farrant said, opening a drawer of the dressing table and taking out a box of cigarettes.

She went out at once, and Christine followed her without saying anything more. Glancing at her watch, Christine saw that it was well past eleven o'clock.

Would it be safe, she wondered, to go to Fay's room for a few moments? There was no sign of Pussyfoot, but some instinct warned Christine that he was on the watch and that he would almost certainly catch her if she went to Fay. She went straight down the narrow companion amidships, the nearest way to her own cabin.

With her hand on the half-closed door, she turned her head. There was a bathroom almost opposite to the end of the short alleyway which led to the stewardess' cabin, and Christine noticed suddenly that the door of the bathroom was a few inches ajar, though the bath steward on that deck was always careful to close all doors.

She went into her cabin and picked up her bath towel and sponge bag. In that heat, it was by no means unusual for a stewardess who had been working late to have a bath before she went to bed. If there was a watcher in that bathroom, he would think that she had discovered him by sheer accident.

Pussyfoot must have known as soon as she came out of the cabin, with a towel over her arm, that she was bound to find him, for he stepped out of the bathroom with a very casual air.

"Passenger dropped a cuff link, and thought he might have left it in there," he said hastily. "I was ujst looking for it."

"In the dark?" she said, giving him a long, cool stare.

"I'd just turned out the light when I heard you coming."

Christine went into the bathroom and shut the door, without taking any more notice of him. Of course, when he posted himself in the bathroom he hadn't known that she was on the upper deck — he had simply been waiting to see whether she came out of the cabin after the other stewardesses were asleep. But since, from the bathroom door, he had a clear view right along the main starboard alley-way, he would have seen her if she had gone to Fay's room.

She remembered, suddenly a form of madness which the old doctor on the Brent had once told her about—claustrophobia, the panic fear of being shut up in a small space. It seemed to her that life on board ship, under a Chief Steward like Perrin, must produce that form of madness, a terror because there was no escape.

Cator and Edwards Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane, Pussyfoot, even the bell-boys—she'd lose her nerve entirely if she began to reckon up all the people who were Perrin's spies, and who would run to him with the story of they found out anything at all against her. The only thing to do was to try to convince herself that she was not scared of Perrin, and that she did not care what people told him: she must laugh, like Arthur Grant, who was having almost as bad a time as she was, but who was taking it much more lightly.

Of course Arthur was luckier than Christine in one way, and it was a very important way. He could forget his troubles in the company of his friends, George and a few others, while Christine spent her scantily leisure time with Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane, who were still not speaking to her, and who were her declared enemies.

Christine was resting the next afternoon, half asleep, when she was roused by the sound of running footsteps in the alley-way, and a moment later Arthur Grant knocked at the cabin door.

"Miss Jordan, you're wanted," he said, in an urgent whisper.

"Don't you know better than to come here in the afternoon, Grant, waking us all up?" Mrs. Parr snapper at him. "We're not on duty."

"Doctor's orders, Mrs. Parr," Grant said curtly, and added, to Christine, "On the after deck, Miss Jordan. There's been an accident."

Christine dressed at lightning speed, and in two minutes joined Grant, who was waiting for her in the main alleyway, just out of hearing of the stewardesses' cabin.

"It's that little chap, Dion Farrant," he explained, as they hurried along together. "He was climbing over the rail, and slipped and fell on the after deck. His mother is nowhere about, and Dr. Stanhope told me not to bother to look for her, but to fetch you at once."

"He's not—killed?"

"No, but he's pretty bad. It's a long drop for a child."

Coming out suddenly into the brilliant sunlight on the after deck, Christine was at first too dazzled to see anything. Then she saw the huddled body of Dion Farrant on the deck, and John Stanhope stooping over him. Above, half a dozen terrified children peered through the rails which guarded the deck, and the frightened sobbing of a little girl broke the tense silence.

Dion was conscious. As Christine ran forward, he opened his eyes, and made a pathetic effort to smile at her, though his face was twisted with pain.

"We'll take him straight up to the hospital," John Stanhope said.

"Do you want the stretcher?"

"No—we can't take the stretcher up the outside companion, and that's the quickest way. I'll carry him. He knows you, doesn't he?"

"She's — a friend of mine," Dion whispered faintly.

"Then you won't be frightened if she comes with us?" John Stanhope said, very gently.

The doctor lifted him very easily, but though it only took a few minutes to carry him up the spiral iron companion to the boat deck, it seemed an eternity to Christine, who followed close behind them. She could hear Dion trying desperately not to sob, and at every turn of the stair she saw that small, pain-racked face, and John's face, very grave and tender above it.

"We'll soon stop the pain now, Dion," John said, laying him down on the hospital bed. "Miss Jordan, give him your hand to hold on to—that's what he wants — while I have a look in my cupboard."

"Not—a baby," Dion gasped, as his small hand closed very tightly over Christine's fingers. "I'm not a baby, Miss Jordan."

"You're a very brave boy," she said quietly.

"They said—I was a baby, an' I climbed over the rail — to show them—an' the ship jumped."

A CHAT WITH THE DOCTOR

John came back to them from the outer room. Christine knew already that Dion's left arm was broken, and she helped John to set it, and to make the thorough examination which had not been possible on deck.

Half an hour later, Dion was lying in a drugged sleep, and John stood up straight and stretched himself.

"The child's badly shaken and bruised, of course," he said, "but I think there's no serious injury but the broken arm—he must have fallen like a cat. Shock is going to be the real problem, for I should think he's a highly-strung little beggar. Have you had a lot to do with him, Miss Jordan?"

"He only moved up into my section yesterday, but we made friends last night."

"You didn't lose much time," he said, and smiled at her, and Christine's heart leapt, for it was the first time he had dropped his entirely formal manner since the night when he had found her absent from the hospital.

"There's been a tiger in his room, he says, every night since we were in the Suez Canal. And last night he couldn't bear that tiger alone any longer."

"So you sat up with him? It's just as well, as it happens, for he trusts you, and if he runs a temperature—which he will poor little beggar—and there's a whole zoo in the room with him you'll be able to keep them off. Well, I suppose I'd better go and look for his mother, and break the news to her."

"She'll take it very calmly indeed, if I know anything of her," Christine said drily.

It was a long time before he returned with the news that no one had yet been able to find Mrs. Ferrant. "I've found out why the boy climbed over the rail," he remarked casually.

"Because the other children called him a baby?"

"Yes—but can you guess why they did it? His mother got annoyed with him for some reason, this morning, and taunted him with being such a baby that he was afraid of the dark—in front of a whole lot of other kids. One of them has been teasing the life out of Dion all day, and in the end dared him to climb the rail, and of course Dion had to do it."

When Mrs. Farrant strolled up to the hospital at last, about five o'clock, it was quite clear that she expected Christine to do all the nursing. Dion was still asleep when she came in, and she glanced at him in an indifferent way, said, as Christine had expected that he was a naughty little boy to give so much trouble, and then strolled out again, to join the two men who were waiting for her outside the hospital.

Of course Dion's illness meant a great deal of extra work for Christine, but she did not mind the work for she was set free, to a certain extent, from Perrin's persecution. While Christine was working with the ship's doctor, he dare not detain her for one moment after inspection, since she had to go up to the hospital when her bedroom work was finished, and he dare not harass her, lest the doctor should notice that she was looking overtired or nervous.

"Nursing seems to suit you, Miss Jordan," John Stanhope said, on the second day of Dion's illness—he had come up to the hospital in the afternoon, and found Christine telling Dion a fairy-tale. "You ought to be resting at this time, but you don't look tired."

"It's so peaceful up here," she said, "away from everything."

"Away from everything?" he said thoughtfully, lighting a cigarette and swinging himself up on to the edge of the table. "I suppose that is one of the big drawbacks of a stewardess's life—that she can't get away. Why did you come to sea, Miss Jordan? Was it because you were restless, wanted to see strange places, instead of settling into some dull job at home? I've wondered sometimes—what attraction this sort of life has for a girl like you."

"I came to sea because the pay is fairly good", she said, with a little laugh. "My mother was a stewardess before me. Dr. Stanhope and I had no illusions at all about the life—I knew that it meant hard work, and not much amusement, and that there's nothing very romantic about places like Marseilles and Singapore and Penang, when all you see of them is the wharves. But the Company pays my mother an allowance all the time that I'm away."

"There are just the two of you—you and your mother?" he asked, his blue eyes alight with friendly interest.

"And a sister—younger than I am. But she's independent now."

Her face clouded when she spoke of Fay, for the thought of Fay was an ever-present worry to her, pushed into the background when she had other things to think of, but always there. She wondered what John Stanhope would think if she told him that her sister was a passenger on this very ship, and that for days she had been trying in vain to see her.

"Is that why you understand children?" John said. "Because your mother was away at sea, and you looked after your younger sister?"

"That's why."

He looked at her without speaking, a long thoughtful look, as if he was seeing her in a new aspect.

"It's queer," he said at last, echoing her thought, "how little we really know of one another we see people. All of us, from the Captain to the bell boy, have friends and relations at home, but we're cut off from them, shut up for three and a half months, with a crowd of strangers, of whose lives we know nothing except what they tell us."

"And they tell very little—if they're wise. You'll find that most people who have been at sea for some time hardly speak of their homes, because—because their homes are the only things in their lives which don't change perpetually. Friendships at sea are so fleeting — if you make a friend at sea, next trip you may be on another ship, or your friend may have been transferred, and you'll never meet again."

"Is that your rule? Do you never make friends at sea Miss Jordan?" he asked.

THE INTERRUPTED KISS

She was opening her lips to speak when Radlett came hurriedly into the hospital, after knocking at the outer door.

"Will you come at once, please, Doctor?" he said. "One of the cooks has just knocked a pan of boiling water over himself, and his foot and leg are rather badly scalded."

"I'll be there in a few moments." John promised and with a nod to Christine he swung out of the hospital.

Before he came back, old Mrs. Bugle had come bustling up to sit with Dion for a time, and Christine had returned to her ordinary duties—two or three of the passengers were helping her by sitting with Dion at her busy times. But though her conversation with John Stanhope had been interrupted, he had said enough to make her happy, to make her sing under her breath as she ran down the companion.

She could bear anything now, Perrin's bullying, and the hostility of the others. How could she be oppressed by the sour silence of Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane when she could look forward to talks with John Stanhope, brief though they might be?

It was at night that Dion needed Christine most. He was a little feverish then, and, as John had prophesied, there was a whole zoo in the room with him.

That night, Mrs. Farrant made things worse by coming up to see the child when he was falling off to sleep—she had hardly been near him all day. She came in so noisily, her high heels clattering on the deck, that he started up in bed with a little cry of dismay.

"Well, how's the patient, stewardess?" she asked, in her hard, brazen voice. "You don't look very pleased to see me, Dion, I must say."

"He was nearly asleep," Christine said quietly.

"Do you have to sit up with him all night? They ought to have a trained nurse on board—I believe they do on the big liners."

"Dr. Stanhope will be sleeping up here to-night, in the outer room, but Dion will probably sleep through until morning if he once gets off."

"I'll leave you to it, stewardess," Mrs. Farrant said indifferently, clattering out of the hospital again.

When at last the boy slept, breathing softly and evenly, Christine herself was sleepy, so sleepy that she hoped John Stanhope would not be very late that night. As she knew, he had a dressing to do for the man who had been scalded in the afternoon.

She was leaning back in the big armchair, when she was roused by light footsteps in the outer room, and a moment later, Arthur Grant stood in the doorway, looking at her with an amused twinkle in his eyes.

Christine saw at a glance that Arthur had been drinking. He was not drunk, but there was an air of recklessness about him: his white coat was buttoned awry, as if it had been hastily put on, his face was flushed and his hair rumpled.

"Hallo, Christine," he said, and began to laugh.

"What are you doing up here Arthur?" she asked. "It's after eleven."

"Just came to look you up, Christine, and have a talk. After all, they've all been taking such jolly good care that we shouldn't have a talk that I thought it would be a lark to give them the slip. Don't you see, Christine? It's a sort of game we're all playing, and you and I score if we manage to meet in spite of 'em."

"Anyhow, we have met, if that's any satisfaction to you, so you can go to bed now with an easy mind. Good-night, Arthur."

But she was not to get rid of him so easily as all that. He lounged across the hospital and leaned against the edge of the table, very close to her chair.

"You're rather sweet, Christine," he said lightly, putting out his hand to pull the little curl which would bob forward from under her cap.

"Your rather drunk, Arthur," she said, her voice very cool and quiet.

"I've just had a few drinks Christine—been drowning our sorrows—but I'm not drunk. Christine—you do like me a little, don't you? We're good pals?"

He stooped swiftly, taking her by surprise. His hands were on her shoulders, and his lips were very close to hers, when he suddenly released her and wheeled round — they had both heard John Stanhope come into the room.

CHAPTER IX

THE DOCTOR'S REPORT

"I must apologize for interrupting you," John said, and his voice was so icy cold the Christine shivered, "but I did not, of course, expect to find you in the hospital, Grant."

Arthur Grant, completely sobered by the shock of seeing him, stood at attention, but Christine could only crouch back in the armchair, her eyes on John's face. He did not look angry: his face was as cold and expressionless as his voice.

"If you make a report, sir," Arthur Grant said hoarsely, "it will mean finish for both of us, for Miss Jordan as well as me. I was in a silly mood to-night, and I came up here—I've never even tried to kiss Miss Jordan before, and she would have pushed me away now, if she'd had time. But Mr. Perrin wouldn't believe that, Doctor."

"Whether I believe it or not, I shall say nothing to Mr. Perrin," John said. "It's not my business."

"It's quite true that he has never tried to kiss me before", Christine whispered. "You must believe that."

"I've said that it's not my business," he told her curtly. "If you had wakened the child it would have been another matter, but the way in which you—amuse yourself is no concern of mine Miss Jordan."

She knew then that his thoughts had leapt back to the night when she had been absent from the hospital. The chances were that he had heard some at least of the gossip about herself and Grant and that he believed now that she had left Miss Robins because she had arranged to meet Grant that night. No wonder that Arthur's statement that he had never tried to kiss her before seemed to John Stanhope simply an attempt to defend her.

It would be hopeless to try to convince him that he had made a mistake—that everyone on the ship was equally mistaken. Even if he did not believe the worst of her, he would think her silly and deceitful.

"Has the boy been asleep long?" John asked formally.

Grant, with an apologetic glance at Christine, went out of the hospital and she stood up and made her report about Dion in a lifeless voice. She felt crushed and utterly hopeless, and her impulse to try to explain, to force John Stanhope to believe that there was nothing between herself and the steward, was quelled by the stony look on his face. It was no concern of his; they were not friends.

And it was on that night, of all nights, that she met Fay in the alley-way when she was on her way to her own cabin. They met face to face, and though at first Christine thought that Fay would pass her without speaking, Fay passed with an angry little shrug.

"I've been fetching a book from the lounge", she said sulkily. "It's too hot to sleep—it's as hot as a furnace even out on deck. I expect it's cool enough in the cabin de luxe, with the big fan going, but thanks to your prudishness, I can't join the party there—I've got to wander about the ship by myself."

"So you still are angry with me, Fay?" Christine said wearily.

Fay's room was actually cooler than the alley-way—and much cooler than the crowded stewardesses' cabin — for the electric fan was going there, too. Christine went to the window and with unseeing eyes watched the flying fish leap above the waves, faintly phosphorescent in the moonlight — she had crossed the Indian Ocean so often that flying fish no longer caught her attention.

"Of course I'm still angry with you," Fay said, slipping off her dressing gown and throwing herself down on the bed. "Martin must think I'm mad, or as coy as a village maiden in a melodrama, when I keep on refusing to go to his parties. He's still keen on me, but I can see he's getting sick of it."

"The voyage will soon be over," Christine said, more to herself than to Fay. She wasn't thinking of Fay and Martin at that moment, but of herself and John Stanhope—when the voyage was over she must try to get a transfer, if Perrin did not get her dismissed, or she could not bear to stay on the same ship. How many weeks, how many weary weeks, before the voyage was over?

Get Wise to Constipation!

When you're constipated, it's a great temptation to be satisfied with quick relief. But physics may become a habit. And they don't keep constipation from returning. It's so much better to get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat what most people do, chances are the only thing the matter is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat a little Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

RESTLESS CHILDREN

Children are an easy prey to worms. They become restless and peevish with this condition. At the first sign of this, give your children Miller's Worm Powders. A time-proven relief, a safe, pleasant-tasting powder that cleanses the system, relieves and promotes the return to normal health and well-being. Generations of wise mothers have used them with benefit to their children. You, too, will be pleased with the results.

Opening Football Scrambles Of Season Played Without A Single Upset Registered

Sarnia Imperials Down Beaches After Losing First Touch

ORFUNS BEATEN

Peterboro Making First Start In Senior Company Bow To Montreal

BY Sydney Gruson

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coming out of the season's opening football scramble without a single upset, the east took stock today of a half-dozen results that left it little the wiser of where to look for the section's 1938 champion. First returns showed only three of the 12 teams beyond serious consideration.

National champions of 1937, Toronto Argonauts escaped unscathed in their first Interprovincial Union brush against Hamilton Tigers while their strongest rivals, Ottawa Rough Riders, stampeded Montreal Cubs 37-0. Argos licked Tigers 21-8 on a last-quarter rally.

These results left fans two weeks to wait until they get a definite line on the strength of both victors. They will meet in Toronto Oct. 22 and in Ottawa the following Saturday.

Opening Saturday with the Big Four, the Intercollegiate Union found University of Toronto pounding out a 13-6 victory over Queen's at Kingston and McGill, with Herbie Westman kicking all the points, defeating University of Western Ontario 4-1 at Montreal. About all this proved was that the college circuit had four evenly-matched teams.

Imperials Down Beaches

Topping all others, Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach drew 16,000 to Varsity Stadium in Toronto yesterday while they opened the Ontario Union Senior series with a hard-fought, well-played game, won 8-6 by Imperials. In Montreal the newly-formed Nationals swamped Peterborough Orfuns 26-6 before 4,500 fans.

Warren Stevens' Toronto Collegians suffered the toughest blow when they lost Jim MacDonald, swift backfielder, for the season. MacDonald fractured an ankle in the third quarter, just before the blue machine started rolling to wipe out a five-point, half-time deficit with touchdowns by Ben Shnken and Bee Rowland.

Queen's, vastly underrated in early-season figuring, set Toronto back swiftly as Jack Brown kicked a single and Joe Turner picked up a fumble for a 15-yard run and a touchdown. Once Toronto started, however, with Cam Gray and Rowland picking up power as the game lengthened, they couldn't be held in check.

McGill Has Kicker

McGill got the one thing they lacked last season—good kicking—and they made the most of Westman's advantage over Lyn Thompson and Jack Kennedy. When Western threatened, Westman got the Redmen out of the hole with his kicking, aided by strong plunging by Bob Keefer and Andy Anton.

For three quarters, Tigers appeared equal to the Canadian champions, then they folded as Art West raced 35 yards for one touchdown and 45 on an extension play to the Tigers five from where Teddy Morris scooted over for another. Tigers led 6-1 at the end of the first quarter, were even at the half, 6-6, and were only two points behind as Argos led 9-7 at the end of the third.

Tigers outpassed and outplunged the champions, gaining 229 yards from scrimmage to 122 for Argos. Leading the Hamilton assault was young Denny Whitaker, the outstanding player of the game, who handled the team perfectly from quarterback, caught faultlessly and plunged and passed well. He fired a touchdown pass to Ivan Edwards after Argos gave them the ball on a fumble seven yards out.

No Match for Ottawa

Cubs, made over from the remnants of last season's Montreal Indians, were no match for the Ottawa tanks. Marching down the field almost at will, Riders scored six touchdowns with Stan O'Neil gathering two on passes. Dave Sprague, Bunny Wadsworth, Orville Burke and Andy Tommy shared the others.

Syd Reynolds picked up a fumble by Hugh Stirling to run 78 yards for a touchdown in the second minute of the Beach-Imperial game, then Stirling proceeded to make up for the bobble by kicking and passing Imperials to victory. A perfect flicker-pass play on which five men handled the ball gave Imperials their winning touchdown in the second quarter.

Tony Golab, replacing the late Orm Beach on the Imperial backfield, finally carried it over.

Orfuns Swamped

Though defeated and outplayed most of the way, Beaches showed they would be in the thick of the fight with Imperials and Montreal Nationals, who scored in every quarter over the youthful Orfuns, making their first start in senior company.

Two 25-yard passes by Johnny Ferraro paved the way for two touchdowns, both by Tommy Burns, while Buddy Atcheson got the other on a 35-yard sweep around the end. Norm Louckes was Peterborough's best, setting up their touchdown with a 35-yard sprint to the Nats' five. Don Crowe plunged over.

BURLEIGH GRIMES OUT AT BROOKLYN

Larry Macphail Will Give No Hint of His Choice As Successor

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—While Larry MacPhail wouldn't give any hints as to his choice of a successor for Burleigh Grimes when he finally made the formal announcement that "Boiling Bolly" wouldn't be retained as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, the odds favor Leo Durocher.

MacPhail listed the names of five candidates, Durocher, Jimmy Wilson, Charley Dressen, Frankie Frisch and Bill Killefer, then as the argument among newspapermen waxed hot he began accepting wagers from them—with a 25 cent limit.

Durocher started at 9 to 5 in MacPhail's "book"—he used a table cloth to record the bets—and wound up at 4 to 5. Dressen and Wilson opened at 8 to 5, Killefer at 5 to 1 and Frisch at 10 to 1.

CALGARY BRONKS IN 3-WAY TIE

Score Wins Over Regina And Winnipeg Over Week-end

Winnipeg Oct. 11 (CP)—Calgary Bronks created a three-way tie for leadership in the Western Interprovincial Football Union during a week-end of heavy firing on two Alberta battlefronts and today are red-hot favorites to hold that spot alone when scheduled firing ceases Oct. 22.

Bronks bucked alongside Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Regina Roughriders the hard way, for they added a 5-3 victory over Roughriders yesterday to Saturday's 14-0 conquest of Bombers. Both games were at Calgary.

Despite the setbacks, Winnipeg and Regina stayed even with Bronks, each with four wins and two loses, by trouncing Eskimos at Edmonton. Bombers' 25-12 win yesterday followed Regina's 17-0 triumph Saturday. Eskimos were eliminated and the leading three teams will play off.

Each Western Union Club has two games to play before completing the 1938 schedule and Calgary holds a margin over its first-place rivals in that their games are against the winless Edmonton Eskimos while Winnipeg play host to each other once more.

Masters of Situation

Carl Cronin's Bronks were masters over Winnipeg offensively and defensively Saturday and followed Johnny Mike Sullivan and Jimmy Gilkes to a merited win. Gilkes swept around the end for eight yards to score the game's opening touchdown after Sullivan had sped for a 56-yard gain in the first quarter Half-time score was 5-0.

Fritzie Hanson, playing his first game of the season in a Bomber uniform, was roughed in the third quarter and then dropped behind the goal-line for a safety touch in the fourth. Gilkes followed with a sparkling 36-yard run to set up Sullivan's short touchdown gallop, converted by Paul Rowe.

Hard Bruising Play

In their second home game, Calgary switched from a free-wheeling offensive to hard, bruising play to stop Regina yesterday. Johnny Rosano, husky little flying wing, supplied the scoring spark, falling on a loose ball over the Regina goal-line near the close of the first half. It was the game's only touchdown and followed a second-quarter field goal by Regina's Bert Nelson.

Edmonton fared better against Winnipeg than Regina on their home lot but costly fumbles prevented them from scoring their initial victory.

Kingston Garrison Smother Belleville Panthers 31 to 6 In Opening Football Game

Third Period Barrage By "Army" Gives Winners Advantage

MANY FUMBLES

Army Team Always Gained On An Exchange of Punts

Showing too much power along the line of scrimmage and then capitalizing to the fullest measure on the fumbles of the locals, the Kingston Garrison steam-rolled to a 31 to 6 victory over the Belleville Panthers before 500 lovers of the autumn pastime at the Fair Grounds yesterday in the opening game of the district O.R.F.U. football group.

Valiantly Coach Archie Duffield's Panthers stood off the sturdy "Army boys", who outweighed the locals to a noticeable degree in all departments, but their defensive efforts were all in vain as the Garrison unleashed a torrid third period attack, that left the Panthers crushed and defeated. Kingston opened the scoring during the first five minutes and were leading 8-0 as the second stanza swung into action. The Panthers broke into the scoring column in this period for their only touchdown, and were only trailing 9-6 at half time. Seventeen points in the third quarter cinched the piece for the "army."

Gray Punts Well

With "Nig" Gray, Kingston's sterling kicker in rare form, the "army" always gained advantage on exchange of punts, while Coach Bob Elliott's line plunging, coupled with Law's lengthy drives for repeated gains of yards are a few of the factors, that resulted in the Panthers' defeat. Sensing their advantage, the Garrison ripped and tore through the Belleville line to "steam-roller" over the locals throughout the second half, but fumbles of Kingston punts by Belleville safety men, which were recovered by the visitors, actually placed the pig-skin in position for four of the army's five touchdowns.

The Belleville ends stood up under the terrific onslaught remarkably well, as the line showed strength as the game progressed. Generally speaking the secondary line bore the brunt of Kingston's driving attack, but when so markedly outweighed, the smaller Panthers ultimately fell before their more sturdy opponents. Gray and Armshaw convincingly outkicked Blaker, however.

(The Play)

Belleville kicked off and Gray returned to have the Panthers fumble on their own 15 yard line, Elliott falling on the loose ball. Gray kicked, after two plunges failed, for a point and later returned to boot again, Grant being roughed. Elliott took a forward for yards, but Storey fumbled on Belleville's five yard line, Gray crashing over for a touchdown, which he also converted.

Early in the second quarter, Dunn intercepted Pepper's forward pass, but in knocking it down, "Yoke" Cook dashed in and caught the oval in mid-air to gallop 50 yards on the play to Kingston's ten, Pepper plunging over on a first down for a touchdown, which Pat Blaker converted. With the score standing 8-6 against them the Panthers showed their best football at this point, Cole, Flagler and McKee tossing the "army" for noticeable loss of yardage, but no scoring.

The Garrison broke through to block Lionel Blaker's kick early in the third quarter, Vivian falling on the loose ball for a touchdown, which was not converted. Storey fumbled a subsequent kick and Vivian was through to recover again. On two successive plunges Elliott brought the ball close to the Belleville goal and Gray went over, Elliott converting, score 19-6. The "army" were literally rolling over the locals as Gray went around right end for another try, converted to make the score 25-6 and the last quarter opened.

Passes Intercepted

Jim Pepper was desperately trying to toss forwards as Belleville assumed a last quarter effort to haul down the score, but several were intercepted, Law getting one and running it back 25 yards to have Armshaw go over for the last touch and convert, final score 31 to 6 for "army". Belleville attempted 13 forwards and completed three, while Garrison tried nine and completed three also. With the exception of the final touchdown, all scoring of the day was registered with the wind and over the east goal line.

The lineups:

ROGERS HORNSBY TO LEAD ORIOLES

Will Replace Bucky Crouse As Manager At $10,000 Per Season

Baltimore, Oct. 11—(AP)— Rogers Hornsby, seven times batting champ of the National League was still tops today. The reported $10,000 salary to be paid him for managing Baltimore Orioles is the highest of any minor league manager.

General Manager Jack Ogden of the International League team announced last night Hornsby would return next year to Maryland. He will replace Bucky Crouse, manager during the 1938 season which saw the Orioles finish in last place.

Ogden's action was just as unexpected as the arrival of the football season. In August he said he would replace Crouse and there was a lot of talk as long ago as April, when Hornsby came to Baltimore as pinch-itter and coach. After the talk, Hornsby left to manage the Chattanooga team of the Southern Association.

The Rajah, manager of the St. Louis Cards when they won the pennant and World's series in 1926, admits he generally carries a form sheet, but complained last summer that his horse-betting "is a good gag to use against me."

WRITER BARRED ENTRY

New York, Oct. 11—(AP)—Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, British writer on communism and one-time object of a deportation proceeding in the United States, was barred from entry in the United States last night by immigration officials.

They ordered him held aboard the Normandie overnight and instructed the French Line to deliver him today to Ellis Island for appearance before a special board of inquiry.

ST. CATHARINES DOWN ADANACS

Score Second Straight Victory Over Western Champions

Toronto, Oct. 11 — (CP) — The strength of a big, hard-driving team, well-stocked with substitutes, seemed to be telling today in the Canadian Senior Lacrosse finals as St. Catharines Athletics reached out to take the Mann Cup from New Westminster.

When the Ontario club won its second straight victory of the best-of-five series last night, 22-11, the impression grew that the coast city's Adanacs didn't have the resources to match the Athletics' all-around power, which seems to exert itself most when the going gets hardest. The young Adanacs, seeking to retain the trophy New Westminster Salmonbellies won last year, faced a unit without a weak point.

Bill Fitzgerald, a substitute, led the winners in scoring with five goals and Bill Wilson, Carl Madsen and Punk Morton got four each. That showing indicated the way ability is spread through the A's lineup.

As in the opening game Monday night, when the score was 18-11, St. Catharines pulled away after half-time. The Athletics led by only 4-3 at quarter time and 7-6 at the mid-way mark.

Now they have only to win Wednesday's contest here to sweep the series in three straight games.

HARTNETT READY FOR ANY DEAL

Chicago After Medwick Or Mize of Cards To Bolster Hitting

Chicago, Oct. 11 — (AP) — New faces, plenty of them, will be around when the Chicago Cubs take the field next year, says manager Gabby Hartnett.

There is little doubt the Cubs would like to have Joe (Ducky) Medwick, a power in the St. Louis Cardinal attack, and rumors already were out that the Cubs would make a serious bid for the slugging outfielder. And if trades or money will not bring Medwick, reports had the Cubs ready to shift Johnny Mize, another Card power unit.

"Winning a pennant doesn't mean anything unless you can put a powerful club against the Yankees," said Hartnett as he returned from world series wars in which the Yanks riddled the Cubs in four straight games, winning the last game Sunday 8-3.

"It's bad enough when a team doesn't get base hits with men on the bases," he declared. "It's worse when you can't get even a fly ball with a man on third waiting to score. We hit into too many double plays. What we have to have is somebody who at least can hit a ball beyond the infield."

Hartnett wasn't sure of how or where he would get that power, but he was desperate enough after the Cubs' world series showing to cry, "I'll trade anybody except Stan Hack, Bill Lee, Clay Bryant and Dizzy Dean."

"I'm keeping Dean," Hartnett said, "because I believe the big fellow can come back."

Members of the Kansas City Blues voted Jed Williams of Minneapolis a better hitter than Charley Keller of Newark who is supposed to burn up the American League for the Yanks next season . . . Six man football is barging into the Northwest High School picture with no fewer than 40 teams doing their stuff in Minnesota alone . . . Gabby Hartnett, who plans a new Cub team next season, will start operating on the outfield.

Harry Ridley retained his Belleville golf supremacy over the week end by defeating Tommy Carruthers in the Belleville Golf Club, club championship, but not until the match had considerable overtime tension. The match was an 18 hole match play. Carruthers was leading the champ by four strokes at the end of the first nine holes, but Ridley whittled this margin down to one at the 16th and beat Tommy on the 17th to make matters all even going in to the last hole. Both holed out in four on the 18th to tie the match. Overtime was naturally necessary. Both shot par on the 19th and 20th. On the 21st hole which ordinarily is the third over the nine hole Belleville course, has a par three. Harry got away a nice iron shot, while Tommy's drive lay to one side of the bunker, which he subsequently failed to clear, Harry holing out on his next shot to retain the club championship of the Belleville Golf Club. A goodly number of golf addicts took in the game.

Establishing themselves as the greatest ball club of modern times, the New York Yankees accomplished what no other baseball club ever realized—the winning of the world series for three consecutive years. When the Yankees' powerhouse turned on the juice, the results were devastating, that is insofar as the Cubs were concerned. The winning of the series in four straight must have been some satisfaction to Marse Joe McCarthy, who eight years ago was eased out as the skipper of the Cubs, later to procure the job as manager of the greatest ball club of modern times. Some belittle McCarthy's managerial efforts, contending the bat boy could run a team like the Yankees. Such is not the case, however.

Motor mechanics may construct a powerful automobile, but it takes a skillful driver to successfully guide such a powerful piece of machinery to world records or whatever may be the goal in the respective light. Like a high-powered racing automobile—a high-powered baseball club must have a guide also, and that's exactly where McCarthy fits in with Col. Rupert's plans. Any club to win three successive world series and eight out of the last 13 classics, really has something on the ball. What the clubs today are worrying about is, not of their past records—but with so many fixed stars on the team, who's going to stop them for the next few years? We'd suggest maybe the Boston Red Sox as an answer to that, however.

It was like old home week in the Belleville Panthers' dressing room yesterday; Jimmie Folwell, Bud Johnson and Wally Hilton all being present. Incidentally Johnson broke into big time football on Saturday and in the backfield with the Queen's University squad. Bud played 60 minutes and took more than the usual amount of punishment, we hear. Down in Montreal Wally Hilton wobbled out for Western with an injured ankle, while Jimmie Folwell is again bottling 'em for O.A.C. All in all Belleville is well represented in Intercollegiate football, Johnson, Hilton and Folwell all being graduates of dear old Belleville Collegiate.

As the result of expected victories the Kingston Garrison and Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" today are leading the district O.R.F.U. group, Cobourg blanking the R.C.A.F. 14 to 0 while here in Belleville the Kingston Garrison rolled up a 31 to 6 score over the local Panthers. The latter score is not exactly what could be termed as an exact indication of the play, although the "army boys" dominated. Belleville fumbles from the safety positions repeatedly left the ball in the Garrison possession and in position to score and no team can expect to win under those conditions. Then again the Panthers were outweighed about on an average of 20 pounds per man in all departments, this disadvantage in weight ultimately taking its toll until the big "army machine" literally rolled over the locals in the third quarter, scoring 17 points.

Just why the lighter Panthers were trying to barge through that Kingston linet, only to be tossed back on their heels time after time, we could not fathom. First and foremost the locals seem to employ rather unprolific methods even while trying to crash their opponents' line. Coach Bob Elliott, of the "army" gave a smart exhibition of line plunging yesterday. Bob went through with his head up and when he saw a hole in the local secondary defence, all he had to do was pivot for an extra gain of yardage. On the other hand the locals put their heads down, charged and prayed there was a hole in front. Elliott's exhibition yesterday should prove valuable to the Panthers, if they will profit by their own mistakes of yesterday. Of course maybe the old adage of new uniforms took its toll on the Panthers, who appeared bedecked in new purple and gold uniforms yesterday, but from this corner it was just too much "army" especially Elliott, Gray, their star punter, Law and Armshaw.

With Lefty McNally doing all of the pitching, much of the fielding, more than the average hitting, the Peterboro seniors drew first blood in the senior O.B.A. finals versus Stratford on Saturday, when the Petes won 5-1 by scoring four runs in the eighth, McNally being the big noise throughout. The return game was slated for Stratford on Monday which incidentally was won by Stratford 8-7. The third game is on Wednesday.

HERB HOLLAND WINS TOURNEY

Trebles Played As Closing Match For Bowling Season

Concluding a successful season on the greens, the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club terminated its lawn bowling season with their annual Thanksgiving Day club trebles, which were won by Herb Holland's trio of bowlers.

Fine sets of bowling bags were given the day's winners, the tournament opening with one game in the morning and two in the afternoon. It was a three-game match with 36 local bowlers taking part. The tournament concluded the regular 1938 lawn bowling season in Belleville.

The winners of the games, with three wins high, were Mrs. Ward, H. Hales and Herb Holland, skip. Second, with two wins high was Chas. N. Sulman's team composed of himself skip, Mrs. Geo. Watkin and C. Davis, while Harry Thompson's skipped rink also won honors in this class, Mrs. Davis and Art Wesley bowling on the Thompson - skipped team. Next with one win high was the team of Mrs. Neate, H. Cross and Alf Symons, skip.

WOMEN'S OPEN STAR

Sensation of the Canadian women's open golf championships at Ottawa was 17-year-old Marg Esson, above, slightly built girl from Rosetown, Saskatchewan, who reached the quarter finals of the tourney before bowing out to Mrs. A. B. Walker, a member of the British Curtis Cup team. Her long drives and putting were sensational, but she seemed unnerved on the first nine holes of her match with Mrs. Walker and went down to a four and two defeat.

ARGOS AND TIGERS OPEN BIG FOUR SEASON

Nearly seven thousand rugby fans sat in the drizzling rain to watch Toronto Argos and Hamilton Tigers open the big four rugby season at Toronto. Far from being the easy pushovers they were predicted to be the Tigers kept the Argo team on the jump all through the first half and the half-time whistle found the Bengals tied with Argos 6 to 6. Annis Stukus, Argo quarter is shown here, with ball in hand, as the Scullers pulled one of their many tricks plays.

ESCAPED MAN-KILLER SHOT AFTER TH REE-HOUR HUNT

AFTER WINNING THE PEACE AT MUNICH

Although they don't look like the popular conception of conquerors, Premier Benito Mussolini, left, of Italy, and Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, of Germany, were emerging from a bloodless conquest when this photo was made. They are shown coming out of the Fuehrerhaus in Munich in the early hours of the morning after the signing of the four-power pact that gave Fuehrer Hitler the Sudeten areas of Czechoslovakia in return for his keeping the peace. In rear are Field Marshal Herman Goering (white tunic) and to his right, Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Il Duce.

PEACE HOPES HIGH AS RE-ARMAMENT CONTINUES

Despite the high hopes of Prime Minister Chamberlain for continued peace in Europe, England has no intention of weakening her defences according to reports from British government circles. Construction of bomb-proof shelters is continuing in Hyde Park and other sections of London as well as throughout other parts of England. One of the anti-aircraft guns which was placed in position to meet raiding airplanes during the recent crisis is shown, ABOVE. These guns will continue to stand in position to defend England, it was reported, as the British armament program continues.

Many a beautiful lass has expressed the wish to have my hair, and now alass nobody has it, he said.

Fell G, pop, saybe you're lucky, I said, and he said, Give me a good reason to convince me of that and my yhole day will be brightened.

Well, in the first place you know the exact shape of your own head, and that's something that people with a lot of hair never find out, I said, and pop said, And it's a bit of information I could very well of dispensed with myself.

Proberly meaning on account of his head having a few naturel bumps on it, and I said, And in the 2nd plice the barber never asks you if you want a shampoo, so that saves you the trouble of telling him no in case you dont, and saves you the price of a shampoo in case you ever said yes without thinking.

I still dont feel lucky, thanks for your kind efforts, pop said, and I said, Well G, pop, wait a minute, there's still another reason.

I'm waiting pop said, and I said, It helps people with a lot of hair to appreciate their blessings more, and you're the one they ought to thank for making them realize.

Come down and eat your breakfist before you get brain fever from a rush of brilliant thoughts on an empty stummick, pop said.

Lower, holding aloft a dirty towel on a stick to serve as a white flag, the leader of the surrendering group stares at the bayonet point, while his comrades are searched. The surrender took place after Japanese airplanes had dropped leaflets behind Chinese lines offering $5 Mexican ($2.50), food and the opportunity to return to their homes to all deserters from the Chinese army.

TROUBLE IN THE HOLY LAND

The long smouldering Arab revolt against the British control under a league mandate, in Palestine is feared to have broken out in a general uprising of Arabs in the Holy Land. Equipped with machine guns, rifles, hand grenades and thousands of rounds of ammunition, Arab forces are becoming bolder and conducting mass attacks on Jewish communities. Fresh infantry and cavalry regiments have been dispatched from England to reinforce British forces in Palestine. Machine guns set up in city streets, above, are now common, as the British move to put down the uprisings, while Arab agitators, inset, exhort their countrymen to rise against British rule.

Appealing Sentence

Sentenced of 60 days in jail for aiding prisoners to escape from her father's jail at Lexington, N.C., Lulu Kimel is appealing the jail sentence. She was convicted of giving the jail key and a revolver to James Godwin and Bill Wilson, who were awaiting trial. On gaining their freedom the prisoners are alleged to have kidnapped a taxi driver, staged several holdups and killed a man. Lulu said she felt sorry for Godwin being in jail because he was so young.

Thomas Smith, Cannifton, Celebrates His 86th Birthday

Receives Felicitations of Friends On Happy Occasion

Hale and hearty, with keen eyes and bright face belying his nearly ninety years, Thomas Smith, one of Cannifton's grand old men, celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday on Monday. Surrounded by the members of his immediate family, and his devoted wife who is only two years his junior, Mr. Smith, in the quietness of his modest home, received the congratulations of a host of friends on his natal day.

Possessed of a remarkable memory, the aged gentleman recalls with almost startling clarity the events of three and four decades ago. Almost exuberant in spirit at times, he is still enjoying life with the same zest as he possessed four score years ago. He is very active, goes through a daily routine of work in a manner that would do credit to a man twenty years his junior, and is looking forward to many more years of healthful activity.

A record of which Mr. Smith is singularly proud, is that of being a member of Lydford Lodge No. 184 Sons of England. For the past forty years, he has taken an intense interest in the activities of this organization and to-day attends every meeting whenever possible. One of the gayest attendants at the regular meeting of the lodge held on Monday evening was this eighty-six-year old member. Previous to joining Lydford Lodge, Mr. Smith belonged to Oxford Lodge No. 17.

He follows current events with a keen interest; reads his daily newspaper, and shuns the use of eyeglasses unless he is called upon to write, or use a pen or pencil. Mrs. Smith, is also in good health and pursues her daily household duties without aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were the recipients of a host of congratulations at their home on Monday where numerous friends and relatives called to express their best wishes for continued long life.

WHITEFISH SEEN NEAR SURFACE

Recent Gales Drive Fish From Natural Habitant

Said to be driven near the surface by the heavy equinoctial gales of recent weeks, whitefish have been seen near the surface of Lake Ontario in the vicinity of Waupoos Island and the Main Ducks, according to a fish-vendor on the city market today.

The fish, he stated were splashing about the top of the water, and were so numerous that he captured one by dipping a dipnet over the side of the boat.

The condition, however, will not last long, he added, as the fish driven from their natural habitats in deep water, will seek new grounds. Lifts have been light so far, but indications point to good season, he said.

2 Giant Potatoes Weigh 4 lb. 10 oz.

Two giant potatoes, weighing two ounces short of five pounds and grown by Horace Elyea, Consecon farmer, were brought to the offices of the Ontario - Intelligencer this morning. One of the large tubers, which are Kayhadin variety, weighed two pounds, eight ounces, while the other tipped the scales at two pounds, six ounces.

Of splendid quality, free from blemish and "rot-spots" the potatoes were a fine indication of his crop. Mr. Elyea said. He harvested nearly forty five bags from a planting of some five bushels of potatoes.

Police Blotter

Juvenile delinquents caused local police considerable efforts over the holiday week-end, several complaints being investigated and ultimately being found the work of mischievous teen year olds.

Three boys were seen hastily leaving the garage premises of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Church St., after unsuccessfully trying to pilfer some motor car oil. In their haste one of the culprits was forced to leave his bicycle, which was turned over to police authorities.

Michael Islentee, 393 Blecker Ave., reported the theft of his bicycle from his premises on Sunday. The bike was later recovered by local police, but not before it had been dismantled. The lads said to have been responsible, were told to report to Chief Kidd today. It is said the lads took Islentee's bicycle in order to procure parts for their own damaged bicycles.

Clarence Sligh, 6 South Park St., reported the theft of his bicycle on Sunday. The bike was stolen from Sligh's home premises.

Five teen aged children were apprehended by Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard following complaints regarding the destruction of a vacant house situated at 64 St. Charles St. The officers ascertained the names of the five kiddies and their parents will no doubt be called upon to make restitution in the matter. Two other youthful delinquents were caught stealing vegetables from Ben Simpson's garden situated at 14 Bay Street.

Following disturbances at a Strachan St. residence on Saturday night, a man, who police say is Joseph Hurst, was escorted to the police station and detained. Hurst was causing alleged disturbances and generally alarming his family, police stated today.

Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine reported exceptionally heavy motor traffic throughout the district with no major accidents in evidence. "Traffic was as heavy as any midsummer holiday week-end," stated H. T. O. Ervine.

YOUTH WOUNDED WHILE HUNTING

Donald Davis, Belleville, Shot In Leg When Gun Discharged

While attempting to hit a wounded chipmunk with the stock end of his .22 calibre rifle, the gun discharged, wounding Donald Davis, 150 Church Street, in the hip, near Oak Lake yesterday afternoon. Young Davis was rushed to the surgery of Dr. Pedley, at Stirling, where the wound was dressed. It was not serious, only the fleshy part of the leg being affected, Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien stated after investigations into the shooting.

Davis was on a hunting expedition with four companions said to be Dan Fairman, Roy, Charles and Raymond Sager all of this city. Davis shot a chipmunk from out of a tree, the animal falling to the ground. As the hunter approached the chipmunk he observe it had only been wounded and was attempting escape. Davis took a lusty swing at the wounded animal, while clutching the barrel end of his gun. When the stock struck the chipmunk the gun discharged a .22 calibre bullet in the chamber the pellet penetrating the fleshy part of Davis' leg. He was afforded first aid by his companions, who were fortunately nearby. After medical attention in Stirling young Davis was taken home, where he is resting comfortably today, police revealed.

MODERN HOUSES AFFECT SALES

Once Bought By Barrel For Winter, Now Only By Few

Modern houses n etaity. Spud.

Modernized basements and steam-heated apartments of later years have mitigated against the annual apple crop in this and other sections, mourns J. W. Pender Cobourg district buyer, in the city today making an investigation of local crop and orchard conditions.

"In the old days people bought apples by the barrel one or two barrels at a time to tide themselves over the winter. Now the orchard owner is lucky to sell a peck at a time. Most of the buyers want just a pound or two in a paper bag.

"But the new cellars, the new steam heated apartments, have changed all that. Nowadays there isn't a place left in the house to put a barrel of apples. Instead of the old type home with coal fires upstairs and cool cellar downstairs, people have playrooms in the basement and kitchenettes. Barrels of apples are only used for export now", stated Mr. Pender.

Rev. W. MacKinnon And Rev. Dr. Armstrong To Attend Meeting

The first meeting in this section in the interest of the "quarter million Fellowship crusade" of the United Church will be held in Bridge Street United Church on Wednesday, October 12th at 8 p.m. The churches in this area for the meeting are Shannonville, Cannifton, Rednersville, Foxboro, Sidney, Bayside, Plainfield and the United Churches of the city.

Two outstanding speakers will be present, Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong and Rev. A. D. MacKinnon, D.D, Ph.D.

Dr. MacKinnon graduated from Queen's and before graduation spent a summer as a student in the Cariboo. Eighteen years ago, after a pastorate in Vancouver, he was appointed as missionary-at-large in Cariboo, where he has carried on until the present time. His present parish is 350 miles in length east and west, and 100 miles north and south—with 20 preaching stations.

Dr. MacKinnon is an eloquent speaker. He had a wide experience in the work of the Church and will give a splendid statement of the Church's work on his frontier.

Dr. A. E. Armstrong has been secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the United Church of Canada since Union. Prior to that he was secretary of the Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Armstrong has on two or three occasions visited the various foreign missions of the Church. He is thoroughly informed on the needs and opportunities of the present hour and presents his message in a challenging way.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH LIGHT (Napanee)

Napanee, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—In failing health for more than two years, word reached here today that Joseph Light, retired lumber dealer of Napanee had died last night in Atlantic City.

A son of the late Robert Light who founded the sash and door factory here 62 years ago, he sold the business a few weeks ago to a local syndicate.

Mr. Light was an Anglican by religion and unmarried.

Thronged With Soldiers

Every railway town in Czechoslovakia was thronged with soldiers. Thousands of men, women and children fled regions occupied by German troops. Railway schedules were disrupted.

Penetration of German troops into the Breclav area severed the main railway line communications between Prague and Bratislavia and forced a change to a substitute route.

Army field kitchens were established on railway flat cars and meals were served soldiers while trains waited for clear tracks.

organization would "produce an up-to-date army capable of reinforcing the regular army by units or formations."

This indicated the force would be trained for continental use as well as for home defence, its present definite field.

The brunt of the organization will fall upon Sir Walter Kirke, 61-year-old Director General of the Territorial Army. The first objective is to increase volunteer recruiting, which dropped sharply immediately after the crisis.

The prospect of advanced military training with an opportunity to study at the war colleges was expected to attract many. Hore-Belisha promised the reorganziation would include a new scheme for training territorial officers.

GEORGE W. CLARK RECEIVES GIFTS ON RETIREMENT

He And Mrs. Clark Will Travel Extensively — 45 Years of Service With G.T.R. And C.N.R. Ends On 65th Birthday

Four o'clock Saturday afternoon, Oct. 8th, was just another day in the lives of most people, but bystanders in the C. N. R. Yards probably raised their eyebrows as the shrill sound of steam-whistles sounded in the afternoon air. Men left shop, engine and bench to converge on the west-end toolshed where they milled around a central figure.

Excitedly they shook the hand of a tall slightly grey man, dressed in the conventional overalls of a railroad section-foreman. They read an address. From seemingly nowhere, two handsome travelling bags and a purse of money made an appearance. And as cheers rang out from the throats of office workers, locomotive engineers and foremen, section men and other employees of the Canadian National Railway, Belleville Division, George W. Clark, 30 Ridley Street laid down his tools for the last time as an active employee. For with the sound of the four o'clock whistle he had completed forty-five years of unblemished service with his company, and at the time attained his sixty-fifth birthday.

Seen today, with the familiar overalls of his call covering a splendid figure, Mr. Clark, modestly recalled the many years of service he has given to the railway. He laid down a large shovel with which he was digging a small trench in front of his home on Ridley Street.

"It has been a wonderful experience," he told a newspaperman, "and I would not have missed it for anything." Asked what he was going to do now that he "was out of a job." Mr. Clark threw back his head and laughed, "I have seen people travelling for nearly fifty years," he said, "And it is my turn. I am going to see part of the world, and take my time in doing it."

Commenting on his healthy appearance, the sixty-five, year old section-foreman stated that he had always been healthy, and had never had an accident.

"And that brings back the fact," he added modestly, "that in all my career, there has never been an accident on that part of the road on which I worked. I have always been careful, and insisted that my men be the same."

Mr. and Mrs. Clark are going to see the west. In the near future they leave for Vancouver, Spokane, Washington, and California. "But we will be back for Christmas," they chorused, "we couldn't miss that."

In the Spring they intend paying a visit to the Canadian North West where Mrs. Clark has relatives. But they intend to spend the remainder of their days in Mr. Clark's native city. "I was born here and have lived here all my life," he said, "and would not think of living anywhere else."

It was back in 1893 when the twenty-year-old youth applied for and got a job with the railway. He worked under Mr. W. D. Robb locomotive foreman in the Belleville Division, and who later became vice-president of the road.

A natural aptitude, iniative and application to his work soon earned him recognition, and in 1902 he was promoted section-foreman of the first section west of Belleville. In 1910 he became section foreman of the Belleville yards a position he held with efficiency until his retirement on Saturday.

Mr. Clark was born in Belleville the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clark, a cooper of this city. In 1898 he married Annie E. Sexsmith, who passed away in 1934. In 1936 he married Mrs. E. Frickey of this city. Two daughters blessed his first marriage, Mrs. A. Fox and Mrs. Percy Thompson, both of whom reside in elleville.

Following is the address which was read prior to the presentation of the two handsome leather travelling bags, and purse of money to Mr. Clark, by a group of loyal appreciative fellow employees of the railway:

"This eighth day of October 1938, being the 65th Anniversary of your birth, marks the end of your active career in the service of the Railway Company, when under the rules, you are automatically compelled to relinquish the arduous duties of the important position you have so long successfully filled with credit to yourself and those who have worked under your foremanship.

We, your friends and fellow workmen, feel that we cannot allow the occasion to pass without an opportunity of offering our congratulations and good wishes for Happy Returns of the Day.

We also wish to express our appreciation of your worth in the position you have occupied and your good qualities as a man among men and we know that the loss of your kindly spirit, friendly advise and capable leadership will be very much felt by those whom you are leaving and we trust that your retirement may afford you, along with your good wife, many leisure hours of comfort and happiness in which you will enjoy your well deserved and well earned rest.

We further desire to express in a somewhat more tangible manner, the high regard in which you are held, by asking you to accept, from your fellow workmen, these small gifts, as a token of our esteem and remembrance.

Trusting you may live long to enjoy the fruits of your labours we are

Type-Registry Beams on Scales

The human element represented a margin of error that was a source of much dissatisfaction.

To overcome this difficulty all stock yards and packing companies were compelled to install type-registry beams on all their scales.

A type registry beam is a scale beam that is equipped with type and when a load of hogs are weighed a ticket or voucher is inserted in the beam where the weight of the draught is typed on it.

This record of weighing is made in duplicate so that an original copy of the weight may accompany both the farmer's settlement and the plant voucher.

All this attention directed towards the weighing of the live stock at stock yards and packing plants should assure the farmer that his live stock is being accurately weighed, even if he is not present to witness the actual operation.

Increase in Butter Production

Increases in all Provinces except Manitoba and Saskatchewan resulted in a gain of 3.5 per cent, or 1,023, 702 pounds over a year ago in September production of creamery butter in Canada, it was reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This brings total output for the first nine months of the current year to 8.2 per cent or 16,593,716 pounds above last year. The make of cheese last month dropped 1,140,815 pounds from a year ago, while the nine-month period showed a decline of 11,705,160 pounds from last year for the period under review.

During September, 30,116,180 pounds of creamery butter were produced, compared with 35,346,675 pounds in August and 29,092,478 pounds a year ago. Cumulative production for the nine months ending September amounted to 217,748,754 pounds, while for the like period of 1937 the output reached a total of 201,155,038 pounds. Cheese manufactured last month was reported at 18,345,735 pounds as against 19,849,334 pounds in the previous month and 19,846,550 pounds manufactured in September of last year. For the nine-month period, 96,706,842 pounds were produced this year and 108,414,002 pounds were produced last year.

SIT-DOWN STRIKE

"I'm 65 and I'm staging a 'sit-down strike' of my own. I've quit work because I have a cheque coming in every month as long as I live."

You, too, can have a guaranteed retirement income. If you can save $8 a month* you can make certain of a cheque for $25 every month beginning at 65. You'll have an income three times as large as your payments.

And, in case of your death before 65, this same policy will pay your family $905 immediately plus an income of $25 a month for 10 years. Arrange with a North American Life man to talk over this double purpose income policy.

BRITISH CABINET CHANGES RUMORED

LORD MAUGHAM

VISCOUNT HAILSHAM

Several changes in the British cabinet were rumored as the prime minister enjoyed a short holiday in Scotland after his strenuous activities of the past few weeks. It was reported that Viscount Hailsham, lord president of the council, and Lord Maugham, the lord chancellor, have asked to be relieved of their posts. Both men have been suffering from ill-health and feel that the work of a cabinet member is too great a strain on them.

MOTHERS' BODIES

Tremendous property damage will bes suffered before the fire is brought under control. Besides their homes settlers lost cattle and other livestock. Lumber firms lost pulpwood already cut besides fine timber stands.

Thick smoke made it impossible to use planes in ascertaining fate of settlers and the battle depended on the ground crews.

While telephoning his report to Port Arthur headquarters, Constable Hamilton said the wire was cut, apparently by the fire. It was possible, however, to reach Port Frances from Winnipeg by telephone and train service to the area had not been interrupted so far.

Every available man was called on to fight the conflagration. Crown Attorney Croome of [illegible] Frances visited the fire [illegible] suffered slight burns to [illegible] and hands.

Fort Frances, on the international border in the north-western corner of Ontario, was not seriously threatened by the fire today.

NO HONORS NOW IN PARIS FOR CHAMBERLAIN

Paris, Oct. 12 (AP)—Neither "Neville Chamberlain Street" nor "Thirtieth of September Avenue" will appear in Paris this year.

In the delirium accompanying the signing of the four-power "peace of Munich," the Paris Municipal Council proposed both of the names for streets. Today both proposals were withdrawn. Their abandonment characterized the change of French public opinion.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The helpful wind! Wind power, like water power, is free but it takes money for the making and maintenance of windmills, and sails. To take advantage of the wind, man had to invent windmills and sails, and some tribes never did discover the use of sails for their boats or canoes. In China sails were applied to wheelbarrows, and in Holland to sleds. Sails were not a part of the culture of the American Indians, and they marvelled at the "winged castles" of the Europeans. Windmills were introduced into England by the Crusaders. They were used to grind grain and to pump water as they are used today. We still generate electricity

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 12—(CP)— Synopsis:

Scattered showers have occurred in Northern Ontario and the prairie provinces, while from the lower lake region eastward to the Maritimes the weather has been fair. Temperatures were unusually high yesterday in Ontario and western Quebec, but it has become somewhat cooler in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Pressure continues high over the eastern portions of Canada and the United States, while a deep disturbance is moving eastward across northern Manitoba with a trough extending southward to Kansas. High pressure from the Pacific now covers the Rocky Mountain states.

Lake Superior—Fresh southwest to west winds; partly cloudy and warm with scattered thundershowers. Thursday — Fresh westerly winds; partly cloudy and somewhat cooler.

Manitoba—Fresh to strong westerly winds; mostly cloudy with scattered showers and becoming somewhat cooler. Thursday—westerly winds; partly cloudy and comparatively cool.

Saskatchewan —Westerly winds; fair and comparatively cool tonight and Thursday; not much change in temperature.

CRISIS BROUGHT STARTLING FACTS REGARDING UNITS

Many Corps Under-Manned And Protective Measures Inadequate

ACCELERATE PLANS

Potential Output of Planes In 1940 May Be 25,000 a Year

(By J. F. Sanderson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 12.—(CP Cable)—With every cast of his salmon fly in the Tweed River, Prime Minister Chamberlain is turning over in his mind the biggest question facing Great Britain; how to capitalize on the spiritual revival engendered by the German-Czechoslovak crisis and turn it to advantage in a united, strong and more disciplined nation.

Facts Brought Out

In retrospect, the crisis brought out these indelible facts:—

1—Britain's military, naval and air defences on which hundreds of millions of pounds have been spent revealed some alarming weaknesses.

2—Civilian corps like the Air Raids Precautions Auxiliary Fire-Fighting Divisions, Ambulance Corps and First Aid Crews were under-manned despite the fact thousands of men and women indicated a desire to serve their country in a non-military sphere—figuratively speaking they ran around like sheep on a mountain, not knowing how or where they could satisfy their patriotic desires.

3—Protective measures for the civilian population, such as the distribution of gas-masks and the construction of bomb-proof shelters were inadequate in part.

Government to Meet Parliament

Knowing the full details of the extent of these defensive shortcomings, Mr. Chamberlain has set his mind to correct them. Full reports

Coupe Crashes Rear of Heavy Rack Wagon

Napanee. Ont., Oct. (12 CP)—Four persons were injured on the county highway at Curles Hill near Yarker last night when a coupe driven by John Purcell, 18,o f Colebrook crashed into the rear of a heavy rack wagon, as it was descending the hill.

Frightened by the impact the team ran away upsetting the wagon and the driver, Wilfred Connolly of Yarker, was pinned beneath it in the ditch.

He suffered broken ribs and possible back injuries and was removed to Kingston General Hospital.

Mary Purcell, 14, a sister of the car driver andM iss Ileen Wilson, 19, of Yarker passengers in the coupe are suffering from shock and injuries.

Purcell had a cut on the chin. He told Provincial Constable P. W. Barrett of Napanee that he left Napanee about 6.30 and shortly after his lights went out while 15 miles from home. He continued without lights, he said.

Bodies Found Every Few Feet On 'Burnt Road of Death'

Brothers Lose Families In Fort Frances Fire

SCENE 'TERRIBLE'

Fort Frances, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Fiery death which robbed two brothers of their wives and children was described last night by Constable David Hamilton of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at the forest fire zone northwest of Fort Frances.

Noah Labelle and his brother William, stumbled over burned countryside in mad haste when they learned while fighting the flames that their homes were threatened. When they reached the scene in Dance Township, their dwellings were in ruins and their wives and nine of their children charred corpses.

Constable Hamilton found the remains of the mothers and children on the road near the homes. A daughter of Frank Labelle, another brother, died later from terrible burns.

"When we arrived at the scene we found the 11 bodies scattered over the road," the constable continued. "The two mothers had tried to protect their babies by covering them with their bodies.

"It was a terrible sight. Every few feet or so, we would find a body twisted and burned, either in the ditch or on the road. It was a burnt road of death."

"William Labelle lost his wife and five children and Noah his wife and four children. The oldest of the children was 11.

"The Labelles lived on adjoining homestead," Constable Hamilton related. "Apparently Mrs. Noah Labelle and her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Labelle, marshalled their children down the road before the flames but they didn't get very far and probably were overcome by the dense smoke before being roasted to death."

Fire Rangers had visited the Labelle homes several days ago when the flames were five miles away and urged the families to flee.

20 DEAD COUNTED IN FOREST FIRES ALONG BOUNDARY

Bodies of Three Members of Fyle Family Found

TRIED TO CIRCLE FIRE

Death Toll In Area Near Fort Frances Grows

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—Death toll in the forest fires burning in the Rainy River area of Ontario and in Northern Minnesota reached twenty today when three persons were found burned.

Ontario Provincial police learned around noon that the bodies of Sam Fyle, 21, his wife, 19, and their 18-months-old son, and Mabel Olsen, 12, sister of Mrs. Fyle, had been found by volunteer searchers in Dance Township, fifty miles northwest of here.

The women and the infant left home Sunday morning to search for the husband who had been fighting the flames nearby. The bodies were found near the home of Ben Fultz, also a victim of the flames.

Police believe the Fyle family made a circle in an attempt to get around the fire which was burning through dry lash. The bodies will be brought to Fort Frances this afternoon.

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Oct. 12.—(CP)—Flames still leaped along the International Boundary today but weary firefighters, who counted sixteen dead in the two-day timberland inferno, shook tired shoulders and plunged again into a battle apparently turning in their favor.

Confident relief settled over this Little Rainy River district mill town less than two days after a 55-car train had been held, steam up in the locomotive, in readiness for evacuation.

Thirteen are dead in the pulp forests of Northwestern Ontario, three victims lie across the border in Minnesota and eleven persons are in hospital here. Pitifully burned, eyes blood shot and seared by smoke, some will recover, to be scarred for life, but hospital attendants fear for others.

But officials felt the trail of death and ruin was burning to an end. "There is no further danger of loss of life," said Chief Fire Ranger William Darby.

Flames, slumbering throughout Northwestern Ontario since early September, fanned to fury Monday before a stiff south wind. They swept a front 60 miles west from Fort Frances and thirty miles north from the border.

The Dead

Two women and ten children of the families of three LaBelle brothers, homesteaders in Dance Township 50 miles northwest of Fort Frances, were first to die. Benny Fultz, 25, was found burned to death yesterday in charred bush near his home.

Police records here yesterday contained fourteen names of those burned to death with one person described as unidentified. Later, however, a check showed Fultz' name was placed on the list after his identification without the "unidentified description" being deleted.

The other dead are: Mrs. Violetta LaBelle, 33, wife of William LaBelle, and her five children, Abigail, two, Robert, four, Arthur, six, Violetta eight, Margaret 11; Mrs. Sadie LaBelle, 27, wife of Noah LaBelle, and her four children, Florence, two months, Calvin, three, Walter, five, Charles, six; and Maxine LaBelle 11, daughter of Frank LaBelle.

Dead in Northern Minnesota are Orville F. Williams, 18, Civilian Conservation Corps enrolled from Little Falls, Minn.; Joseph Dardis, 67, International Falls; and Fred Servis of Dunseith, N.D.

William LaBelle was away from home Monday when fire struck the Dance Township homesteads but his brother and neighbours, Bob Fetherson, Nap LeBren, Dan Patterson and Gus Anderson, fought desperately to save the women and children who took refuge in Frank's home.

Separated in Dash For Highway

When the water supply became exhausted and the heat intensified. Frank LaBelle instructed the women and children to make a dash for the gravel highway fifty yards from the house. In this short run the party became separated.

Mrs. Frank LaBelle and six of the children made their way through the fire to the roadway. The others, separated, were over-

DRIVE ON CANTON PLANNED BY JAPS, NOTES SUGGEST

Tokyo Urges Powers To Refrain From Troop Movements

AREAS SET FORTH

Japanese May Cut Railway Running To Hong Kong

Tokyo, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Japanese Government today urged Great Britain, the United States and other powers to "refrain as far as possible from moving troops, warships and aircraft in South China" in view of the landing of a Japanese Expeditionary Force, presumably for a drive on Canton.

Notes were sent to the Tokyo Embassies of the principal powers asking for co-operation of incidents in connection with the South China campaign.

The notes designated the area between Swatow, 200 miles northeast of Hong Kong and Pakhoi, about 350 miles southwest of that British colony, as the area in which neutral powers were to refrain from moving their forces. Japan asked that ten days' notice be given the Japanese Command if "sheer necessity should compel" such movements.

British Warning

London, Oct. 12 (CP Cable)—The British Government has repeated its "reminder" to Japan that British commercial interests in Hong Kong and Southern China must be respected. The British Ambassador at Tokyo, Sir Robert Craigie, informed the Japanese Foreign Office of the British attitude "within the past few days."

It was understood Great Britain's latest "reminder" was prompted by reports Japanese forces were planning in their invasion of South China to cut the railroad running from Kowloon to Canton, which might seriously affect Hong Kong.

On several occasions the British Government has reminded Japan that relations with this country might be endangered by incidents which interfered with British commercial interests in South China.

Soviets Reported To Be Concentrating On Defences of Ukraine

By CHARLES NUTTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Reliable reports that Russia is hastening construction of a vast artificial No-Man's-Land along its western frontier as a first line of defence against Germany have reached diplomatic circles here.

The information is that Russia, seeing the collapse of their efforts to forge an international barricade eastward around Germany, have dropped everything else in order to protect the Ukrainian wheat and coal fields from invasion.

A program designed to slow down and finally halt an approaching army has been dovetailed into natural defences of distance and lack of communications. It is reported here to include:

Program of Defence

Deforestation of a belt ranging from a few to a 100 miles wide between the Soviet Union and her neighbors of Rumania, Poland and Estonia.

Depopulation of this zone, and in some cases resettlement of evacuated towns and farms with trusted Red Army men and women, ostensibly posing as peasants and workers while guarding the frontiers and checking illegal entry.

Construction of a formidable line along the eastern boundary of this quarantine belt, into which reserve stores are being pushed and fortifications built.

Russian Air Force

Development back of this area of big military concentration centres, together with well fortified and provisioned air bases. These would support the Russian Air Force, whose duty would be to harass the enemy not only throughout the buffer zone but before it actually reached Soviet frontiers.

Soviet militarists and statesmen for years have spoken publicly of the Red plan to "meet our Fascist enemies on the soil from whence they come," meaning beyond the Ukrainian borders.

ADVISED TO LEAVE

Canton, China, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The British consul in Canton today advised British women and children to leave as a new Japanese expeditionary force landed at nearby Bias Bay.

It was understood about forty British subjects and several Americans would leave tomorrow.

Battle Lines Drawn as Armies Await Diplomatic Negotiations

Czech And Hungarian Troops In Fighting Positions

HOPE FOR COMPROMISE

Budapest, Oct. 12—(AP)—Czechoslovakia and Hungarian troops established fighting positions 250 feet apart today, awaiting the outcome of deadlocked diplomatic negotiations on Hungarian demands for Czechoslovak territory.

The lines were established following yesterday's occupation of two Czechoslovak frontier towns, Ipolysag and Satoralja Ujhely, by the Hungarian forces.

The occupation was a "symbolic overture," Hungarians said, to recovery of thousands of square miles from Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovak troops at Ipolysag withdrew three-quarters of a mile to the north of the town and started at once to dig trenches in potato fields and surrounding forests.

Hungarian infantry followed suit, establishing positions at close range. Hungarian heavy artillery was in firing position.

Hope for Compromise

First, Hungary to receive immediately purely Hungarian populated territories. Figures given here are 380,000 population living in a 4,200 square mile area.

Second, a new border to begin from six miles east of Bratislava, to run in an easterly direction three miles south of Nitra, then continue northeast to five miles north of Kassa, thence east above Ungvar and finally connect with the present border southeast of the town of Munkacs, which under this plan also would come to Hungary.

Third, the city of Bratislava would remain Czechoslovak, because it is that country's outlet to the Danube now remaining, and is claimed as the capital by the Slovaks (granted an autonomous regime by the Prague government.)

Hungary also wants the Czechoslovaks to guarantee Slovakia will be permitted to become fully self-governing hoping, a Hungarian spokesman indicated, that the Slovaks eventually would prefer to associate with Hungary.

FALLS OFF LEDGE FLEEING FIRE

Toronto Man Seriously Injured In Toronto Early Today

Toronto, Oct. 12.—(CP) —Driven from his bedroom by fire, James Davie, 56, climbed out on a window ledge today and fell twenty feet to the ground. He suffered shock, leg and back injuries. Firemen were just arriving to attempt a rescue when he dropped.

Fire started in a storage closet on the third floor of a rooming house in the central section of the city (78 Pembroke Street).

FISHERMEN'S RACE IS POSTPONED

Flat Calm Will Not Allow Boats To Sail Full Course

By TOM HORGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 12—(AP)—A flat calm forced postponement of today's race for the International Fishermen's Trophy between Captain Angus Walter's champion and Captain Ben Pine's challenger, the Gertrude L. Thebaud.

The two schooners had been towed to the starting line over a glassy sea, but after drifting about for an hour or so, they picked up their tow lines again and started back to the harbor.

Both skippers last night had expressed their desire not to race today because of the long hours the cre spent on the water yesterday when the schooners were unable to finish within the allotted time.

Helleniqua Wins Cambridgeshire

Newmarket, England, Oct .12 (CP Cable)—Jacques Meller's French-bred Helleniqua today won the 99th running of the Cambridgeshire, first of the big autumn handicaps. Kingsley Macomber's Khasnadar, also bred in France, was second and J. A. Swan's Domaha, third.

Helleniqua, an outsider at 50 to 1, won the 1⅛-mile race by a head. The same distance separated Khasnadar, the favorite at 8 to 1, and Domaha, who started at 100 to 9. A field of 29 ran.

WILL APPEAL DECISION

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CP)—Atotrney-General Gordon Conant announced today that he would appeal to the Supreme Court of Caada from the decision of the Ontario Appellate Division which quashed the conviction of Lakeview relief strikers who had been convicted of unlawful assembly.

ST. MICHAEL'S JUNIOR BAND VISITS TRENTON

Sixteen members of the Junior Band of St. Michael's Academy gave a program at Trenton last evening, in the auditorium of St. Peter's School where the annual bazaar was taking place. Under the direction of little Miss Barbara Forhan, the tiny musicians gave exceptionally fine performances. Their numbers included "Colonel Bogie," "On the Road," and "Officer of the Day." The last number was particularly well done, the xylophone solo by Agnes Marie O'Connor and the clarinet and saxaphone trio by Bobby Young, Betty Flynn and Dolores Clapp adding to the enjoyment of the number. The audience highly praised the small visitors, and were astounded at the excellence of the program given by such youthful players. Following the program the children were treated to refreshments by those in charge of the entertainment at the bazaar.

REV. CECIL WINTER GOES TO CATARAQUI

Announcement was made on Saturday by Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, of the appointment of Rev. Cecil Winter, rector of St. Mary Magdalene Church, Picton, to be rector of Christ Church, Cataraqui, succeeding Rev. Canon A. L. McTear, who has retired. Mr. Winter, who went to Picton from the parish of Lansdowne Front, will assume his new duties on November 1.

AMUSEMENT BOARDS DO NOT "PAY OFF"

Coin-in-the-slot devotees who dropped many a nickle in the slot machines before they were removed from downtown stores and restuarants after having been declared gambling devices by the Attorney General, have turned their attention to new machines which are labeled "amusement boards" only. Identical in construction and use as the former pin-ball machines, the new ones do not "pay off." The player merely receives for his lucky number additional games which may be played only on the same machine. No slugs or tokens are returned.

BANCROFT FAMILY MOVES TO TRENTON

Bancroft friends of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rouse have tendered their farewells to the family who left the village this week for Trenton, where Mr. Rouse has been appointed inspector in the creosote plant.

GIVE $25.00 GRANT

Members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association who are holding the Empire Cheese Exhibition in this city at the end of next month will be assisted in their efforts with a grant of $25 which will be given by the Kingston Cheese Board. On motion of Mr. James Cook, local buyer and seconded by Ernest Sproule, this sum was authorised at the last meeting of the Kingston Board. Members also took the occasion to express their approval of the work that is being carried on by the Association.

GIVEN APPOINTMENT

Local dairy officials have been informed that John C. Palmer, a 1938 graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, has been appointed creamery instructor and inspector, and dairy school instructor at the O.A.C., as announced by Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Palmer will commence his new duties this week. Mr. Palmer succeeds Mr. C. E. Lackner, recently appointed director of the dairy branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

WHITEFISH START ANNUAL RUN EARLY

First scattered runs of the season's whitefish have arrived on the bars of the Bay of Quinte in Northport section, but as yet catches of the fish have been comparatively light. The fish have arrived earlier this year, a condition which is reported unaccountable due to the fact that as yet not sufficient cold weather has been experienced to result in any movement of the fish from the lake. Ordinarily whitefish are not expected in the bay until about the fifteenth of the month, or until the first cold weather is felt. Cove fishermen along the bay also report the first run of mudcats and catches have been fair, though smaller prices again rule this year. A wholesale price of five and six cents the pound is reported.

START DEMOLITION OF BUILDING

Demolition of the buildings on Upper Front Street, formerly known as the International Hotel, was started this week. When the work of razing the buildings, which is being done by the Howe Wrecking Company of Picton, is completed, the Imperial Oil Company, lessees of the property for the next ten years, will erect a modern gas-fueling station. The property is owned by the estate of the late Ald. John Doyle.

CHRIST CHURCH MEN'S CLUB MAKE PLANS FOR ACTIVE SEASON

After a vacation of six months duration, the officers of the Men's Club of Christ Church held a preliminary meeting at the Church Rectory last evening in preparation for their forthcoming season. Plans for the season's opening meeting, which will take the form of a social event in Christ Church Parish Hall late in the month, were completed, while tentative officers were named to carry out all preparations for the opening meeting, at which the ladies will be the honored guests of the Christ Church Men's Club. Some of the club members, who were named to work in conjunction with Rev. G. G. Wright pro tem in the preparations, are Mark Vanner, Harold Bateman, Dave Bradford, Stan Scott Horace Wright, Fred Chamberlain, Lionel Blaker and others. Arrangements for an outstanding Canadian speaker to address the club at the November meeting were also made.

KINGSTON GENERAL HOSPITAL IS WILLED SUM OF $30,000

Kingston General Hospital will shortly receive a sum amounting to about $30,000, representing the residue of the estate of Minnie (Wallace) Johnston of New York, who died in that city recently.

The sum, as announced by the King's Country Surrogate Court was $40,000 to be met out of this sum. have to be met out of this sum.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Johnston was Minnie Wallace of Picton. She was graduated as nurse from Kingston General Hospital in 1889, after completing a two-year course, and visited the hospital in 1931. She declared herself so pleased with improvements made there since her last visit that she informed the management of the decision to make out a new will naming the hospital as the chief benefactor. Bequests to friends and relatives were said to amount to $17,000.

New Aristocracy Created By Salaries of Teachers and R. R. Engineers, Says Bone

Municipal Government And Those Who Pay Bills

'TAXING IS EASY'

Declaring that relief recipients should actually have little voice in the election of municipal government, Mayor Jamieson Bone of this city, guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Toronto Real Estate Board at the Albany Club, Toronto last evening, added that the power to vote should be given only to those who foot the country's bills

Speaking on "Real Estate Diseases and Cure," Mayor Bone listed the cost of education, and Canada's railways as major burdens, borne by the property owner. He spoke of the $1,800 salary paid some teachers, and the $3,000 declared locomotive engineers as 'creating a new aristocracy in Canada.'

"The building trades," he told the meeting, "are becoming almost extinct in Canada, and unless we do something about it, the property owner will be taxed out of existence."

The Teacher and Engineer

"In what other profession except teaching can a beginner ask or expect $1,800 a year?" he asked. "It is the school teachers and the railway employees who are taking trips to the West Indies at the expense of the taxpayer."

Education rather than relief was the greatest burden borne by real estate maintained Mayor Bone.

"Education takes one third of all city budgets, and costs each head of the family roughly $60 per year, just a trifle more than the cost of the C.N.R., which works out at about $50 annually per family," he said.

Seventy-five per cent of the public were pauperized to keep public servants in luxury, he further charged.

Public Utility Profits

"Canada and the United States are the only countries in the world charging the entire cost of education to the property owner."

Mayor Bone, continuing, suggested that municipal rates could be reduced at least three mills if the government would permit the return of public utility profits to the municipal treasury. He further suggested that another reduction of two mills might be effected if, when a sinking fund debenture had been paid off, the municipality be permitted to retire that debenture, instead of continuing to collect interest for the stipulated twenty years.

"Taxing is easy business," he summed up. "But history plainly shows that when there are no bounds to taxation other than the patience of the people, their final exhaustion has meant social upheaval of considerable magnitude.

Couple, Wedded 55 Years, Recall Life Experiences

Thirty Years Spent In Michigan Rich In Incidents

VIEWS ON PRESENT

Two sparkling-eyed Irish people, with the lilt of the blarney still on the tips o' their tongues, and the light of lives well and truly lived shining in eyes that are yet to show the ravages of time, greeted a newspaperman yesterday afternoon at their home at 100 Cedar Street.

With typical Irish homey friendliness Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Frawley, the former in his eighty-eighth year and his wife ten years younger, gracious, friendly, and in the best of health, drew upon a store of memory and philosophy as they commented on the fifty-five years of wedded life which culminated on Saturday last.

Saga of Experiences

Two vastly different stories rolled from the store of memories that this grand old couple cherish. One was of the hardships, the fight against Nature's grandest warrior, the virgin forests of North America; of lonely nights spent on the trail behind his beloved horses, of sleeping under a wagon beneath a brilliant Michigan starlight; of of howling of wolves, and the sharp scrape of a bears' claws as they tried to ravage pack-sacks.

For forty years, Mr. Frawley "toted" supplies from Cheboygan, Michigan, through dark virgin forests to the lumber camps forty miles away. Music to his ears was the steady "clop, clop" of his horses' hoofs, and creaking wagon in the summertime, and the steady crunch of sleighs and the tinkle of bells when snow covered the forest trails in the winter months.

Lumberjacks' Roaring Songs

Familiar to him are the roaring songs of booted lumber-jacks as they trod swirling logs in racing water; or when the run was over to celebrate in shanty and cabin. "Timber" was his watchword, and he has seen many a majestic giant of the forest crash down before the blows of keen-edged axe and the rhythm of biting saw.

Aging eyes twinkled as he recalled the two-day trips necessary from city to camp with supplies. Year after year followed his exciting career, while back in the city a faithful helpmate reared five boys and a girl in the environment of a perfect home.

"Give Me Horse and Buggy"

He would not take the finest car in the world. He never owned one and he never will, he says. "Give me the horse and buggy, a little slow perhaps, but they always got me places."

Today he laid down a paint brush with which he was painting a window-sash. Behind him in the garden lay freshly-spaded dirt, the result of the day's labor. "That's easy work," he smiled, "but come in the house, I want to show you something."

A minute later he laid a beautifully plaited watch chain in the newspaperman's hand. It was soft, with a texture like silk, yet its compactness and beauty of workmanship offered a puzzle to its holder. Mr. Frawley smiled, "It is a watch-chain made from a lock of Mrs. Frawley's hair. I have worn it for thirty-years, and it is as pretty and durable today as it was then," he stated.

A Plait of Gold-Bronze Hair

Here Mrs. Frawley entered the room. A mischievous gleam shone in her eyes. "Wait until I show you a real sample," she laughed, displaying a plait of beautiful gold-bronze hair. "Yes, they came from the same head" she laughingly added.

"Now, sure and what has he been telling you?" asked the voice with a rich touch of brogue. "I'll bet it's about how hard he worked Well, he did work hard, why even today he gets up, fills up with fried pork, fights all day with me and then sleeps all night. But I wouldn't trade him for the men you have got nowadays. There's a mite of a difference, I can tell you."

The Present Age

"Sure and it's true about the woods. But you couldn't get the men today to do work like that, especially the youngsters. The trouble is, they are not being raised properly," and a gleam of fighting Irish came in the flashing eyes.

"The trouble with the youth of today, they are being given too many of the good things of life before they are made to realize their responsibilities. I raised five boys and a girl, and believe me they were not pampered. Yet they all made good, and today are all working."

"Add these little sayings to the recipe for good old age." If you do happen to go down with the bumps of life, always come up with a smile," this remarkable lady added who temporarily had deserted the arduous job of shaking carpets and housecleaning to entertain her guest.

Husbands of Today

"Feel fine? Why can outlive four husbands yet" Mrs. Frawley said the mischievous gleam reappearing in her eyes, "but I wouldn't want the husbands of today. Why? Because I couldn't adjust myelf to living with a man who smoked or drank. My husband," pointing to where Mr Frawley sat smiling, "why ne may be wild as a hawk, but he has never smoked or touched liquor in his life, and that is something considering the fact that he has lived the most of his life with men of the lumber-camps."

"Seriously," Mrs. Frawley continued, "we live here alone, are in the best of health, work every day and are as happy as can be."

Married on Oct. 8th, 1883 at Read, Ont., where the Rev. Father McCarthy officiated at St. Charles Church. Mr. and Mrs. Frawley moved to Cheboygan, Mich., where they resided for thirty years, returning to Belleville after that period of time where they have resided ever since. Five sons, William, Belleville, Russell, Toronto, John, California, Arthur of Timmins and Roy, deceased, and one daughter, Mrs. L. Bennett, Shannonville, came to bless their union Fourteen grandchildren complete the family.

They were the recipients of felicitations of a host of friends from far and near on Saturday at their home at 100 Cedar Street.

DENBIGH CHILD STRUCK BY CAR

Injuries Not As Serious As At First Supposed

Thought to have been seriously injured, when he was accidentally run over by his parents' car at the Belleville Beaches late yesterday afternoon, two-year-old John James Lloyd McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs Ambrose McDonald, Denbigh, was rushed to Belleville General hospital, where his injuries were discovered to be not as serious as feared at first.

The child with an elder brother and his parents were playing on the beach near the water. The family car was parked a short distance away. The parents deciding it was time to leave strolled toward the car, while the children remained behind to throw a last stone in the water.

Mrs. McDonald reached the car first, and as she settled in her seat, her sons ran across the beach in front of the car. Unfortunately the engine was in gear, when Mrs. McDonald stepped on the starter. The car shot suddenly forward, before the youngest son could get out of the way, the wheel striking his body.

Feared to have serious internal injuries, the child was rushed to the hospital, by Drs. Ralph Bird and G. S. Cronk, but subsequent examination revealed his injuries lighter than at first supposed.

Hospital authorities this morning stated that the youngster was in a satisfactory condition, while attending physician Dr. Bird, said that the injuries consisted mainly of severe bruises, and the child was in no immediate danger.

Karnival Chairmen Working Hard for Success of Show

True to traditions of the Kiwanis Club, that any project sponsored by the organization will be first class in every respect, the Kiwanis Karnival this year will be one of the best of the entire number given by the club. This year a number of the newer members have been given chairmanships and their enthusiasm knows no bounds and preparations are nearly complete.

Decoration of the Armouries will be started this week and the stage and background will be a riot of color. Ivan Scott, chairman of the Entertainment Committee and his helpers have arranged an excellent program including local and professional talent all to be capped off by an amateur show on the final night. There will be two classes in this show, juveniles up to twelve years of age and seniors above that age. Worthwhile prizes will be offered. Anyone wishing to enter this amateur how will send their name to the Y.M.C.A. and they will be notified when the auditions will be held. This is purely a district event and it is the wish of the committee all amateur talent will enter.

The Popularity contest under the chairmanship of Bruce Lattimer is progressing most satisfactorily. All the entries in the competition are working hard with Misses Jean Ramsay and Gladys Knox in the front positions. This competition created considerable enthusiasm last year and the club felt it could put over another this season. The Hope Chest draw is also taking on with the residents and the member of the committee are busy selling tickets.

All these projects are run for one thing only, to derive revenue for the club to carry out their projects for underprivileged children. The Kiwanis Club have done a great work in this respect, many children being assisted, that otherwise would be left out of the picture. The playgrounds help to bring health and happiness to many and the Kiwanis club is proud of its achievement in this respect. There are other projects, such as the V.O.N., the boys and girls camp, but more of these anon. The Karnival will be held from October 18 to 21st inclusive.

Youth Sentenced Eight Hours After Stealing Motor Car

The wheels of justice ground fast in Belleville today for Marshall C. Hawley, 22-year-old Read youth who eight hours after he had been apprehended in possession of a stolen automobile was sentenced to serve not less than one year nor more than 18 months in the Ontario Reformatory. Hawley appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's police court and was convicted of the theft of a motor car, the property of Howard Calnan, of this city, upon his own plea of guilty.

Shortly after 1.00 a.m. today Mr. Calnan rushed to the police station in a state of excitement to inform police authorities that his automobile had been stolen. Constables Evans and Thomson took up the chase in the police cruiser and later observed a motor car being driven northerly on Pinnacle Street, and without lights.

The police cruiser drew abreast of the vehicle in flight and with drawn revolvers the officers ordered the driver to stop, after Calnan, who was accompanying the police, identified the pursued vehicle as being his. When arrested the man gave his name as Marshall Hawley, 22 of Read. "I had no way home so took the car," Hawley is said to have confessed to police

The accused youth elected summary trial and pleaded guilty, when charged with the theft of Mr. Calnan's motor car today. In introducing Hawley's record, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C, said: "This man was convicted of arson at Cannifton in 1932, of the theft of a car at Cloyne in 1934 and also of stealing a car at Burlington in 1936." The year's determinate sentence plus a further indeterminate term of six months followed.

"You are a lucky person you escaped the penitentiary this time," remarked Mr. Donnan.

PARTRIDGE ARE WARY

Conflicting reports of the scarcity and also the fair numbers of partridge in the northern townships of the country are given by local sportsmen. This week it was reported by one well known resident that a tour of the Millbridge district revealed many partridge "but the birds vere wary, shy and hard to get near."

"We've been out, but we saw very few of them," declared Russell White, well known sportsman. "Not as many as we should have seen in the north. Hunters just don't know where to go right now to find the birds."

JAPANESE ARMY

trict, about 20 miles west of Hachung. By cutting it the Japanese hoped to dominate the Canton River by mouth and thus stop supplies from Canton.

Coincidental with the invasion, a statement was issued under the signature of the "Commander-in-Chief of the Expeditionary force of South China" through the Japanese consulate here.

Indulging in Illusion

It declared the Chinese National government still was "indulging in the illusion of a war of resistance against Japan" and that "such circumstances have obliged the Imperial Japanese government to dispatch a large expeditionary force to operate in Kwantung province (of which Canton is the capital), the base of anti-Japanese and pro-communist China."

The manifesto said the purpose was to 'bring China to an earlier disillusionment" and promised forgiveness for Chinese soldiers who surrendered.

"What the Empire of Japan wants of China," it added, "is nothing but that China will come to a realization of her mistakes committed in the past and give up her national policy of resistance against Japan and cooperation with the Communist International.

An influx of new war refugees carting and carrying their belongings brought definite evidence that the war has been brought to the doorstep of this British colony 60 miles southeast of Canton.

IMPORTANT NOTICE—Due to the fact that the Movie Quiz Contest booklets were printed before final details regarding certain pictures were known, they contain five unavoidable errors. Therefore the contest judges have agreed that no matter which answer is submitted by a contestant in connection with the pictures "GATEWAY", "THE TEXANS", "THE CROWD ROARS", "GIRLS ON PROBATION" and "GIVE ME A SAILOR", all answers will be accepted as correct. Just check any one of the answers listed for each of these pictures, state the name of the theatre where you saw it and your answer will count as a perfect score for that particular picture.

CRISIS BROUGHT

are being prepared for the cabinet, and the government is expected to meet Parliament on November 1, with a full program of reforms.

Already there have been several noteworthy developments from the lessons learned when Britain went on a modified war footing at the height of the European tension—

1—Air defence plans will be accelerated by increasing factory productive capacity to a point where the potential output in 1940 may exceed 25,000 planes a year.

2—The balloon barrage, originally restricted to London, will be extended to Birmingham, Bristol, Manchester, Liverpool, Hull, Newcastle, Plymouth, Southampton, Glasgow and Cardiff.

3—The War Office and the A.R.P. division of the Home Office are considering plans to divide recruits between the active defence forces like anti-aircraft batteries and passive defence organizations such as First Aid crews. There may be changes in age limits designed to place the younger and stronger men in the active services.

4—In all probability the government will seek to accelerate the production of the new 3.7 inch anti-aircraft gun which has an effective range of 30,000 feet, and the Bren machine-gun for land-fighting forces, capable of firing 200 rounds a minute in short bursts.

5—Every effort will be made to bring the regular and territorial armies up to full strength to equip them thoroughly, and to accelerate training.

Not Based on Compulsion

Many of these points and a great many more will be going through Mr. Chamberlain's mind as he enjoys his holiday in Scotland.

His main problem is to evolve a plan not based on compulsion which will apportion the available manpower to the various fighting and non-combatant forces in time of war.

He may select some form of a national register, a census of the adult population by which men of certain ages and qualifications would be allocated to various wartime duties. He might go further and have conscription in everything but the compulsory features.

Whatever he does will be designed to bring order out of the modified chaos that existed during the crisis and supply an answer to the national cry, 'tell us what to do,' which was heard on every side.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Letter of Introduction"

Noted for his great and moving tragedies of the screen, John M. Stahl has turned his talents comedy-wards.

More comedy than he has inserted in his past half-dozen productions is included in his latest, "Letter of Introduction," now playing the Capitol theatre until Thursday night.

While this picture contains all the stirring heart-pull, dramatic-punch and glowing romance of his former screen masterpieces, the prominent role played by Charlie McCarthy in the cast accounts for the preponderance of laughs in this production.

Heading the cast are Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds, Edgar Bergen with the inimitable Charlie McCarthy, and George Murphy. As the story embraces incidents in Bergen's rise to fame with McCarthy, excellent comedy opportunities were offered in its development.

Because of the unique style of comedy employed by Bergen and Charlie, most of the incidents dealing with the pair, and practically all of the dialogue between the two, was written by Bergen, recognized as a master comedy constructionist and writer.

The story presents Bergen as a struggling ventriloquist, who, through meeting Menjou, is started on his road to success and fame. The Bergen - McCarthy sequences will include his appearances in swanky New York night clubs, his gradual rise to fame, and his ultimate success in radio.

Several other comedy sequences, between Menjou, Murphy, Andrea Leeds, Rita Johnson and Eve Arden, are spotted through the production.

Stahl is known for his direction of such pictures as "Back Street," "Magnificent Obsession," "Imitation of Life"—all with fairly heavy dramatic, even tragic, themes. "Letter of Introduction" marks his departure into a new field of directorial endeavor.

AT THE BELLE

"Four's a Crowd"

Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell and Patric Knowles share starring honors in the new Warner Bros. comedy, "Four's a Crowd," at the Belle.

"Four's a Crowd" has only one objective, and that's to make the audience laugh. It is an up-to-date comedy of the American scene. The story moves along at a breathless pace with a rapid-fire succession of novel and humorous twists.

The four persons with whose fortunes it is mainly concerned are: A bright and fascinating newspaperman, played by Errol Flynn; a spoiled but charming heiress, played by Olivia de Havilland; a clever smoothie of a girl reporter, played by Rosalind Russell; and a rich playboy, played by Patric Knowles, who inherits a newspaper.

Also prominent in the proceedings is Walter Connolly as a rapacious buccanneer of the business world who is Olivia's grandfather.

Motivate this group with Errol's desire to get himself a slice of the old man's millions and his efforts to court Olivia and Rosalind simultaneously, Olivia's indecision as to whether she loves Errol or Pat more, Rosalind's desire to capture Errol for herself, Pat's wish to marry Olivia, and the old man's determination to hang onto his granddaughter and his millions, and you have the essence of "Four's a Crowd."

The story begins with Knowles, inheriting a newspaper and then deciding to end its existence because it is unprofitable. Here Miss Russell tells the playboy what she thinks of him and persuades him not only to keep the paper alive but to hire as its managing editor Mr. Flynn, who had recently retired from newspaper work to become a high-powered "public relations counsellor."

Flynn does put the paper on its feet, his main devise to arouse interest being to launch a series of attacks on Connolly's business manipulations. Complications ensue when he meets Olivia, for Errol, who is already giving Rosalind something of a rush, becomes romantically interested in the rich girl too, who happens to be engaged to Knowles.

Flynn also plays both ends against the middle by getting Connolly to retain him as public relations counsellor for the purpose of putting a different picture of the millionaire before the public to the one which Flynn's paper is so busily painting. He accomplishes this by the simple trick of pretending a vast interest in the old man's pet hobby — an elaborate toy railroad set. From there on the story is off on a mad whirl with a final double wedding scene that is a near-panic.

Aside from the principals named, other contributors to the infectious merriment of "Four's a Crowd," include Hugh Herbert, Melville Cooper, Franklin Pangborn, Herman Bing, Margaret Hamilton, Joseph Crehan, Joe Cunningham, Dennie Moore and Gloria Blondell.

The Chaser, Unusual

An hilarious page from legal newest entrant for comedy films, "The Chaser" the added feature hit on the same program.

Dennis O'Keefe, one-time deputy marshal in "Bad Man of Brimstone" and the leading player in "Hold That Kiss," again proves his ability to handle light comedy in the role of the ambulance-chasing lawyer whose fast-moving activities haunt the sleep of big corporation lawyers.

Mark the name of Anne Morriss down in your list of coming players. This is her first picture, but she handles herself with the ease and assurance of a veteran.

Director Edwin L. Marin has paced the action of the picture with an eye to obtaining the last ounce of laughter from an audience.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Start Cheering"

The season's top rated musical comedy hit with a star-named cast of unusual proportions will open a three days engagement at the McCarthy theatre, commencing tomorrow. It is suitably entitled "Start Cheering" and that is what everybody will be doing in Belleville, when they come to see Hollywood's greatest assembled array of comedians, musicians, girls and stars in this splendidly produced musical hit.

First of all, there is Jimmie "Schnozzle" Durante, the wild-eyed wag of stage, screen and radio fame. Then there's Walter Connolly, apparently as good as new after his harrowing experiences as Fredric March's managing editor in "Nothing Sacred." Further examination of the cast discloses the lovely Joan Perry; popular Charles Starrett; radio's question-and-answer king, Prof. Quiz; Gertrude Niesen, husky-toned singing star of the radio and the musical stage; Raymond Walburn, comedian extraordinary. The three Stooges, the screen's premier madmen; Broderick Crawford, who is now astounding Broadway audiences with his performance as "Lennie" in "Of Mice and Men," and Hal LeRoy, crackerjack tap-dancer.

Johnny Green, who also wrote music for the picture, is present with his radio network orchestra. Johnny, however, does not carry the entire musical burden of the film. Louis Prima, a royal prince of the realm of swing "sends it" with his band.

In addition, the cast includes Ernest Truex, Broadway Star, who also has an important role in "The Adventures of Marco Polo" coming soon to the McCarthy theatre; Virginia Dale, Columbia's new "find" who recently appeared in "No Time to Marry" has another important role in "Start Cheering". Chaz Chase, international king of gastronomical feats, and Jimmy Wallington, noted radio announcer also help to make "Start Cheering" such an entertaining musical treat and variety show that it really is.

Among the already-well-known songs in the picture are "My Heaven on Earth," "Rockin' the Town" and the theme song "Start Cheering".

A splendid array of exceptional fine short subjects precedes the above hit, matinee and both evening performances daily.

"Sins of Children"

Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker, co-starred in one of the most interesting and highly entertaining romantic dramas ever brought to the screen entitled "Sins of Children" will be presented tonight for the last times at the McCarthy theatre. A Tom Kennedy, all laugh comedy, a Floyd Gibbon's, true adventure story "Alibi Mark" and a screen vaudeville hit "The Juggling Fool" in addition all combine to make up a great evening's enjoyment that we urge you not to miss.

SPEAKER EXPLAINS FIRE PREVENTION

Carl W. Caskey of Fire Marshal's Dept. Addresses Kiwanis Club

To stimulate interest in Fire Prevention Week, members of the Kiwanis Club listened to an interesting address on Fire Prevention by Carl W. Caskey, a Hastings County resident, and inspector of the Fire Marshal's department in Toronto. Excellent reports were given by the various chairmen of the Kiwanis Carnival and the show which opens next week will be one of the best in the history of the club. The chairmen and their committees have nearly completed plans for the Carnival, while Chief Lynch in charge of the booths has already nearly filled the Armouries. The popularity contest and the Hope Chest draw are proceeding satisfactorily and all are looking forward to an exciting four nights at the Armouries.

Large Number Out

A large attendance of the members was presided over by Albert Boynton, while Jack McVeigh as song leader kept them in good humor. Wilfried Laporte, superintendent of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Co. at Corbyville was the booster of the day and gave some interesting figures to show the advantages of having so large a company in this district. "In 1937" said Mr. Laporte "$21,000 was paid to the Township of Thurlow in taxes and the payroll for the past two months has been $1,500 per week not including the office staff. At present there are 130 employees not counting the foremen or the office staff and there is no married man getting less than 37 cents an hour. About $7,000 a month is paid to the C. N. R., $1,000 to the transport companies, and $250 to the O.P.R. for transportation facilities, while over $9,000 a year is paid to the Hydro Commission for power and light." The winners of the prizes offered were Len Fozard, Ralph Harris and Chief Lynch.

Fire Prevention

Deputy Chief Gerald Vance introduced the speaker of the day, while Ross Stiver expressed Kiwanis appreciation. Mr. Caskey stated that Fire Prevention Week originated in the United States and was generally held in the anniversary week of the Chicago fire. The speaker told of the setup of the Fire Marshal's department, which has a Fire Marshal, Deputy Fire Marshal, eight inspectors and an office staff. The department is connected with the Attorney General's department. The work of the department was outlined under three heads, first investigation of certain types of fire including incendiary ones, inspection work, usually carried out by fire chiefs of the various municipalities, and Public Relations work. Mr. Caskey told his listeners there had been a tremendous increase in electric fires and the majority being caused from the use of too heavy fuses. On the question of incendiary fires, the department always welcomed any information, that can be given, which is treated in the utmost secrecy. The speaker showed that fire losses had been greatly reduced, the losses some years ago being 20 millions a year and now reduced to eight millions. The inspector asked for co-operation with the Fire Chief in an effort to keep fire losses at a minimum.

REINFORCEMENTS

The troops, assisted by Royal airforce warplanes, inflicted heavy casualties on a band of raiders in a midnight battle near an Arab village southwest of Jerusalem. One British soldier was killed and another was wounded seriously.

Observers here said events of the past 48 hours indicated the "rebel high command" ordered intensification of activities before arrival of the reinforcements.

The 2,400 reinforcements included the Royal Scots' Greys from India, one of the last remaining horse regiments in the British Army. Great Britain is bringing her armed strength in Palestine to about 21,000 soldiers and police.

(The lengthy dispute between Arabs, claiming to be the dominant people, and Jews, endeavouring to establish a homeland, gained impetus during the Czechoslovak crisis.

(Meeting in Cairo, the Moslem Congress representing eight countries, yesterday endorsed demands that Britain terminate her Palestine mandate and that Jewish Immigration be ended.

The Arab Defence Committee on Monday warned Jews to expect grave trouble in the Far East unless they gave up their aspirations in Palestine.)

From the Jewish side there appeared today a sharp reaction to anti-Jewish measures in Italy. Dr. Judah Magnes, President of the Hebrew University on Mount Scopus, Jerusalem, returned funds offered by the Italian government for teaching the Italian language. Others likewise declined the subsidies.

PREVENT FIRES

(These simple suggestions, if followed by everyone in the family, will make your home safe from fire.)

Put lighted matches and smokes out before you throw them away. Keep matches where small children cannot reach them. Never smoke in the garage, barn, or attic, nor in bed.

Remove rubbish, waste paper and all unnecessary combustible materials. Provide metal ash and trash cans. Burn rubbish only in a safety covered brick or metal incinerator. Watch the fire.

Examine all stoves, furnaces, and smoke pipes to make sure they are safe and well away from woodwork or other burnable materials. Have needed repairs made at once.

Value the advice of your fire chief who says that many fires are caused by dirty or defective chimneys. Have the chimney cleaned regularly, and have all defects repaired.

Escape the danger of flammable liquid fires and explosions by keeping no gasoline in the house. Do dry cleaning with safe liquids or send the work to the cleaner. Never start fires with kerosene.

Notify the electric company of electrical trouble and the gas company of gas leaks. Replace "blown" fuses with new ones — not pennies. Avoid homemade wiring jobs. Don't look for gas leaks with a match.

Teach everyone in the family to be careful of fire, to watch stoves, fireplaces, electric irons and all other possible fire causes, and every day to remove old rags, papers and other rubbish.

Fireproof your home as far as possible by fire-safe roofing, fire stopping in hollow walls and partitions to stop the spread of flame, and a non-combustible basement ceiling.

Inquire of your fire chief, when buying a fire extinguisher, to be sure of getting the right kind. Don't hesitate to ask your firemen whenever you have questions on fire prevention.

Remember always how to send an alarm. If telephoning, be sure the address is clearly understood. Use a neighbour's phone rather than one in the burning building.

Explain to everyone in the house what to do in case of fire, how to put out fire in clothing by wrapping in a rug or blanket, what to do when grease catches fire in the kitchen.

Save life and property from needless destruction by fire by keeping the principles of fire prevention always in mind and never taking a chance with fire.

GOATS INCREASE IN NUMBERS

Goat-raising is on the increase. "Our Dumb Animals" states that in New England fields, where sheep once browsed, farmers are trying out goats and finding them profitable. But goat's milk isn't expected to find a place on the average man's table except for tonic purposes.

This paper quotes H. Holton Thom as having talked with a doctor near Rutland, Vt., who told him of his experiences with wounded soldiers in France. The doctor stated that those billeted with peasants who fed them on goat's milk rallied from illnesses or wounds more quickly and satisfactorily, than those who had been fed on other diets.

Goats are kept in many parts of the country. Hereabouts there are several herds of goats. Near Toronto there are a good many, as those who pass on trains can tell. In New York state there are said to be 60,000 goats and that numbers are increasing.

The goat occupies more attention today than it did, though it is almost too much to expect that the goat's milk will ever supplant that of cows.

Goats are no longer to be look[illegible] upon as of another age and country, for there are enough of them around that it should not be possible now for anyone to grow up without having seen a goat, one of a species of animals which has been the subject of many a story.

Goats possess by nature the ability to climb, the most precipitous places tempting them. They are known to defy fences. They can get through fences which would hold back cattle and at times may climb over a fence. This, says one local man, once a goat owner, is one of the problems he faces. This man knows of a goat which allowed its joy in climbing to lead it to climb up on the top of a motorcar, only to damage the roof with its sharp toes.

THREE SOLDIERS BRAVE

I know a pale-faced little lad
Who cannot jump or run,
But must sit still and watch his pals
Play leap-frog in the sun;
He is his parents' greatest joy,
This helpless, patient, little boy.

I know a brave old gentleman
Who lives in a wheel-chair;
When folks drop in to pass the time
He's always debonair,
Few persons know he could complain
His days and nights are hours of pain.

I know a lady who had reached
Her three-score years and ten;
With eyesight dimmed she cannot read
Nor household duties tend.
With folded hands, she talks and sees
Processions of sweet memories.

"FISH STORY TO END ALL FISH STORIES", as Lowell Thomas would say, comes from North Hastings. Two fishermen on one of the northern lakes had exceptionally good luck and in a short time had about twenty pounds of fine fish. Calling it a day they rowed their boat ashore, salted down the fish in a box, after drawing the boat above high-water mark — then went to the country store nearby to make some purchases. When they returned they found the boat surrounded by excited bovines (cows to you) and their box of fish covered with salt but a memory, except for the mess made in the boat by the cows when they licked up that salt, fish and all. That's all, believe it or not, the salt was gone and also the fish, for the cows made a complete job of it.

THAT BASEBALL PLAYERS MAKE MORE MONEY THAN BANKERS, some baseball players, is evident from the distribution of the loot from the recent four-game World's Series Baseball contest. Each player on the New York Yankee baseball team collected $5,815.28 each, the same amount also going to three coaches, batting practice pitcher, and club trainer, 22 in all, total $121,546.50. As losers, the Chicago Cubs collected less but still a tidy sum, amounting to $4,674.87 each, 26 shares. Players share of the four games amounted to $434,094.66. Gosh, all hemlock! when Hector was a pup us fellers played baseball for fun and bought our own bats and balls — and no one was sissy enough to think of a mask or mitts or things like that.

MOTORIST WAS FINED FOR UNNECESSARY HORN BLOWING IN PETERBORO and at a wedding, too. Wedding party was making the customary hullabaloo tour of the town with horns blowing, tin cans rattling and much ado about nothing. Peterborough, apparently, does not like that kind of disturbance, and haled an offender into court charged with disturbing the peace. One dollar and costs imposed took most of the enthusiasm out of that particular horn-blower. The charge was laid under a city by-law which is a bylaw "to prohibit noises calculated to disturb the inhabitants of Peterborough." The measure was passed on July 5, 1937, and seems to have great possibilities. Hundreds of warnings have been given under the by-law without curbing the people who drive by horns, strident and racuous, and now the Police Magistrate proposes to impose fines of one dollar and costs, increasing all the way up to fifty dollars, the maximum, in order to curb the motor horn blowing nuisance. Apparently in Belleville motorists can blow their horns all they've a mind to, whether their neighbors like it or not, but law sakes, Jemima, we shouldn't be too fussy — or should we?

Oct. 12th., 1918

By a score of 47 to 0 the Belleville High School Rugby Team defeated the Napanee Collegiate Team in a game played here on the Albert College campus. The Napanee team was severely handicapped as six regular members of the team were unable to come to Belleville as they were ill with the prevailing epidemic of influenza. Many spectators were present at the game. All members of the Belleville team played well; Wrightmeyer had no less than three touchdowns to his credit. The visitors despite their handicap played well. The following composed the teams: Belleville—Boyle McWilliams, Diamond, Wrightmeyer, Haynes, Dies, McCabe, Swayne, Burgess, Deeton, Weir, Cooper, Brant and Herity. Napanee—Modell, Smith, Boyce, McNeill, Wilson, Huffman, Colten, Russell, Scott, H. Perry, T. Gleason, Costigan, Daly and Scott.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 12th., 1898.

Twenty one years ago Oct. 9th., the two local lodges of the I.O.O.F. met and decided to organize a band and the result was a musical organization which has been a source of pride ever since to the citiens of Belleville and has been pronounced by competent critics to be one of the best amateur silver bands on this continent. The band was then composed of the following officers and members: President, Mr. Allan McFee; Leader, Mr. B. R. Wolever; Players, Messrs. W. P. Way, C. H. McMullen, George Crang, J. E. Walmsley, C. McDonald, H. Fenn, J. Fenn, James Brown, J. A. Borbridge, W. Street, W. H. Dame, J. H. Ellis, H. Smart, W. Alford, C. R. Brown, J. R. Way and S. A. Soangenberg. Only two of these, Messrs. John Fenn and James Brown, are still active members of the band. Messrs. Wolever and H. Fenn have "Gone Home," Messrs. W. P. Way and J. H. Ellis are railroading in Kentucky. Mr. J. R. Way is in the gold regions of the west, Mr. W. Street is in Minneapolis, Mr. C. MacDonald is in the North West, and Mr. H. Smart is in South Africa. The first public appearance of the band was in the Baptist Church in April 1878. Under the able leadership of Mr. W. B. Riggs, the band was never in better shape than now and we trust that at the close of another twenty one years, the band will still be active and worthy of congratulations. The following now compose the band: President, O. Brickman; Manager, L. R. Terwilligar; Sec.-Treas., John Fenn; Leader, W. B. Riggs; Managing Committee, A. Lewis, James Brown and George Brough; Members, Henderson, Brown, E. Mouck, W. Hart, W. Hawley, E. O'Rourke, R. Blaind, C. Smith, D. Cronkwright, N. Duffin, M. Keat, Leo Riggs and Lester Riggs.

A meeting will be held this coming Friday evening at the office of Mr. George D. Dickson, to arrange for the holding of a mock parliament this winter.

The residents of Plainfield were startled yesterday by the appearance of an enormous bull moose in the immediate vicinity of the village. The animal mingled for a time with cattle belonging to Mr. Hall and Mr. Sullivan and then travelled to Mr. Stephen Emerson's farm and crossed a field where Mr. W. Emerson was ploughing. It then crossed near the church and disappeared near the dead water where it crossed the river.

Mr. G. H. Pope returned from Kingston today where he was on business in connection with water works.

Mrs. Tobias Bleecker and family of Grand Forks, Dakota, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Flint Jones.

Apple Treatment For Diarrhoea and Dysentery

In Europe the treatment of diarrhoea by the use of raw apples has been very successful. The fact that it has not been so successful in the United States and Canada is believed by Dr. Herman Vollner, New York, to be due to not following what is known as the original Moro-Heisler apple diet. In Medical World Dr. Vollner states that the original directions somewhat modified by years of successful use are as follows:

The apples should be ripe but not over-ripe. Slightly sour or tart apples are preferred to the sweet varieties. The apples should be peeled cored and rubbed on a glass grater. For children over one year of age one proceeds as follows: Without using any laxative or starving the patient, apples only are given for one or two days. According to the age of the child from 4 to 12 ounces of grated apples are given at one feeding, five times a day, at four hour intervals. Thus the daily quantity totals from about one to three pounds, which can be obtained from seven to twenty medium-sized apples. Nothing else need be given. Usually one apple-day is sufficient except for severe cases, especially if some apple is given during the next two days along with other food.

The following foods are allowed during the two days following the apple-day: tea, cocoa with half milk broth gruel, toast, zwieback, dry rolls, mashed potatoes, boiled chicken, cottage cheese, banana, apple and stewed blueberries, chocolate pudding. An apple should be given with each meal during these two days.

Following these two days the usual mixed diet is again given.

Briefly, then, the apple treatment of diarrhoea is (a) no laxative or starvation (usual treatment), (b) one whole day on nothing but apples, (c) two days with foods mentioned above, to which one apple at each meal is added, and (d) return to the usual mixed diet.

In infancy—children under one year of age—the grated apple is supplied in a drinkable form, that is the addition of water with a little table salt. This "apple soup" is given five times a day for two days, no other food being added.

Certainly the above treatment is simple and safe. "For the general practitioner the apple treatment of diarrhoea and dysentery is a particularly valuable method of treatment as practically any amount can be given and no other foods are necessary during the one or two days of the apple treatment."

ELECTRIC POWER SEEN AS FACTOR IN DEVELOPMENT

E. Ontario Electrical Association Head Foresees Progress In Eastern Ontario—English Firms To Locate In This Part of Province

"The Eastern Ontario Electrical Association is standing on the threshold of a development that is bound to take place due to the fact that it is much closer to a greater source of power than ever before," Mr. Ross Strike, Bowmanville, president of the organization told one hundred delegates from Eastern Ontario in annual convention in Belleville today.

"We have a magnificent source right at our back doors in the proposed St. Lawrence development," Mr Strike continued. "This development is inevitable and bound to come, and any one who opposes it will find himself in the same position as fabled King Canute attempting to drive back the ocean. I believe that if Eastern Ontario will take full advantages of the opportunities this development affords, it will find its place in the sun."

Local Commission Praised

The speaker paid sterling tribute to the Belleville Public Utilities Commission in "putting the Eastern Ontario Electrical Association on its feet." It was formed in this city some years ago and since then has made fine progress. At that time Eastern Ontario from a hydro standpoint was in a tough spot. "We had a shortage of power, and that is one of the main reasons why western Ontario has gone ahead of us," he said.

Explaining the origin of the association, the speaker pointed out that one of the main reasons it was formed was that a number of municipalities felt that closer co-operation could be brought about with the Ontario Hydro Commission, and by so doing be in a position to look after their own affairs and create harmony among all concerned.

"It was also formed," he said, "to take politics out of Hydro and prevent political expediency from wrecking the system."

"A fine example of the co-operation that now exists between the Hydro Commission and the association is the fact that a number of questions and answers pertaining to the important problems of Hydro were sent out by the Commission to many municipalities. These proved to be of invaluable aid and were greatly appreciated."

Immigration

Turning to Canada, Mr. Strike emphasized the importance of selecting the right type of emigrants. "We are standing on the threshold of a great era of development," he said, "and it is our job to see that the people brought here will bring Canada to the point where she will not become a liability to the Empire."

"In the very near future, a number of English firms will locate here, and with a great source of power at our very doors, a great deal of this will take place in Ontario. Municipalities should see to it that they become the nucleus of this future development."

Two Aims of Association

"In the meantime," the chairman said in his concluding remarks, "this Association should press on to its two main objectives, one, for ever-increasing co-operation from the Hydro Commission because the Hydro development in Ontario, if perfect balance can be made between Commission and municipality great strides can be made."

"Secondly, to take Hydro completely and effectively out of politics, so that we can stand on our own feet, and permit the government to take no part in our affairs."

The convention which opened at ten-thirty this morning includes an all-day session. Addresses will be given by Mr. G. Fred Drewry, Hydro Commission engineer, Dr. T. Hogg, chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and following the banquet given at the Hotel Quinte at which the delegates were the guests of the Belleville Commission, a stirring address was given by His Honor Judge Evan McLean of Picton.

Following Dr. Hogg's address which takes place at two-thirty, this afternoon resolutions the annual election of officers will conclude the convention.

O. S. D. PUPILS GIVE CONCERT AT H. & S. CLUB

W. J. Morrison, Principal of School, Gives Interesting Talk

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Members of the Home and School Club of Queen Alexandra School, the staff and students, had the pleasure yesterday afternoon of enjoying a program given on the stage of the school by pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf. By dances, songs, and band work the pupils demonstrated the methods used at the school for teaching them rhythm and poise. Between acts Mr. W. J. Morrison, superintendent of the O.S.D. addressed the audience explaining in an interesting way some of the phases of teaching the deaf.

There were at the school at present, Mr. Morrison pointed out, students from the age of five to twenty-one. With the deaf it is of great advantage to begin instruction at a very tender age and more success with speech is obtained, when pupils enter at five or even before. The average deaf child is about four years retarded, in comparison with a hearing child. While all children at the school are not totally deaf, and some can hear certain sounds, most of them are deaf for purposes of speech. Mr. Morrison told of one child, now attending the school, whose parents and doctor did not know it was deaf. The teacher in the primary room of the public school detected the deafness. Mr. Morrison impressed on the teachers the necessity of watching "backward" pupils for evidence of loss of hearing, which may in reality be their handicap. In connection with their course of study at the O.S.D. the pupils have regular periods of rhythm work directed by Mr. Alec Gordon and of dancing, taught by Miss Helen Keeler, both of whom were introduced to the audience yesterday.

Opened With Song

The children opened their program with songs, the audience marvelling at the fact, that the young singers were deaf, and unable to hear a word of the songs they were singing. Pierrots and Pierrettes, in white and mauve costumes, made a graceful picture in their dance. Those taking part were Walter Trim, Donna Latawiecz, Bert Styles, Gwen Calvin, Bert Pollington, Patsy Richardson, Clifford Marlin and Mary Pat Edwards. Miss Rose Stevenson presented a smart Irish tap number "Peggy O'Neil" and a Scottish number was given by two youthful Highlanders in correct costume, Margaret Tonkin and George Calder. A sword dance was given by Leonard Rainer and Teddy George.

After a tap dance in which eight girls took part, a colorful Spanish number by Violet Salminen, Margaret Krouse, Glen Robertson and Steve Graziano concluded the dance program. The precision and grace of the young dancers made it difficult to believe that they could not hear the piano but merely received the vibrations through the floor. Further demonstrating the prowess of the students, the Rhythm Band gave several selections which were received with great applause by the audience. The performance of the students in the band was flawless. The members of the band were Myrtle Duller, Kathleen Bartlett, Eileen Barrett, Helen Reble, Steve Graziano, Glen Robertson, Carder Wilson, Raymond Cork, Gordon Owen, Leonard Rainer, Allan Boodway, George Calder. Mr. Alec Gordon played the piano accompaniment for the program.

Club Expresses Thanks

Mrs. W. H. Finkle, president of the Club, expressed to Mr. Morrison, Miss Keeler, Mr. Gordon and the pupils, the appreciation of the members for their kindness in coming to the school and presented such a splendid program. Mr. W. G. Anderson, principal of the school, on behalf of the boys and girls, thanked the Home and School Club and the visitors from the O.S.D. for the privilege of being present. The demonstration inspired those who can hear to do a little better and impressed on those present the real joy of living that pupils at the O.S.D. are experiencing.

A business meeting of the club followed when plans were made concerning the Book Fair at which Her Excellency The Lady Tweedsmuir has graciously consented to be present.

Refreshments were served the visitors and members under the direction of Mrs. R. S. Hamilton.

WASPS SEEK WARM HAVENS

Plague of Insects Infests Homes And City Offices

In spite of the balmy weather of yesterday and today, windows of the upper office of the city hall, the post office, customs building and other downtown offices, and even homes in the city and outside the suburbs, continue to remain closed as a plague of wasps which made its appearance this week, shows little signs of abatement.

Buzzing loudly, the wasps which have appeared in numbers greater than recalled for long past, have been making close inspection of the walls and windows of buildings seeking entrance within where a few females be dormant until warmer weather next year.

Busy office workers have brushed them from books and ledgers as the threatening insects make their way inside. On the ceilings of the city hall they were clustered in scores. Within the customs building clerks swatted them ineffectually.

Even homes as widely separated as Rossmore and Cannifton have reported the invasion of the stinging insects, whose viciousness has, however, been tempered by the cooler weather recently.

CHEESE PRODUCERS' OFFICIAL TO SPEAK AT CAMPBELLFORD

R. H. Mayberry, vice-president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association will address the annual banquet of Campbellford district cheesemakers being held in Campbellford on November 15th, it was announced at a meeting of makers held on Saturday. The address of Mr. Mayberry who was a delegate to the Empire Conference at Sydney, Australia, is being looked forward to by members of the Campbellford Board who anticipate an attendance of over two hundred representatives of the dairying industry in the central section. The banquet will be held in parish hall.

Amalgamation Fire Brigade And Building New Addition To No. 1 Hall Discussed

Council Will Likely Hold Special Session To Complete Matter

ASSESSOR NAMED

H. D. Bateman, Former Alderman of City Given The Position

Whether the fire brigade will be amalgamated under one roof and a new addition built on number one firehall this year will be decided at a special meeting of the City Council to be held some time later this week according to a recommendation passed at the regular session of the council held on Tuesday night. Mayor Bone was out of the city on official business and Alderman T. Y. Wills was appointed by the members as Acting Mayor for the session with Alderman McLean Haig as chairman of the Committee of the whole and by-laws.

Alderman Laurie Lewis, Chairman of Fire, presented a recommendation from the Fire committee unanimously recommending that the policy of one hall operfor the Fire department and that the addition to number one firehall be proceeded with at once. Aldermen Thompson, Baragar and Kennedy took exception to proceeding with the work until a full report had been received from the City Engineer and consequently Alderman Barlow moved that a special meeting be held at which the Engineer's report could be received and a vote taken on the whole matter. Alderman Lewis feared that the delay would hold up the contractors and add further to the cost of the addition. Alderman Thompson was against any capital expenditure at the present time and did not think it justifiable to issue debentures for so large a sum.

Alderman Thompson— "I think should put both brigases up in number two hall because I do not feel that number one hall is the place for centralizing the brigade."

Alderman Tohmpson —"I think we should wait for the Engineer's report as was voted for here tonight."

Alderman Lewis— "I am of the firm opinion that we can save money by operating in one hall. I am also sure that the Engineer has given this council sufficient data, that they can intelligently vote on this motion I have read. Every day's delay will probably cost more money. The committee has thoroughly discussed this matter and believe that there will be a saving from repairs to almost pay the debenture debt, that will be incurred."

Alderman Barlow— "I have a desire to have something done in this matter. I cannot agree with Alderman Kennedy on the number two site for the centralizing of the firehalls because the street is not wide enough. I can say with all candor that the drying tower at number two hall is not in good shape in fact the bell had to be taken down from the tower because it was not really strong enough to hold it. At the present time it takes nearly one half ton of coal to dry the hose and this expense could be done away with. It is true that water has bothered number one hall on two occasions but I still think it is the logical place for the amalgamated halls."

Citizens to Save

Alderman Marshall— "In the long run the citizens are going to be the savers. We have received two tenders for this job already and the second one was higher than the first because of the lateness of the season: I am sure that the repair bill for the two halls under the old system will be greater than the fee taxed under the debenture."

Alderman Rollins—"I would like to see the Engineer's report" and this thought was also expressed by Aldermen Baragar and Wills. Ald. Logan wanted to know if a vote had ever been taken as to the choice of sites and Alderman Lewis explained that he thought all members were nearly agreed on the number one site. At any rate the report was referred back and will be taken up after the engineer's report has been received.

Recommendation

The Fire Committee hereby unanimously recommend that the policy on one hall operation for the Fire Department be adopted. The addition to No. 1 Fire Hall as detailed in the City Engineer's report of June 2nd. and for which tenders were called, be proceeded with at once, together with the new heating system decided upon subsequent to Engineers June 2nd. report..

It is further recommended that the tender of Stanley M. Carter for general construction be accepted. The sum being $7650.00 and that the tender of the John Lewis Co. for the installation of the heating system at $1745.00 be also accepted. The total amount needed for the work will therefore be $9395.00.

In arriving at its decision the Committee considered economy in operation, most suitable site compatible with cost and service, coordination of effort and resulting efficiency of Department.

1 Relief fireman (4 months)	340.00
Heating No. 2 Hall (12 tons)	180.00
Light, water, gas No. 2 Hall	75.00
Telephone No. 2 Hall 2 .	105.00
1938 Repairs No. 2 Hall doors, roof, tower, sills and general	1750.00
Hook and ladder extension.	150.00
	3000.00
No. 1 Fire Hall for 1938. New windows and doors frames and sills, painting.	200.00
General repairs	300.00
	3500.00

The foregoing represents needed expenditures for 1938. In addition there are general savings made possible by the change of approximately $1000.00 per year in wages, maintenance and regular overhead.

At least 3 or $4000.00 should be realized from the sale of No. 2 Hall. This with three years saving as outlined would totally liquidate cost of new Hall.

Full co-ordination will result from the change because the full complement of men will be under direct and immediate control of the Chief or his assistant. The judgment of these officers is at present denied to No. 2 Hall with the result that at times full fire fighting apparatus responds to any alarm when one piece would suffice. Discipline would certainly be improved.

Any point in the city limits can be reached from No. 1 Hall within 4 minutes from time of receiving the alarm..

Our recommendation is submitted after mature consideration of all phases of this question.

J. A. Marshall,
Laurie Lewis.

Declaring that this council was the first council to assess the Memorial Hall for taxes, John Lazenby, secretary of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada appeared before the council asking for remission of taxes for this year. Mr. Lazenby gave a detailed account of the receipts and expenditures of the Hall claiming most of the money was used for charity purposes and there was no trust fund being established.

The speaker showed that the rental from the ground floor stores was $920 a year with $554 of that amount used for fuel. "Last year" said Mr. Lazenby "the veterans gave away $500 for charity not including the Poppy Fund and they were instrumental in getting many veterans their back pension and taking them off the relief rolls of the city. Two men are paid about $1,800 and I receive $200 as secretary. Every cent that has been taken in has been usefully spent. The hall does not belong to us, it was given to the veterans of Belleville and immediate district and I don't think we should pay taxes." Ald. Lewis was of the opinion, that the veterans should not be charged for the rooms they occupy on the top floor but that taxes only should be taken for the stores in the front of the building. It was deceided that Mr. Lazenby prepare a condensed and concise statement of the affairs of the Association and meet the committee at their next regular meeting at which time the council will appoint a special committee to go into the whole question. The veterans were granted the right to hold Poppy Day on November 6th.

Preliminary Survey Completed

The City Engineer has completed the preliminary survey of the Moira River and his report was given to the council last evening along with a long profile blue print showing the vertical and horizontal scale. Accompanying the blueprint was a number of pictures taken along the river. Alderman Eddie Logan complimented the Engineer on the fine work and believed the council had real data on which to work. Alderman Jennings, chairman of Regional Planning is forwarding this work to the proper authorities at Ottawa and Toronto and probably some action will result. The report of the Engineer is herewith given.

Re: Moira River Survey

Dear Sir:

I beg to report that I have completed a preliminary survey of the Moira River from the Railroad Bridge at the mouth of the river to the Corbyville dam, as authorized by the Council's recommendation of July 18th, 1938, at a total expenditure of $128.00.

You will recall being present when the survey was started on August 15th at the mouth of the river and also when the final soundings were taken at the Corbyville dam on October 4th. My interim reports under date of September 2nd and September 22nd covered the extent of the survey as far north as the Cannifton dam and since the date of the latter report I have completed the ground work and rechecked all my survey notes, etc.

The extent of this survey is shown on a large profile plan which has been prepared at a scale of 100 feet to the inch horizontal and 5 feet to the inch vertical. The general profile of the river shows the elevations of both shor elines, the elevation of the river bottom and the water depths at every 100 foot interval. All dams and bridges are shown in detail together with a total of 38 cross-sections. These cross-sections are set out at a scale of 50 feet to the inch horizontal and 5 feet to the inch vertical. Several pictures were taken along the route of the river and 22 different views are submitted along with the plan. Much valuable information was given and every assistance afforded me by local citizens as well as residents dwelling along the shores of the river and in the nearby vicinity, during the progress of the survey work, and appreciation for this courtesy is hereby gratefuly acknowledged.

In conclusion I wish to say that all the field work was carried out during the afternoons without misfortune and the large plan was kept up to date by the plotting of each day's work as it was completed. Records of all levels measurements and pictures are on file for future reference.

Yours truly,
Charles A. Mott,
City Engineer.

Engineer Reports

Another report of the City Engineer on the sidewalk in front of the Armouries was also given and speaks for itself.

His Worship Mayor Bone and Aldermen of the City Council,
Belleville, Ontario.

Re: Bridge Street Sidewalk At Belleville Armouries

Gentlemen:

I beg to report that Alderman Thompson and I have been endeavouring to have repairs made to the present concrete sidewalk along the south side of Bridge Street in front of the Belleville Armouries. The attached letters are the correspondence which I have had with Mr. Charles A. Cameron, K.C., M.P., who has been taking the matter up with the Department of National Defence.

My letter of September 17th to Mr. Cameron explains how the present sidewalk was constructed by the Department of National Defence at their expense, about the year 1905, although we have no records which would indicate the exact year this construction work was carried out. However, on October 2nd, 1905, Construction By-law No. 1238 was passed by the City Council authorizing the construction of a concrete sidewalk along the south side of East Bridge Street from McDonald Avenue to Lot 23, this lot being the property upon which the Belleville Armouries is located which makes it appear that the Armouries sidewalk was already in place.

On Tuesday of this week I had a representative from the Engineering Department of Military District No. 3, Kingston, call at my office regarding the replacement of the present sidewalk which is badly in need of repair. His Department is desirous of knowing if the City will replace this sidewalk with a new one under the provisions of the Local Improvement Act and grant the Department a 60% exemption similar to the exemption which the City has been granting the owners of property abutting on the work when the sidewalk is of new construction and being the first sidewalk bulit on the street. The Department claim that they are entitled to this 60% exemption, due to the fact that they assumed the total cost of the first constructed sidewalk. If the re-construction of this sidewalk is considered to be a replacement of the present sidewalk, the Department would only be entitled to their statutory one-third exemption as set forth in the Local Improvement Act.

I would appreciate having this Council's opinion on this matter, or would the Council recommend that I take the matter up with the Ontario Municipal Board for their decision.

Yours truly,
CHAS. A. MOTT.
City Engineer.

Alderman Thompson speaking to the report stated he told the Engineer to notify the department the Council was not prepared to proceed with this work this year but thought the Department was responsible for the full cost of the sidewalk under the Statute.

Committee Reappointed

A special committee on reassessment was re-appointed to report from time to time on the progress of the work of changing the system. Three by-laws were passed, one appointing Harold D. Bateman as City Assessor at a salary of $1,800 a year with the new assessor to have no other line of work only that of Assessor, one to regulate the Market and one to convey certain property to the McColl-Frontenac Oil Company. The Market by-law was simply an amalgamation of all the other by-laws that have been passed from time to time. The majority of the members considered the by-law very fair in its present form, while others thought the line was drawn pretty thin in some cases, but the by-law was passed in its various stages and now becomes law.

Alderman Marshall prepared a motion that Aldermen Howell, Thompson, Cushing and the mover added by council be a committee to investigate and report on the bus stops in this city and devise some way or consider some scheme for a bus terminal. Alderman Marshall expressed the opinion that buses were cluttering up the street, impeding traffic to a certain degree, using the streets and not paying any revenue to the city. The whole matter will be discussed by the committee and a full report given the council. Alderman Cushing stated the matter had been taken up with the bus companies through the Chamber of Commerce, but little progress had been made. There being no further business the council adjourned.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

His Wealth Can't Buy Him Love

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Perhaps you might call me a poor little rich boy. I'm eating my heart out for something money can't buy—Love. I love her so but she cares for someone else. She is so sweet and kind and when I see them together on the street, his possessive air burns me up. Mother invited her to go to New York on a lovely trip. She thanked her and refused saying she would rather ride with him on a truck than with anyone else in a limousine.

Don't tell me to forget her, I can't do that. My hope is that some day she will realize.

Lonely

Well, my dear young friend, suppose you don't forget her; keep on pining for a girl who says she'd rather ride in a truck with one young man than in a limousine with anyone else. That's not a very bright prospect, is it? Sorry I can't print all your letter, but my best advice to you is to take the job in New York your father wants you to take and which you're turning down to be near this girl who is in love with someone else.

Hard words of wisdom, these, but there's as good fish in the sea as were ever caught.

She Wants to Write

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Enough to say my engagement was broken three weeks before my marriage was to have taken place. There was all the mess of returning presents, writing notes and other nightmare horrors.

As I didn't want to see people, I began to write, and was amazed that a few of the things I had written were accepted and paid for. Some of the editors returning manuscripts have said that I show ability but need more technical knowledge. Would you be good enough to recommend some books that would help me to overcome this defect? What do you think of joining a class in journalism or short-story writing?

Impatiently Waiting

About joining these classes, I should say it will depend entirely on the instructor whether you'll get anything out of them or not. People who have never published a line or entered the city-room of a newspaper give instruction in short-story writing and in journalism. Unless you have a properly accredited instructor, it is reasonable to suppose that you might do as well for yourself by borrowing books on these two subjects from your city library.

GOOD MANNERS

Trousseau Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me about an informal tea. I have been asked by a friend to manage this tea, and I do not feel that I am thoroughly acquainted with all details. There is to be no wedding reception, and the trousseau tea will probably be the only social function.

1 Should the invitations be written or just telephoned? The guests will be mostly neighbors and close friends.

2 Should the bride and her mother receive?

2 What about a menu?

4 How should the trousseau be arranged and shown?

5 Is it proper to take a gift to the trousseau tea when you don't expect to be invited to a shower, or do you expect to be invited to the wedding?

7—Is it proper to have any amusements for the guests?

H.

1 The invitations to this informal tea may properly be given by telephone, or note may be written.

2 Yes, the bride and her mother welcome the guests together, and usually the bride's mother invites the groom's mother to receive with them.

3 The menu is usually of the simplest tea-menu variety; tea, small sandwiches, little cakes or slices of cake, such as fruit cake. If you wish, coffee is served as an alternative of tea.

4 The trousseau is usually artistically arranged in the bride-elect's room, and the guests may be either "escorted" to this room, or may go there whenever they wish.

5 It is proper to give a gift to the trousseau-collection, but it is better to send it before the tea, rather than to take it with you. If you take it with you, some of the other guests may be embarrassed by wondering if they were expected to bring a gift.

6—The bride-to-be welcomes her guests as they arrive, makes any necessary introductions, sees that the guests are happy and comfortable, and sees that they are helped to refreshments. But she should not preside at the tea-table, instead she should ask one or two relatives or friends to assist her in this pleasant duty.

7—You will find, I am sure, that there will be no need for planned entertainment any more than at any other tea-party, for the point is to chat with friend and to exclaim over the beauty of the trousseau.

When Meeting People

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it ever correct to ask a person, for instance, in an introduction, to repeat his or her name? I always hesitate about doing this. But sometimes one really would like to know the name.

2 Also, if at a party you are introduced to the same person twice, should you mention this fact to the one making the introduction, or just let it pass?

Mary

1 There is no reason to hesitate about asking a person to repeat his or her name, and this need not be embarrassing. We should avoid saying an abrupt "What's your name", but instead say something like this, "I'm so sorry, but I did not hear your name."

2 It is ungracious not to mention the fact that we have been introduced to the person before, for this omission would seem to indicate that we had not "registered" the introduction. Here again we should not be abrupt and say "I've met Miss Allen". Instead say graciously something like this, "Thank you. I have had the pleasure of meeting Miss Allen."

Ten-Minute Pedicure Routine

ELEANOR POWELL
Never neglects her pretty dancing feet

By HELEN FOLLETT

HOW ABOUT a 10-minute pedicure? It's as easy as "rolling off a log", makes feet feel good and look pretty. Chiropodists tell us that human feet have a hard life, don't receive the attention they deserve.

Give the feet a thorough scouring with warm soap suds and a heavy brush. But before you do that, shape the toenails with a flexible steel nail file; you can't work on them after they have been softened by moisture. File them straight across.

Drop mineral oil on each nail and work up the surrounding cuticle with an orange wood stick. Don't clip it; you will get yourself and your toes in trouble. Pass the orange wood stick under the nail eaves.

Massage With Oil

Pour a little oil in the palms of your hands, massage feet and ankles, smoothing up and down, pressing in with the thumb, treating each toe separately. Wipe the oil away with a dry towel, being careful to include the areas between the toes and the flesh around the nails.

Get out your favorite nail polish, sweep the camel's hair brush over each nail, wipe away any of the veneer that trickles down at the sides. Finish with a brisk friction with the palm of the hand to stimulate blood streams under the nails.

MOUNT PLEASANT W. M. S.

The W.M.S. and W.A. of Mount Pleasant held their meeting together on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clarence Goodman. The W.A. meeting opened with a hymn and prayer by Miss Lottie Goodman. The scripture lesson found in John 15th chapter and read by Mrs. Charlie Treverton. The minutes were read and adopted, followed by roll call. It was moved by Mrs. Treverton and seconded by Ida Gibson that the W.A. finance the heating of the church. Several then read slips of household hints. Mrs. Clarence Goodman gave a reading entitled "A Bridal Wine Cup". Mrs. Charlie Treverton and Miss Maggie Moult was put in to get up the program for Sept. Hymn

Hymn 'Blest be the tie that binds' was sung. 15 members present and collection 86c. The W.M.S. meeting, Mrs. Carman Gibson and Mrs. Helen Spencer were appointed delegates for the W.M.S. Rally at West Huntingdon. A letter of business was read by Mrs. Clarence Goodman. 10 members answered the roll call, minutes adopted. Group Leader, Mrs. Helen Spencer too the meeting. Mrs. Orley Parks gave a reading and also Mrs. Robert Elliott. Mrs. Frances Treverton closed the meeting by prayer. Collection 86c. The bale was then dealt with. Lunch was then served and a social half hour was spent.

MELROSE W. M. S.

The Melrose Missionary Society met for their October meeting on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. G. Walker.

Although the attendance was not large, an interesting program was carried out, the outline of which was given in the September issue of the Missionary Monthly.

The leader, Mrs. R. Macfarlane, read the opening sentences after which a hymn was sung and prayer offered in unison. Readings were then given by the following members, Mrs. R. C. English, Mrs. F. Bennett, Mrs. R. Macfarlane, Mrs. G. McLaren, Mrs. E. Badgley and Mrs. C. Young all of which dealt with missions in China. Mrs. Pascoe led in prayer. Following the singing of hymn, items of business were discussed and settled. A delegate, Mrs. G. Walker, was appointed to attend the Sectional Rally at West Huntingdon. A letter was read by Mrs. R. C. English from the Christian Stewardship Secretary, Mrs. W. Osborne wherein the need for increased contributions for missionary work was brought before the members. The autumn thank offering service was arranged for the first of next month.

The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer offered by the president.

The hostess served home-made candy and the ladies spent a social half hour.

GIFTS PRESENTED TO YOUNG COUPLE

A delightful informal gathering was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hamilton of Foxboro when a number of the community met to greet and offer their best wishes to Miss Mary Simpson, a bride-to-be of next week. Mr. Clarke was master of ceremonies and expressed best wishes to the young couple for a successful and happy wedded life. The young couple were given seats of honor and the program opened with a hearty sing-song led by Mrs. Gowsell and Mrs. Daniels. Speeches were given by Mr. Fred Elliott of West Huntingdon and others. Mrs. Gowsell rendered a pleasing solo and Miss Dorothy Elliott and Mrs. Emerson contributed several delightful violin selections. The following address was then read:

To Miss Mary Simpson:

A number of your friends and acquaintances have met together this evening to show our good-will and to wish you success in the new step you are about to take in choosing a partner in life. According to the ancient custom, we congratulate you and take this opportunity of expressing our pleasure in some tangible way, by presenting you with some small but useful gifts, to assist you in starting your new home. We therefore request you to accept these tokens of friendship from Foxboro and West Huntingdon community and may you long live to use them, as they serve, to remind you of the pleasant evening spent among us.

Signed on behalf of those who wish you God speed in your new home.

The young couple were then presented with a beautiful silk bedspread, a silver cake basket and casserole, and a number of other useful and appropriate gifts.

Mary and Everett thanked their friends very fittingly for the lovely gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home. Mrs. Hamilton then served a bountiful lunch, after which a watermelon feed was enjoyed by all.

Normal for A Child to Protest

An Assertion of Will Is a Healthy Sign, Lisa Grenella Says

By LISA GRENELLE

JIMMY SMITH NEVER talked back. He never staged a tantrum, or said, "I won't!" or "Please, Mother—can't I?" He always did what he was told, without argument; he never got into mischief.

Frances Jones looked at him, and sighed. She wished her own little boy, Harry, wa sas easy to manage She, therefore, was a bit startled by what I said to her.

"If I had a child like Jimmy Smith," I told her, "I'd be worried to death. I don't believe in things—or children—that are too good to be true. The children who are too good are the real problems, not the ones like your Harry."

The rules and regulations of the grown-up world are not reasonable or agreeable to children. Why should they be? In time, and with tactful handling, a child cen be made to fall contentedly into line, with just an occasional compromise here and there. But in the beginning, any normal child protests and tries to assert his own will.

Of course "back talk" should be discouraged, especially when it's discourteous; tantrums must be discouraged, too. But it is natural and normal for a child to attempt these primitive methods of enforcing his own will. A child has, or should have, a will of his own. He should want to enforce it. If he doesn't want to and try to, he's not normal; he's backward or his spirit is broken. An assertion of will, unless carried to an extreme, is a healthy sign, even if it is unpleasant.

Risk Punishment

A child should want things (sometimes) enough to risk punishment for them. Wanting things enough to be willing to pay for them is learning to live; it's one of the first big adjustments, the first big compromise.

How can the "good" children, the "little angels", the Jimmy Smiths, learn anything if they never test anything? How can they measure their strength, or the strength of their parents and the world, without conflict?

If you are blessed with a "little angel", for goodness sake do something about it before it's too late! Take him to a doctor to see if he's anemic. Give him as much freedom as possible and try to build up his interests. Goad him to assert himself, to stand up occasionally against you or his brother. Do everything you can to build his confidence—to find some way in which he is able and willing to express himself. Encourage him to make his own decisions. Give him responsibility; ask his advice.

If you can get your child to obey you, after a period of conflict in which you have proved yourself the better man (not just the stronger one!) you have accomplished something. But if he obeys you from the beginning because he's afraid of you or hasn't the will to challenge you ,that's no triumph. That's the symptom of a weakness which you'll have to work hard to counteract.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W. M. S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Orval Stratton on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 6th. Mrs. Claude Clarke, Group Leader, was in charge of the meeting which opened by the singing of a hymn. The program for Thank-offering service from the Missionary Monthly was followed, Mrs. Clarke taking the leader's part. After the opening meditation read by the leader, Mrs. (Rev.) Craig led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Harvey Shetler and Mrs. Harry Murphy read a historical sketch of the Honan Mission. After singing another hymn, Mrs. Orval Stratton gave a reading showing the progress of Christian education and healing from its small beginning by the first missionaries to the present time in China. Prayer for China and Japan was offered by the leader, Mrs. Claude Clarke. Mrs. Robertson gave a reading containing a sketch of the Christian Church in Honan, China, as it exists at the present time under native leadership assisted by the missionaries. In the absence of the president, Mrs. E. Stratton, through illness, Mrs. Craig took charge of the business. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary an dadopted. Roll was called, members answering with a verse containing the word "Light." Twenty ladies were present. Some plans for the chicken supper were discussed and Thankoffering envelopes distributed, to be handed in at the Sunday evening service. It was decided that the W.M.S. take charge of the evening service on Nov. 13 with a special speaker to be named aletr After the closing hymn, Mrs. Clarke offered a prayer of dedication and pronounced the benediction. Collection was $3.20 and for flower fund 98c. The hostess and Group Leader served a delicious lunch and the social time after the meeting was much enjoyed by those present.

Centenary

Centenary—On Wednesday evening, Oct 5th, the young folks of the community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hart to celebrate the homecoming of the newly weds, Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Hart. The noise made by all kinds of devices succeeded in bringing the young couple out on the veranda and they realized a charivari was on for their benefit, the usual donation was soon forthcoming from Elwin, then a number proceeded to Belleville and brought back gallons of ice cream and cakes. All enjoyed the good things and a happy hour was spent together. After wishing the bride and groom much happiness the friends departed all feeling another good night's fun had been enjoyed at the expense of the groom.

Mrs. Harold Thrasher is confined to her home through illness, all her friends hope she will soon be around again in her usual good health.

Stoves Required By Needy Families

Two families in destitute circumstances are desperately in need of stoves, officials of the Belleville Fire Department learned today. Investigation of the families in which are a number of small children, revealed their needs were genuine, and with the approach of cold weather, all the more urgent.

Anyone having a cookstove or a small heater is requested to get in touch with Deputy Fire Chief Gerald Vance, who will see that the stoves are called for and delivered to the families in need.

Lady for Shanghai

—By—

Kaye Fox

"Too soon," Fay said shrilly. "If I can't get Martin to—to say something definite before the end of the voyage. And if only I had a free hand, Christine, if I wasn't hampered by a prude of a sister, with a perfectly mid-Victorian ideas——"

"Perhaps the mid-Victorians got those ideas from their own experience," Christine said, with a bitter little smile. It sounded a trifle smug but she was thinking of her own very recent scene with Grant.

"It's all very well for you to smile Christine," Fay snapped, "when you're ruining my chances. Are you still determined to give me away unless—unless I keep Martin at arm's length?"

"Still determined, Fay,' Christine said quietly.

And she was only too thankful that Fay really believed that she could carry out her threat. After all, for days past she had not heard Fay's name spoken, and her sister might have spent every single evening in the cabin de luxe without her being any the wiser. Since that night when she had interfered by sheer chance, she had known nothing at all about Fay.

"I think you're mean, Christine," Fay burst out. "As I told you before, you're simply jealous because I'm likely to make a good marriage—at least, I would be likely, if you weren't spoiling everything for me."

"Or stopping you from spoiling everything, Fay. You'll meet a better man than Martin Royde some day, and be grateful to me."

"I'll never meet another man like Martin,' Fay declared. "Just look at the other men on board—the ones that have any money are all as dull as ditchwater. But Martin—you you just can't understand. You've never been in love—you don't know anything about it."

"Perhaps not," Christine said quietly.

With all her heart, she wished that Fay was right, and that she had never been in love.

"Youre not even listening to me, Christine," Fay said, in an injured voice. "You're just standing there, watching the fish, and I don't believe that you know or care what I've been saying to you."

"I've had a long day and I'm very tired," Christine said. "I was listening to you, but somehow tonight——"

GRANT APOLOGISES

She broke off, for she had been going to say that to-night it didn't seem to matter very much what Fay did. For so many days she had been watching eagerly for a chance of talking to Fay, and now, when the chance had come, she was too heart-weary to take advantage of it. For the first time in their lives, someone else was more important to Christine than this spoilt, selfish sister.

"Then you'd better go to bed, if you can sleep in this heat," Fay said pettishly. "It's more than I can do—I shall lie awake until dawn."

"And I have to be up again at dawn, so I think I'll go."

On her way to her own cabin, she took the precaution of looking in the bathroom, to make sure that Pussyfoot had not been on the watch for her, but there was no one there. It was one of those breathless tropical nights when even the swift motion of the ship seemed to make no breeze, and the bathroom, with no outside ventilation, was so stifling that the most spiteful and determined watcher might have hesitated before staying there for any length of time.

And the stewardesses' cabin was almost as stifling as the bathroom, and smelt pungently of toilet vinegar, Mr. Parr's favourite refresher.

She was down in the pantry before the others next morning, so early that she passed them in the alley-way when she was coming up. Although she had not turned her head, she knew that Arthur Grant had come up the companion behind her, for she recognized his even step, even though it were heavier than usual.

"I've got an excuse, in case one of those old cats comes back," he said, pulling a pair of white silk socks out of his pocket. "One of my passengers want you to darn these for him—he gave them to me yesterday, and I forgot to ask you. But Christine, you know what I want to say—that I'm sorry about last night. I'd been drinking just enough to make a fool of myself, but it won't happen again, I promise you."

"I'm sorry, too," she said.

"It's a good thing that it was the doctor who caught me—he's a good chap, and he won't say anything. But that doesn't make things much better—we've been pals, and I've spoilt things, Christine, and I'm grovelling this morning."

"We'll forget it, and still be friends, Arthur," she said, and added in a slightly louder tone: "I'm not sure that I have any white darning silk, Grant, but perhaps I can get some at the barber's shop. Is your passenger in a hurry?"

"Not specially—he wants these socks to wear when he goes ashore in Penang," Arthur said, taking her warning.

She had heard the soft shuffle of Miss Crane's slippers in the alley-way—Miss Crane always wore bedroom slippers when she went down to the pantry in the early morning. Of course the other stewardesses had noticed that Arthur came up the companion just behind Christine, and Miss Crane had come quickly back to the cabin in the hope of catching them together.

"Good morning, Miss Crane," Arthur Grant said serenely, as he handed the socks to Christine, picked up his tray of fruit and went off.

Miss Crane looked after him suspiciously, but she certainly had no grounds for making a report to Perrin. It was quite usual for the bedroom stewards to bring small jobs of mending to the stewardesses, since there was no one else on board to do them, and they brought in a few extra shillings in the way of tips.

"I should have thought you had enough to do, without darning socks," Miss Crane said to Christine.

"I can do them while I am sitting with Dion Farrant in the hospital," Christine said.

She was too fagged out that morning to resent Miss Crane's spying, or to be angry with Arthur Grant for the harm which he had unwittingly done her. He had come up to the hospital on impulse, she knew that, and he had not the slightest idea, even now, that it was a staggering blow to Christine to lose John Stanhope's friendship and respect.

For Arthur the ship's doctor was simply one of the officers, on more intimate terms with the staff than the other officers, since he had more to do with them, but most certainly not one of themselves. So great was the gulf fixed between John Stanhope and Christine, in the eyes of the staff, that even Perrin and his spies did not trouble to watch them, though they were so often alone together.

John Stanhope was in the hospital when she went up after inspection that morning, helping Dion with a jigsaw puzzle. He looked up as she came in, and she saw that there were dark shadows under his blue eyes, as if his night had been as sleepless as her own.

"You look dead tired, Miss Jordan," he said, and his voice was kindly but quite impersonal as if he spoke to a stranger. "Shall I stay here a little longer, so that you can have some rest?"

"I'm all right, thank you, Doctor," she said. "It was such a hot night."

"Hot even up here, but cooler than your cabin, I expect. You're sure that you're all right? I was really waiting for you to come before going down to the after deck—one of the Chinese laundrymen is ill."

He went at once, and because, on other mornings, he had always stayed to talk for a few minutes, she felt desolate. He might, when he thought things over, have come to believe Arthur's protest that he had never before even tried to kiss her.

During the days that followed, it seemed to Christine that she had become an automaton, wound up to carry out her day's duties as efficiently as ever, but with no power of feeling anything. The long hours of work in that intense heat acted like a merciful drug, numbing the pain in her heart, and at night she slept dreamlessly. The days slipped past, starting at dawn in the dim pantry, ending at midnight, when she left the hospital, too tired even to see the glory of the star-decked tropic sky above her or to look towards the horizon for the lights of other ships, comrades in the darkness.

Dion left the hospital on the day before the ship called at Penang. He was less dependent on Christine now, for he had made many friends among the passengers, who had got into the way of drifting into the hospital, two or three at a time, as soon as he was well enough to be amused by their visits. Though no one had taken much notice of him before his accident made him a centre of interest, he was by way of being the ship's pet now, and though he still loved Christine best of all, he was no longer lonely.

She was glad when Dion left the hospital. It had been a haven of peace to her when she and John Stanhope were friendly, but to see him every day, and know that he was avoiding being alone with her—that would have been bitter torment if she had not been drugged by overwork and the tropic heat.

"I'm sick of the sight of all my passengers," Arthur Grant told her, meeting her in the alley-way a few minutes before the gangway was lowered at Penang. "They're all peevish at being cooped up for so long—I hope they'll all go ashore and stretch their legs, and come back in better tempers."

"How long do we stay?"

"We're sailing again to-night. The time isn't posted up yet. It all depends on how long they take to unload the cargo—it'll be somewhere about midnight, I expect. There's no hope of any stewards getting shore leave."

"I've never been ashore in Penang," Christine said, "not even when we were stuck here for three days because it was the rainy season and they couldn't get the cargo unloaded—or loaded, I forget which. I'm going to set foot on dry land to-day of I can, I want to buy some lavender water. I'm tired of the smell of toilet vinegar in our cabin."

THE GOLD-DIGGER

They went out on the deck together, for they had finished their morning work, and no urgent job was waiting for either of them. Edwards and Cator were already there, leaning on the rail, but the passengers were all on the deck below, waiting for the gangway to be lowered, or dressing in their own rooms.

Edwards gave Christine an almost friendly nod, and even Cator was less surly than usual, for everyone was a little excited at the sight of land, after the long days at sea. Not that the dusty wharf, backed by corrugated iron sheds ,was a very interesting prospect, but it was at least different from the monotonous beauty of the never-changing ocean.

"There's your scent merchant, Miss Jordan," Grant said, pointing to the white-clad native who stood behind a small table loaded with bottles of perfume. "I'll slip down the gangway and get you a bottle, if you don't want to trample about in all that dust."

"And there's the fellow who comes on board selling sapphires," Cator said, "waiting to rush up the gangway as soon as it's lowered. He's a pest, that one. If he got half a chance he'd be rummaging through the rooms—so make sure you lock up everywhere, Grant."

"There goes the gangway," Edwards exclaimed, as the pulley ropes began to creak.

They all leaned over the rail to watch the passengers going ashore, mobbed as soon as they reached the wharf by natives in brightly striped sarongs, who wanted to sell them something or take them somewhere.

"How many of them will go for a drive through the jungle, and come back swearing they've seen a tiger?" Arthur Grant said with a grin.

"How many of them will nearly miss the ship?" Edwards said.

Perrin, a burly figure in his white uniform, was standing at the head of the gangway, and they heard one group of passengers after another call out some query to him about sailing time.

"Nobody knows yet—but it'll be posted up in all the principal hotels, and at the agents' offices," he answered. "Probably about ten o'clock to-night—the notices will be up before six, in any case."

"Hope we do get away by ten," Cator muttered. "It's a nuisance when they're ashore half the night, and can't get up next morning.".

But Christine was not listening to him, for she was watching the group which was just going down the gangway—Martin Royde and Fay, and Doria Smythe close behind them. She had not seen Fay for days, and when Fay looked up at Royde, laughing at some joke which he had made, Christine's heart ached because Fay was so lovely and so blind.

Between those two, the middle-aged man with the cynical eyes and the woman who knew too much of life, Fay looked like a child, beautiful and innocent. Her hair was in soft curls under the wide brim of her hat, and her cheeks had the faint flush of apple blossom—she was springtime itself.

"Why bother to take Mrs. Smythe with them?" Arthur Grant said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Victoria

Victoria—On Wednesday evening, September 28th, a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Knox in honor of their son Harry and wife who were married last Thursday evening.

Harry and his wife will reside in Peterboro where he has a splendid position. Following is the address:

To Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knox:

Upon this happy occasion we have gathered together as your old friends and neighbours to extend our congratulations and best wishes and to welcome into our mdist a charming bride. You Harry are best known here as a favorite with your school mates, as a loyal helper in the many activities of our Sunday School and church, as a popular member of the Athletic Club and we felt it keenly when a few years ago you left us to take a position in another community.

We have heard from time to time that you have served your company faithfully and well, and we are all pleased with your business success.

In a choice of a life partner Harry, we are sure that you have chosen wisely and well, and we all hope and trust that as you journey through life together you may be showered with much happiness and the richest of blessings.

We hope and pray that with true love and trust in each other a foundation may be laid for a happy home and a rich and prosperous future.

As a tangible token of our love and esteem we ask you to accept these various gifts and with each one is carried a little message of love.

May the silver lining of life dispel the darkest clouds and may God's richest blessings be showered upon you bringing with them abundance of joy and prosperity.

Just parting for a little while to meet so often in the future.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors of Victoria, Mrs. Clarence Vancleaf, Audra Brickman.

Harry and his bride each thanked their friends for the lovely gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home in Peterboro. All joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows."

A wonderful lunch was served consisting of coffee, sandwiches, pickles, cake, tarts, candies and fresh fruits of all kinds and chocolate bars with cigars and cigarettes for the gentlemen.

MOTION PICTURES ARE TAKEN AT MARMORA

Marmora—Initial scenes of Motion Pictures of Marmora which will later become a pictorial record of the village were taken on Sunday morning under the supervision of Dr. Frank Carlton of the Frank Carlton Productions. Worshippers leaving the Sacred Heart Church after attending mass at 9.00 a.m. wer ethe first to be photographed. Next on the program were scenes of St. Paul's Anglican Church following Matins at 11 a.m. On Monday, it is proposed to take fishing scenes at Crowe Lake and pictures of Reeve W. R. Linn and the village council besides a parade of baby cars with occupants at the Post Office.

On Tuesday scenes will be of scholastic nature interspersed with views of Crowe River and adjacent beauty spots. On Wednesday further variety is provided for the film through the plan to include scenes of nearby industries. At 12.30 p.m. a grand business parade is to be staged while at 4 p.m. the children's balloon fight at the Post Office will reveal the physical energy of Marmora's rising generation.

On Thursday the concluding day of the program the morning will be devoted to the shooting of extra scenes. In the afternoon the executive and members of Marmora Women's Institute will be depicted in course of the regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. George Kerr. The finale is to be a fire reel display at 4 p.m. at which a fire is to be started and extinguished by the local fire brigade. The local committee in charge of arrangements are P. Grey, J. W. Hickey, S. A. Lowe, W. Shannon and F. R. Wells. On completion of the film it will be shown at a date to be announced later and to be presented to the village under the caption "Our Home Town" for presentation as a pictorial record.

EVERYBODY

Have you ever attended a "Treasure Hunt" and raced frantically all over the neighborhood searching for cleverly hidden clues? It's fun, but only the fastest win the prizes.

But there's another "Treasure Hunt" run every day where EVERYBODY wins! It's in the newspaper you are reading now. The clues aren't hidden or in code—they're made easy for you! The advertisements in this paper are the clues—and they lead you directly to prizes you choose yourself.

Perhaps you want a toaster or a pair of shoes or a certain kind of soap. Look over the advertising clues till you find what you want at the price you can afford to pay. Without the ads, you'd have to Treasure Hunt all over town, from store to store, from counter to counter, to find just what you want. You can save lots of time and money by getting your clues from the advertising columns.

CHUCK CONACHER MAY SIGN WITH DETROIT WINGS

Toronto Right Winger Given $16,000 For Two Years of Play

NEW BONUS SYSTEM

Jack Adams Going To Pay Players For Goals Scored

Detroit, Oct. 12 (CP)—Manager Jack Adams today placed his hopes for lifting Detroit Red Wings from the National Hockey League cellar on big Charlie Conacher and a new "cash-for-goals" bonus system.

Adams announced the new set-up and the acquisition of Conacher from Toronto Maple Leafs late yesterday as a training squad of 50 players finished its first ice workout of the season.

He said he might use the one-time right wing star of the Leafs, famed "Kid Line" on a forward line with his veterans, Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis.

The Detroit club, Adams said, contracted for Conacher on a $16,000 two-year installment plan, paying $5,000 down. The balance will be paid in annual payments of $5,000 and $6,000 provided Charlie, who retired from the game in the middle of last season on the advice of his physician, continues in good health and able to play.

(In Toronto, Manager Conny Smythe of the Leafs confirmed the deal but Conacher said he was not sure the Wings would "consent to meet my stipulations." He said the contract offered him by Detroit was "decidedly attractive" but not quite what he wanted "in one or two respects.")

Had Serious Operation

Some seasons back Conacher underwent a serious kidney operation and last season there appeared to be some question as to whether the operation had fully corrected his condition. When advised that continued participation in hockey might result in permanent injury, Conacher hung up his skates stating he was through with hockey for good.

During the summer, however, he told friends he was anxious to get back into the game; that his health was improved and that he might sign for the coming season with Detroit.

J. D. Norris, Jr., son of the Detroit owner, termed Conacher "the healthiest man in Canada now," adding, "I asked him if he thought he could score us 30 points over the season and without talking boastfully, he said, 'I can score that many points sitting down.' We think he can."

As another part of his plans to rejuvenate the club that finished in the League cellar last season after winning the Stanley Cup in the two preceding seasons, Adams put forward his cash-for-goals plan.

He said figureless or small-figure contracts would be offered all Red Wing players whose performance last season had been regarded as "ordinary" and the agreements will call for cash bonuses for goals above a number agreed on by Adams and the individual player.

'Irish Bust' is Slapped Silly by Six-foot Songstress

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 12—(AP)—The rarest bird with the gaudiest plumage still is Jack Doyle the alleged fighter, not the betting commissioner), whose most recent adventure was to get himself slapped silly the other morning by an indignant, six-foot songstress who said Doyle stood her up.

This made the list of Doyle knockouts virtually unanimous, it being recalled the Irish "thrush" or if you prefer "the Irish bust" recently scored a phenomenal kayo over himself in a London ring, when he swung at his opponent, Eddie Phillips, and missed, and landed upon his brow outside the ropes.

"Ah, yes," Doyle sighed yesterday.' Here I am only 25, and what a life I've lived. Without being boastful, I think I must be good copy."

Too Big-Hearted

The reporter had been admitted to the presence by Jack's valet, Jimmy, who expressed the opinion his master "had been taken advantage of "because he had been too big-hearted and kind to people.

"That dame who slapped him, she's practically a stranger to Jack," said Jimmy.

"That's right," Doyle agreed. "She just wants publicity. She pulled the same thing on me in Hollywood. Popped up at a night club with a photographer along. As for being engaged to her, that's silly."

Go for Relaxation

Stretching his handsome torso and propping himself a little higher on the pillows, Doyle explained at some length that he, like all athletes, found it necessary to go to night clubs for relaxation. "A man can't sit around looking at the blooming four walls."

He was undecided about his pugilistic future and revealed promoter Mike Jacobs offered him $75,000 to fight Joe Louis in London last winter, but that he had turned it down for reasons of the heart.

"But don't think I can't get plenty of fights in America," he said. "They'll still pay to see me get popped on the nose. I'm not the worst fighter in the world, at that. I was giving Phillips a good beating the other night when I fell out of the ring, and now the blighter is going to fight for the British Championship."

Jack's plans now are to look in at Detroit next week on " an important business" 'matter and then to continue on to his "ranch" in California.

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 12—(AP)—There must be 1,000,000 football pools on Broadway between 40th and 57th Streets. . . .New York University scouts came back telling it that this Brunner of Tulane is better than Whizzer White . . . .Best baseball bet we know right now is that Babe Ruth will not be back coaching for the Dodgers . . . . Ralph Guldahl is recuperating from a minor operation in a Miami Hospital and soon will be ready for the winter golf swing. . . . .The BaerHoffman troupe of fighters, wives, babies, managers, etc., has booked passage for a pleasure cruise to Honolulu.

Baseball Market Preview: Both the Giants and Cubs want Johnny Mize of the Cards and are ready to cough up plenty of the old Mazuma . . . . (They say the Giants have offered Hank Leiber and $100,000 in cold cash) . . . The Reds appear to be about as well fixed as any outfit in the League, but they'd like to have Tony Cuccinello of the Bees at second base . . . . Pittsburgh wants Al Lopez of the same outfit and also must get a replacement for Gus Suhr at first base and some chucking. . . . .

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody's back ailment is more serious than anyone imagined, if you can believe dope from the coast. . . . For a guy whose team had just won another World Series, Ed Barrow, general manager of the Yanks, was a sad-looking individual yesterday . . . .. Reason: He was in the throes of returning $170,000 collected for the not-to-be-played fifth game of the World Series . . . . .

Mike Jacobs took his attorney with him to the Pacific Coast so he must mean business.. . . Mike was due in Sacramento last night and a Spring bout between Max Baer and Lou Nova is sticking out like a sore arm . . . .

The reason Helen Jacobs, the tennis star, is so anxious to lease a house in Virginia is that she wants to do research work for her next novel, which will be woven around the civil war. . . In two more years the Yanks will have a new pitching star in a guy named Didiasi, who chucked for Wenatchee, Wash., out on the coast this year. . . . .Scout Joe Devine says to tab him.

Although the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" lived up to pre-season predictions in their first league game by whitewashing the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" 14 to 0, the white-clad "ghosts" may find considerable opposition in Kingston's "army" squad. A field-length run by Meikle, their ace punter, saved the Cobourg squad from embarrassment. It must be remembered that Cobourg played three pre-season games, while the Airport and Belleville participated in no pre-schedule tussles. The Kingston Garrison soldiers also had the benefit of exhibition games versus R.M.C. and Queen's seconds and although the "army" trounced the local Panthers 31 to 6 here on Monday, Archie Duffield's hopefuls put up a gallant stand, that is as long as their condition warranted it, but when they tired, Bob Elliott personally led the "soldier boys" on a crushing attack, that left the Panthers bruised and battered in defeat. The lack of condition and reserve strength took as much toll on the Panthers as did the conditioned and bruising "army" squad. Coaches Duffield and Schrieder should muster additional reserve strength before their next game.

From what we can learn on the street there has been a drastic change in the Lake Shore loop football schedule, caused primarily by the inability of the Kingston Garrison to obtain the use of Richardson Stadium at Queen's for their home games on the original Saturday dates. Although convener Bill Fry sanctioned the changing of dates, nothing has been made public. If the rugby football game is to succeed in this district the mentors should strive for all the publicity possible. If there is a change in the group schedule, the public should have long since been acquainted with such rearranged dates. The first change announced today sees the Panthers playing at Richardson Stadium on Friday afternoon, we hear. This game was originally scheduled for Armistice Day. Whatever other changes have been made have not been announced as yet, however.

Of course we realize the youthfulness of the Panthers. Coach Duffield has the youngest backfield in the loop, if not in the intermediate O.R.F.U. ranks. Jim Pepper, McQuaid and Don Grant, all who started in the Panthers' backfield on Monday, have yet to reach the mature age of 20, so all-in-all the kids did not do so badly. There is one satisfaction to the local set-up —if the fans will stick with the football ship—Belleville should have a really good grid squad in a year or two. It's more than can be expected to ask a first year team to step out and cope successfully with a veteran crew of 200 pounders. Incidentally the Garrison line averaged over 200 pounds per man, "Nig" Gray, their ace punter informed us after Monday's game.

Pretty, hazel-eyed Elinore Troy, 22-year-old movie actress who is said to be engaged to Jack Doyle, prize-fighting songster, landed a hay-maker on Doyle's jaw in a New York night club recently. Elinore, a slightly-built "bubble dancer," was "stood up" by her fiancee on a date. Later Miss Troy caught up with her boy friend, who was in the company of another night club entertainer. "I asked him if he remembered our date and he commenced to stammer, that was my lead and I let him have it," remarked Miss Troy as Doyle displayed a becrimsoned nose. "I probably hurt that pretty face of his, but he can't "two-time" me. Yes, I'll probably marry him—if my temper holds out," she admitted after stating Jack "had everything." Doyle was sitting with Michi Taka, a Japanese dancer in the Midnight Sun night club.

We have heard some really good fish stories, but here's a Canadian Press "duck story" that beats 'em all—"Mud Lake, that's the place to bag migrating ducks, at least that's the story William Brown tells. Brown hurried to Mud Lake, near Enterprise, yesterday to hunt ducks. Slowly and carefully he made his way to the shore. He was astonished at the number of ducks at a nearby rice bed. They were so thick the water was completely hidden. He raised his gun, aimed and fired. The ducks rose in the air. Not a single bird remained behind.

However, when the ducks began to spread 11 dead birds fell into the water—the flock had been too thick to allow them to fall before.

HODGE PODGE—Lloyd (Danny) Daniels, who was injured in the Interprovincial football game while playing for Montreal Cubs on Saturday, is the Oshawa boy who played with the Varcoes when they eliminated Point Anne....Charlie Conacher, who had differences with Connie Smythe last winter and later announced his retirement from big league hockey, now pops up with the Detroit Red Wings at a reported sale price of $16,000.00; well there's nothing strange about that, especially following Conacher's statements upon retiring at Montreal...."Where's Elmer?"—well, we saw Elmer down at the Capitol along with Charlie McCarthy and Bergen and is Charlie burned up over the whole thing?....Phil Wrigley says Dizzy Dean's job is secure for another year at least ... So what?

Sweeping Chicago Cubs aside in four straight games to capture their third successive world's championship New York Yankees also swept baseball from the sport scene and left the field clear for the gridiron warriors. Here are some closing scenes from a baseball season that might well be summed up in the title "Yankees Triumphant." TOP shows the dynamiters giving forth on "Sidewalks of New York" in the clubhouse following their final victory over the demoralized Cubs. LEFT to RIGHT they are Art Fletcher, coach; Red Rolfe, Joe Gordon Myril Hoag, Tim Sullivan, bat boy, and Judge Landis, baseball's high commissioner getting confidential with Tommy Henrich, youthful ball-basher. BELOW, LEFT, the winner of two games for the champs Red Ruffing is congratulated in the shower by Dizzy Dean, who made such a grand attempt to stem the Yankee landslide in the second game. LOWER RIGHT, Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, gets his share of congrats from catcher and manager, Gabby Hartnett of the losers. Hartnett played under McCarthy when the latter managed the Cubs before going to the Yanks.

Forced to go all the way to the 36th green before victory was hers, Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, ABOVE, of Toronto, won the Canadian women's golf title at Ottawa, by defeating Clarrie Tiernan, of Dublin, one up. Miss Tiernan was a member of the British Curtis cup team.

Scintillating in the march of St. Catharines Athletics, to the Mann Cup finals and in the first two games of the series have been Roy Morton, LEFT, and Bill Whittaker, RIGHT. Morton led the scorers in the Ontario Lacrosse association during the regular season and has been a leader in his team's attacks against New Westminster Adanacs, in the series for the Canadian title. Whittaker, goal tender for the eastern titlists, has been the outstanding player against the westerners, his play in the nets ruining Adanac attacks time and again. In the second game of the series he even took a hand in the scoring, moving up the floor to register one of his team's 22 goals.

The camerman caught Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, in a moment of "oofing" as he watched the Yankees maltreat the Cubs in the world series.. His worship saw all the games and had a great time at the expense of Chicago's Mayor Kelly, whose loyalty led him to bet on the Cubs.

20 DEAD COUNTED

come by smoke and burned where they fell. Maxine LaBelle, after escaping through the wall of fire, died from burns in hospital here yesterday.

Inquest into their deaths was opened by Coroner W. A. Boyle and adjourned until Thursday. Funeral services will be held today at Emo, twenty miles west of Fort Frances, where live the LaBelle grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli LaBelle.

All other families were believed removed from threatened areas. "Homesteaders were given ample warning to leave their homes", said Chief Ranger Darby. "Those who refused are now being forced by Provincial police to evacuate the danger area."

Food For Tent Settlements

Food was rushed to hurriedly-erected tent settlements sheltering refugees in fire-free zones. A brief zones. A relief fund was started here and care of refugees organized by M. K. Morrison, Relief Administrator for Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora, and Patrick Kerr, Relief Officer for unorganized Rainy River areas.

"After an inspection of Miscampbell Township, where we found fifteen farm homes and buildings burned to the ground, we got in touch with Hon. Peter Heenan (Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests) who gave us full authority to act at our discretion", Mr. Morrison said.

Among those in most serious condition in the hospital are Frank and Noah LaBelle, blinded at least temporarily by smoke in efforts to save their wives and children. Mrs. Frank LaBelle and three children are in serious condition. Fetherson and LeBren, also burned in efforts to save the LaBelle homesteads, are with them in the crowded hospital.

Homes Evacuated

Thirty to forty homes have been evacuated but none know how many were destroyed. Ravenous flames swallowed up thousands of dollars in timber, farm crops, buildings, schools and personal effects.

"Timber damage is not heavy so far, only cut and standing pulp wood having been consumed," Darby said last night.

In Dance Township where the fatalities occurred, Rangers were fighting to protect the schoolhouse and settlement but fires leaped over them, running at high speed through tree tops. The fire crew escaped only by retreating to the burned-over area.

Number of firefighters could not be estimated but hundreds were in the blackened bush country. Men were summoned from Port Arthur, Dryden, Kenora and Sioux Lookout Darby said every homesteader and settler in the country is out fighting the fire under direction of Forestry Branch rangers.

Fire-Fighting Aid Arrives

Six pumps, each with 3,000 feet of hose, were brought yesterday from Nestor Falls Forestry station north of Fort Frances. A special train with pumps and hose arrived from Port Arthur.

Approaching Fort Frances from any direction travellers seem to pass through a vast area of blast furnaces. Passing along the road north of Emo yesterday, automobile passengers saw fierce columns of flame spring from the crown of spruce trees where a moment before no evidence of fire was visible.

CARD OF THANKS

The members of the family of the late John Barrett, residence 101 College Street, Belleville, desire to convey their sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy extended to them in their bereavement; also for the many spiritual and floral offerings and for the use of cars at the funeral. o12-1t

Police Blotter

Local police were busied during the last 24 hours, investigating several important matters, with prolific results in most cases.

Other matters reported included a motor accident on Front Street yesterday afternoon that resulted in considerable fender damage to two motor cars. An automobile driven by C. Scott, Herchimer Ave., was leaving the west curb when the vehicle was in collision with a south bound automobile, driven by B. A. Rennick, 30 Bridge St. East. P. C. Arnott investigated and reported fender damage to the amount of $40.00 resulted to both vehicles. The matter was left in the hands of the persons involved towards mutual settlement.

Poundkeeper Thos. Thorne was called to a Chatham St. residence last evening where he found a badly wounded kitten. The animal had been attacked by two large dogs and injured to such an extent that it had to be destroyed by Mr. Thorne.

Later the Poundkeeper reported to police that dogs were running at large in that section of the city and causing considerable annoyance and disturbance. This practice must be curbed, police warned today.

NEW ARISTROCACY

Criticized by Federation Head

Toronto, Oct. 12—"Quite possibly if Mayor Bone had had a more liberal education he would not now be trying to close the doors of the school rooms in Ontario to the boys and girls who are desirous of obtaining an education."

So declared President J. W. Noseworthy, of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, in commenting on remarks of the Mayor of Belleville last night which declared the minimum salaries for teachers is $1,800.

"Nor would he be envious of the salaries paid the teachers," stated President Noseworthy. "Outside of Toronto I know of no centre which pays its high school teachers $1,800 as a minimum, though there may be other centres in the Dominion that do. More of them received $1,000 at the start in Ontario than $1,800. Our teachers do not as a rule go to the West Indies, as Mayor Bone remarked, either for holidays or to escape income tax." Insofar as the statement that railway engineers receives $3,000 per annum this, it is stated by an official, would be almost a maximum.

Engineers' Secretary's View

"Is $3,000 a big salary?" inquired W. D. Donaldson, Secretary of Parkdale Division, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. "As a matter of fact that amount would be earned only by engineers who are about the retiring age, with the best runs. They are paid by the mile, not on a salary basis, so that if they are not working their pay does not go on like that of a Mayor. I would say the average engineer earns about $2,000, some of them less according to their run and the length of time they are employed."

"Mayor Bone surely knows that no public school teacher starts at a halary of $1,800," said Miss H. E. Carr, Secretary and organizer of the Women Teachers' Federation of Ontario. "Up to this year, too many teachers were starting at a salary of $500."

Mayor Bone Refuses

Mayor Bone, an insurance and investment representative declined today to discuss the amount of his own salary.

"I don't see that it's the business of any public servant how much I make," he declared. "I have to do a lot of jumping around, which is more than any school teacher or engineer has to do.

"And even if the figures I mentioned last night were a little high, engineers and school teachers still make a very high salary compared to what other people are making, and the income of the average citizen of Ontario is dwindling to the vanishing point."

Mayor Bone admitted he had spent holidays in the West Indies. "But that was only once, and it was Nassau, which was not far from where I happened to be at the time," he explained.

'After' High School Teachers

"And I'm not really trying to be hard on railway employees," he added. "The main ones I'm after are the high school teachers. I don't begrudge anybody his salary, but I want to try and make things better for everybody.

"I'm still sticking to what I said about disfranchising the unemployed," the Mayor insisted. "Nobody is entitled to vote who doesn't contribute to the state. Why 200 of them came to see me the other day and practically threatened they wouldn't vote for me if I didn't increase the relief allowance."

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The sharp technical correction that many expect to develop after the appreciable advance of the past two weeks, has not yet materialized, and some quarters are now of the opinion that the list will go higher before a setback develops. Good demand for a large number of issues continues, and more attention is expected to be given the newsprint group as a result of the improved outlook facing this industry over the next few months.

Although the rise in Noranda to a new high for the year is attributed to the generally better markets as well as the steady improvment in the price of copper, it is reported in the Street unofficially that a strong foreign investment group is buying into the company, and these reports estimate that about 25,000 shares of Noranda are wanted. This security is distinctly attractive both for income and appreciation possibilities, particularly when consideration is given to the large holdings of such stocks as Pamour, Waite Amulet and Hallnor.

The prospects of Noranda Mines are such that earnings this year may be over $4.00 a share and possibly well above $5. a share in 1939. The outside interests which this company have are far more important than the average investor appreciates. The shares owned by Noranda in subsidiaries have a market value in excess of $50,000,000, which is the equivalent of $26. for each share which the parent company has outstanding. The Hallnor subsidiary is proving to be a big mine and with a production of around $300,000 a month, the company is expected to earn $1. a share per annum or about 90 cents for each share of Noranda.

Informed quarters have it estimated that Noranda's subsidiaries could earn about $3,200,000 for the parent company in 1939. Higher prices for copper would be very beneficial to Noranda.

NEW YORK

New York Market closed to-day—Public Holiday—Columbus Day.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto. Oct. 12 (CP —Interest was concentrated in the mining section of the Toronto Exchange today with higher prices ruling for the base metals while the industrials lagged under the influence of the New York market holiday. Golds showed little net change and the western oils were inclined to firm up in the late trading. Volume was fairly heavy, with about 875,000 shares changing hands.

Early trading on Toronto Exchange today developed few price changes. Trading was quiet in the industrials while turnover was fair in the mines and base metal shares ruled higher. Western oils inclined to tighten and the golds about balanced gains and losses.

A new highp price for the year was posted by Noranda and Smelters added a point or better. Hudson Bay, Sherritt, Pend Oreille and Falconbridge posted moderate gains and other base metals were steady.

Calgary and Edmonton moved up 5 to 10 cents and a firm note ruled among the cheaper western oils. Senior golds and most of the secondary gold issues ruled firm. Bobjo and Fernland stood out in the penny group. Utilities and foods were strong.

Hogs—Bacons off trucks $9 sows $7 to $7.50.

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CP)—Cattle sales amounted to only a few hundred head by early afternoon on Toronto Livestock Market today, too few to establish a price trend. Calf prices were 50 cents lower with sheep and lambs steady. No hog prices was set by mid-session. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 2,400 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 630; calves 320; hogs 1,200; sheep and lambs 1,120.

Small lots of weighty steers sold between $4.50 and $6. Butcher steers and heifers ranged from $3.50 to $5.25. Butcher cows brought $3 to $4.25. A few good bulls made $3.75 to $4. Fed calves were $6 to $9.50. Stockers moved slowly at $4 to $5.

Choice veal calves were priced at $9 to $9.50 with some tops at $10. Common heavy calves sold downward to $5.

WATER LEVELS IN BAY REPORTED LOWER

Marked recession of the waters of the bay which is believed at its high water cycle this year has been noted recently. This week another drop of an inch or so in its level was observed on government water gauges at the dock. Bars and shoals that were well covered during the summer are now bare. Water levels of Lake Ontario are officially reported five inches lower at present than in September.

RECRUITS ENLIST IN GREATER NUMBERS

London, Oct. 12—CP-Havas) — Recruits continue to enlist in the regular army in increased numbers despite the peaceful solution of the European crisis, the war office announced today. Last week 949 were enrolled, 528 more than in the corresponding week of 1937.

Rose-Colored Shades

By KARIN ASBRAND

They were lovely things to look upon, Delia Merrow's lampshares, She made them herself with her own hands. It was her business, her livelihood, making lampshades, and she made them lovely because when the light glowed through their sheer and perfect workmanship, even she looked lovely.

Delia Merrow could not be counted even among the world's pretty women. Her complexion was as sallow as bleached saffron, her nose much too thin for the broadness of her face, her eyes a lustreless gray, her hair dead brown like grass seared by a scorching sun, and yet, if one would but look further, Delia Merrow had a heart of gold.

Mecause her lampshades made her look lovely, Delia made them of a soft rose-colored silk with fringes of rose and gold

In all her thirty years she had never cared to look lovely until she met Wilbur Dixon. He had come one night to call for a lamp ordered by his mother, and somehow he had kept on coming. Delia had been careful never to appear before Wilbur except under the kindly glow of her lamps.

She wanted nothing more of life than to have Wilbur Dixon think her lovely. And he did. She knew it by the light in his eyes when they met hers She felt the quickening of his pulses the minute he came into the room. Some day he would ask her to marry him. Delia knew that. She prayed that the day would never come. She wanted to keep on dreaming with him, indefinitely, in the rosy glow of her silken shades, and a proposal of marriage from him would spoil it all.

One evening shortly after he arrived, a customer came to talk with Delia about a shade. She was a little thing, pathetically pretty, and seemed much disturbed. Wilbur tactfully withdrew into the next room, but he could not help overhearing the conversation.

"I can't take the shade, Miss Merrow," said the woman. "I hated to come and tell you, after me ordering it and everything, and you working so hard on it".

"Don't you want it?" asked Delia, a bit brusquely.

The woman's breath caught in a half-sob.

"Want it?" she asked. "Me want it? Seems like I never wanted anything more. My boy made me a lamp at school, but seems like we never could afford a shade. We been savin' our money for near six months, me an' my boy Last week he was run over, and, 'course, the money had to go for him."

"Here." she said, impulsively, "you take it. I made it for you. I made it as lovely as I could. It'll make your place kind of cheerful-like for him. If you want, you can pay me later, but I'm not looking for it."

Wilbur came in the minute the woman had gone. He hurried to Delia's side.

"Delia". he said, "there never was a woman like you. Will you marry me?"

Without a word, she ripped the shade from the floor lamp by the piano, and stood revealed before him in the honest white glare of the electric lights.

"Look at me!" she flamed. "Look at what I am. You've never seen me as I really am before. I've been careful of that. That is why I've never wanted to go anywhere with you, why I've been careful to meet yu only when the light of the lamps would hide what I really am".

He dropped his head.

"Delia", he said, humbly. "Look at me! My face isn't even my own. Part of it was shot away by shrapnel in the war. Plastered over, skin grafted, everything done to it by army surgeons, I've been glad for your rose-colored shades, glad as long as you didn't have to look at me in the cruel glare of a bright light. That is why I never insisted on your going out with me. You, Delia! You are the most beautiful being God has ever created."

Then for the first time she looked at him, and saw that which the roseate glow from her silken shades had mercifully concealed—a face, the left side of which was seamed with great livid scars on a dead-whiteness like wax. A one-sided face that could only half smile, half weep, half feel.

"Wilbur," she whispered, against the comforting roughness of his shoulder, "I adore you."

SOCIAL SLUGGARDS

Prior to the primary elections in Michigan the Detroit Free Press kept reiterating:

Voters who do not vote are the breeders of corruption.

Voters who do not vote are shiftless citizens.

And to think that our municipal elections rate less than 40 per cent of the total vote.—St. Catharines Standard.

SPECIAL SERVICES HELD AT ZION HILL

Plainfield—The anniversary services held in Zion Hill United Church on Sunday were quite successful. A thankoffering which was received in lieu of a chicken supper met the expectations of the church officials.

Rev. James E. Beckel, of Stirling, secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference and of the Belleville Presbytery gave two very helpful and thought provoking addresses. In the morning Mr. Beckel stressed the idea of Thanksgiving and used the story of the ten lepers who were cleansed and noted that only one returned to give thanks. "We are frequently slow to return thanks," suggested the speaker. After enumerating the many material blessings for which we give thanks, Mr. Beckel referred to the methods of giving thanks and mentioned the giving of time, talents and possessions in the service of God and for the support of His cause. Mr. Beckel very effectively climaxed his address by showing that the one who returned to give thanks was spiritually healed and blessed a result that always follows such a practice.

Much credit for the success of the services is due Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson, the church organist, who with her fourteen local helpers furnished several special selections of singing for each of the services all of which were much enjoyed and greatly appreciated. Those assisting Mrs. Ketcheson were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cranston, Mr. Arthur Sheffield, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Searles, Mrs. Harold Beatty, Mrs. Myron Hawley, Mr. Clifford Ray and Misses Helen Tummon, Phylis Beatty, Merril Ray, Margaret Tufts, Jean Sills and Irene Ketcheson.

Mr. Beckel was assisted in the morning service by the pastor, the Rev. J. P. Everson, whose morning service at Wellman's was withdrawn on account of anniversary services being held in Burnbrae Presbyterian Church.

Rev. J. P. and Mrs. Everson returned home on Friday after an absence of almost three weeks. During their stay in Toronto Mr. and Mrs. Everson enjoyed two services one Sunday evening in All People's Mission on Queen Street, where they worshipped with a Finnish congregation and although not understanding the language could detect the piece being sung by the melody of the voice. They also worshipped the same evening with the International congregation and heard a sermon by Rev. J. I. McKay, the author of "The World in Canada" the study book being used this year by the Young People and the Women's Missionary Society. Mr. McKay was given three months leave of absence that he might do some travelling and gather information at first hand for his book. Mr. and Mrs. Everson attended the service in Burwash Hall on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 24th, when the Moderator of the General Council of the United Church received his honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. While stopping in Beaverton on their return home Mr. Everson visited Mrs. John Morrison, nee Miss Maggie Cameron, who was his public school teacher and Sunday School teacher forty-two years and whom he had not met since that time. Mrs. Morrison is now in her 78th year and a widow of three years with one daughter and seven grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Everson spent a couple of hours with Miss Mae Madden at her home in Prince Albert, who many years ago was the popular teacher of Plainfield public school.

On Wednesday forenoon, September 28th, Mr. and Mrs. Everson were brought definitely into contact with the devastation wrought by a severe storm which swept the country north and west of Lindsay, where a brother resides. Two neighbors threshed that morning one having fifty bushels of grain and the other eighty bushels, the balance of their summer crops being entirely destroyed by hail, marks of which are still to be seen on the cedar fence rails.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Latta of Dartford, on Sunday visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. James Gilbert Latta.

Mrs. Helen Shepherd of Toronto was the guest of friends here over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hall Sr., Miss Marie Hall and Mrs. James G. Latta were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Latta of Dartford.

On Sunday evening Rev. J. P. Everson had charge of the service at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon. Next Sunday Mr. Everson is to conduct anniversary services at Hazzard's United Church, Queensboro Circuit and Rev. E. D. Snelgrove of Queensboro is to conduct anniversary services at Mount Pleasant on the Plainfield pastoral charge.

Mrs. Elijah Horton of Carmel, on Monday made some calls on old friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Maynes, Mr. and Mrs. William Denny and Miss Elsie Maynes, all of Toronto made several calls on friends here over the week end.

Mrs. Towers of Belleville called on Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Latta on Monday.

Among those who attended the services at Zion Hill on Sunday were Mrs. Wilbur Elliott and family, Mr. and Mrs. Erle S. Denyes, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Treverton and Miss Hilda from Mount Pleasant.

Those from a distance who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cranston and Mrs. Palmer of Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. George McCullough and family of Sidney.

Mr. Charles Elliott of Mount Pleasant was a guest at the parsonage on Monday afternoon.

While enroute to Newburgh to visit friends Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vandervoort and family of Hamilton spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. Erle Denyes. Mr. Vandervoort and Mr. Denyes served overseas together.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder and Miss Annie Hamilton were the guests of friends in Wellington.

Mr. Earl Outwater who twelve weeks ago suffered critical injuries to his knees when a bale of hay fell upon him as a result of the big rope breaking is still confined to his bed although the casts were removed a few days ago. Mr. Outwater expects to be around soon.

Those people who have already dug their potatoes report a good yield, while in the low land there are complaints of rot.

Tweed

Tweed — Thanksgiving services were held in the local churches on Sunday. They were suitably decorated for the occasion. At the United Church fruits, vegetables and coloured leaves made an attractive display, the work of Reg Wilson's Sunday School class of young men. Rev. H. Lloyd Morrison, B.A., delivered special messages at both services. Appropriate music was rendered by the choir.

Mr. David Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Price of Actinolite, who is attending McDonald College in Montreal had the misfortune to sustain a fractured nose while engaged in a rugby game at the college last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Way of Toronto, spent the holiday with Mrs. G. S. Way.

Miss Mavis McGuire, M.A., of Norwood H. S. staff was at home for the Thanksgiving week end.

Tweed—Miss Alice Hagerman, teacher of the senior room of Thomasburg Public School, was elected to the office of President of Centre Hastings Teachers' Association at the Convention Friday.

The convention opened on Thursday with an attendance of one hundred and six. The opening exercises were conducted by Rev. H. Lloyd Morrison, B.A., pastor of Tweed United Church in which the sessions were held. The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Florence Blaney of Tweed Consolidated School staff.

Reeve W. H. Sayers of Tweed welcomed the teachers to the village. He expressed his pleasure in having an opportunity to speak to them and recalled the days when he and Inspector A. W. McGuire attended school as boys together.

The following committees were named:

Nominating — Mr. James Irwin, Miss Agnes McAvoy, Miss Ana English.

Resolutions—Mr. H. K. Carleton, Miss Margaret Wrgiht, Miss Mary Sharpe.

Following the reading of the minutes, and the financial statement which was referred to the auditors, Miss Florenc Blaney gave the convention a splendid beginning by her fine inspirational address. This was followed by a report of the proceeding of the O. E. A. held in Toronto during the Easter vacation to which Miss Alice Heasman went as delegate. Few delegates have returned with as comprehensive a report of the proceedings of that body.

Miss Mary Sharp, teacher at Wellman's Corners, gave an interesting account of the school anniversary celebration held in her school section during the summer holidays.

In his remarks to the teachers, Mr. A. W. McGuire, B.A., I.P.S., welcomed all the teachers, especially those of Rawdon township who are once again members of Centre Hastings Teachers' Association and of Tyendinaga Township who are for the first time associated with the teachers of Centre Hastings. Mr. McGuire emphasized the importance of the teaching of music in the schools. A great many rural school boards of this inspectorate have introduced music into their schools and three teachers are devoting their full time to this work.

The Women's Association of Tweed United Church served an excellent dinner at noon on Thursday in the church parlors.

Miss Alice Heasman gave a splendid paper on the Junior Red Cross and strongly recommended the teachers to enroll their schools in this organization.

Social studies in Grade V was the subject of a profitable discussion by Miss Grace Moran who showed how the subjects of history and geography may be combined under social studies.

To establish and maintain desirable health practices is one of the most important duties of the teacher stated Mrs. Mabel Hayton in her address on health.

Inspector A. W. McGuire gave a very helpful address on the New Course of Study with which he expressed himself as being in complete accord. The new program of studies has resulted in a marked increase of interest on the part of the pupil, because it is child-centred instead of subject-centred as was formerly the case.

The teachers of the inspectorate organized themselves into township associations with president and secretary. They will hold monthly meetings at which they will discuss their problems.

TO SEEK SEATS IN THE FEDERAL HOUSE?

According to reports in Ontario provincial government circles, Arthur W. Roebuck, K.C., LEFT, and David A. Croll, K.C., RIGHT, former members of the Hepburn cabinet, who split with Premier Hepburn over the government's stand on the C.I.O. question, plan to retire from provincial politics and seek seats in the federal house. It is, reported that the two former cabinet ministers plan to sit through the 1939 session of the Ontario government unless a federal election is held before that time.

On Friday morning the teachers attended grade meetings at which they discussed topics of peculiar interest to the grades which they teach.

The followng officers were elected for the year 1938-1939:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. A. W. McGuire, B.A., I.P.S.; President, Miss A. Heasman, Thomasburg; Vice Pres., Mr. H. K. Carleton, Sulphide; Sec. Treas., Mr. S. H. Connor, Tweed; Executive, Mr. C. A. when PENNIES count — The "Ontario Intelligencer" is The Ideal 'Shopping Guide' —

How to get the most out of every penny is mighty important to folks who are just starting out. An error in buying judgment that would be considered trivial by anyone else, might be tragic for them. They can't afford to make mistakes . . . they can't run the risk of "gold bricks". Every penny counts. Every penny has to do DOUBLE-DUTY. It's interesting to know (and we can't deny that we're a bit proud!) that The Ontario Intelligencer is making it possible for people like these to get more for their pennies. For the pages of The Ontario Intelligencer are a "Shopping Guide" to values. Every day advertisers offer definite savings on the things all of us need. Of course, if you are already an Ontario Intelligencer reader, you are well aware of this fact.

W. M. S. Rally Held At West Huntingdon

The thirteenth annual meeting of Belleville section of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, was held on Thursday, Oct. 6 at West Huntingdon United Church with a good attendance.

The opening session with the Vice President, Mrs. Stanley Spafford in charge, began with the Doxology and call to worship. The Plainfield auxiliary had charge of the worship service, Mrs. Harrison giving the message, and a solo "Beside The Still Waters" by Miss Phyliss Hall, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Arthur Hall. Following the reading of the scripture, Mrs. Harrison said that God was a spirit, if we had not been worshipping God in the past days, how could we feel His presence, sing songs of praises and glory in the beauty we had beheld along our way driving through the countryside. She asked, how can God be real to us, and said, just as any friend, we must create a constant sense of spiritual friendship. This service closed with prayer by Mrs. Clarence Hall.

The committees were then appointed for the day, Mrs. Joe Daniels, Mrs. Selburne Westover and Mrs. Chas. Walters as a Courtesy Committee and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. Ed Fraser and Mrs. E. K. Hubble as Press, Mrs. Harry Harrison, Plainfield, was elected Secretary in place of Mrs. Erle Denyes who is now Presbyterial Recording Secretary.

The address of welcome was most graciously given by Mrs. J. S. Wilson of West Huntingdon and Mrs. Harold Martin of Stirling on behalf of the ladies assembled replied.

"The Story of the Year" as given by the secretary, Mrs. Erle Denyes was most encouraging. Belleville Section has 32 auxiliaries, two evening auxiliaries and one affiliated auxiliary at Moira with the local W. A. making a total of 35 societies, all reporting to her except two. There is an increase of 61 in membership, making a total of 939 members whose givings were $5,022.37 this being an increase over the previous year. Belleville has the largest section in the Belleville Presbyterial which raised $14,377.27. It is regretted there are only 63 per cent of the church women who belong, the rural societies showing the largest percentage. Mrs. Denyes feels the challenge is ever before us until all women are members. She said many uninterested had been won by prayer. Wellman's reported through death and removals, they were unable to hold regular meetings but had a splendid report from their band, which Mrs. Denyes felt would mean W.M.S. workers in the future.

Tabernacle and Aikens were highest in the Missionary Monthly subscriptions per member, the aim of all societies being each member a subscriber.

All societies were working for Temperance, and for Peace, and all are doing supply work. Almost all societies have a Press Secretary, and it is felt in this way our W. M. S. is a spiritual force in communities, creating a deep spiritual influence. Mrs. Denyes regretted she had no special report of Wallbridge fiftieth anniversary, but she felt all thought of Wallbridge as the home of Mrs. Levi Massey, our pioneer missionary worker.

Special meetings were reported from all societies, which Mrs. Denyes said were wonderful but she felt the real test was not in the special, but the regular meetings.

Six Mission Circles were reported also the Bands. There are over 20 in the section, with 330 members raising $243.50, a slight decrease. These children who attend Band meetings are taught Temperance and World Peace by reading and studying the literature prepared for them. They are also trained on systematic giving through their mite boxes, etc.

There are 14 Baby Bands, Mrs. Denyes asked, are we giving children first place in our W.M.S. work as we do in our homes?

"The Holy City" was then sung by Mrs. W. Fitchett, of West Huntingdon, and the offering was taken and dedicated by Mrs. Harry Coutts of Grace Church, Trenton.

Mrs. W. Osborne of Belleville addressed the rally on the topic "Good Stewards". To be good stewards we must devote our time and our lives to God and His work. Learn to know people and then try to help them, as our Saviour did. He stilled the waters because the people had faith. He could do it. We must have faith and then exercise that faith Mrs. Osborne told of the mad man with many devils who was cured and the people found him at the feet of Jesus clothed and in his right mind, wanting to go with Jesus, and she said, right there the first missionary was sent out. He went and told the great things Jesus had done for him. This paved the way. To be good stewards, she continued, we must pave the way and let Jesus do the rest. Many are the affections of the righteous, but the Lord redeemeth them all, was her closing thought.

Mrs. Spafford then introduced our new Presbyterial President who had just arrived, Mrs. F. L. Hooper of Napanee, also Miss Cora Kilborn, Reg. N., of Chengtu Hospital West China, and her mother, Dr. Reta Kilborn, and Miss Eileen MacMullen of Mt. Pleasant, who was in charge of the literature table.

"Getting the most out of our magazines" was then given by Miss Eileen MacMullen. She said to get the most out of our W.M.S. literature, we must use, read and digest our magazines and we would find them interesting, the letters from the fields, the articles, and the beautiful poems "Choice meat is there" she said "and is yours for the taking." "World Friends" the children's paper, is found helpful to band leaders, and the children love the stories. Miss MacMullen felt every W.M.S. member should subscribe for the Missionary Monthly and see that shut-ins and children receive literature "Through Missionary Windows", a new booklet stands side by side with Missionary workers. Miss MacMullen closed with the appeal, are you getting the most out of your magazines.

The quiet half hour and memorial service was solemnly conducted by Mrs. J. W. Robbins, wife of Rev. Robbins of King St. Church, Trenton. Only nine months of the year have passed, she said, but we already have the names of 17 members who have passed on and these were read by the Secretary, Mrs. Denyes.

Deceased, members—Chatterton Mrs. Gardiner Mitts; Zion, Mrs. N. C. Ketcheson, King St., Trenton, Mrs. H. S. Langdon; Carmel, Mrs. Walter Meyers, Mrs. E. Homans; Plainfield, Mrs. Matthew Tummon; Centenary, Mrs. Haggerty, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mrs. Jas. Wellman; West Huntingdon, Mrs. Frank Ashley; Aikens, Mrs. Frank Grills; Scott's, Mrs. Horace Yateman; Bridge St., Mrs. Owens, Mrs. Gullett, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. VanTassel, Mrs. Wilson.

Our minds and thoughts, she said, went to the members we knew best, as the list was read. Sometime, our names will be read le,t us pause and consider how we are spending our time and our talents. Do we follow our master as we should? Do we use the modern excuse—we haven't time—are we drifting, or are we choosing? How doe sthe home we help to make compare with the one we grew up in? Mrs. Robbins says it is an irreparable loss if we cannot find time to know God. How? Psalm 46 says, Be still and know that I am God, and by listening, God reveals himself to us. In Jesus' short life we have recorded many times where He went alone to pray. Mrs. Robbins stated that prayer is the contact between earth and Heaven and surely, she said, after last week's events, no one will doubt the power of prayer. She closed by saying, If He gives us His best, how can we give Him less?

At the noon hour an appetizing dinner was served by the ladies of West Huntindon. Complimentary remarks were heard on every side of this smaller auxiliary, which was organized over forty years ago.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon worship service began at 1.30 in charge of Mt. Pleasant Auxiliary with their President, Mrs. Percy MacMullen in charge. Quiet music was played by Mrs. Ross Hoard. Mrs. MacMullen read part of the 2nd chapter of Matthew and based her remarks on the verse "Thou shalt Love Thy God". Love thy neighbor as thyself. She said, "let us regard the people of India, the Chinese, Africans, Koreans and the strangers within our gates, as our neighbors". Mrs. MacMullen also quoted from the book, "The Way of Life" by Muriel Lester. This service was closed by an earnest prayer by Mrs. John Holmes, that there be a reality in our religion.

Rev. Scott of Stirling then took this opportunity of announcing a missionary rally in connection with the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, to be held in Stirling next Thursday evening, Oct. 13, with Rev. A. D. McKinnon of the Caribou, as guest speaker.

Mrs. Farnsworth of Belleville then gave a splendid temperance talk "What women can do". God has given to women, she said, a very great power for good, which places upon us a great responsibility. Have we measured up? Some eight years ago, our W.M.S. added Temperance as an extra phase of this work. Mrs. Rutherford, a former President of our Dominion Board has said: "Only as a nation is free from alcohol is it free for the Christ." It has been stated that 300 million dollars is spent each week in Canada for liquor, and Mrs. Farnsworth said oh, if we could only turn that money into missionary work, in this generation, we might evangelize the world. The same civilization that sends the glad tidings of Christ, sends drink. A quotation was read from the brewers organization stating they do not aim for the drinker to drink more, but to get the boys drinking. It has been said that 3 beers a day for a year would build a house and three beers a day for a week would buy a suit of clothes for a child. "In God, tremendous things can be done" was Mrs. Farnsworth's closign thought, a quotation from the works of Stanley Russell.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

"What You Missed" by Miss Rachel Fox of Tabernacle Church was a presentation of the good things missed by those who were unable to attend the School for Leaders at Whitby. It is a great stimulus, she said for all W.M.S. workers and a week of rare enjoyment. Miss Fox passed on some of the messages of Mrs. Smythe, who was in charge of the devotions at the school, also of Rev. Lydia Gruchy, of Mrs. Carscallen who reviewed our Study Book, and Miss Minnie Shipley, a returned missionary. To share the benefits of these sincere messages, Miss Fox said, gave one a deeper understanding of the work accomplished at the school for leaders and she closed by repeating part of a poem "School for Leaders" that was written by Margaret McLellan of Almonte, Ont., for the Missionary Monthly.

At this time Mrs. Frederick of Chatterton sang "Peace—God's Gift of Life" which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. F. L. Hooper, the Presbyterial President then brought greetings and a short talk on peace.

Mrs. Hooper also read a reverie "Not the W.M.S.—but its members, not my sister, nor my brother standing in the need of prayer—but me," which contained many startling revelations, including the power of prayer. Our lives without prayer, were compared to machinery which was ready, but useless, without the contacting current to bring its power. She said we must seek the spirit of knowledge for 1939 and she urged that we give, give, give, of time, talent and money. The talent of faithfulness and attentiveness could transform meetings into effectiveness.

Mrs. Spafford then related instances as related in a recent letter from our missionary, Miss Elsie Hunt. Reg. N., of Cold Lake Hospital. On receiving a parcel containing a doll Miss Hunt presented it to a little girl patient; who could speak no English, and was constantly in tears, but had not cried since having a doll of her very own.

The offering was taken and dedicated by Mrs. Semple of Bridge St. Church.

Mrs. Spafford paid tribute to Dr. Reta Kilborn, who was present, a returned missionary, and mother of Miss Cora Kilborn, Reg. N., who is home from Chengtu Hospital, West China, and who spoke on her work there. Miss Kilborn is a pleasing speaker, and said it was a joy to present her work in China. The work has not been affected by the war, she said, but the war has brought added problems and burdens. The Japanese-Chinese war seems so unnecessary, and is really mass murder. Japan says they went in to put China in order, but China is more united than ever, she said, under the capable leadership of Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, who are Christians. It is not the Christian Japanese who want war, she said.

Miss Kilborn told many points of interest in her work in the hospital where more nurses are needed, also better equipment and supplies. She also told of problems and struggles of early missionaries, her mother, Dr. Reta Kilborn being one of the first to go out. She spoke highly of the Chinese nurses and doctors who are assisting them in the Christian work. Twenty new workers are needed and she closed with Christ's command "Go ye into all the world."

At the close of this address Mrs. Spafford asked, "have we as W. M. S. workers, stressed the need, and opening for workers?"

The report of the Courtesy Committee was given by Mrs. Joe Daniels of Foxboro. An invitation to hold the 1939 Rally at Zion was accepted. The new address of our Presbyterial Treasurer, Mrs. F. H. Herrington was given as Box 342, Napanee.

At this time Mrs. H. B. Johnson of Sidney Parsonage moved that a fund be started, a Chamberlain Fund, or Peace Fund, by grateful mothers or relatives and friends of boys who might have been at war by now, the proceeds going to our missionary cause and the money to be in by Christmas. This suggestion met with the approval of nearly all present and all money is to be handed in to the local Secretary of Christian Citizenship, who will forward it on to Mrs. H. B. Johnson, R. R. No. 5, Belleville.

A consecration hymn was sung, and the Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Beckel of Rawdon Circuit, bringing another successful Rally to an early close, with time, on the homeward trip to revel in the gorgeous beauty of the trees, giving one the feeling it had been a day well spent.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was late for supper again, and I snuck in the dining room and sat down at my place and ma and pop kept rite on talking, me thinking, G, hurray, they're so busy talking they didn't even notice.

And I started to feel lucky, and pop said to ma, By the way, have you had any news of Benny? It seems only yestidday he used to live here with us, he said

Me thinking, Aw heck, they're starting something funny.

Making me feel less lucky, and ma said, My yes, how time flies, I wonder if I'd reconize him if he walked rite in here unannounced this very minute?

I think I'd know him all rite, pop said. He was a queer looking gink with a squeeky voice and glasses, wasn't he? he said, and ma said, That's not my recollection of him. I dont remember him wearing glasses, and it seems ot me he was rather a nice looking boy when his hair was brushed properly, she said.

I suppose it's a case of distance lending enchantment to the view, pop said. I still remember him as a queer looking gink, but I was quite attached to him just a same. He was so amusing the way he used to come in late for meals and try to act as if nothing had happened. Do you remember how we used to laugh about that? he said, and ma said, O my yes.

Me thinking, The heck they did. And I said, I'm here, pop, I'm here, ma, and I been here and you know it.

Who said that? Well of all things it's Benny, pop said, and ma said, So it is, we were just talking about you, weren't we, Willyum?

Aw, I know it, I heard you, G wizzickers I'm hungry I said, and pop said Well, mother, at that rate supposing you give him a little some to eat.

Wich ma did, giving me a lot.

DRAMATIZATION BIBLE FEATURES B.Y.P.U. RALLY

Baptist Young People of District Meet On Holiday

SPLENDID BANQUET

The Peterborough Association of Baptist Young People's Unions held their thirteenth annual Fall rally in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Thanksgiving Day, which was featured by a religious drama festival.

The afternoon session opened with a song service led by Mr. Art Wynne after which Rev. W. H. Moore of Brighton conducted a period of worship. Miss Della Anderson gave an address of welcome on behalf of the Belleville Union, which was responded to by Miss Dorothy Ough of Port Hope.

During the general conference Rev. E. K. Smith of Port Hope, member of the Interprovincial Cabinet, emphasized the need for religious drama in the interpretation of the scriptures in this modern age. Religious drama had found a definite place in church life, he stated. Plans were outlined for the Golden Jubilee convention of Ontario and Quebec Baptist churches to be held in the automotive building at the C.N.E. grounds in Toronto next June. The B.Y.P.U organization had been asked to combine their convention with the general convention of churches. A musical festival contest is to be held at this convention, it was stated.

Banquet Held

After a splendid banquet in the church parlors the evening session opened with worship conducted by Miss Phyllis Moore of Gilmour, who sounded the thanksgiving note in an appropriate outline of the historical facts and spiritual significance of Thanksgiving Day.

A well-filled auditorium enjoyed the religious dramas presented by Port Hope and Belleville Unions. "For He Had Great Possessions" played by the Port Hope young people told of Ben Azal, a rich young ruler, who, in spite of his wealth and position could not help but feel the power of Jesus, the Galilean teacher but when he sought to serve the Galilean he was not willing to obey His injunction to "sell all and give to the poor and follow me." His haughty, selfish, bejewelled wife belittles Jesus and all who follow Him. It is only after the accidental death of their little son that they seek the help of Jesus. But 'ere they find Him Jesus is crucified. After His resurrection they come to the realization that Jesus is the Life that they seek and that this Life is theirs if they forsake the world and follow Him.

An Able Cast

Rev. E. K. Smith as Ben Azal and Mss. E. K. Smith as Asenath, his wife, gave outstanding portrayal. They were ably supported by a cast including Wilfred Smith, Willard Elmsley, Janet Bailey and Douglas Cheshire, Robt. Shaw, Mrs. Williard Elmsley, Janet Bailey and Dorothy Ough.

"Into Thy Kingdom" presented by Belleville B.Y.P.U. told of the high priest, Caiaphas, who, though he has accomplished the betrayal of Jesus, is filled with doubt and uneasiness. His wife, Adina, is tormented by remorse. Learning that her long-lost son, who ran away ten years previously to join a robber band, has been crucified with Jesus, a penitent at last, she forsakes all and follows His disciples. Caiaphas admits his defeat.

The high priest was played by Ed. Burn and Adina his wife by Edna Jobson with splendid characterization. A fine performance was registered by the supporting cast comprising Arthur Wynne, Nellie Hales, Chas. Franklin, Mrs. Chas Franklin, Bill Hales and Bert Girling.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Peterborough, in announcing the adjudicators' report, said that the delineation in both plays was considerably above the average for amateur theatricals and both plays reflected very competent direction and clever interpretation. There was not much to choose between the two presentations in the way they were acted but Port Hope held the edge in that their play was a vehicle that afforded a little wider range for dramatic execution and suspense and the players seemed a trifle more seasoned. Costumes, scenery and lighting for both dramas were excellent.

Officers Elected

Officers for the ensuing year were elected during the evening and were installed by Rev. W. H. Moore of Brighton. The 1938-39 executive are: President: Miss Dorothy Woods, Cobourg; Vice-President: Mr. Chas. Franklin, Belleville; Secretary-Treasurer: Mr. Roy McCabe, Peterborough; Association Representative at Interprovincial Cabinet: Miss Dorothy Ough, Port Hope; Councillors: Rev. W. H. Moore, Brighton and Rev. T. J. Haire, Cobourg. Mr. Bert Orr, 1937-38 President, acted as chaiman.

Representatives were present from Port Hope, Peterborough, Brighton, Cobourg, Colborne, Gilmour, Picton, Sydney, Eddystone and Cambray.

YOUNGSTER TAKES SURE METHOD TO GET ATTENTION

Detroit, Oct. 12 (CP)— Ronald Dowle, two, doesn't like people to ignore him, but he takes more hrastic methods than most people to gain attention. Lost on Detroit streets, Ronald got annoyed as hundreds passed by him. He soon got plenty of attention. He took off his clothes. Startled passers-by took him to the police station. His mother told police her son always does that when he's mad. Sometimes it embarrasses her, she said.

Youth Pleads Guilty To Reduced Charge Of Manslaughter

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)— Daniel Thauvette, 20-year-old Lancastr youth cnarged with the murder of 16-year-old Alex. Lariviere a year ago, yesterday pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge through his counsel Rodolphe Danis.

Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland, on the suggestion of Crown Prosecutor C. P. Hope of Toronto, accepted the plea.

Mr. Hope appealed to the presiding Judge to accept the manslaughter plea in preference to continuing with the murder trial because he said evidence indicated there was no intention to kill.

This was Thauvette's second trial for murder. At the February assizes the jury disagreed and another trial was ordered. The Crown alleged Thauvette, while intoxicated, struck Lariviere with a wine bottle and then crushed his skull with a stone. His body was found beside the railway tracks near Lancaster last Oct. 20.

Justice McFarlane said sentence will be pronounced before conclusion of the assizes.

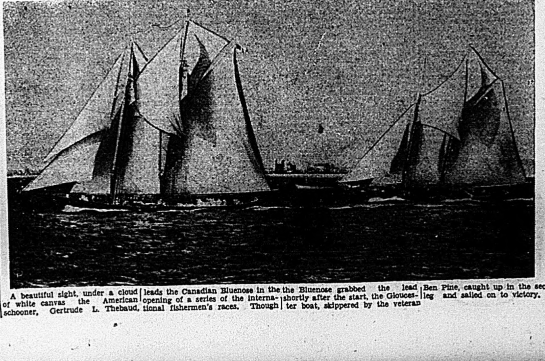
The Stars Say—

For Thursday, October 13
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

MUCH PROGRESS and satisfaction are read from this day's sidereal operations with much activity and keen interest in both old and new projects. There may be very lucrative new contracts or agreements, in which initiative, acumen or shrewdness will gain objectives, especially with "big business" associates.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of whirling activity. Old as well as new matters are under high impetus and should bring to bear much talent, sagacity and shrewdness in handling perplexing situations leading toward desired objectives.

A child born on this day may be highly intellectual, alert, keen and of impressive personality, which will attract the co-operation of elders and those in high standing.



A beautiful sight, under a cloud of white canvas the American schooner, Gertrude L. Thebaud, leads the Canadian Bluenose in the opening of a series of the international fishermen's races. Though the Bluenose grabbed the lead shortly after the start, the Gloucester boat, skippered by the veteran Ben Pine, caught up in the second leg and sailed on to victory.

The boat builders refused to tell the secret. The 20-ton boat has a 16-knot cruising speed, $30,000 worth of decorations and will cost $4,000 a month to operate.

RETIRES AFTER 48 YEARS SERVICE WITH RAILROAD

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP) — Frank L. Prosser retired this week from railroad work after 48 years' service, with the philosophical remark: "I liked it and I had a good time". For 45 years he was in the employ of the Grand Trunk-Canadian National Railways, first as a fireman and then as an engineer. But not once did he work on a passenger run, which is considered unique.

Why the Weather?

Living in the Arctic! We have advanced far from the time when Tacitus declared that nobody from choice would live north of the Alps. Long ago the British did not think so much of the possibilities of Canada, nor did the majority of the people of United States believe that Alaska was worth the price. Yet Alaskan winters are no colder in their extremes than those of Montana or Manitoba, both of which are now well populated and are good agricultural regions. Snowfall is heavier in Virginia than in northern Canada or Alaska. While the temperature has fallen to 68 degrees below zero in Montana, it has only dropped to 54 below at Point Barrow, Alaska, where in summer it rises to 75 degrees above. Interior Alaska has known summer temperatures of 100 degrees.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 13—(CP)— Synopsis—Pressure is high over the greater part of the United States and relatively low across Canada, with a deep low area centred just west of Hudson Bay with a shallow trough extending southeastward to the Great Lakes. The weather has been mostly fair with moderate temperatures in the western provinces and warm from the Great Lakes eastward with showers in some sections of northern Ontario and near the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan: Fresh west to northwest winds; mostly fair and a little cooler tonight and Friday.

Alberta: Mostly fair and cool tonight and Friday; probably scattered showers or snowflurries; chiefly in northern districts: fresh west to northwest winds.

WEARY CREWS ARE CALLED TO FIGHT NEW OUTBREAKS

Unceasing Effort To Hold Damage And Death Toll To Present Limits

MANY FLEE HOMES

Effort Being Made To Locate All Homeless In Fire Area

Fort Frances, Ont., Oct. 13. — (CP)—Outcroppings of new fire today in northwestern Ontario's flame-blackened forests sent crews, wearied by days without sleep, into new areas in desperate, unceasing effort to hold the damage and death toll within present limits.

Twenty are dead along the International Boundary where a swath of black ruin stretches thitry miles wide for some sixty miles west from Fort Frances.

Courageous fire rangers, insisting the situation is under control and there is no need for undue alarm, still fought fresh outbreaks. Fire sleeping in the muskeg explodes into flame when the blast-furnace heat meets timber or slashing. Flames break out miles beyond previously established limits.

Eight women and twenty-five children fled their homes forty miles west of Fort Frances yesterday when one outbreak threatened the district. They were housed in a Stratton hotel when officials, de-

Split Develops Over Claimant To Czar's Throne

Paris, Oct. 13 (AP)—White Russian circles reported today a split had developed over the choice of the next "Czar of all the Russians" to succeed Grand Duke Vladimirovitch, who died in exile yesterday.

The handsome, 62-year-old head of the House of Romanoff and pretender to the vanished Imperial Russian throne proclaimed himself Czar in 1924 in a manifesto that named as his successor his 21-year-old son and heir, Grand Duke Vladimir Cyrillovitch.

Some emigres said, however, that many Romanoffs considered Vladimir's status doubtful since his mother, Grand Duchess Victoria Feodorovna, was a granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England and a Protestant instead of Greek Orthodox.

The other claimant is Grand Duke Dmitri Pavlovitch, Cyril's cousin. He was present with other members of the family and a few close friends at Cyril's death, and was expected to take the present opportunity to consolidate his claims to the pretendership. An immediate Romanoff family council might be considered necessary to solve the problem.

Cancer Not Contagious and Not Hereditary Says Surgeon

"Dreaded Cancer Age" Develops In Persons More Than 60

CURABLE DISEASE

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (AP)—An "alarming" increase in cancer deaths among persons more than 60 shows that this period of life is the "dreaded cancer age", fellows of the United States Chapter of the Intrenational College of Surgeons were told today.

Dr. Andre Crotti, president of the Chapter, said in an address prepared for delivery at the college's second annual assembly that a survey of Ohio's cancer death rate, when applied to the United States as a whole, disclosed deaths in the more-than 60 class had almost doubled from 1910 to 1930.

"Perhaps a good reason for that increase," he said, "is that preventive medicine, better sanitation, especially our highly efficient welfare organizations, maternal welfare, etcetra, save a large number of individuals and prolong their span of life only to carry them to the dreaded cancer age."

COBOURG PAIR SOON ARRESTED

Alleged By Police To Have Stolen $80 From Sailor

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—Geo. Bowen and Donald Potter, of Cobourg, enjoyed brief liberty last night after they allegedly broke into the crew's quarters on car ferry Ontario No. 1 last night and stole $80 from the bunk room of Fred Silas. Shortly after the robbery was reported, Bowen was arrested in a pool room by Constables Gavin Reid and Don Erskine. Potter boarded a train at the C.N.R. station but was arrested by Trenton police who searched the train when it arrived there.

Potter was brought back to Cobourg by Chief of Police W. J. Carey.

They appeared in police court today and were remanded for a week. All the money was recovered.

MOSLEM LAWYER SHOT TO DEATH IN ARAB REVOLT

Refused To Participate In Campaign Against Jews

STRONG MEASURES

Jerusalem, Oct. 13—(AP)—Hassan Sidkey El Dajany, a prominent Moslem lawyer who refused recently to participate in a campaign against Jews and British authorities, was shot to death today.

Details were lacking about the slaying, which followed a day of disorders that left 25 Arabs dead and caused the Royal Air Force to dispatch two planes to rescue a British police patrol ambushed by Arabs.

PLACES BLAME ON POLITICIANS

Mayor Bone Says Canada Rather Weak Link In Empire Chain

Toronto, Oct. 13—(CP)—"We are rather a weak link in the Empire chain," suggested Mayor Jamieson Bone, Belleville, in an address today to the Progress Club at the Royal York. "We are absolutely at the mercy of our self-seeking politicians, who will not bestir themselves on our account, and who rest secure in the belief that we will also not bestir ourselves about them."

Mayor Bone said that anything he said must not be considered political bias, for he realized, like many others were beginning to, "that politics is slowly but surely strangling this fair country—and of course all of us with it.

"How to get action from our party governments is a problem that remains to be solved," he continued.

Vandals Damage School Buildings

Hamilton, Oct. 13.—(CP)—Close to $200 damage was done to Cathedral High School during the night by a gang of vandals, it was revealed when pupils and staff renched the building today. A costly rockery and ornamental planting had been torn to bits, and rocks moved on to the steps of the school. One window was shattered, and the sprinkling system on the grounds broken. Windows had been chalked over with marks and walls scribbled on.

Police and school officials have started an inquiry.

HUNGARY SERVES ULTIMATUM ON CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Territorial Demands Must Be Met Are Terms of Note

RE-INFORCE LINE

Approximately 12,000 Hungarian Men Now In Frontier District

Komarom, Hungary (on the Czechoslovak border), Oct. 13 (AP) —The Hungarian delegation to the Komarom Conference declared tonight that negotiations on Hungary's demands for cession of Czechoslovak territory had been broken off.

Koloman Von Kanya, Hungary's Foreign Minister, read a declaration to a final session of the conference stating that the Budapest government would hand over its claims on Czechoslovakia to a four-power conference for decision.

This came about one hour after expiration of a Hungarian ultimatum calling for Czechoslovak acceptance of Hungary's territorial demands—said to cover some 8,000 square miles—by 6 p.m. (noon EST).

The Hungarian spokesman said his government saw no way to bridge the existing differences between the two nations by continuing the conference.

BY LOUIS MATZHOLD
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Komaron, Hungary (on the Czechoslovak border)—Oct. 13 — (AP)—Hungary served an ultimatum on Czechoslovakia today to accept Hungarian territorial demands by 6 p.m. (12 noon E.S.T.) and sent strong troop reinforcements to the already heavily-garrisoned Czechoslovak border.

At the hour of expiration of the ultimatum, Hungary's delegation to the interrupted mediation conference here will cross the Danube River to receive Czechoslovakia's reply, then decide "further procedure."

Slovaks awaited word from Dr. Ferdinand Durciansky, a Slovak minister, said to have returned to Bratislava from a conference with Chancellor Hitler. Sources close to the Slovak delegation yesterday said Hitler had been asked to mediate and that Durciansky, aide to Dr. Joseph Tiso, the Slovak Premier had gone to Berlin on that mission.

Czechs Ordered Out of Teschen

Teschen, Poland, Oct. 13 (AP)—Orders were posted throughout the Teschen district today for all Czechs who have settled since November, 1918, in this area, newly acquired by Poland from Czechoslovakia, to leave by November 1.

(The Teschen area, some 300 square miles with a population of more than 200,000, mostly Polish, was ceded to Poland by the Prague government on Oct. 1. Occupation began Oct. 2.)

WIDEN SEARCH FOR THE KILLER

Learn Another Woman Molested By a Motorist

Larchmont, N.Y., Oct. 13 (AP)—Police widened their search for the killer of Mary Coyle today while they investigated a 26-year-old woman's story that an unidentified motorist had molested her.

Mamaroneck police said the woman appeared at headquarters earlier and told of a motorist's attempt to seize her on her way home. He attempted to drag her into his automobile, she said, but she broke away. Mamaroneck is adjacent to Larchmont.

Connecticut State Police sought there youths in an automobile bearing New York licence plates. Patrons of a dining car in Norwalk reported overhearing the men discuss the Coyle murder in a "suspicious" manner.

The men abruptly left the diner, patrons said, after one of them was heard to remark, "It's getting too hot for us around here."

Aside from the discovery of Mary Coyle's bloodsoaked coat and beret, police reported no new clues in the slaying Monday of the 17-year-old high school graduate.

GIRLS SEPARATED 16 YEARS, UNITED TODAY AS SISTERS

Corresponded As Friends—Were Separated On Death of Father

MEET AT KINGSVILLE

One Knew of Relationship But Other Was Not Informed

Kingsville, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP) — Lottie Bunn, 23, of Kingsville, and June Lewis, 20, of Los Angeles who corresponded as friends for 16 years were united as sisters today. It was their first meeting since 1922 when their father died and they were adopted into different families.

Lottie born in Winnipeg was adopted by the late Mr. and Mrs. James Bunn of Kingsville. They told her she was an adopted child and her sister lived in Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lewis of Los Angeles adopted June born in Los Angles but did not tell her she was an adopted child.

The two girls wrote, Lottie knowing of her relationship with June, but not revealing it at the request of June's foster parents until she obtained their consent a year ago.

Kingsville is 25 miles south-east of Windsor.

MACAULAY WILL BE A CANDIDATE

Former Minister of Highways In Henry Gov't In Field

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)—Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House leader in the Ontario Legislature, today reiterated his determination to contest the party leadership at the province-wide convention here Dec. 8-9 to select a successor to Hon. Earl Rowe The convention was necessitated after Mr. Rowe announced his resignation at the annual meeting here in July.

Mr. Macaulay, former Highways Minister and leadership candidate in 1936 when Mr. Rowe was chosen, said there was "nothing" in reports circulation in Toronto that he would withdraw from the leadership contest.

It was suggested Cecil Frost of Lindsay, president of the Ontario Conservative Association, might be a "dark horse" candidate. At the recent meeting when the convention date was set, Mr. Frost denied a report that he had announced his candidature but would not comment when asked whether he would seek the office.

Lieut. Col. George Drew, Toronto author and lawyer, said at Ottawa last week he would be in the leadership race.

Trapped by Fire, Sudbury Man Leaps Thirty Feet to Death

Oscar Philion Lands On Head On Pavement After Jump

THREE IN HOSPITAL

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—Oscar Philion jumped thirty feet to his death in trying to escape when trapped by a fire in the top floor of the McCool Block early today.

The 41-year-old man landed on his head on the pavement. Police said had he delayed his jump a second or two, he would have been rescued.

J. A. Philion, a brother of Oscar, and Luke Faught, and Mrs. Narcisse Morin, 67, were taken to the hospital, the men suffering from burns, the woman from shock as a result of the fire.

About twenty occupants of the building, situated at the corner of Cedar and Lisgar streets, were driven to the street in night attire. The majority, living on the top floor, fought their way through dense smoke to the fire escape at the back of the building.

Doctor, 2 Patients and 2 Others Are Killed At Denfield Crossing

3 OF FAMILY KILLED

Diesel Train Car Struck By Automobile Which Is Demolished

London, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—Five persons were killed in a level crossing accident at the intersection of highway No. 7 and the Canadian National Railways Huron and Bruce line near Denfield today. The victims, all occupants of the one motor car were:

Dr. George Racey, Parkhill.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wills and their adopted five-year-old daughter, Norma, of Thedford.

Miss Evelyn Mason, Parkhill.

On Way To Hospital.

Dr. Racey and Miss Mason were killed instantly. Wills and his wife died within five minutes while their daughter's death occurred one-half hour after she had been admitted to Victoria Hospital, London. Her skull was fractured.

Police said that Dr. Racey, driver of the car, was bringing Miss Mason and Wills to London for hospital treatment. The young woman suffered a broken arm in a traffic accident last night.

Mr. Wills had an infection on his hand and had been forced to lay off work at the Thedford Saw Mill where he was employed.

The car was proceeding east on No. 7 highway when it crashed into the Diesel car which had left London at 9:30 a.m. The motor car crashed into the side of the C.N.R. car about six feet from the nose on the west side and bounced to the ditch on the northwest corner of the intersection, landing upside down. Mrs. Wills was thrown partially out of the car and Dr. Racey and Miss Mason were pinned in the wreckage.

Skid-marks Seen.

Joseph Parker of Detroit, visiting with friends about 300 yards from the crossing was first on the scene.

Accompanied by John Thompson of Claneboye he was driving east on No. 7 highway when the Racey car passed him about one mile west of the railway crossing. This was at the foot of a long hill. He lost sight of the car as it went over the crest of the hill but came upon the scene less than a minute after the crash.

From skid marks on the highway police formed the opinion that the motor car must have been driving on the cement portion of the road which is paved only on the north side, and that the driver may have seen the approaching train, and applied brakes and swung on the gravel portion of the road with brakes set.

The car plowed into the side of the train and one headlight was caught in the rods under the railway car.

CATHOLIC CHURCH IS SET ON FIRE

Brockville Chief Says Blaze Is "Purely Incendiary"

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—Described by Fire Chief John Hartley as "purely incendiary" an outbreak of fire was discovered early today at St. Francis Xavier's Roman Catholic Church. A neighbor noticed the flames issuing from a box leading to a cellar window and turned in an alarm.

Firemen who put out the blaze found a box had been filled with leaves soaked in turpentine. They also found that paper soaked in the same liquid had been placed under a vestry door where it had burned itself out. No damage was done except to the paint of the door.

BOMB DAMAGES BRITISH STEAMER

Five Insurgent Planes Raided Barcelona Early Today

Barcelona, Oct. 13 (AP)—The British steamship Stancroft was damaged by a bomb today when five insurgent planes raided Barcelona. No casualties on board were reported.

The raiders bombed the city from a great height. The famous statue of Columbus, with a hand pointing across the sea, escaped damage when a bomb fell six yards from its base.

Estimates of casualties in the city were not immediately available.

Hitler Now Trying To Secure Economic Dependency

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Berlin, Oct. 13 (AP) — Germany has lost no time in following up Chancellor Hitler's triumph in the Sudeten quarrel by organizing for a drive calculated to make what is left of dismembered Czechoslovakia an economic dependency of Germany.

Government experts were already busy on the program when German troops marched into Sudetenland to occupy the rich areas ceded by the Prague government. Field Marshal Hermann Goering's visit to the new territory was to size up the economic situation. He performed a similar task when Austria was annexed.

British Interests Will Be Respected Says Tokyo

London, Oct. 13—(CP Cable)—The Japanese government has informed Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador at Tokyo, that British commercial rights and interests in South China will be respected. The assurances apply to any third power affected in the Sino-Japanese war area.

The Japanese Government's statement resulted from representations made earlier by Sir Robert that Anglo-Japanese relations might be jeopardized by interference with British commerce in South China.

WELLINGTON REFUSES TO PAY WINTER RENT FOR THOSE ON RELIEF

Prince Edward Districts continue to put their "foot" down on various phases of the relief question. Last night the Wellington village council voted to cease paying rent for reliefees during the coming winter months, while the Township of Athol council warned potential relief recipients that they will receive no assistance if they own cars or radios.

WARM WEATHER BREEDS SMALL FLIES

Co-incident with the invasion of buzzing wasps in offices and homes of the city and district lately a plague of gnats and small flies has also been noticed. The tiny insects in small swarms and clouds have been getting into the eye and ears of workers in the south end of the city particularly where they are believed to have been bred in the warm waters of the nearby marshes. The midget insects are not uncommonly seen at this time of year, but there appearance in such numbers this season is believed due to the warm weather of the present week.

NO INFORMATION ON HELP REQUIRED FOR REASSESSMENT WORK

Apparently it all started in the corridors of the city hall when some one heard someone else say "they'll need a lot of men to take care of this work of measuring up and so on while the new assessment work is going on."

At any rate applications have been made by numbers of the city's temporarily workless to aldermen and the city hall officials for jobs which might result from the work of reassessment. However, little knowledge of whether any men will be needed at all is held by city officials. A warning that hopes should not be aroused over the expectancy of getting a job at this work is given.

MANY FINE PRIZES AT PLOWING MATCH

A record entry list is anticipated for the annual Lennox-Addington plowing match which will be held this month on the farm of W. H. Hunter at the northerly limits of the Town of Napanee. Featuring the prize list is a four piece silver tea service donated by J. H. Eckhardt, for the best ploughed land at the match which will be open to ploughmen of Hastings, Northumberland, Prince Edward and Lennox-Addington counties. Another titular trophy will be a silver cup donated by G. T. Tustin, M. P., for the best plowing by a Lennox-Addington ploughman. This cup must be won three times to become a permanent possession. Lunch will be served on the grounds.

INDIAN SUMMER DUE LATER SAYS LOCAL RESIDENT

Thick fog still blankets the district late evenings and early mornings, due to a combination of warm ground and water, and cooler dawn and night breezes, forcing motor traffic to proceed at slow speed through the section. Days, however remain as balmy as those of June, leading to comment the section is enjoying Indian Summer. In the opinion of older residents, it is too early yet for this hazy period. There must be a "squaw winter" first, with a little snow before we get Indian Summer, pointed out Jack Roblin, one of the city's more weather-wise residents.

STOCO NEWLYWEDS WELCOMED HOME

St. Edmund's Hall, Stoco, was the scene of unusual activity this week when scores of friends gathered to tender a welcome to one of their younger residents, P. Murphy, and his bride, on their return from a motor trip east. An address was read welcoming Mrs. Murphy to her new home and commending Mr. Murphy on his success as a cheese-maker. Several prominent members of the dairying industry of the district took part in the welcome.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS APPLES GO EAST

An indication of the extent of apple shipments from this district and western points was given last evening when eight large trucks loaded heavily with barrels of apples halted in the city briefly in the downtown section. The shipments were en route to Ottawa and Montreal it was reported by the local office of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. This morning other heavy loads were observed going through.

Mayor Bone's Toronto Speech Irks Railway Brotherhood

Heads of labor councils and representatives of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees of Toronto councils were quick in their reply to the utterances of Mayor Jamieson Bone at the Albany Club dinner meeting in Toronto on Wednesday evening, when he declared that locomotive engineers particularly were paid more than their services should obtain.

"Mayor Jamieson Bone of Belleville apparently does not want to be re-elected next year," said Elroy Robsen, president of the National Labor Council, and representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

Mr. Robson further declared that Mayor Bone was "sadly mistaken" in his statement that locomotive engineers made $3,000 a year, and that railway employees spent holidays in the West Indies.

"I doubt if there is a locomotive engineer in the country who is now making $3,000 a year," stated Mr. Robson. "And it is only one railway employee in 50,000, who takes a trip to the West Indies, and then it is only to recover or recuperate from ill health contracted in the service of the railroad.

Mr. Robson further criticized Mayor Bone's statement that relief recipients should have little say in the election of municipal councils.

"Anybody who would do that is not a true friend of democracy," he declared.

"Most ridiculous altogether," said Duncan Campbell, Toronto district chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. "Why, $3,000 is more than the average locomotive engineer's salary in two years.

"True enough, there were individual cases years ago when an engineer would make even more than $3,000, but then he was allowed to work 24 hours a day if necessary on construction projects. Now the work is split up to take care of the unemployed.

"The trades union movement certainly will not tolerate suggestions such as those made by the gentleman from Belleville. His remarks concerning railway employees are too ridiculous to merit comment" said George Watson, president of the Toronto and District Trades and Labor Council.

"No matter what they say, I believe I am right, and I stick to what I have said. I maintain the stand I took in Toronto, and I will retract nothing," declared Mayor Bone, advised of the statements made by the Toronto work-[illegible] representatives.

FIREMAN DIES IN LOCOMOTIVE

V. L. Dinner, Lindsay, Expires As Freight Train Passes Foxboro

Slumping to the floor of the cab of a Canadian National Railway freight locomotive as it was passing through Foxboro early last night, Vernon L. Dinner, fifty-year-old Lindsay railway fireman expired before the train could be brought to a stop and medical aid summoned.

Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson, investigated the circumstances and stated that no inquest would be held, death being due to heart failure.

Dinner had never been sick a day in his life, physicians were told by Engineer Charles Golden, Lindsay, who was in the cab with the deceased at the time of his death. The remains were brought to the Thompson Funeral Parlors prior to transfer to Lindsay today.

500 Enjoy Chicken Supper at Rednersville; New Hall Dedicated

Tasty chicken, steaming hot, gravy and all the "trimmin's" attracted upwards of five hundred people to Rednersville last night, where former pastors and guest speakers took part in the opening ceremonies of the new United Church Hall.

Following the dinner a splendid program in which local and Belleville talent participated was given. Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, gave an inspiring address in his capacity as speaker of the evening, while congratulatory remarks were heard in brief addresses, from the Revs. L. M. Sharpe, M. Seymour, former pastors of the Church, and the Rev. Mr. Boomhour, present minister who occupied the chair.

TAKE THE LEAD OUT OF YOUR LEGS
Get Oxygen in Your Blood and You'll Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs
People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery — you tire quickly — feel depressed.
What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1938, G.T.Fulford Co., Ltd.

Cash Prizes Offered For Best Cartoons By School Children

School children of the Province of Ontario in all classes up to and including entrance grades are to be given an opportunity of competing for $15 in cash prizes which have been offered by Mr. J. L. Irwin, Dominion dairy grader of the local office for the best hand-drawn cartoon and slogan which will best advertise Canadian cheddar cheese.

The competition which is being held in conjunction with the British Empire Cheese Exhibition scheduled for this city during the two days of November 29th and 30th, in connection with the eleventh annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, will have a first prize award of $10 and a second prize award of $5. The contest is open to all school children of the Province, and will close on November 15th. Judges will be members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association. All entries may be addressed to Secretary R. Dudgeon, at 175 Front Street.

All agricultural representatives of the various farming counties of the Province are to be contacted by the local office to bring the contest to the attention of school children in their particular areas.

D. A. VANDERVOORT

Frankford, Oct. 13 (Special)—The funeral of Doras A. Vandervoort was held on Wednesday afternoon. Services in the home and in Trinity Church were conducted by Rev. A. S. McConnell. Interment was made in Frankford cemetery.

The large attendance at the service and the wealth of floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the late Mr. Vandervoort was held by all who knew him.

The bearers, all members of the Trent Canal staff of which Mr. Vandervoort was Divisional Superintendent for more than twenty years were: J. L. Hanna, Frank Johnson; Don Harrison; Leo McAuley; S. Smith and E. Sadler.

PUPILS EVACUATE SCHOOLS IN FIRE DRILL EXERCISES

All of Public School Children Require Less Than One Minute

RECORDS BROKEN

Establishing, according to City Fire Department officials, an all-time record for evacuation of buildings in drill, pupils and students of the schools of the city, in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week, went through fire drill manoeuvres yesterday in a manner that drew acclaim from examining officials.

Three thousand four hundred and ninety-six children of the city schools left their classrooms in a quiet orderly and efficient manner, evacuating buildings in elapsed time that clipped seconds off the previous record.

The schools and their times were:

	Pupils		Seconds
Queen Mary	458		46
Queen Alexandra	485		50
Queen Victoria ..	500		47
St. Michael's ...	520		40
King George ...	352		42
B.C.I.	980	1 min.	30
C.S.D.	286		60

Fire Department officials and members have been taking an active part in Fire Prevention demonstrations this week. Practice runs have been made with personnel demonstrating to the public their ability with ladder and hose, and other work in connection with fire-prevention manoeuvres.

Complete inspection of Front Street and other business sections, factories, manufacturing plants, garages, theatres, churches, public halls and schools is now going on, with splendid co-operation being received from the general public, Fire Department officers state.

Belleville Pair Held for Chicken Thefts in County

Two Belleville men, who police named Joseph Storms, 22 of No. 2 Railway Terrace and Nathan Clapper, 37, of 12 Foundry Street, were arrested early today, when found in possession of eleven chickens, said to have been stolen. Clapper and Storms were later charged with the theft of the birds and remanded in custody when arraigned before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace. The chickens found in the men's possession are said by police to have been stolen from the farm of Miss P. Doctor, Thurlow Township.

Storms and Clapper were arrested by Constable Wm. T. Evans, of the local force, who while patrolling the city at 6.30 a.m. today, observed two men carrying a sack off Albion Street. The constable was cruising in the police car at the time and hastened to the corner of Brown and Great St. James' Streets, where he apprehended the pair. Upon questioning them he found they were in possession of eleven chickens, five of which had been smothered to death in the bag. The men stated they had obtained the birds from a woman residing on Railway Terrace. Subsequently police investigations by P.C. Evans revealed the woman to deny any connection with the birds. Constable Evans immediately placed the pair under arrest.

At the police station the men were further questioned by Sergeant Arthur Harman, P.C. Evans and Provincial Constables W. E. Smith and Wm. McBrien. Later the men are said by police to have admitted stealing the chickens from Miss Doctor's barn. Police then checked their story and found Miss Doctor minus nine Plymouth Rock hens and two roosters. The six live birds and five dead ones were returned to the owner. Clapper and Storms will appear in police court at later date, the Provincial Police revealed after preferring the theft charges against the accused men.

Whether or not the apprehension of the two men by P.C. Evans will clarify other chicken robberies, that have been baffling police throughout this district for some months, failed to bring comment by police, however. Provincial Police have been confronted with a number of chicken thefts throughout South Hastings for many months, they revealed today.

Shot Gun Pellets Strike Little Girl But No Injury Results

Shot gun pellets discharged from the marsh at the foot of Foster Avenue are reported to have struck the windows in a house occupied by George Seames, 60 South Foster Avenue, one of the small pellets striking little five year old Georgina Seames on the body, but not inflicting injury or wounds. The shot came from the direction of the marsh at the foot of the avenue and doubtlessly was fired by hunters this morning. Plainclothes Constable Fred Izard investigated the report and questioned two duck hunters seen in that vicinity. The pellet to strike the little Seames girl was travelling at sufficient velocity to penetrate her dress, but did not injure the lass. Hunters are warned not to aim their guns in the direction of buildings while shooting ducks along the bay front police announced today.

LODGE CONFERS DEGREE WORK

Eureka Lodge Members Addressed By Drug Firm Representative

Conducting the ceremony of initiation the officers of The Belleville Lodge No 123, A.F. & A.M. conferred the degree work at the monthly meeting of the Eureka Lodge, No 283 G.R.C., A.F. & A.M. at the Belleville Masonic Temple last evening. The fraternal exchange of offices was mutually agreed upon after the invitation had been extended by the latter lodge, inviting the officers of The Belleville Lodge to conduct the ceremonies of the night.

Wor. Bro. Kells, Master of The Belleville Lodge, occupied the Master's chair throughout the ceremony, being assisted by Bro. Tulk, as Senior Warden and Bro. Ken Bird as Junior Warden and the remainder of the regular officers of The Belleville Lodge in their respective offices. The evening proved of mutual benefit to both societies with their Masonic ties more firmly knit.

Following the degree work in the lodge room the meeting adjourned to the banquet hall where entertainment was provided by the Eureka Lodge orchestra, under the direction of Bro. Walter Aselstine. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Frank Schmidlin, Eastern Ontario representative of the Parke, Davis Company, well known Canadian drug firm, who gave an interesting and educational talk on "evolution of pharmacy and medicine".

During his discourse Mr. Schmidlin told of the ancient usages of drugs, the introduction of medicine and later surgery and concluded with the more modern discoveries of vitamins and their natural uses in the health of mankind today. The speaker was introduced by Bro. C. F. Miller and afforded the thanks of the large assembly by Wor. Bro. Percy Geen, Master of the Eureka Lodge. The conventional Masonic toasts were introduced to conclude the evening's program.

HUNGARY SERVES

Schools Used as Barracks

Hungarian soldiers, horses, cannon, tanks and munition crowded villages and roads leading to the border. Schools of border towns were closed to serve as barracks for the army.

Czechoslovak and Hungarian troops were in fighting positions 250 feet apart on one section of the border. Yesterday the Hungarian army had moved up approximately 12,000 men to the frontier district.

In Budapest, Hungarians felt that the most critical day since the end of the Great War had come for the country. Demands for military action were heard in the streets, especially from Hungarian radical nationalist quarters.

Police Carry Rifles

Budapest police, apparently fearing anti-Czechosolvak demonstrations, were reinforced and ordered to carry rifles day and night.

Concessions offered by Czechoslovakia were held unacceptable. Hungarians have indicated they want 8,000 square miles of southern Slovakia, newly established autonomous state of Czechoslovakia. The Slovaks were believed willing to cede only 2,000 square miles.

According to proposals attributed to the Czechoslovak negotiators today, Hungary would not get a number of purely Hungarian-populated towns, that the Hungarians have demanded.

The Hungarian delegation left for Budapest and a likely cabinet council, while Dr. Joseph Tiso, Premier of the New Slovakia, departed for Bratislava.

It was said Tiso faced trouble in his own party, and that the advice of Chancellor Hitler might be the decisive factor on splitting of Slovak territory. A Slovak minister M. Durciancky, was reported returned to Bratislava from a conference with Hitler yesterday.

BRITISH, FRENCH

"In the Orient there is an Oriental type of realities which is totally alien to westerners".

The Kokumin editorial said that "the China incident lacks the formalities of war but there is no doubt Japan is waging a war in China. Therefore, Japanese operations would not be hampered by mere manoeuvres.

"Further we are forced to express dissatisfaction about the attitude of the Foreign office in repeating Japan's policy respecting foreign rights and interests.

Foreign Powers Cautioned

"The mere existence of operations in South China is sufficient warning to those powers, who are extending assistance to China."

The government yesterday cautioned foreign powers, including Great Britain, against movement of troops, warships and aircraft without 10-day notice to the Japanese command "lest unforeseen accidents occur . . . ." (Britain similarly "reminded" Japan of "the risks to Anglo-Japanese relations which any incident might cause.")

An admiralty spokesman said today that "we can only hope foreign powers will warn us. I must refrain from saying what results may be expected if untoward incidents occur."

He added that the South China operations were progressing smoothly in "every direction, without further defining the territory.

Japanese navy bombers caused 2,000 casualties among Chinese troops yesterday, he said, and destroyed 60 truck loads of munitions and supplies in raids to cut Canton railways.

Appeals to Mussolini

MOSLEM LAWYER

For many years Dajany was a friend of Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, the exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem. He was reported to have turned against the Mufti recently and refused to take part in the anti-Jewish campaign.

At the Damascus gate today two other Arabs, reported blacklisted by organized Arabs, were killed.

(The Grand Mufti fled the Holy Land Oct. 16, 1937, and since July, 1938, has been living in Lebanon. On May 5, 1936, Dajany was arrested following a meeting of Arab and British leaders at which he was believed to have warned that strong measures would be used if terrorism did not cease.

Thirteen Arabs were killed yesterday by bombs from air force planes sent to rescue the ambushed police and British troop reinforcements in a battle on the Jerusalem-Hebron road which lasted until nightfall. Six other Arabs were killed as another British force clashed with a terrorist band. The others were slain in scattered battles with British troops and in scattered shootings.

About 21,000 British soldiers and police have been deployed throughout the Holy Land to end the strife.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop was trying to make his cigar lighter work, and ma said, I ran into quite a coincidence this afternoon, Willyum, I stopped for a snack of tea in Hookbinders resterant and who came along and joined me at my table but Luella Gerson. At least that was her name when we attended high school together, and we hadn't layed eyes on each other since until today, ma said.

You must of had oceans to tell each other, pop said, and ma said, Well of course, but the cream of the coincidence is yet to come. We hadn't sat there 5 minutes when who joined us but Sue Lanert, at least she used to be Sue Lanert, she said.

Dont tell me she was another classmate arisen from the past? pop said, and ma said. Absilutely, neither Luella nor I had seen her since graduation. She had always been known in school as a big brag, but her clothes didn't look very prosperous, so apparently she hasn't so much to brag about these days, ma said.

So you and Luella did the bragging no doubt, pop said, and ma said, Well, not in a bragging way. Luella lightly mentioned that she gets a new car every other year and I made passing mention of the kind of shops I get my clothes from. Not that we were trying to rub it in on Sue but we couldn't help it if she was there. Anyway, she gave us one of those casual but careful glances such as women have, and remarked that there was one thing she was thankful for and it more than made up for all the rest, in other words she could eat and eat with no thought of diet or calories and still never put on an excess ounce. It took us quite aback, because Luella is downrite plump and it's no state secret that I have to watch my weight at times. Dont you think that was rather uncalled for, Willyum? ma said.

Only by that time pop was in back of the sporting page, making sounds like laughing

C. P. SHOPS CLOSE FOR THREE WEEKS

Economy Measure To Counter-Balance Failure of Traffic

Montreal, Oct. 13—(CP)—Closing of the Canadian Pacific Railway's main shops for the three weeks between Oct. 24 and Nov. 14 was announced yesterday as an economy measure in counterbalancing failure of traffic to reach expected proportions.

About 13,000 unionized employees will be affected in the Angus shops here, largest in the C. P. R. system; the Weston shops at Winnipeg, second largest; the Ogden shops at Calgary and the Vancouver plant. Representatives of the employees agreed "amicably" to the layoff, a company announcement said.

It followed an earlier move towards economy which went into effect at the start of this week, whereby clerical workers take one week off without pay between now and the end of the year. The reductions in pay for these salaried workers amounts to 8 1-2 per cent.

Running trades employees are not affected by either change. Their employment, company officials announced, varies with the amount of available traffic in any event.

Provisional Map Of Czechoslovakia Appears in London

London, Oct. 13—(CP-Havas) — Commenting on the new provisional map of Czechoslovakia appearing in London today, the Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said Chancellor Hitler got a bigger slice of territory through Munich than he had sought by ultimatum at Godesberg.

"This morning's map showing the new provisional frontiers of Czechoslovakia is made available for scrutiny of the British public," said the newspaper. "A glance at this map, which is reproduced with the frontiers demanded by Hitler at Godesberg, reveals some notable characteristics.

"At one point in southeast Bohemia there is a small concession to the Czechs, as compared with the Godesberg line. But at other points, particularly in north and northeast Bohemia, the new line is substantially more favorable to the Germans than the Godesberg line.

"This is not a little astonishing when it is recalled that even the Godesberg line included certain predominantly Czech areas. It means that Hitler has obtained through the machinery of Munich a still larger slice of Czechoslovakia than he had sought by the method of ultimatum at Godesberg."

AFTER THE CRISIS

Since the Munich pact was signed and since there has been falling off in interest engendered by the fact that peace had been preserved, incidents are happening which if it had not been for the great crisis of September would themselves today have been looked upon far more seriously by the people. For instance there is the Polish acquisitian of Czechoslovakian areas following hard upon Hitler's annexation of the deep fringe about old Bohemia and now the Hungarians and Czechs are under arms on the border waiting settlement of Magyar or Hungarian demands for territoy. These consequences of the Munich settlement of the crisis would ordinarily have been great crises in themselves. But lish acquisition of Czechoslovakian areas they are consequences of the crisis and so with peace the interest flags.

Is it that the world went through so great a trial in the anxious three weeks of September, followed by the pact that it cannot rise to the sense of these troubles? Or are they looked upon as natural consequences which are not to be avoided or escaped? Chancellor Hitler's criticism of the British system of rule, which permits the opposition to oppose the government and his reference to the fact that there is always the possibility in democratic countries of the supplanting of the government, ordinarily would have been taken as very uncalled for but after Munich, his references did not excite the people so keenly as might have been expected.

The world realizes that the crisis past did not settle all difficulties of which there are so many in the world. But it did hope and does hope that the affirmations of a will for peace, even if there must be rearming for the purpose of protection so as to prevent (if occasion should again arise) a possible outbreak of hostilities, suggest the assurance of a new day when nations will understand and not have to fear or distrust the motive of another on such matters as domination of other nations by force and might of arms.

In the Spanish zone there still remains the problem of the foreign soldiers, mostly from Italy and Germany, who have been fighting on the Insurgent side and the foreign soldiers who have been withdrawal would ordinarily have been have been so long worked up to pitch over to respond. Among other things they hope to see the Spaniard greet Spaniard again as friend not as a foe in civil war. The future of Spain meanwhile holds some concern for nations lest foreign governments demand a hand in the settlement.

LOSSES FIRE CAUSES

An object lesson of loss of life and devastation of property which fire can cause has been tragically provided in a week set apart in Canada for the observance of fire prevention. Whatever the cause of the fire which has taken at least twenty lives in Fort Frances and North Dakota area, nature has on this terrible scene pointed for man and woman lessons which must be learned for the sake of safety. Fire once started, is dangerous in the extreme and may become a devouring demon, destroying men, women and children, wiping out the work of generations of builders and settlers and destroying wealth of forest growth. When the inquiry into the forest fire is concluded it may be possible to place the cause of the disaster which struck that district.

A fire in a basement, or in a curtain, or in a closet, and in so many other places may start a devastating blaze wrich will burn everything that lives or is inflammable in the area to which it is restricted. Men and women know enough of causes which may start fires to exercise the greatest caution for no one can tell how dangerous a master a fire is until it has been extinguished.

A story which shocks with its revelation of horror in the abandoned and burned homes and the charred and twisted bodies of victims caught in the sweep of flame and the pall of smoke has been told. Instinctively man knows this ancient foe of his and he dreads fire more than any other catastrophe. Sympathy has been felt for the bereaved families which have suffered so dreadfully in the disaster in the bush. There has been little rain in that area, and evidently conditions suited the spread of the blaze.

From the earliest dawn of the race man has been compelled to be watchful against fire, which while it was one of the greattst discoveries of primitive man and the chief one which led up to his gradual ascent in civilization has always threatened man because fire is so elemental.

FIRST FLIGHT OF GEESE

He who walks beside the sea
Shall touch and feel reality.

He shall watch the patterned flight
Of geese across the flax-blue light

Of unfenced air, their feathered wedge
Arrowing above the edge

Of granite fact: their raucous cry
Fracturing the brittle sky

With sound, while he who listens hears
Freedom honking in his ears:

Witnesses beneath the sun
Multiplicity made one

And even when their synchronous flight
Has passed from hearing . . . passed from sight . . .

The watcher hears the beat of wings

WESTBROOK PEGLER IS ONE OF THE GREAT UNRECONSTRUCTED, as our Yankee friends would put it. Just here let us digress to say that one of our severest critics, habitat Belleville, formerly New York City, and States, and Long Island, where the millionaires sleep, says we are too indiscriminate in the use of the word YANKEE, which is a derisive term applied to northerners by the southerners in the days of the Civil War. To call a Southerner a Yankee even now would mean another war, condensed perhaps, but capable of at least two casualties. Northerners don't seem to mind it but would rather be called "Amurricans". Back to Wstbrook Pegler, who writes a newspaper column six days a week, which, syndicated, brings him the emolument of $65,000 a year, appearing in 166 papers, with a total of 6,000,000 readers. Pegler loves to dissent—he'll argue anything for or against. A friendly critic said that Pegler was for Womanhood, but he is against woman in politics, women in bars, women in bathing suits. He is for love, but he is against books about it: "We-all baby-havin' tater-hoein' homespun folks of great American majority—well, stranger, we don't regard sex as any fittin' topic for a book, and it's our view that any grownup man or woman who has got to read a book about it aint going to be any wiser afterward than what they was before." Columnist Westbrook Pegler has written a book, and starts it off with this blast at his own species:

> "Of all the fantastic fog-shapes that have risen off the swamp of confusion since the big war, the most futile, and at the same time the most pretentious, is the deep-thinking hair-trigger columnist or commentator, who knows all the answers just offhand, and can settle great affairs with absolute finality three days or even six days a week."

THERE WAS A MAN WHO HAD AN ELEPHANT ON HIS HANDS, according to legend, and that elephant ate hay all day and ate hay all night and just about ruined the man wro was foolish enough to accept an elephant as a gift. Hence the man who would not look a gift horse in the mouth had it all over the man who did not look a gift elephant in the mouth and forgot to reckon on the gift elephant's appetite. All of which preamble leads up to the tale of the man who bought a circus and is glad of it. Lumberman Louis L. Meitus, of Chicago, is an eccentric who like to bid at auctions and in consequence gets all kinds of commodities which he does not need. His latest auction investment concerned the sale of a small circus which folded up and was put under the hammer. Mr. Meitus attended the auction with the view of buying a truck or trailer or two. Five Shetland ponies were put on the block as a curtain raiser, and mindful of his two children waiting at home to ask Daddy "What did you buy for me, today Daddy?" he bid in on the ponies and in jigg time had the five. His bidding fever high by this time Lumberman Meitus kept bidding until he had the whole dang circus bought for a trifle like $12,000. Lining up his purchases with their attendants and trainers they paraded through Chicago streets, nine monkeys, six horses, five trainers, four Great Danes, three lions, two elephants, two deer, one leopard, one hyena and one baboon. He had the Big Top put up in a vacant lot and put on a show for 10,000 poor children, with hot dogs, pink lemonade and popcorn free. The entertainers of the defunct circus all volunteered their acts free for the kiddies, and a good time was had by all, particularly the man who bought the circus, just for the fun of it.

20 YEARS AGO

October 13th., 1918

Miss Ruby Palmer of the Kingston Standard staff, is visiting her parents in this city.

Mr. Everton Bell of Bath, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hollis, Foster Avenue.

Mrs. Ella M. G. Smith of Cobourg, is visiting Mrs. W. P. Ruttan in this city.

With the closing of the schools owing to the influenza epidemic, many of the boys who were engaged during the summer on farms as Soldiers of the Soil, will return to farm labor. Mr. Brockel, Secretary of Belleville Y.M.C.A. will be glad to put farmers in touch with boys who are willing to resume farm work.

OCTOBER 13, 1908

Mr. James H. Mills has sold his tailoring business in this city to Mr. Harry A. Morgan, formerly of Lindsay, Ont.

Mr. Joseph James of Actinolite, Ont., was in town today.

The herding of cows within the city limits is causing some trouble. It is claimed that boys take on the job of looking after more cows than they can hande and the consequence is that the cows stray and cause damage to property. Something should be done about this.

Capt. Hunter, Fishery Inspector, assisted by Fishery Inspector Boulter of Prince Edward County, this morning captured a practically new seine, valued at about $400 in the bay.

"The "Rube" Carnival at the arena was a great success. W. Asselstine won first prize for men and G. Barclay won the boys' first prize. W. Kyle won the prize for the best original costume.

40 YEARS AGO

October 13th., 1898

Mr. Fred Asselstine of Madoc, is visiting friends in the city.

Mr. W. B. Deacon has returned after a business trip to New York City. He met a number of old Belleville boys and they are all doing well.

Mr. A. Dulmage of Toronto formerly of Belleville is spending a few days in town. He is doing a good business in Toronto in furs and ginseng.

50 YEARS AGO

October 13th., 1888

Complaints are made regarding the manner in which the electric lights are being looked after. A number of the lights was out last night for some time and one business establishment, which engages a night watchman, was without light night before last.

This morning we were shown two large potatoes of the Early Rose variety which were grown upon the farm of Mr. James E. Ketcheson in the 2nd concession of Sidney Township. The weight of the two potatoes combined was five pounds and fifteen ounces.

A finely executed portrait in crayon is on exhibition in the show window of Mr. F. M. Cobb's establishment on Bridge Street. The work was done by Mrs. E. J. Mastyn, and won first prize at the Provincial Exhibition this year.

The 15th Battalion will parade to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning. The sermon will be delivered by the Chaplain of the Regiment, the Rev. M. W. Maclean.

That Body of Yours

Warts on the Sole of the Foot Are Caused by a Tiny Organism

We are hearing and reading much about ringworm of the feet (athlete's foot) and of the measures taken to prevent it in the gymnasium, swimming pool and shower baths. It is believed due to a fungus or tiny parasite.

Another ailment long unsuspected of being due to an organism is the little wart or warts that occur on the sole of the foot and heel—plantar warts.

Dr. R. M. M. MacKenna in the British Medical Journal tells us that there is little doubt that plantar warts are caused by an organism so small that it passes through the filter used to strain out organisms. This tiny organism gets into a small abrasion or scratch that can not be seen by the naked eye.

"When plantar warts reach an average size they interfere with the activities of the person affected owing to the pain caused by pressure on the warts whenever he attempts to walk or run. The warts develop without the person's knowledge the first sign being a tiny flat wart on the heel or ball of the foot but may appear on any part of the surface of the sole of the foot. It is considered full grown when it is about one-fifth of an inch across. It is a toughened very hard piece of tissue greyish yellow in color. It is only when it is pared with a knife that it's wart-like structure can be discovered."

The difference between a plantar wart and a callous is that there is little or no pain when a callous is pressed whereas when a plantar wart is pressed the pain is quite severe.

The first thought about plantar warts as with ringworm of the feet is prevention. Those suffering with plantar warts should not use the bathrooms or pool used by others. The infected person must never tread with bare feet where an unaffected person will step.

The active treatment suggested by Dr. MacKenna consists of (a) drug—a paint made up of zinc chloride and salicylic acid in collodium solution, applied daily to the wart with a tooth pick bored into the wart; (b) irradiation—radium or Xrays—which is the least painful and most effective treatment; and (c) removal by the knife under a general anaesthetic.

$52,000,000 Extra Is Voted For National Defence

Paris, Oct. 12—(AP)—The French Cabinet authorized Premier Edouard Daladier today to spend an extra 2,000,000,000 Francs (about $52,000,000)) for national defence in the few remaining months of this year.

The appropriations were the first evidence of the government's determination to push French rearmament after the Munich peace of Sept. 30 in which Adolph Hitler obtained French, British and Italian agreement to split Czechoslovakia.

National defence expenditures previously allotted by Parliament for 1938 totalled 25,945,000,000 francs (about $674,570,000 at present rates.)

They're Still Bombing Barcelona

Women and children are still the greatest sufferers as war goes on in Spain. The Czech crisis may have pushed the Spanish warfare out of the public spotlight but planes still fly over loyalist cities, dropping their missiles of death. Here is a recent picture, made after a bombardment of Barcelona by Franco's airmen. All eyes, save those of the most blase, are turned skyward, whence death may come at any moment.

New Air Safety Device Proves Successful

Operating on a radio-beam device that shoots earthwards, the newly developed radio-beam altimeter is being hailed in aviation circles as one of the finest aviation safety factors yet discovered. By means of the new device airplane pilots are kept informed of their height over the ground, buildings, bridges and mountains that happen to be directly below them—in comparison to the standard altimeter now being used which gives only the height above sea level. Peter C. Sandretto, superintendent of United Airlines communications laboratory, is shown, LEFT, explaining the new safety device to Pilot Captain H. P. Little. The pilot will read the findings of the new altimeter on the instrument shown, RIGHT.

Three Slants On Garbo

Three striking closeups of Greta Garbo. The Swedish girl who rose to the pinnacle of movie glamor in Hollywood, as she returned on the S.S. Kungliolm, after a long absence in Europe. Questioned by an eager throng of reporters about her reported romance with Leopold Stokowski, musician with whom she spent part of her vacation, Miss Garbo refused to be drawn into a discussion, insisting that she never talked about "my private life." She was, however, willing to talk about anything else.

2nd Thurlow

2nd Thurlow—Over one hundred friends, neighbours, and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Bunnett met at the Herchimer Ave., parish hall on Tuesday night and presented them with a miscellaneous shower, in honor of their recent marriage.

The gathering was called to order by Mr. Gordon Atkins and Mr. Earl Keene read the following address:

Belleville, R.R. 6,
Oct. 4, 1938

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron R. Bunnett
Belleville, Ont.,

Dear Vera and Cameron,

Progress brings many changes and the most delightful change has occurred, Vera, when you and Cameron decided to cross the matrimonial sea. So therefore Vera and Cameron, it is your time to be the centre of interest tonight as you are the newlyweds. As you sit in our midst, the centre of attention the spirit of the community offers you the glad hand, wishing you all the happiness and good luck that is fitting of greatest friendship and good-will that we are gathered here tonight to show our love and respect for you.

We would ask you both as you start this new life together not to try to do the wonderful things, but to do the little things and above all let God be at the head of your home and to lead and to guide you.

Marriage brings many pleasures. It also brings greater opportunities and added responsibilities. We are sure you will assume these with courage.

Now as we think of your marriage, we wish you both a happy and successful life together. It is often said that life is what we make it, so we are assured that if you carry with you into the future the same general cheerful dispositions expressed by you both in all your past associations then your home will be a centre of gladness and joy, and it may be yours in abundant measure.

O fortunate, O happy day
When a new household finds its place
Among the myriad homes of earth
Like a new star just sprung to birth
And rolled on its harmonious way
Into the boundless realms of space.
—Longfellow.

Into your home we ask you to take these gifts as a slight token of our regard for you both. May they ever be of useful service to you and at the same time serve to remind you of many happy thoughts which surround this gathering here tonight when it was our pleasure to meet together.

"When you take an inventory
Of your friends both new and old
When you are adding up the joy of life
Which can't be bought with gold
When you feel the need of someone
Who will stand through thick and thin
We shall count ourselves most happy
If you only count us in".

We join in extending to you our very best wishes. May success and happiness crown all your efforts. May your days be long and prosperous here among us, and may you be accompanied always by health, joy and prosperity. In life's pathway whether rough or smooth, may the star of love never grow dim on your horizon.

May God's richest blessing ever follow you through your journey of life.

Signed on behalf of your many friends of the Second Line of Thurlow—Sanford Bowers, Gordon Atkins, Don Bowers.

Cameron and Vera made suitable replies thanking all for the lovely gifts. All sang "For they are jolly good fellows". Dancing and cards were enjoyed. Coffee, cake and sandwiches were served and a social time spent by all.

Mr. Don Whalen has returned to Bala Beach, after spending a few days at his home here.

Agnes Hinchcliff of Belleville, and Isabelle Atkins had dinner with Mrs. Harry Grills on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Atkins, Robert and Isabelle, had tea and spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mitchell on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Vivian spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell and Manley and Donald, had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mitchel.

Miss Margaret Plumpton, Warkworth, and Miss Elsie Larzarik, had dinner with latter's mother, Mrs. Larzarik on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills spent Sunday with the former's sister, and husband Mrs. and Mr. Wm. Gray, Massassaga.

Friends of Lorne Doherty were very sorry to hear of his serious accident which made it necessary for him to be removed to the Belleville hospital but are glad to know he is progressing as well as can be expected.

Miss Alma Snider called on Mrs. G. Atkins on Thursday afternoon

Mothers! Treat Children's Colds This Proved Way

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest colds-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Weddings

WILSON—PLANE

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized at high noon on Saturday, October 8th., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Plane when their daughter, Della Ethel, was united in marriage to Walter Allen Wilson of Lansdowne, Ontario, in the presence of immediate relatives. Attending as guests of honour were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Plane, great uncle and aunt of the bride. Rev. S. E. Winter officiated.

To the strains of the Bridal Chorus played by Mrs. Ford Tumelty, the bridal party took their places in the living room against a background of evergreen, red ivy and potted plants. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Manchu blue crepe gown with a coronet of bridal roses in her hair and carried pink and white roses. She was attended by her sister, Ruth, wearing a frock of Royal blue crepe and carrying pink roses. Mr. Roy D. Plane performed the duties of best man.

During the signing of the register the Misses Beulah and Vera Winter sang "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Mrs. Tumelty.

After the marriage ceremony two nieces of the bride were baptised. They were Ruth Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Cooney of Trenton and Myrna Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Plane of Kingston. The Misses Winter sang "There's a Friend for Little Children".

The guests then repaired to the dining room which was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and white bells. A dainty buffet luncheon was served by the Misses Frances Casselman, Laura Wilson and Dorothy Gaebel.

Gets $1,000,000 Cheque

Four men rang the doorbell of the Louisville, Ky., home of Mrs. Wright Barr a minute after midnight on Oct. 7, and handed her daughter, Jerrie Barker, ABOVE, a cheque reported to be for $1,000,000. The cheque was believed to represent her share in the estate of her father, Jesse Barker, former Peoria, Ill., banker, who was found shot to death just twenty-one years ago.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, October 14

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A VERY lively day is forecast according to the lunar and mutual configurations. High hopes and wishes, expansive aims and objectives should flourish under the enhancing, productive and promoting rays of major planets. It is a time for reaching to high goals with the certainty of the co-operation of employers, superiors or those in prestige and power. But goals cannot be attained without prudence, restraint and moderation.

Those whose birthday it is are on the verge of grand opportunity for the fulfillment of their dearest desires, with the active aid of those in power and those of high influence. But tact, restraint and prudence are recommended.

A child born on this day may be versatile, energetic, resourceful and of high ambitions, although impetuous, high tempered, aggressive and audacious.

LIFE IN CARIBOO MISSION FIELD PROVIDES APPEAL

Outlook In Fields Outside Canada Is Promising Meeting Is Told

TWO ADDRESSES

The latest challenge toward missionary effort now being made by the United Church, was heard for this district on Wednesday evening in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, when Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, secretary of Missions, and Rev. Dr. A. D. MacKinnon, D.D., Ph.D., missionary for many years in the Cariboo district of British Columbia delivered addresses, before a meeting for members of the congregations in Belleville, Shannonville, Rednersville Foxboro, Cannifton, Sidney, Bayside, and Plainfield. Mr. H. W. Ackerman presided.

"When we send missionaries to the Cariboo, to the outlying areas and to lands outside of Canada, we are doing a purely unselfish thing," said Dr. Armstrong, who saw in missions the best expression of Christianity.

World One Field

"There is no division between home and foreign missions and the local congregation for it is a world neighborhood we are living in. There is one human need and the same Gospel satisfies that need. Members of the church should support the congregations and missions alike. There should be no one in a congregation who does not support missions for he who does not favor missions does not agree with Jesus.

Dr. Armstrong paid a high tribute to the Christian Chinese, referring to the Chinese ruler Chiang-Kai-Shek and his wife, who observe meditation before they begin the state work of the day.

With half a million Protestant Christians only in China, yet over eighty per cent. of the members of the government of China are Christians, which Dr. Armstrong thought was a proof of the influence of Christianity on the Chinese.

Japanese Warlords to Blame

"We must not blame the Japanese people for the war with China," he said. "I differentiate between the army and people of Japan. The army is out on its own. We should think kindly of the Japanese. The Chinese in their churches pray for the Japanese."

The trouble is that there are not enough Kagawas in Japan, he stated. It was said years ago that with a million Christian Japanese, Christianity would influence the policy of the government, but the church did not send the means to convert one million to Christianity and so is in that respect to blame.

"If Japan had four times as many Christians (there are one quarter of a million in Japan) there would not be the sight of Japanese militarism in China. The church is largely to blame," the speaker said.

Chinese Christian Example

Madame Chiang Kai Shek organised a flight of Chinese airmen to fly to Japan and bomb that country with pamphlets, not with bombs. "Never has there been such a flight in history," said Dr. Armstrong.

He also touched on the movement in India among the 60,000,000 untouchables. They want something in place of Hinduism and may turn to Islam or Christianity. If they turn to Christianity there are not enough missions there to take care of them.

Missions efforts in the United Church are down to two-thirds of what they were and missionaries are being overworked. The church in Canada has 24 men now available if the money is provided for the mission field.

An address, rich in its experience of life among men who live in the Cariboo and in its sympathy for all classes of men, was that of Dr. MacKinnon, a native of Nova Scotia, who "reigns" over a mission "empire" of 45,000 square miles. His territory stretches 300 miles from east to west and 150 miles from north to south and to cover the 25 stations requires a trip of 1,200 miles without duplication. Today, where there were no churches, there are three churches and a number of halls. The people also love worship in the great outdoors.

Life at Frontiers

"It takes a long time to remove the frontiers," said Dr. MacKinnon. "They will remain for many decades to come and it will be a sad day when there are no more frontiers to conquer."

He declared that the United Church has a genius for the frontier, in the three component divisions which make up the church. Even the name of the church has a charm for the people on the home mission field.

Lovable Characters

Dr. MacKinnon, who speaks Gaelic and who is of heroic mould in stature, could not help revealing as he told stories of mission life how deeply interested he is in humanity. He drew portraits of the types of men who live in that country, men, who possess depth of sympathy have simple needs and have a thirst for knowledge, and are willing to undergo sacrifices in their generosity. He related how a young mining engineer and party of men travelled by water and land and arrived late for his service and took up a collection which filled a cowboy hat. He saw that man later with a group of men, playing instruments and recalled the incident. The same man was now managing a large sawmill. "You remember that collection," said Dr. MacKinnon. "Well, it is all gone." The engineer laughed and said he would see what he could do, he took up a collection from his associates and presented it to the missionary. It was not as large as the other collection because times were more difficult, but there had been contribution by everyone.

"I do not suppose you have any idea of the amount of good you may do with your mission givings. Nine out of ten of the men where I have been would not be able to hear the Gospel except for your givings. It is costly to carry on the work. Gasoline usually runs at 30 to 40 cents a gallon and it gets dearer the farther you go from the centres. I have paid as high as a dollar a gallon, so far was I from the base of supply.

A Big Game Country

"This will always be a big game country. There will always be the hills. No plough can make wheatfields out of them. At the foot is the dense forest, full of wild life, including the large cougar, the cinnamon bear and so on.

"No earthquake or tornado can overturn the work done on the frontier.

"The invisible part of our work is the best part. It is hard work but it is worth while. 'Forward is our watchword'. 'The best is yet to be.' Many of these pioneers came from Glengarry, he said, and closed with a heroic verse of Peter MacArthur.

Rev. Dr. Semple spoke briefly at the close of the meeting on the "Quarter Million Fellowship Crusade".

NOTED VIOLINIST JOINS STUDIO

Helen Hunt Allen Highly Praised By Pittsburgh, Pa., Newspaper

Mrs. Helen Hunt Allen, widely known violinist of the South Hills, has become associated with the Music Studio of Miss Grace McMillan of Mt. Lebanon, according to a Pittsburgh, Pa, newspaper. Mrs. Allen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Hunt of this city, has been heard here on a number of occasions and is well known in Belleville.

Miss McMillan is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, where she majored in both piano and organ, later attending the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology. Miss McMillan is a member of a number of musical organizations.

The Pittsburgh paper says "Helen Hunt Allen comes by her musical talent naturally. Her father is a Canadian pianist and organist of repute, having charge of the music department of Albert College, Belleville, Ontario. Mrs. Allen was a pupil of Luigi von Kunits and a graduate of Toronto Conservatory of Music, in which institution she taught before marriage. A resident of Mount Lebanon for ten years, she has appeared before the Woman's Club and other musical groups as a favorite. The Civic String Orchestra chose her as its concert meister three years ago; she is also a member of the faculty of the Kauffman Settlement Music School.

"The Studio is in keeping with the educational and cultural standards of this progressive community; these young artists bring to their teaching a happy combination of long study, unusual enthusiasm and wide experience."

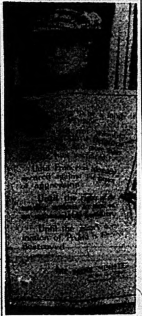
A Contrast



When Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of England reported to the House of Commons details of the settlement of the Czechoslovak minorities affair, a contrast to what some called Britain's "surrender" to Adolf Hitler of Germany was provided by Mrs. S. W. Leach and this poster she paraded up and down the street. The poster, which she has had since 1914, contains exercepts from the Guildhall speech on Nov. 9, 1914, of then British prime minister, the Earl of Oxford and Asquith. The final bristling sentence on the poster reads: "We shall not sheath the sword—"until the military domination of Prussia is finally destroyed."

Members of White Shrine Arrange Enjoyable Banquet

Members of Bethlehem Shrine, No. 11, White Shrine of Jerusalem entertained at a delightful banquet and program in the Upper Oddfellows' Hall, last evening, the guests of honor being a patrol from the Maple Leaf Shrine of Toronto. Visitors were also present from the district and from Kingston Shrine.

The long tables presented a most attractive appearance with their decorations of brilliantly hued Maple leaves, and bowls of fruit. Mrs. Coral Adams, Worthy High Priestess, and Mr. Arthur Nayler, Watchman of the Shepherds, welcomed the guests, a response to the cordial greetings being made by Mrs. Findlay, Worthy High Priestess of Maple Leaf Shrine and Mrs. Norman, Worthy High Priestess of Kingston Shrine. Following the delicious meal, which was under the convenership of Mrs. Harry Varley, a meeting of the Shrine was held.

Members of the visiting Patrol presented patrol drills in an excellent manner, that won the admiration of all who had the pleasure of witnessing this part of the program. Other numbers included readings by Miss Bell, vocal solos by Mrs. Norman, Kingston, and piano accordion selections by Mrs. Trembleton, Toronto. The evening's entertainment concluded with dancing, with Helen Large presiding at the piano. Dainty refreshments were served before the dance came to a close.

Fussy-Eater FRANCES
SHE SCARCELY TOUCHED HER CEREAL ... AND SHE HATED VEGETABLES AND MILK ...
LOOK, FRANCES... DADDY'LL GIVE YOU A NICKEL IF YOU'LL EAT YOUR CARROTS AND DRINK YOUR MILK! COME ON... JUST A TASTE!
NO! I DON'T LIKE THEM!
OH DEAR, I COULD JUST CRY! SHE GETS THINNER EVERY DAY... WHY CAN'T SHE EAT LIKE OTHER CHILDREN DO?
NOW, NOW... WHY DON'T YOU GO DOWN AND SEE DR. JIM TOMORROW? HE'LL SURELY KNOW OF SOMETHING.
I DONT KNOW WHAT IN THE WORLD MAKES HER SO STUBBORN AT MEALTIME!
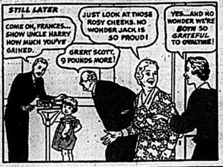
OVALTINE? YOU MEAN THE FOOD-DRINK I'VE READ ABOUT?
YES... AND THE WAY IT HELPS SO MANY "POOR EATERS" EAT IS REALLY SURPRISING. AND I'VE SEEN IT DO SOME GREAT THINGS FOR YOUNGSTERS WHO WERE UNDERWEIGHT.
THAT AFTERNOON
GEE, MUMMY, THIS OVALTINE TASTES GOOD! YOU WOULDN'T KNOW THERE WAS MILK IN IT AT ALL!
SOME TIME LATER
MORE! SAY WHAT IS THIS, YOUNG LADY... AN EATING MARATHON? NOTHING FUSSY ABOUT YOUR APPETITE THESE DAYS!
AND YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN WHAT SHE ATE AT LUNCH! I DON'T KNOW WHERE SHE PUTS IT ALL!
... AN' SOME MORE OVALTINE, TOO!



STILL LATER

YES...AND NO WONDER WE'RE BOTH SO GRATEFUL TO OVALTINE!

MOTHERS! If your child is a fussy eater — note this:— Ovaltine is solving this problem for thousands of mothers today. It acts, not merely by "tempting" a child's taste—but by actually helping nature create the natural sensation of hunger!

One mother writes:—"Our little Helen May was underweight—and we were forever coaxing her to eat more. Last fall we started giving her Ovaltine. She has gained weight . . . Her body is round and solid . . . And at mealtimes she sits up and eats as she should! No more coaxing at our house now!"

Of course this is only one letter—but it's so typical of thousands received—Ovaltine is certainly worth trying! Simply give it mixed with milk. Children love its delicious taste! Get a tin today—and accept special offer at right!

OVALTINE FOR THE GROWING CHILD

Relief Recipient Given 14 Days

William Bedford, 30 year-old city relief recipient, was sentenced to 14 days in the common jail after being convicted of unlawfully causing a disturbance in the city relief office when the accused appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in city police court Wednesday. The jail term came as the result of default in the payment of a $5.00 fine, plus costs, when Bedford revealed he was unable to meet the assessment of the court.

The charge was preferred by Chief Kidd after police investigations into a reported disturbance in the city relief office a week ago yesterday, during which Bedford and Alderman J. W. Barlow, chairman of City Relief, became engaged in an altercation.

Bedford entered a plea of guilty Wednesday when arraigned before his worship. "I think the court should hear Alderman Barlow's version of this trouble," suggested Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

"Mr. Bedford and his family have been living in city-owned property for three years. He received a three-day warrant instructing him to vacate last May, but he is still there. Last Tuesday he approached me in the relief office regarding the city taking care of his family while he went to Halifax. I told Mr. Bedford he would have to move his family first, as the council had decided upon this matter.

"'I'll move when I please,' Bedford replied to me and I told him to get out of the relief office," stated Alderman Barlow as he added that Bedford later swore at him and threatened to punch the alderman on the nose. "Then I phoned the police," concluded Mr. Barlow as he added that he did not desire to prefer charges against Bedford, but when Chief Kidd learned of the incident police had taken over the entire matter.

When a fine was imposed Bedford took a 14-day jail term in default of payment.

INSPECTOR GIVES SAFETY RULES ON ELECTRICITY

All Householders Urged By District Inspector To Make Survey of Equipment — Ten Suggestions To Make Homes Safe

The largest fire recorded in history was the burning of Rome in A.D. 64. That was the occasion when Nero is supposed to have "fiddled" while his capitol was consumed. The second largest fire of all time was the Chicago Fire in 1871. The anniversary of the Chicago Fire is observed each year throughout America as Fire Prevention Week, during which a nation-wide effort is made to reduce the country's tremendous economic loss from fire.

As part of Fire Prevention Week, Mr. D. F. Kavanagh, Electrical Inspector, Belleville, urges all householders in this territory to make a survey of their electrical equipment to see if any of it might constitute a fire hazard. "We can be sure that history's largest fire was not caused by "crossed wires" because electricity was not used for seventeen centuries after Rome had burned. We suspect that electricity is blamed for more fires than it really causes, but there are definite fire hazards in the misuse of electricity with which every householder should be familiar."

Mr. Kavanagh makes the following ten suggestions for making homes safer, and urges all to cooperate with his department in eliminating electrical loss.

1—If any lamp socket is coming apart, or is loose on its support, have it repaired. If the wires are worn where they enter any socket, have them replaced.

2—Look around the house for "temporary" extensions which have been left in place. Call in an electrician to have these replaced by a permanent form of wiring.

3—See if all portable appliances and lamps are in first class condition. If you can get a shock from any of them or if they frequently cause fuse blow-outs, have them repaired by an experienced man.

4—See if the insulation on all attachment cords is intact. If insulation is broken down or if wires are exposed, replace the cords with new ones.

5—Plugs on cord sets, if broken, should be replaced.

6—Do not subject flexible cords to injury in any way. Do not run them under rugs, through doorways, or leave them in contact with hot radiators.

7—Examine the fuses to see if any of them have been tampered with. Use fuses rated at 15 amperes except for special circuits. Keep some extra fuses on hand.

8—Disconnect all electrical heating appliances, particularly electric irons, when they are not in use. Do this by detaching their cords from the outlet.

9—See if all wall outlets are solidly fastened in place. If outlets hiss when plugs are connected, or if the outlets do not make good contact with the plugs, have the outlets replaced.

10—Have respect for all electrical equipment so long as it is in use, and keep it in good order.

Accidental Death Verdict

Port Hope, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—Verdict of accidental death was returned by a jury last night at an inquest into the leath last September of Kenneth Brown of Morrish, killed in a motor accident. No blame was attached to the driver, W. R. Lott of Napanee.

Evidence was given that the boy was playing on the side of the road west of Port Hope and ran in front of the car.

Theatres

AT THE BELLE

"Four's a Crowd"

Errol Flynn loves Olivia de Haviland, who has a yen for Patric Knowles, who is that well-known way about Rosalind Russell who goes for Errol—but big! And thereby hands the tale of "Four's a Crowd" the every-minute-a-laugh comedy that opened before large audiences at the Belle yesterday.

That the title is an apt one becomes more and more apparent as the amours of the handsome young quartet get more and more involved. Then in steps Walter Connolly—grandpa to Olivia, and an ill-tempered captain of industry with an all-absorbing interest in his miniature railroad—to further complicate a not altogether simple situation.

Flynn is a high-pressure public relations counsel, whom Knowles hires as editor of his paper, at the urgent behest of Miss Russell, a sob sister who has something more than the interests of the newspaper at heart. Flynn's brainstorm for building circulation is a series of articles denouncing Connolly. Then, playing both ends against the middle with gay insouciance, Errol proceeds to sell himself to Connolly as a press agent and a grandson-in-law, and to become engaged to Rosalind. That the final scene has the four romantics in a marrying mood and Connolly in a state of apoplexy is all we're going to tell you about the swell surprise finish.

Flynn, Miss de Haviland and Knowles, who so recently covered themselves with glory in the Technicolor production, "The Adventures of Robin Hood" prove to be just as effortlessly at home in ultra-modern comedy. Rosalind Russell, borrowed from another studio for the role, is perfectly cast as a feminine newshawk with a sense of humor. Add to that Walter Connolly at his highly explosive best, Melville Cooper and Hugh Herbert in stand-out comedy bits, and you've got an acting line-up unequalled in any comedy this year.

"The Chaser" Pleasing

Modern motion picture magic has colored the fantastic exploits of ambulance-chasers, one-time bugaboo of the police department and big corporations, with an hilarious history, aptly recorded in the legendary story of the most notorious of the tribe.

The added feature at the Belle, "The Chaser" evoked long and sustained laughter from the audience which was swirled into the story on a high comedy note and held to rapt attention until the final gag came with the fade-out.

There is no end of hilarity in the story of an ambulance-chaser who found both profit and amusement in annoying the hired minions of a big corporation. Whenever the story promises to become serious, a sudden shift in the plot results in another highly laughable situation.

Dennis O'Keefe, one-time deputy marshal of Brimstone and the leading laugh-getter in "Hold That Kiss" proves for the third time that he deserves the rapidly-growing following which is making him one of the most-talked-of newcomers to the screen.

Another newcomer, Ann Morriss, proves her right to the leading feminine role in an adroit and well-rounded performance which promises well for her future.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Start Cheering"

The newest thing in musical comedy entertainment is the outstanding screen attraction at the McCarthy Theatre, entitled "Start Cheering." The production also affords the largest cast of comedians, radio, stage and screen stars, that have been assembled in a single picture in quite some time.

Another Charlie Chase Comedy

In addition to the feature "Start Cheering" the array of short subject entertainment has been well chosen and includes Charlie Chase in his latest fun-fest of hilarious side-splitting comedy entitled "The Wrong Miss Wright", also "Screen Snapshots" that present some of Hollywood's most famous stars at work and play. An all technicolor cartoon presentation, "The Merry Mutineers" and another thrilling chapter of the interesting serial with Gordon Elliott in the star role "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" all help to build up a swell two hours' of screen enjoyment at the McCarthy Theatre.

Proud History of E. Ontario Is Told by Judge McLean

Guest Speaker Describes Life In This Part of Ontario And Tells Story of Its Heroic Record In Defence of British Principles

"If peace should not endure, there is no way the people of Eastern Ontario can see to avoid their responsibilities, because they are men, and as such will not shirk their responsibilities," His Honor Judge Evan McLean, Picton, told a distinguished gathering of city and provincial officials, and one hundred delegates to the annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Electrical Association at a banquet tendered them by the Belleville Public Utilities at the Hotel Quinte yesterday.

"I would like to tell those who govern us," continued the speaker, "that there is no doubt of the attitude of Eastern Ontario. We love Canada and Great Britain, and realize that the safety of our country is wrapped up in the future of the British Empire. Our attitude is that of Borden and Laurier, "Canada is with you to the last man and dollar."

Story of Eastern Ontario

In typical keen McLean humor, the speaker interspersed a graphic story of Eastern Ontario from the days of the early settlers to the present with humorous anecdote and story. With him at the head table in the spacious Hotel Quinte dining room were Dr. Thomas Hogg, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, Charles Cameron, M.P., R. D. Arnott, M.P.P., His Worship Mayor Jamieson Bone George A. Reid, Chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities, Morley Duff, commissioner, the Rev. Beauchamp Payne, Ross Strike, President of the E.O.E.A. and members of the executive.

Briefly reviewing his own life, Judge McLean related many incidents hat has endeared him to his native Eastern Ontario. Touching on his home town of Picton he naively remarked, "We in Picton are much too busy to entertain so we let the onus of hospitality fall upon our suburbs." (Laughter).

"Toronto," he laughed, "is a mixture of people, neither eastern or western Ontario, but a mixture of both."

Loyalists' Sufferings

"Canada was only saved by the successful defence of Quebec against Montgomery, and the only thing that stood between him and a successful American invasion was the 84th Royal Highlanders who afterward settled in Stormont County", the speaker said in historical review of Eastern Ontario.

He reviewed the hardships suffered by the United Empire Loyalists before and after the American Revolution." It is a vivid tale," he said, "and would take an hour to tell. But I will say that as civilization filtered in after the Revolution, they went to work and made things go to develop Eastern Ontario. They succeeded in a degree until the war of 1812."

All Fought in 1812

"And what a war that was" commented the speaker. "There was no conscription, but everybody fought. All went to war because the work was done by those heroic women, while their men fought."

In simple eloquence Judge McLean unfolded graphic tales of the heroism of Canada's soldiers and sailors of those days, Chrysler's Farm, Ogdensburg, Queenston Heights, Lundy's Lane.

"Then," he said, "Thank God, Peace came, a peace that has lasted until this day."

Turning to the political aspect of his address Judge McLean spoke with pride of the many brilliant leaders that came from Eastern Ontario. "That doughty Father of Confederation, Sir John A. MacDonald, came from the Limestone City," he said. "Eastern Ontario has furnished three Prime Ministers for Canada, among them dear old Mackenzie Bowell who came from this 'neck of the woods.'"

"This part of our province has also furnished four Premiers who have held a greater grip on the people than any other, MacDonald, Mowat, Whitney and Ferguson, all of whom possessed picturesque personality and charm, that caused people to follow them."

"Eastern Ontario is blessed with everything from a natural point of view ,the speaker pointed out, by canning, agriculture, dairying and cattle-breeding it stands pre-eminent. "In my own Prince Edward, we can 40 per cent of the canned vegetables of Canada," he said, "and that is something of which we are proud."

At St. Julien

The speaker paid sincere tribute to the sons of Eastern Ontario and Canada who played their part in the Great War. "We in Ontario should be inordinately proud of our record for we contributed forty-two per cent of Canadian enlistments and fifty per cent of the money."

"At St. Julien, in the dark days of 1915, an army of green youngsters who didn't know when they were licked, fought against the German hordes and their gas. They saved the line between the French and British armies and averted a crisis that might have ended the war there and then. Canada proved her worth there and we are proud of it. But we lost thousands—and there are spots in England, France and Belgium that will be forever Canada. And we do not begrudge them."

Typica lResident

"And my idea of the typical resident of Eastern Ontario is this," the speaker concluded. "He is strong and upright. Down through the years he has come through every national emergency with unwavering faith in his country and flag. Down underneath is an intense love of his country and Empire that has carried him and has ever been his guide and compass. He is a good man. He carries his head up and his chest out because he respects himself. Above all he is loyal to Canada. His one desire is peace so that he can work out his own destiny. But if peace doesn't come, he will use his strong right arm and hand in other directions."

Mayor Bone's Welcome

Prior to the address Mayor Jamieson Bone extended a civic welcome to the visiting delegates, "I feel now that with the great St. Lawrence Development in sight, that it won't be long before the western part of the province looks up to the great industrial east," he said.

Chairman George A. Reid welcomed the delegates to the banquet on behalf of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, while the guest speaker was ably introduced by Commissioner Morley Duff. Appreciation of Judge McLean's forceful address was voiced by President Ross Strike of the E.O.E.A.

It's No Surprise That You're Constipated!

If constipation has you bogged down so you feel tired, sunk, all played out—it's time you asked yourself some questions!

What have you had to eat lately? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It's no surprise you're constipated! The chances are you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B₁.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and take a new lease on life! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

Eldorado

Eldorado, Oct. 13.—The annual Harvest Thanksgiving service of St. Bartholomew's Church, Bannockburn, was held Sunday evening with Rev. M. Redding, rector of the church, in charge. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, evergreens, vegetables and potted plants. A full vested choir with Mrs. Redding at the organ, accompanied by the Misses Aylesworth and two brothers of Madoc with their stringed instruments, provided the music for the service.

Thanksgiving hymns were sung. Rev. Redding spoke fittingly of the many things we should be thankful for, also spoke of the "Harvest of the Church", and made timely remembrance to those who had labored so hard for the church and had passed on to their eternal reward. Miss Aylesworth gave an organ solo during the offertory service A recessional hymn closed the Harvest Thanksgiving service.

WEARY CREWS ARE

termined to prevent further loss of life, ordered them to evacuate.

Settlement Threatened

The settlement of Devlin, 25 miles west of here, was reported threatened last night with firefighters battling against odds to save the village. Provincial police here said the settlement was not endangered.

Four bodies, evidence of a family's futile struggle for life, were found yesterday in Dance Township where all Ontario's 17 deaths have occurred. The other three victims fell across the border in Minnesota.

Jack Lloyd, Billy Whiddon and Clyde Kimble, settlers forming a volunteer search party, discovered the four bodies. The dead were 21-year-old Sam Fyle and members of his houshold.

Plodding through the charred remains of once fine pulp forests, the searchers came first upon ruins of Fyle's house. Within the blackened ruins was the body of Mabel Larsen, 12-year-old sister of Mrs. Fyle whose fire-tortured body lay just beyond.

Hands Across Face

Three hundred yards from the house ruins they found Sam Fyle, his hands crossed above his face, probably just as he crossed them to spare his eyes the torture of smoke and searing flames.

Twelve members of the LaBelle family burned to death when fire trapped them on their Dance Township homesteads Monday were buried yesterday from the Grey United Church at the crossroads at Emo, 40 miles west of Fort Frances.

Rev. Arthur Lavender conducted funeral services for Mrs. William LaBelle, Mrs. Noah LaBelle, their nine children and Frank LaBelle's 11-year-old daughter. Twenty boy scouts under Scoutmaster Ralph Marsh carried the bodies to their graves. Babies were enclosed in the same caskets as their mothers.

Situation Improved

Chief Fire Ranger William Darby said last night lower temperatures and better humidity improved the situation. He would attempt no damage estimate. Settlers are left without clothing or food and in many cases there revenue sources, cut pulp wood or fire wood, have been destroyed.

M. K. Morrison, district inspector of the Department of Public Welfare, and Patrick Kerr, relief officer, are attempting to locate all homeless refugees but this task has been almost impossible. Refugees are scattered throughout the Rainy River district, some staying in homes of relatives, others with friends.

No building or temporary shelters are in use for housing refugees. No plans for rehabilitation of settlers will be made until the fire danger diminishes.

Firefighters, battling the flames with pumps and hose where water is available and with spades, and back fires, number anywhere from several hundred to 5,000. Forestry officials could not estimate their number.

They Don't Sleep

A Forestry Branch official said only 50 to 100 men were in direct employ of the branch in the district but 'rangers scattered throughout the fire zone had hired men and hundreds of volunteers were in the woods fighting in organized groups. Asked where these men found shelter to sleep, an officer said tersely 'they don't sleep".

Two policemen returned yesterday to report the Stone family, reported missing in Kingsford Township, was safe. Forest rangers said fires in that townhip were under control. Other report said the fire was creeping north from Kingsford to the south end of Fleming Township, 25 miles northwest of Fort Frances.

Settlers in that area were being moved to safety by Forestry department trucks. Schools across the fire front were closed. All possible precautions were taken. Cars carrying pumps and hose patrolled danger points.

Settlers pray for rain to quell the flames. Yet some believe the fire is embedded so deeply in the peat beds far below ground it may survive even the snows of winter.

HEALS ECZEMA

Here is a clean, stainless, penetrating antiseptic now dispensed by chemists at trifling cost.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds but boils and simple ulcers are relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases the itching of Eczema is instantly stopped. Pimples—skin eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum and other inflammatory skin disorders.

1,500 Weary Firemen Battle Oil Blaze In Second Day

Linden, N.J., Oct. 13 (AP) — A weary army of 1,500 firemen and volunteers battled vast tongues of flame and clouds of greasy, black smoke today as a raging oil fire in the heart of one of the world's greatest refinery centres roared into its second day.

Rivers of water and fire-smothering foam were poured by fire-fighters into eight acres of bursting tanks and blazing oil during the early morning hours in the inferno that was the Cities Service Company "tank village" near here.

A crowd of 35,000 had watched in awe for hours as an estimated 10,000,000 gallons of oil went up in flames, 500 feet high. Damage unofficially was estimated at $1,000,000.

Seen Ten Miles Away.

The spectacular fire, accompanied at the start by explosions as one after another of nearly all of 22 tanks in the oil field were ignited, could be seen for more than ten miles.

S. P. Keator, superintendent of the Cities Service plant, announced that by 5 a.m. E.S.T., the fire was under control and the danger past

Threatened continually were the Cities Service's adjacent distillery field of 30 other and larger fuel tanks as well as plants of the Sinclair Oil Company and the American Cyanide Company

A short distance away is located the huge refinery of the Standard Oil Company with its 800 tanks—said to be the largest field in the world. Two score fire-fighters were injured, none seriously.

Downtown Plaza Nation's Capital Finished in Time

Ottawa, Oct. 13 (CP)—The spacious downtown plaza fitting to the dignity of the nation's capital and graced by the towering white arch of the National War Memorial is being rushed to completion as Ottawa prepares already for the historic visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth next summer.

Officials of the Public Works Department said today that the new plaza in the heart of Ottawa and close by Parliament Hill will be nearly finished before winter and the rest of the work done in early spring.

The huge square is the central part of the civic beautification plan designed by the French planning authority, Jacques Greber, and normally would not have been completed until next July.

The whole area is a shambles now, cluttered up with straining cranes, bumping trucks and hundreds of workmen. Buildings have been razed and new ones are being erected. By the time the snow flies, the new street car tracks will be laid, the new roadway built and order produced from constructional chaos.

Without Equal.

When their Majesties arrive, Ottawa's downtown square will be without an equal in the Dominion From broadened Elgin Street, the Royal visitors will be able to look northward up the hill across the broad sweep of the plaza to the 70-foot war memorial in the centre with its impressive bronze figures.

Back of the square is the east block of the Parliament Buildings on one side and the city's principal hotel on the other. Beyond the east block is the grey stone pinnacle of the centre block tower and away in the distance, as a natural backdrop, are the blue Gatineau Hills.

The city is co-operating with the Federal Government in having its share of the beautification scheme finished before the royal visit. The police station and the fire department headquarters are old buildings on the edge of the square and there is an effort being made to build a new building and raze the old before the summer. The Rideau Canal bridge to the east of the square is being widened to fit into the plan

Aimee Celebrates Her Birthday

To symbolize her girlhood "down on the farm," Aimee Semple McPherson celebrated her birthday recently with a milk-drinking party at Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, where, attired in a sunbonnet and a gingham dress, she carried a shiny bucket full of milk which she passed out in tin cups to all comers with many a "Hallelujah brother" and an "Amen sister."

Lady for Shanghai

—By—

Kaye Fox

"Perhaps Miss Lind has insisted on having a chaperone," Cator sniggered. "She's got them all puzzled, that kid, and Royde himself more than any of them. Just at first, she'd got the name of being a regular on-coming little baggage, but she's changed round completely."

"Clever enough to guess that Royde will be all the keener if she holds him off a bit?" Edwards suggested.

"Yes—but isn't she overdoing it? After all, she's not got a long time left before the end of the voyage."

"She's got three ports left," Arthur said lightly, "and Royde's a mighty quick spender when he gets going. He ought to be good for a jade necklace in Hong Kong, as well as a few trifles here and in Singapore."

Christine moved away from them. She was used enough to the frankly cynical way in which the stewards discussed the passengers, but she couldn't bear to hear Fay spoken of like that—even Arthur was taking for granted that Fay's only reason for holding Royde off must be that she hoped to get more out of him in the long run.

The worst of it was that Arthur was right, in a way, in summing Fay up as a little gold-digger, Christine had to admit that. Fay was crazily in love with Royde, but Christine knew that his wealth was part of his attraction, in Fay's eyes—she would not have fallen crazily in love with a poor man.

"I'll get you that scent at once, Miss Jordan, if you like," Arthur called after her.

She went to fetch him the money for she guessed that he wanted Edwards and Cator to see that she really did pay for the scent, and that he was not making her a present. He even took Edwards down to the wharf with him, and the two of them spent half-an-hour in bargaining for one of the big bottles of amazingly cheap lavender water, which was hardly a luxury in the tropics.

They were all in an idle frame of mind that day, for with all the passengers ashore there was practically nothing to do, for once. Christine had charge of the baby from number four during the afternoon, but the baby slept serenely in its perambulator on the verandah outside the smoke room, and Christine, curled up in a deep chair beside it, dozed off too. She was so short of sleep that now that she could be idle she felt that she could sleep for days on end.

Her eyes were still heavy with sleep when Iris Collins sent for her, just before dinner, to ask her to fasten an elaborate evening gown. Most of the passengers were still ashore, but a few, of an economical turn of mind, had come on board for dinner. Christine was struggling drowsily wtih dozens of hooks and eyes which seemed to have no connection with one another, when Doria Smythe strolled into the room.

"Why, Doria, I thought you were ashore with Martin and the Lind girl," Iris Collins exclaimed. "You don't mean to say that he's brought you back before dinner."

"I've brought myself back," Doria said, with a malicious little laugh. "Ive got a headache, my dear—by arrangement. Martin doesn't want to be stranded in Penang with two women."

CHAPTER X.

MARTIN ROYD'S PLOT

"Are you just being funny, or is there more in this than meets the eye, Doria?" Iris Collins asked.

"If you mean, has Martin got tired of the Lind girl's fooling about—he has," Doria said coolly.

"But how on earth is he going to manage to get stranded with her in Penang?"

Easy enough, since he's dealing with someone as green as Fay Lind. You know that sailing time was posted up in all the principal hotels? Well, we were having tea at the Palm Tree, and Martin said that he'd better go and have a look at the notice board, to see how much longer we had before we'd have to come on board—he came back and said the ship was sailing at midnight."

"And it's really 10.30."

"I believe it is. Anyhow, Martin suggested going for a drive into the jungle, and having dinner later, and I said that I'd got such a splitting headache that I'd really rather come back to the ship and lie down."

"He'll charter an aeroplane and they'll rejoin the ship at Singapore, I suppose," Iris said indifferently, and added to Christine: "Don't bother about those hooks any more, stewardess—Mrs. Smythe will help me with any that you've left undone."

"Why, I didn't notice that you were there, stewardess," Doria said. "You were hidden by Mrs. Collins' full skirt. I mightn't have said quite so much if I had noticed you."

"You're shock-proof, aren't you, stewardess?" Iris laughed, looking down at Christine. "I'll bet you've heard some queer stories in your time, for the passengers on this run are so used to native servants that they forget the ship's staff understands English."

"I've heard some very queer stories," Christine agreed quietly.

"Well, keep this one under your cap," Iris said, and glanced quickly at Doria.

But Christine had walked out of the room while Doria was fumbling in her bag for a note. Until the door had closed behind her, she managed to look as calm as though this story meant as little to her as any of the others overheard by chance when she was in the passengers' rooms.

There was no one in the alleyway, for dinner had already started. Christine stepped out on to the deck, to avoid Doria and Iris when they came out of number eighteen, for she had no time to lose—she'd got to think of some way of warning Fay, and of getting her on board before the ship sailed.

Christine went and stood by the rail, staring at the lights of the town which lay beyond the dusty wharf. Somewhere in that foreign town, or in the dark jungle which came so close to it, her sister Fay was alone with Martin Royde.

"I must go myself," Christine said, under her breath. "If I don't find them until after sailing time—I can stay with her."

It was easier said than done, for she could not go ashore in uniform. Even if she managed to slip past the quartermaster at the head of the gangway, her uniform would be so conspicuous that someone would be sure to notice her and to bring back word to the ship that she was wandering about Penang alone. Perrin would send one of the stewards to fetch her back.

She ran back to her own cabin, and found Mrs. Parr playing patience and Miss Crane knitting—they both looked as though they would sit there until bedtime. And her shore-going clothes were hanging up in the wardrobe, so that she could not possibly take them out without being seen.

"Have you finished for the night?" she asked, trying to sound casual.

"Yes—though I suppose we can't go to bed until they come on board, in case anyone wants something," Mrs. Parr grumbled, shuffling her cards.

Christine sat down on the settee, wondering how she could possibly get rid of them for a few moments, just while she took her things out of the wardrobe. It occurred to her to go along to Fay's room and borrow a hat and a light coat, but Fay's room would be locked, and only the bedroom stewards had keys which unlocked the passengers' rooms.

"Did you get some scent from the man on the wharf?" she asked Miss Crane, suddenly inspired. "Grant and Edwards went down for me, and they got a simply enormous bottle of lavender water for a dollar—I'll show it to you."

She took the bottle out of her drawer, knowing perfectly well that if the others had not bought scent aready, they would immediately decide that they wanted it.

"That's a good big bottle for a dollar—but I expect Grant and Edwards could have got it for less if they'd pretended to walk away," Mrs. Parr said. "Has the man got toilet vinegar?"

"I don't know, but I shouldn't wonder."

"And is he still there?"

"He's still there. I went out on the deck just before I came down here, and I noticed him then," Christine said, for she remembered now that she had noticed the scent merchant on the wharf, though she had been so deep in her own thoughts that she had hardly given the wharf a glance.

"Then if you'll come with me, Miss Crane——" Mrs. Parr said.

Christine waited until they had been gone for some minutes, and then took her shore-going things out of the wardrobe and carried them to the bathroom. When the others came back triumphantly, with huge bottles of some local edition of toilet vinegar, she was sitting on the settee darning a stocking, but she put it down casually a few minutes later and strolled out.

Before she changed, she went out on deck to make sure that there was not a crowd at the head of the gangway. The quartermaster on duty was alone there, and he was evidently bored, for he was pacing up and down, pausing for quite a long time to watch the unloading of the cargo from the hatches on the after deck. Although he would have recognized her even out of uniform, if they had met face to face, she knew that if once she could slip down the gangway he would take her in the distance for one of the passengers.

SWIFT DESERTION

Swiftly, in the bathroom, she put on a tussore coat and exchanged her cap for a hat which she had brought for wear ashore in the tropics. Under the coat, her uniform looked like an ordinary white linen frock, for her apron was hidden, and her thin white stockings and black slippers were not in the least unusual.

Her heart was in her mouth when she stepped out of the bathroom, for if there was anyone in the alley-way she was done. Fortunately, it was still too early for passengers to be coming on board, and the stewards on watch were probably taking advantage of their leisure by lounging round the bar, talking to George.

Christine sped along the alley-way to the companion-way which led out to the head of the gangway. This was perilously close to the Chief Steward's office, but Perrin usually stayed in his own cabin for at least an hour after dinner, and the office was closed now.

The quartermaster was leaning over the rail, with his back to Christine, watching something on the wharf. She stood well back, her head bent so that her face was shadowed by her hat, and waited until he stretched himself with a mighty yawn, and then strolled aft without glancing in her direction. When his footsteps grew faint in the distance, she darted out of the companion-way and down the gangway to the wharf.

She had been so busy planning her escape from the ship that she had no very clear idea what she would do when she got ashore. It was only when the driver of a rickety car called out to her that she decided to drive straight to the Palm Tree, the hotel at which Fay had had tea with Martin Royde and Doria Smythe.

She jumped into the car just in time to avoid the Second Steward, who had evidently been ashore with a message.

The Palm Tree was quite small, but she saw as soon as she went up the wide steps into the hall that it was a luxurious little hotel, one of those places which experienced travellers, of a certain type, recommend to one another. There was a secretive air about it, and through the open doors she glimpsed dimly-lit rooms—a dining room with softly shaded lights and white clad native waiters moving about very silently, a drawing room with a wide verandah beyond it.

She went straight to the desk, and the half-caste clerk who sat behind it stared at her with bold black eyes, appraising her simple coat and hat, as if he saw at a glance that she was not likely to be an ordinary patron.

"I am looking for two people who had tea here, and who may have come back to dinner," she said, "a middle-aged man and a very fair girl wearing a flowered silk frock—passengers from the Hay Tor."

"I don't know them, but I will enquire for you madam," he said, standing up and walking towards a room at the back of the hall.

Although he had said that he did not know them, she had seen his face change when she said that they were passenegrs from the Hay Tor—he had suddenly looked wary and alert. It was easy enough to guess that this man, or someone else in the hotel, had heard Martin Royde give the false sailing time to Fay, and had known what his purpose was. Until then, it had been no business of theirs, but if this quietly-dressed girl was going to make trouble the proprietor of the Palm Tree had better been warned.

Two minutes later, a big man with sly eyes came from the room at the back of the hall. He was a foreigner of some sort, but Christine could not guess at his nationality, and he spoke English with only the faintest accent.

"The people whom you seek are not in the hotel at present, madam," he told her.

"Can you tell me how to find them?" she asked quietly. "I have come from the ship—we have learnt accidentally that they believe that the ship does not sail until midnight, so that there is some risk that they may be stranded."

The McKenzie hospital in Fort Frances is filled with men, women and children terribly burned by the searing flames. The map, ABOVE, shows the areas hit hardest by the fires.

Have you ever attended a "Treasure Hunt" and raced frantically all over the neighborhood searching for cleverly hidden clues? It's fun, but only the fastest win the prizes.

But there's another "Treasure Hunt" run every day where EVERYBODY wins! It's in the newspaper you are reading now. The clues aren't hidden or in code—they're made easy for you! The advertisements in this paper are the clues—and they lead you directly to prizes you choose yourself.

Perhaps you want a toaster or a pair of shoes or a certain kind of soap. Look over the advertising clues till you find what you want at the price you can afford to pay. Without the ads, you'd have to Treasure Hunt all over town, from store to store, from counter to counter, to find just what you want. You can save lots of time and money by getting your clues from the advertising columns.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

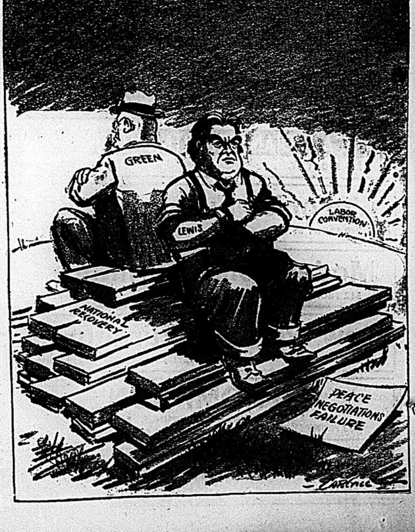
"UNFINISHED BUSINESS"



Hydro Commission Chairman Praises E. Ontario System At Meeting of Association

Well-Engineered And Highly Co-ordinated Says Dr. Hogg

FINE RURAL SERVICE

Power Available In Sufficient Quantities For Some Time To Come

"Today Eastern Ontario has a splendid, well-engineered and highly co-ordinated power system serving an area comparable with the Niagara system, and is second only to that system in terms of load. It has facilities capable of furnishing the power requirements of any industry that may be attracted by the numerous advantages that the east affords, at rates that stand comparison with the lowest. It has a rural service that is unequalled by any private company and it is exceedingly strong financially". In these brief words Dr. Thomas Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission summed up the position of the Eastern Ontario Power situation to one hundred delegates of the Eastern Ontario Electric Association in a brilliant address during the afternoon session of the annual convention held here, yesterday.

"Moreover, you as municipal representatives have a sense of responsibility", the speaker continued. "A large share of the management is yours for nearly all distribution systems are now owned by municipalities. You are full partners in a co-operative power undertaking, second to none on the continent, or for that matter in the world. The advantage which Hydro affords to industry and to you as citizens is incalculable."

"If we set our hands to the task of building hydro for the common good," Dr. Hogg stated, "there is no telling what greater things we can accomplish. But we must have faith in each other and have the will to work in harmony. In the interest of this province I pledge you the best we have, and in return I ask you to give your best to hydro."

The Eastern Ontario system of the Hydro Commission is the product of amalgamation of several small systems, the speaker pointed out in his opening remarks. These include the Central Ontario, the Trent Valley, Rideau, St. Lawrence, Ottawa and the Madawaska.

Individually, these systems were satisfactory until the power growth became too much for them to accommodate with the supply at hand. Larger sources of supply had to be tapped, as a common supply. Amalgamation was the only way to secure these advantages for all districts in the most economical, Dr. Hogg said.

Power Supplies

The Eastern Ontario system is favored for its power supplies because they come from no less than seventeen developments owned by the Commission which are supplemented by purchased power from four different sources, and by standby power available from the Niagara system.

Much has been accomplished in the direction of highly reliable interconnection for the Eastern Ontario system and more is under consideration, the speaker asserted. A recent addition is the Madawaska tie of a 33,000 volt line from Carleton Place to Arnprior and the 110,000 Trenton-Chats Falls line. It is probable the next tie will be a 110,000-volt line between Ottawa and Chats Falls.

Ecomic Growth

"The system has made and is making a sound economic growth," Dr. Hogg declared, pointing out that in the worst years of the depression 1930-33 the maximum yearly peak load fluctuated between about 90,000 and 94,000 h.p. but in the four years 1934-37 it increased to 125,000 horse-power. The average annual growth for these four years exceeded 8,000 h.p.

Power Contracts

Contracts entered into just before the depression with the Gatineau Power Company called for a supply of 60,000 h.p. to be taken in annual increments of 6,000 horse-power, Dr. Hogg said. Revisions in contracts since, however, have resulted in the Commission taking only 42,000 h.p. of the 60,000 block up to September 1st. Since October 1st the remaining block of 18,000 h.p. has been accepted under the contract and is being used as required.

While the Gatineau power was a source of economical supply for Eastern Ontario, it has been the main source for years. In addition to this, however, the Commission has made certain changes in its plants and purchased three small developments on the Otonabee River near Peterborough, and two from the Quinte and Trent Valley Power Company, the speaker said.

Although these additional power supplies have provided ample capacity to meet growth requirements up to the present, there was little excess capacity from the generating plants and purchased power contracts during the peak load period. It is estimated that the 18,000 h.p. now being taken will provide adequate power for the next two years, although the margin of reserve would be small were it not for the standby service provided by the Chats Falls frequency-charger and the 110,000 volt line.

Recent Growth

In 1930, the speaker pointed out, the depression was upon us and hydro normal growth slackened considerably. Between that year and 1937 however eleven urban municipalities including the towns of Bowmanville, Cobourg, Deseronto, Tweed and Trenton, became partners on the Eastern Ontario system. Kingston and Morrisburg have joined during the past year and it is interesting to know that the few remaining urban municipalities that were not on a cost basis are now negotiating with a view to entering into full partnership.

Capital Expenditures

Between 1930 and 1937 the recorded net growth in capital investment of the Commission in the Eastern Ontario system was relatively small, being mainly for trunk transmission lines and transformer stations linking up the different districts with new sources of power supply, and rural extensions. In 1930 there was a substantial increase due to the purchase of the Madawaska properties, and again in 1937 due to purchase of the Trent and Otonabee developments.

Increase in Reserves

"Indicating the splendid manner in which the Commission weathered the depression and has conducted a vigorous forward movement is the fact that in the financial reserves of the system there has been an increase from less than four and one quarter millions in 1930 to nearly eight and one half millions in 1937, or more than 100 per cent," Dr. Hogg asserted. "The equity acquired by the municipal partners of the system increased from less than half a million dollars to nearly one and three-quarter millions, an actual increase of 300 percent. The equity of Belleville, for example, increased from $22,000 to $120,000.

The local municipal utilities have had an equally satisfactory record, Dr. Hogg stated. Total assets have increased during the past seven years from eight and two-third millions to twelve and one half millions of dollars. Liabilities on the other hand have decreased by more than thirty per cent. Reserves and surplus have increased from less than five millions to eight and one-half millions.

Stabilization of Rates Reserve

In discussing the question of the establishment of a stabilization of rates fund the speaker pointed out the fact that in a publicly-owned enterprise operating on the basis of services at cost, no corresponding leeway exists and it is therefore desirable, in fact, necessary that to set aside in good times, sums for the equalization of the costs of power over a period of years and for the stabilization of rates to consumers.

Fluctuating costs of power due to purchase of supplies, developments and new commitments as growth extends cannot be avoided, bt it is undesirable to have them reflected in fluctuating rates to consumers, Dr. Hogg stated. Fductuating rates frighten away potential users. It is to iron out these difficulties and maintain uniform rates over a period of years that the fund for the stabilization of rates is created:

In depressed times, Dr. Hogg added, revenes from large industrial firms decrease, and the number of horse-power becomes less. The demand for horse-power falls below expectations for which power supplies have been provided. Thus the cost of horse-power becomes higher and in prosperous times, the reverse happens, and the interim rate is as a rule affected by changes in demand rather than by changes in cost of operation.

Last year the Commission then in office approved a flat rate reduction in the interim rate chargeable to all cost towns. This reduction of $3 per horse-power took effect in August 1st., 1937 and was effective only for three months during the last fiscal year. "This year," Dr. Hogg stated, "the Commission has felt the full effect of this reduction, and it is doubtful whether it will be advantageous to set aside any substantial sum in the fund for the stabilization of rates."

"As to the desirability of a stabilization of rates fund," continued the speaker, "there can be no question. The amount to be set aside each year and the magnitude of the fund is a matter for judgment, but as to the principle itself, there can be no difference of opinion."

Rural Electrical Services

The speaker, in conclusion, referred to the splendid progress made in recent years in extending electrical services to rural residents.

"From 1930 to 1937 the miles of rural primary lines in the Eastern Ontario system more than doubled," he said. "The total number of consumers increased two and one half times, with the hamlet consumers just about doubling their numbers with the farmer consumers nearly tripling. The capital invested increased in the seven years from two and one-third millions to nearly six millions, and the government grant-in-aid from less than one and one-quarter millions to almost three millions."

"Power supplied," Dr. Hogg stated, "increased from 3,305 horse-power in October 1930 to 8,173 in October, 1937. These are impressive figures, and while it is too soon to obtain figures for the past fiscal year, it appears that the progress made in 1938 will be even greater than ever before."

Commissioner J A Smith

"No single system within the hydro organization enjoys so many of those factors essential to success as does the Eastern Ontario system", Hydro Commissioner J. Albert Smith, told the delegates in a review of conditions of the system, following Dr. Hogg's address.

"Power is available", he said, "and in sufficient quantities for some time to come. In the light of load increases during the depression years, a large potential market still remains for development. Charges lower than at any previous time in the system's history offer a strong inducement to new and increased demand. Financially and otherwise, from every possible angle the municipalities of Eastern Ontario may look forward with confidence to what the future may hold in store."

"The Hydro system is publicly-owned, operating for and on behalf of the public. It is on co-operation that it was founded—upon co-operation between the municipalities and provincial organization that it has prospered in the past, and upon co-operation that it will in the future prosper."

The speaker stressed the fact that growth of the system in the east has been steady and consistent. "The primary peak-load in 1929 amounted to 90,255 horse-power," he said, "and in 1937 had increased to 124,718 h.p., a spectacular and impressive step forward."

Financial Results

Financial results have been equally impressive, the speaker declared. In 1929 the percentage of net debt to total assets in the various municipalities stood at an average of 47.8. In 1937 it was reduced to 25.2. In Belleville alone in 1929 the net debt to total assets stood at 83.4. By 1937 this had been reduced to the negligible figure of 2.6. Other municipalities within this district tell the same story.

Fine Management

A tribute to the type of management that has prevailed in hydro, said Mr. Smith, is the fact that down through the years, including those of the depression, not one hydro utility defaulted on any of its obligations, not one failed to meet its financial and other responsibilities.

During the severer depression years, the speaker, declared, the Eastern Ontario System maintained a satisfactory financial balance.

Going back as far as 1929 we find that each year during the period under review there was a substantial return to the municipalities. This is in direct contrast to the other three large Hydro systems.

"Since 1929, the municipalities of Eastern Ontario have ercelved in credits to total of over $870,000 despite reductions in 1935-6 in interim charges. On the basis of the present rates the municipalities were charged in 1937 some $253,000 less than they would have paid under the rates in effect in 1936, and $429,000 less than they would have paid under the rates charged in 1935," the speaker said, adding that "this illustrates in the most graphic way possible the Commission's success in Eastern Ontario."

Commenting on the savings to municipalities the speaker quoted Belleville as an example' "In 1935," he pointed out, "the interim rate charged this centre was $35 per horsepower. By 1937 this figure had been reduced to $28.00, bringing an annual saving on interim account of some $36,000 annually. The return by way of credit in 1935 was some $20,000. In 1937 there was a return of only some $9.000 but over and above that figure there was reserved from collections made from Belleville a total of nearly $17,000. in the rate of stabilization fund.' Other municipalities have had savings of a similar nature," Mr. Smith told his lisetners.

Future Optimistic

"To my mind," he said in conclusion, "Eastern Ontario's future may be viewed with all optimism. I am convinced the years to come offer even greater potentialities for expansion than those through which we have passed. Unless our economists are amiss, the slight economic relapse which we are now experiencing is merely a temporary recession, and not much time will elapse before the patient is well on the way to recovery."

Resolutions

Four resolutions recommended to the convention following Mr. Smith's address received the unanimous support of attending delegates. There was no discussion. These are:

Stabilization of Rates Fund:

1a. That Section 12 of the Power Commission Act be amended so as to restrict the powers of the H. E. P. C. to the stabilization of rates within the system in which the fund has been collected.

1b. That the distributions of the fund be equitably made having regard at all times to the source of the fund and the manner in which it has been accumulated.

Water Heaters:

2. That the resolution regarding water heaters sent out to the affected municipalities be endorsed by this association and we recommend the immediate completion by the municipalities of such resolution as requested in the communication from the Secretary of the O.M.E.A.

Thirteenth Power Bill:

3. That the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario fix the interim rate for power cost for each municipality in January of each year.

That the thirteenth power bill be written in to the annual statement of the local municipality in the following year thus enabling the local municipality to close its books as of December 31st in each year.

That the H.E.P.C. be requested to so alter its accounting services that the annual statement be completed by January 31st of each year.

Patronage:

4. That political patronage be eliminated by the Provincial and local Commissions in the appointment of staff and employment of labour.

G. F. Drewry

In a review of the year's activities Mr. G. Fred Drewry, Hydro Commission engineer, stated during the morning session that with the purchase of the Otonabee and Quinte and Trent Valley projects a total of 70,100 horse power was available this year. This with a total of 63,-00 horse-power on purchase made a grand total available of 133,000 h.p.

The maximum load on the commission plants and an all-time high occurred in September of this year when the peak reached 126,000 horse-power. Prior to that the maximum load reached was in November 1937 when it attained 125,000 horse-power.

"You will see that the commission had very little surplus for the need of the Eastern Ontario system this year. Now security lies in the fact that the commission has established connection with other sources through the Chats Falls Line, to Niagara where a surplus is available."

"Virtually speaking," Mr. Drewry stated, "the Commission has 20,000 horse-power at Niagara to meet any emergency. This year has been an exceptionally good one, with plenty of rainfall enabling us to carry on without calling on this emergency supply."

By means of a chart Mr. Drewry pointed out to his listeners the monthly increase in load over a period of three years. In May 1936 the load was 106,000 horse-power. Last year it increased to 120,000 and in May this year to 126,000 horse-power.

Rate Changes

Referring to rate changes, the speaker pointed out that out of 54 municipalities, 24 recevied reductions on domestic services, 17 on commercial services, 9 in power services and 9 in street lighting, at an estimated saving of $34,000. The greatest saving was to the domestic users, he said, adding that these were the backbone of the system and provided the greatest field for expansion. He urged the convention to push the domestic field, for it would prove a benefit to the Eastern Ontario system, as well as to Niagara.

Cost of Power

If there were no improvement in load, we could not go marching ahead, and foretell still lower rates, Mr. Drewry stated. An assumption of a 5 per cent load growth for this year was included in the April estimates, "and this I think was a conservative estimate," the speaker added, "as I expect conditions to be much better."

The average cost of power was estimated at $26.68 per horse-power, while the average cost last year, leaving out contingency charges was $25.72. The increase in capital expenditure provided for the increase in the horse-power cost. Last year, Mr. Drewry stated, the Commission received $31 per horse-power while the cost was $25.72. The sum of $3.50 per h.p. was retained and placed into the stabilization fund while the balance of $196 was returned to the municipalities.

"This year," he said, "the stabilization rates have not as yet been decided so I cannot tell you what credits to expect."

"There is an extremely low rate in Belleville due to an increasing growth of load," he concluded, "and this is gradually spreading to other municipalities. And that is the field where the Eastern Ontario system will progress, lower costs and increased use."

President—Ross Strike, Bowmanville.

Vice President for Eastern District — George Findley, Carleton Place.

Vice President for Western District—George A. Reid, Belleville.

Secretary - Treasurer — George Chase, Bowmanville.

Directors—John McRae, Lindsay, Morley Duff, Belleville, Bert Tulley, Picton.

President Ross Strike, was automatically elected a Vice President of the Ontario Hydro Commission, by virtue of his office in the E. O. E. A. Frank Smith, Madoc and James Halliday, Kingston, were appointed as delegates to the O. H. C.

Campbellford was picked as the Convention Town for 1939.

CZECHS ALLOW AUTONOMY TO CARPATHIAN RUSSIANS

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct .12 (AP)—The Czechoslovak Government granted new minority concessions today and an autonomous regime for Carpathian Russians, and took steps to ease a staggering refugee problem.

Several truckloads left Prague for near frontiers this morning, startin gthe return of thousands of Sudeten Germans to Sudeten areas occupied by Germany. The cost of caring for Czechoslovak refugees is so great a strain on the national economy, Czechoslovaks said, that few Sudetens will be permitted to remain here.

St. Catharines Athletics Win Mann Cup Emblematic Of Senior Lacrosse Crown

Defeat Adanacs of New Westminster In Three Straight Games

WORTHY CHAMPIONS

One of The Greatest Third Period Teams In History of Game

Toronto, Oct 13 (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics, just about the best last-period team in lacrosse history, agreed today that their Canadian senior championship was worthy every minute of an arduous two-year campaign.

The Athletics' drive to the Mann Cup started last year when they entered the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series with a partially rebuilt team. It continued through last winter when the A's played in a New York State League for "experience," and it gained impetus this spring with the start of another O.L.A. season as the now-veteran unit added a couple of outside stars.

The quest ended gloriously last night in Maple Leaf Gardens when St. Catharines came from behind to score a third straight victory over New Westminster Adanacs, 10-7, in Dominion finals. The Athletics swept the series with the British Columbia club by rallying late in each of the three games, just as Art Brown's game band had done in important contests all year.

Trailing at Half Time

Trailing 4-6 at half time and 5-6 at the end of the third quarter, the Athletics won on a five-goal burst in the last period. The Athletics were a goal behind at half time in the first game but won 18-11. The score was tied halfway through the second match but the A's took it 22-11.

To the young Adanacs—a fast, brilliant team that had spilled last year's Dominion champions, New Westminster Salmonbellies— the defeat was bitter. In each game the coast team carried a full share of the play most of the way, then had to give in to superior all-around strength and straight-ahead lacrosse methods.

New Westminster brought a sparking spinner play and a wealth of courage to pit against the heavier, more durable Athletics. Last night, when both teams showed the wear and tear of the first two engagements, the Adanacs seemed for most of the way to be staging a comeback.

Floor-Length Plays

Then, with big Bun Barnard leading the way, St. Catharines' floor-length plays swept all before them in the late minutes. Barnard rallied the Athletics with a goal after 15 seconds of the fourth quarter. Gord Saunders put New Westminster ahead five minutes later, but Billy Wilson, George Hope and Punk Morton scored in succession and Barnard capped the spurt with a goal in the final minute.

Trying to inject new life into the tired Adanacs, the management put Dutch Haddon and Lorne Steele, juniors, into the lineup. They fitted well into the speedy attack and after Bob Lee had opened the scoring for New Westminster Steele justified his selection by making the count 2-0. Goals by Punk Kennedy of the Adanacs and Bill Fitzgerald and Morton of the Athletics left the score at 3-2 as the first period closed.

Weary in Second

Both teams wearied rapidly in the second, but Lee added two more goals, Bob Phelan another and Carl Madsen and Joe Cheevers broke through the inspired New Westminster team for St. Catharines' only scores.

The effects of the first two games told in the third when George Urquhart of the Athletics got the only goal of a close-checking session. In the fourth, St. Catharines came back as it had done repeatedly all year and there was little the young opposition could do to stem the tide.

Managerial Recruit

Presenting a newcomer to major league baseball who won't be able to prove that he has what it takes until next spring when he will lead Philadelphia's cellar - dwelling Phillies into a new season. It's Thompson (Doc) Prothro, recently appointed manager of the Phils, to succeed Jimmy Wilson, pictured as he conferred with President Nugent of his new team. This past season he was manager of Little Rock in the Southern Association.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—At least two big Pacific Coast schools are flirting with Carl Snavely of Cornell....Wallace Wade of Duke is about to give up the hunt for a big name coach to succeed him when he moves up to Athletic Director and will hoist Carl Voiles, his first Lieutenant, into the head coach's job.

Louisiana State wants Fordham so badly they've offered to come up here for nothing if the Rams will only visit Baton Rouge.... Note to all America football pickers: Be sure to tag Phil Swiadon, New York U. tackle, among your list of eligibles....What's all this stuff about the judges, Landis and Bramham, not getting along so hot?.... They used to be just like that.... Bramham, you must recall, is the Judge Landis of all the minor leagues.

Good for Leo Durocher....He's a hustler himself and can make others do same, which counts, now that he's the Brooklyn manager.... Leo is known as one of the flashiest dressers in either Major League.... Ceferino Garcia took his first workout for Henry Armstrong yesterday and looked great.

Ace Parker (first big league football player to have the nerve to do it) has sprouted a soup strainer and will display same in next Sunday's game between the Brooklyn Dodgers and Green Bay Packers.... Right now it doesn't look so good for Burgess Whitehead returning to the Giants next season.

BLACK HAWKS IN TRAINING

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—The world champion Chicago Blackhawks who battled out of almost nowhere to win the Stanley Cup last season, left today for Champaign, Ill., where they will train for the 1938-39 National Hockey League season. Player-coach Paul Thompson led the squad of 21 and will have charge of conditioning for two weeks. Manager Bill Stewart is recuperating from an appendectomy in Dorchester, Mass.

New Luminaries Aplenty on U. S. Grid Horizon

(By Drew Middleton, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—A place kick spinning between the goal posts; a pass tossed through the shadows in the last-minute of play; the quick shift, the break and the dash down the sidelines as the stands roar—and a football star is born.

There are new luminaries aplenty on the United States grid horizon.

Out at Minnesota they are singing the praises of Wilbur Moore, the halfback who has inherited the mantle once worn by Pug Lund and Jules Alphonse. A senior, Moore was unheralded in the pre-season ballyhoo, but he is the big noise now, the best runner on the squad.

Outstanding Gopher end thus far is George Nash, who has caught passes and shone defensively.

Bob Saggau, best freshman back last year, is Notre Dame's most notable newcomer. He plays left halfback, the most arduous backfield position in the Irish system. Resurgent Michigan offers Tom Harmon, an able ball carrier and blocker, who has been going well behind a veteran line. Wadde Young the Oklahoma end who smeared Rice's Ernie Lain and harried Texas' passers, is the man of the hour in the big six.

Best sophomores on the coast apparently belong to Oregon's Webfoots. Jimmy Nicholson and Jay Graybeal, two fine halfbacks, have passed and run Oregon to the top of the coast conference.

New York U. coach Mal Stevens calls Joe La Manna "potentially one of the best I've ever seen." Hal Lube of Colgate looms as the passer to succed Columbia's Sid Luckman as the east's best.

BASEBALL MAY BE INCLUDED

Seen As Competitive Sport On Olympic Games Program

(By Bill Boni Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Under the direction of Secretary-Treasurer Leslie Mann, the International Amateur Baseball Federation rapidly is approaching its goal — the inclusion of baseball as a competitive sport on the Olympic games program.

Neither Mann nor his fellow-workers here and abroad expect to reach that goal for the 1940 Olympics. But they do plan to hold amateur baseball's international "world series" in England that summer and then submit their application to the International Olympic Committee at the games in Finland in time to be included on the 1944 program.

Baseball, like any other sport, must show that it has the active support of 10 nations banded together in a federation before it can receive I.O.C. approval. Mann and his fellow-workers already have passed that milestone.

The United States and England definitely are committed to compete in the 1939 championship for the John Moores trophy, put up by the founder and President of England's National Baseball Association. Cuba, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Canada and Peru also have agreed to send teams, while Japan, the Philippines, Australia and France, other active members of the I.A.B.F are virtually certain to take part in the tournament.

Gord Griffin Wins Collegiate Harrier

Gordon Griffin, of 4th technical form, won the annual Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School harrier race yesterday, establishing a new course record for time elapsed. Second was Bill Pigden and third Ted Clark.

Physical Director George Laughlin introduced a new harrier course to the distance runners, with numerous hazardous barriers. The course included city streets, cross-country running, hurdles in the form of farm fences and other treacherous barriers, that had a tendency to make the course sufficiently difficult to negotiate. Ten runners faced the starter, all finishing in splendid time.

LEO DUROCHER NEW MANAGER BROOKLYN TEAM

Second Youngest Manager Now Performing In Big Leagues

RUTH IS OUT

His Contract As Coach of Team Is Not Renewed

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—One of the most eagerly sought positions in United States sport, the managership of one of the 16 big league ball clubs, has been handed Leo Durocher, 33-year-old shortstopping product of West Springfield, Mass.

Durocher was so happy he barely could talk faster than 200 words a minute when he faced the Metropolitan baseball writers to receive congratulations on his new job with the Brooklyns yesterday.

Leo fairly bubbled as he told of his plans for the Dodgers. General Manager Larry McPhail broke in to remark: "If they print everything you've said, Leo, we'll get the biggest press in history on the appointment of a manager."

A cynic in the back row said in an aside: "You'll notice they're only giving him a one-year contract. Wonder who they'll be appointing this time next year.

If Durocher is fortunate and shot with luck, maybe his contract will be renewed for 1940. But Burleigh Grimes, the grand old spit-baller whom Durocher succeeds in the long line of Brooklyn pilots, wouldn't advise you to bet on it.

Neither would Babe Ruth, who came out of retirement some months ago to coach for the Dodgers, with the bright expectation he would fall heir to Grimes' job. They offered to let the Babe coach again last year, but he turned it down.

WESTERN CHAMPS TO PLAY IN EAST

Compete In Finals With All Players Being Eligible

Edmonton, Oct. 13 (CP)— The Western Interprovincial Rugby Union will send its 1938 championship team east to compete in Doninion finals without those players who have entered Canada this year.

At a meeting this week in Edmonton, the Union executive decided the champions must travel east and no player who has not been a Canadian resident for one year will enter the lineup.

The executive also set playoff plans. The second and third teams will play a sudden-death game for the right to meet the first place club for the Union title in home-and-home games, with total points deciding the winner. In the event of a tie for one of the first three positions, the best scoring average will determine the place.

GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

Swing the Thing

Horton Smith recently convinced me that he is a keen student of golf technique. He has to be in his work of managing the exhibition tour of Cooper, Thomson and Little. In addition to performing with these players on the course, he must describe their demonstrations to audiences before or after the game.

This activity has made him a close observer of technique. When discussing some of his observations he aked me if I thought that the present-day pros had reached their limit in scoring. I told him that many of them had, but some of them would go on to make lower figures because they were continually improving their swings. Horton has not reached the point in his study where he is ready to admit the parallel between scoring with consistent success and the efficiency of a player's swing.

I have always maintained that the swing was the deciding factor in almost every case when it comes to determining results on the course. If the player's swing is fundamentally sound he will perform consistently well for many years. If his technique is a combination of mannerisms picked up here and there his performances will be up and down.

Fifteen years ago you could count the players with sound swings on your fingers, but today there are many who have hit upon some of the fundamentals so that the future should bring many record low scores.

Conacher Goes to Detroit

When the 1938-39 National Hockey League season opens next month it is more than likely that Charlie Conacher, ABOVE, for the past decade an outstanding star on right wing for Toronto Maple Leafs, will be in the line-up of Detroit Red Wings. Conacher, forced out of the game last season because of a general weakened condition, aftermath of an old injury, was thought to be in fine shape again and an agreement for his sale was made between the Leafs and Red Wings. All that remains is for Conacher to agree to the terms offered by Jack Adams' outfit.

CONACHER PLAYS ON BONUS PLAN

Gets Considerable Cash For Every Point Scored Over 30

Detroit, Oct. 13 (CP)—Charles Conacher, brilliant Maple Leaf right winger who comes to Detroit Red Wings at the end of this week, will be playing on a bonus plan according to plans of the Detroit management, said Jim Norris, Vice-President of the National Hockey League team here.

Norris visited Conacher in Toronto recently and said Conacher was so healthy he would make professional strong men blush for shame. "I asked him if he could score 30 points for us," Norris said. "He almost sneered as he answered: 'Why I could score that many sitting in my old grandmother's rocking chair'."

Norris said he had planned offering Conacher a contract that would have brought him considerable cash for every point over 30.

"I think now we'll move that notch up to 40. He might win the Stanley cup for us and put us in bankruptcy."

Jack Adams is confident the Wings made a good deal in buying Conacher. "Conacher can help us plenty," said Adams. "The players all like him and he's a leader and he can really play hockey."

DUTTON ELATED WITH AMATEURS

Splendid Type of Rookies At School In Saskatoon

Saskatoon, Oct. 13 (CP)—Mervyn (Red) Dutton, the "keep punching" manager of New York Americans in the National Hockey League, is elated with the amateur players attending the club's second annual hockey school here.

"Maybe the fall rains and the good crops are responsible, but that's the biggest and best looking bunch of young hockey players I've seen at a school for a long time." Red remarked after watching the youngsters.

Doug Cairns, who played with Sudbury last winter, was the only one of the Amerks' pupils missing when Dutton called his school to order for the first skating practice yesterday. He will arrive today.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

On a double reverse and skirt even if followed by a latteral pass, why the decoy backfielders of the Belleville Panthers do not protect the ball carrier by faking possession of the pigskin, really puzzles us. When backfielders pivot or fake passes behind their own line of scrimmage, the formation play is paramountly to baffle the opposition and try to put them off guard as to what offensive player is actually carrying the ball. If the decoy players fail to cover up, that is to say fake possession of the oval, the fundamentals of the original formation are useless. Repeatedly we have seen the supposed-to-be Panther decoys approach the line of scrimmage when even the fans in the stand could see they were not in possession of the ball. Unless the ball carrier can depend upon the decoys doing their part, he has little chance to succeed. What we are really driving at is to have the Panthers' offence "suck in" the opposition ends by faking possession of the ball after the carrier has ultimately gained possession.

After taking a gander at last Monday's game we are convinced the Panthers must depend solely upon their speed and the employment of tricky football in the future. A recent article penned by Harold A. Fitzgerald in a current issue of the Saturday Evening Post brings out a few of these proven—"slick tricks with a football." For instance here's a play that resulted in a touchdown for Notre Dame against the U. S. Army some years ago. Fitzgerald describes it as follows—"with Notre Dame on the fifteen yard line, Wilkie took the ball from centre, turned his back to the line of scrimmage, faked a pass to one of his teammates and then stood stock-still, facing the rear, with the pigskin clutched against a seething stomach. Good American soldiers raced after the decoy, who carried all of the interference, and when the storm subsided in his immediate vicinity, Wilkie whirled about and sprinted right into the king row all alone. The play hinged purely on deception, as Wilkie stood for an appreciable period of time as unprotected and defenseless as September Morn."

Continuing Fitzgerald says:

"The majority of trick plays depend on concealing the ball as long as possible and then striking at an unexpected sector, but if the defense refuses to be drawn out of position no matter what happens, all avenues of advance are covered. When a portion of the defense—perhaps a single unit, maybe the outstanding star—can be coaxed into bolstering a point that is receiving a fake attack, the offense creates an opening. And yet, one of the slickest tricks in football history involved a long gain through the middle of the line with every-one looking—yes, and two defense units stepped aside to make it possible.

On Saturday a quarterback whose name and team are unhappily lost to posterity, protested nearly every decision. This was the psychological build-up, and time after time he yelled: "There's a penalty for that!"

His reasons were vague, but in the minds of the officials and his opponents he established himself as the world's champion cry baby. Finally, when his own team had the ball, he turned suddenly to the referee and announced: "I won't stand this any more. If you won't give us that fifteen-yard penalty, I'll take it myself. We're gonna get justice."

With this, he ordered the centre to give him the ball, and tucking it under his arm, the young Napoleon stalked between two opposing linemen, who fell wonderingly aside to let him pass as he counted off the yards: "One, two, three, four, five——", and by the time he reached "eight," he set sail for the goal."

In commenting upon last Saturday's Varsity-Queen's Intercollegiate game, the Kingston scribe spoke in glowing terms of the work of Bud Johnson, former B.C.I. and Belleville Panther gridder. "Johnson gave a high class exhibition on the rear-guard with his steady catching and running" the Kingston scribe stated. Incidentally Coach Ted Reeve watched Johnson carefully throughout the 1937 grid campaign, when Bud starred and carried much of the Panthers' offensive play on his shoulders. Reeve was quite impressed with Johnson's work last year and had him in line for the 1938 Queen's backfield as early as last spring, it is understood.

Bill Fry, O.R.F.U. convener, informed us today it was only necessary to make two changes in the Lake Shore group football schedule, neither of which will affect the Panthers. As the Kingston Garrison is unable to obtain the use of Richardson Stadium next Saturday, the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" will play in Kingston on Wednesday, Oct. 19th, while the Air Force will go to Kingston on the 26th of the month. The Panthers will not journey to Kingston until Armistice Day, their next game being at the Airport on Saturday of this week, according ta Convener Fry. This news should be most acceptable to the Panthers as the change gives them more time for practice, something they need to stress more seriously while they are at it.

Leo Durocher, veteran short-stop of the Brooklyn "daffiness boys" yesterday signed a one year contract to manage the Dodgers team in 1939. Strange as it may seem only one year contracts are doled out by General Manager LarryMcPhail, so it naturally follows unless Durocher elevates the Dodgers substantially during the 1939 National League campaign he will find himself in the same canoe with Burleigh Grimes, who went out as skipper of Brooklyn upon Durocher's appointment. Rated as one of the best defensive shortstops in the major leagues, Durocher came to the Dodgers last winter from St. Louis in a trade for pitcher Roy Henshaw, infielders Joe Stripp and Jimmy Bucher and outfielder Johnny Cooney. With such a large layout of players in return for Durocher, however, it would appear as though McPhail had planned to elevate him to the helm of the Dodgers from the ultimate outset of purchase.

HODGE PODGE—We understand Ned Vitarelli, fiery right-winger of the Peterborough hockey club, and not Bill Calladine, will lineup with the Baltimore Orioles, coached by 'Pick' Hines, former Peterborough mentor this winter....Calladine says he will remain with his "almo momma" until he grows a long flowing beard....Doug Young a Detroit Red Wing casualty, which might prove right up Charlie Conacher's alley, as such an injury would pave the way for "Big Chuck" to fall back into a rear guard position.

From Three Eastern Collegiate Football Fronts

It's not often that one team makes a runaway of the eastern Canada intercollegiate football race, and this year appears to be no exception. Toronto, Western, Queen's and McGill all have strong squads out on the field and here is an assorted trio from the Rah Rah loop. LEFT, Clem Faust, passing and running star with London's Western team. Faust is an American and played in the interprovincial with Hamilton Tigers. Tuffy Griffith, former Toronto Argonaut, is in the centre. Tuffy is performing his chores in the line for Queen's. RIGHT, Bee Rowland, line plunger and kicker with University of Toronto. Rowland, formerly with Royal Military College, has been a pleasant surprise to Coach Stevens at Toronto, and is expected to make up to some extent for the loss of Don Mumford, ace line-smasher of last year's U. of T. team.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)—The tendency was upward on the Toronto Stock Market in today's session and trading expanded to better than a million shares. Base metal issues featured the trade, advancing on good volume to post new high prices for the year for all the leaders, Nickel, Noranda, Hudson Bay and Smelters. All indices were up at the close though gains were shaded moderately in the final half hour when profit-taking was in evidence.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Leading stocks steamed up a fast recovery push in today's market and numerous issues climbed one to three points and a few as much as five to nine.

New highs for the past year were widely distributed and the trading pace occasionally was swift enough to put the ticker tape behind. Transfers were about 2,500,000 shares. Steels, motors, coppers, rubbers, aircrafts, utilities, rails and specialties exhibited strength.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)—Only a few hundred cattle were sold by early afternoon on Toronto Livestock Market today. Calves, hogs, sheep and lambs traded at steady prices. Cattle holdover from Wednesday of 1,200 head included several loads of weighty steers.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were:: Cattle 190; calves 50; hogs 360; sheep and lambs 340.

Small lots of butcher steers and heifers traded at $3.75 to $5. Butcher cows moved from $3 to $4.25 with canners and cutters from $2.25 to $2.75 A few fed calves brought $6.50 to $9. Stockers moved slowly at $3.25 to $4.75.

The small supply of veal calves sold at $9 to $9.50 for choice and downward to $4 for common grassers.

Off-truck bacon hogs brought $8.15 to $8.25.

Good ewe and wether lambs delivered by rail made $7.75 with truck lambs at $7.50. Bucks and heavies were $6.50 to $6.75 and culls $6. Some sheep ranged from $2 to $4 cwt.

Lamaque Gold Mines is likely to pay an interim dividend at year end. Shareholders of Read-Authier will reap the benefit of such a dividend because they will be in possession of their Lamaque stock in a very short time. Distribution of assets will be speeded up shortly after the special meeting called for Monday, October 17th.

With Lamaque quoted at $6.50 bid and the new Sigma $8.50 bid it is difficult to understand why Read-Authier is not selling any higher. The buyer of 100 Read-Authier at a total cost of $340.00 will receive 38 shares of Lamaque worth $247 and 20 shares of Sigma worth $180 for a total of $427; he will also receive 100 shares of Union Mining which should easily sell between 25c and 50c a share; this makes the total value of the 100 shares of Read-Authier at least $450 or the equivalent of $4.50 per share as against current market quotations of $3.50. This situation should adjust itself in the near future.

The Uchi bond issue is said to have been subscribed more than three times over. For several years now all of Jack Hammell's issues have been subscribed many times over.

It is learned that shipments from the Springer section of the Central Patricia property are to continue through the winter and preparations for this are under way. The shipments have amounted to about 30 tons daily and gross value of shipments up to September were about $75,000. It is understood that deepening of the shaft another 600 feet, putting in four new levels, will go on through the winter. It is likely that the shaft at Central Pat will be deepened to 2,000 feet and four new levels will be opened up.

With New York closed yesterday, the local market held well, with some of the leaders gaining further ground. The advance in many sections of the list has reduced the number of opportunities, and many traders and investors are scanning the list for bargains. If prices are to continue upward, as many believe, some of the lower priced equities would seem to offer appreciation possibilities.

In a general bull market, stocks often do not sell on intrinsic value, which is the reason for the expectation that some of the less meritorious securities may move up largely on public demand. Acquisition of five or six low-priced stocks, spread over that many industries should show good profits in time, if we are definitely in a bull market.

Firmer Prices at Toronto For Butter and Top Grade Eggs

Toronto, Oct. 13—Firmer prices appeared on butter, churning cream and top quality graded eggs on the local produce market yesterday.

The trading pace quickened on the butter market and dealers lifted prices under light offerings. Fresh supplies continue small in view of the declining production, while holders of storage stocks are not inclined to offer at the present low price levels. As a result traders' steady demand for small lots readily absorbed the available quantities of butter. Ontario creamery solids traded at 22-1-2c for No. 1 grades and 21 3-4c for 38 score. A few sales were recorded in the Western make at 2 1-4c. Buyers offered the better rates of 21c for No. 1 grade churning cream (country truck prices).

Current receipts of top grades were still limited on the egg market, with prices on these grades moving higher in the graded division as demand remained good. Shipments sold for 39c to 40c for grade A-large, 38c to 39c for medium, 30c to 31c for pullets, 26c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

MONTREAL PRODUCE FIRM

Montreal, Oct. 13 (CP)—Prices held firm on open produce markets Wednesday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24 1-2c to 25c a pound, and creamery solids for 24c to 24 1-2c.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 41c a dozen for A-large, 39c for A-medium, 30c to 31c for A-pullets, 26c for B-large, and 21c for C. Receipts: 2,597 cases.

STRONG DEFENCES BRITAIN'S NEED

Public Opinion Opposed, It Is Said, To Oppose Present Arms Halt

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct 13.—(CP Cable) — Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected back in London Tuesday to preside at a cabinet meeting the following day. Since Parliament adjourned after endorsing his peace deal with Chancellor Hitler, the Prime Minister has been on holiday in Scotland.

The most important business facing Mr. Chamberlain on his return will be an acceleration of the defence program, plugging the gaps revealed when the country went on a modified war footing at the height of the German-Czech crisis.

Hitler Willing?

Officials circles here claim to know nothing about veiled reports distributed from Berlin indicating Hitler's willingness to negotiate a disarmament agreement. If this topic was discussed between the Chancellor and Mr. Chamberlain at Munich, they have kept it a close secret.

There seems to be no doubt that Hitler would welcome a halt in the armament race which would permit him to maintain the present military ratio and leave Germany the strongest power in Europe. But it is extremely unlikely British public opinion would concur in any disarmament arrangement until the defences of this country have been strengthened appreciably.

This, of course, does not rule out negotiations leading to limitations on the bombing of civilian populations and the use of gas.

Meanwhile, Mr. Chamberlain may make an early announcement regarding a successor to Alfred Duff Cooper at the Admiralty. This may be made concurrently with a general Cabinet shuffle, but the Prime Minister has not given any indication as to what is in his mind. Mr. Duff Cooper resigned from the Cabinet because he disagreed with the policy of the government prior to the Munich settlement.

Shannonville

Shannonville—Local hockey enthusiasts gathered at Vivian's Garage on Friday night when a meeting was held at which plans were discussed for the improvement of the local skating rink which was used for the first time last year and which needs considerable improvement at the present time. Mr. W. S. Dies to whom considerable credit is due for the erection of the rink attended the meeting and promised his full support in the improvement plans. It is planned to start work this week in order that it may be done before the cold weather comes. Another meeting will be held in the near future to discuss further plans.

"PUMPKIN" A PHONY

Hastings, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—A 150-pound "pumpkin", which has won ten first prizes at Eastern Ontario fall fairs this year, has been ruled a squash by Norwood Fair officials. J. M. Carl, Stirling, exhibitor of the phony pumpkin, said even government officials passed it.

DOCTOR, 2 OTHERS

Banting, Uplucan were immediately called to the scene and Dr. Soper rushed five-year-old Norma Wills to Victoria Hospital here, but she died shortly after being admitted.

Dr. Racey Well Known.

Dr. Racey, who is a prominent Conservative worker and well known as a physician in Western Ontario, was first to be identified. Later the identity of the Wills family was established and finally Miss Mason. She was identified by Ralph Gray, Parkhill garage man who said he knew that she was to go to London today with Dr. Racey. He confirmed her identity when he saw the body.

The Diesel powered car was under the charge of Conductor J. McKeever of 139 Wellington street, Sarnia; Engineer Frank McKeown of 527 Confederation street, Sarnia; and Brakeman C. H. Atkinson, 303 Conrad street, Sarnia. The C.N.R. car came to a stop within 375 feet.

Dr. Racey was in his early fifties, Miss Mason about 20 years of age and Mr. and Mrs. Wills about 35 years of age.

Dr. A. R. Routledge, Chief Coroner for Middlesex County was called to the scene and ordered an inquest, although the date has not yet been set.

WIND-UP OF BASS SEASON AT HAND

Saturday Marks End of Season Noted For Big Catches

Bass fishermen of the city and district getting in their final lick at the summer's sport before the season officially ends on the 15th of this month, report one of the best season's tapering off to an unexciting finish. Lately the bass have refused to bite, and catches have been exceedingly slim, differing from the large and heavy hauls which have characterized the past season.

Up until lately there were plenty of bass in the river and the shallow, weed-grown coves where the fish followed their favorite tactics of chasing small frogs from lily pad to pad, and grasshoppers and blue bottles through the green rushes. No there are none, or almost none, report observers. The fish have gone to deep water, deep down among the rocks and limestone shoals of the bay's deepest water, where they will hide in the rifts and crannies through the colder weather. These are the winter homes of the bass. They have taken a last look at the waning sun, and from now on a peculiar lassitude will seize them. There they will stay until the ice again cracks open and disappears, and the sun warms the water, and green frogs are hatched and emerge blinking into the light and blue bottles and grasshoppers once again provide a dinner for the fish, say those who know.

Treasure

By RUBY H. MARTYN

The slanting afternoon sunshine crept across the yellowed pages of the old old diary that lay open in Rena Paulding's slender hands. It was slow work for her to decipher the faded, old-style letters and her red lips curled as she conned the quaint entry made a hundred years before by one Ziba Paulding who had dwelt here at the ancestral homestead of the pioneer family. How like Jimmie, her husband, must have been this impractical great-grandfather!

This day, wrote Ziba Pauling, he had given a hungry tramp 10 coin dollars for an old fiddle he dared not carry into his own house lest wife Keturah learn of the transaction and chide him bitterly for a slack hand with their hard-earned money. The fiddle seemed a well-wrought instrument, sensitive to his touch, and he had hidden it in a secret cubby of the harness room, whither he would retire to play softly on such stormy days as lashing rain and shrieking wind would conceal the tones from her keen ears. The entry was closed by the conscientious comment that wife Keturah would feed the hungry with both hands herself while her tongue railed at his prodigality.

Rena closed the yellowed book. The stillness of the old house made her jump. She was used to folks and city sounds. Now she was all alone. Jimmie having trudged away to the village for the afternoon mail. She had found the old diary among some papers in a walnut desk she had ransacked in search of storied treasure.

Jimmie himself would have given a tramp that $10 just as old Ziza had. Was it not his lavish hand which had flung them into this land of exile? That, and his belief in the crazy book he had wasted time to write, when he might have been pushing ahead at the bank where he was employed. She had worn herself to a frazzle with remonstrance and objections and threats. The day the doctor condemned her to this exile she had tossed the hateful manuscript into a garbage can.

To this half-abandoned farm, Jimmie's only remaining landhold, they had come. Again and again Rena had determined to run away, only to weaken at the moment of departure. Now the tone of the old diary fired her anew, and she sprang to her feet with a gesture of defiance. She would be gone before Jimmie returned from the village where he habitually lingered until twilight.

And yet that simpliciyt of the narrative so persisted that, once outside the solitary farm house door she impulsively made her way toward the weathered barn, leaving dainty tracks across the snow-covered yard.

"Perhaps old Ziba was shrewd enough to trade off his tramp trophy, or Keturah got wind of the raw deal," she thought, strangely curious as to the outcome of the situation.

The interior of the barn was vast and chilly. The empty mows were festooned with cobwebs. The fragrance of seasoned wood and hay seed mingled with the lingering smell of animals In the middle of the floor a high buggy stood drunkenly on its steel-tire wheels Rena opened the secret cubby Ziba had described. Her groping fingers closed over the neck of a violin, and she brought it forth into the sunset light had filtered through the dirty window of the cold room.

"O man!" she gasped.

The lines of the instrument were undoubtedly those of a master maker Excitedly Rena dusted and polished regardless of her dainty handkerchief, and she found the wood finish equally excellent. The bridge was gone and the strings were broken, but that didn't matter. The fiddle itself was perfect. Rena turned to rush out, and faced her husband, blinded by her own excitement to the transport of his lean face. He had tracked her footprints hither when he returned earlier than usual from the village.

"It's a cremona, Jimmie!" she cried. "Your old great-grandfather stumbled on a treasure!"

"Dollars to doughnuts he wasn't old when he stumbled" flashed Jimmie. "And it's diamonds to dollars that the law of average brings some ships of good fortune into port! I've had a corking offer for my book!"

"I threw that out!" gasped Rena.

"The garbage man saved the wreck," explained Jimmie. "And I worked it up again on the quiet, my girl!"

The Magic Carpet of The Movies

This magic carpet is just around the corner at your favourite movie theatre. For a trifling sum you and your family enjoy a glorious adventure in happiness and good-fellowship.

A magic carpet that leads you to sit in comfort at gorgeous musical comedies, enthralled by the stars of stage and screen, dancers and singers of international repute, charmed by the melodies of illustrious orchestras and bands.

A magic carpet that takes you, in an instant, to a seat at hilarious comedies, boxing matches, baseball and football games. A magic carpet always at your command, always ready and willing to bear you away from the cares and trials of this workaday world.

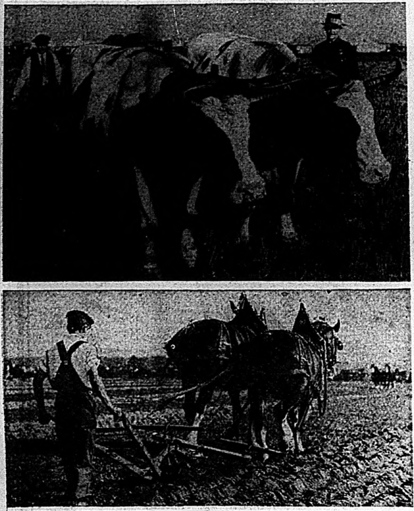
This season the magic carpet of the movies provides you with the finest array of productions in the history of the motion picture industry. Great stories, magnificently produced, parade before you on the silver screen. To miss any of these great pictures is to miss the thrill, the experience of a lifetime.

The Ontario Intelligencer is glad to pay tribute to the great Motion Picture Industry, its Producers, Artists, Distributors and Exhibitors — for the part they play in bringing into the lives of countless millions of people the world over so much useful knowledge of themselves and of one another, so many hours of happiness and matchless entertainment.

Going to the movies regularly is a habit that pays worth-while dividends in happiness and contentment.

LET'S ALL GO TO THE MOVIES

International Ploughing Match Provides Contrast in Motive Power



Horses, oxen and tractors vied for hours at the International Plowing match held at Minesing, Ont. One of the finest teams of horses taking part in the matches was that handled by Lorne MacKay, of Coldwater, Ont., BOTTOM. This span of 10-year-old oxen, TOP, owned by J. Y. Norrish, of Guelph, Ont., provided a striking contrast to the modern tractors which also took part in the matches.

when PENNIES count — The "Ontario Intelligencer" is The Ideal 'Shopping Guide' —

How to get the most out of every penny is mighty important to folks who are just starting out. An error in buying judgment that would be considered trivial by anyone else, might be tragic for them. They can't afford to make mistakes . . . they can't run the risk of "gold bricks". Every penny counts. Every penny has to do DOUBLE-DUTY. It's interesting to know (and we can't deny that we're a bit proud!) that The Ontario Intelligencer is making it possible for people like these to get more for their pennies. For the pages of The Ontario Intelligencer are a "Shopping Guide" to values. Every day advertisers offer definite savings on the things all of us need. Of course, if you are already an Ontario Intelligencer reader, you are well aware of this fact.

Thursday Market

Jack Frost sweeping across the country, leaving in his wake a trail of blackened tomato vines and cornstalks reacted favorably to market vendors today, as prices of various forms of produce shot sharply upward.

Tomatoes, twenty-five cents a bushel a week ago, rose to fifty cents with a scarcity of the vegetable being noted. Sweet corn was conspicuous by its absence, with a small quantity selling at twenty cents per dozen ears, a 5c rise from last week's quotations.

Autumn and early Winter apple prices remained steady with MacIntosh Reds selling at sixty cents per hamper for windfalls, and tree-picked fruit at $1.50 for the same quantity. A few Tolman Sweets were available, and were offered at thirty cents per peck. Pears were quoted at forty cents per peck, with bushels selling slowly at $1.50.

Potatoes, said to be a good crop in this district, held firm at fifty cents per bushel with few takers of sonal vegetables sold at last week baglots at seventy-five cents. Seaquotations.

A few eggs were offered today with "A" selects moving at thirty-eight cents per dozen. Mediums were quoted at thirty-three cents, and a few dozen ungraded stock at thirty-five cents per dozen.

Fresh pickerel tempted fish-lovers today with some fine quality fish being offered at twenty cents per pound. Whitefish sold at eighteen cents with a few lake trout offered at twenty cents per pound.

Barred From U. S.

Following a warning by American Legion authorities that he is not "readmissable", Evelyn John Strachey, British writer on communism and one-time object of deportation proceedings in the United States, was barred from entry into the United States by immigration officials when he arrived in New York aboard the Normandie.

Plot Failed

Thirteen-year-old King Ananda Mahidol whose throne in Siam is reported to have survived an attempted coup d'etat supposedly in effort to restore former King Prajadhipok to rule the tiny kingdom Singapore, several prominent politicians were said to have been arrested and one minister of the government was reported to have fled to Penang. King Ananda, who celebrated his thirteenth birthday on Sept. 20, has not seen his country since he was proclaimed its king on March 7, 1935, after the abdiction of his uncle, Prajadhipok. He has been attending school in Lausanne, Switzerland.

EGMONT'S CASTLE HAS BEEN SOLD

London, Oct. 13 (CP) — Avon Castle, ancestral home of the Earl of Egmont, Alberta's "farmer peer", has been sold to H. J. Colebrook, wealthy London surveyor. The purchase price is reported to be in the neighborhood of £80,000 ($378,800), the original cost of the castle, built in 1878.

The estate, in one of the most picturesque regions of Hampshire, embraces 1,322 acres, two secondary residences, farms and cottages.

Mr. Colebrooke has a large estate in Buckinghamshire where he is master of the New Forest buckhounds. His kennels at Brockenhurst are only ten miles from Avon Castle. It is understood the Egmont property will be disposed of later in small lots.

After the courts in 1930 upheld the present Earl's father's claim to the Earldom, the family lived modestly in the castle for several years. They used only half a dozen of the 49 rooms. Six years ago the father was killed in a motor crash. The young Earl foresook the castle, returned to Canada and took up farming.

Later he married Miss Ann Geraldine Moodie, a descendent of the Royal Stuarts of Scotland. They paid a brief visit to England early this year when arrangements were made to dispose of the estate.

He's Back Again

Charging over the practice turf is Harry Sonshine, middle wing star with the Canadian champion Toronto Argonauts, who hopes to be back in the Sculler's line-up before the season is over. Sonshine, one of the east's finest secondaries, suffered a fractured jaw in a game with Ottawa last year, but is now back at his old playing weight and in good shape.

VIENNA NAZIS IN MASS PROTEST

Vigorous Campaign Against Cardinal Innitzer Is Launched

By MELVIN WHITELEATHER

Vienna, Oct. 13 (AP) — Vienna Nazis, using all their propaganda means, launched a campaign today against Theodor Cardinal Innitzer and what they called "clerical agitators".

Newspapers were filled with attacks against the archbishop and "political Catholicism", and asserted "the cup is full; it is time to act".

More than 100,000 Nazis were expected in Heroes' Square tonight for a "mass protest" and district leader Odilo Globocnik ordered "every decent-thinking person in Vienna" to appear there as public notice that the "entire population is against clerical provocations."

Joseph Buerckel, Chancellor Hitler's Deputy in Austria, fresh from conferring with the Chancellor, was to proclaim measures to "end clerical provocations" at the meeting.

Nazi leaders said "Buerckel will speak with the full authority of Hitler, with whom he has discussed the Cardinal's attack Oct. 7 on the Fuehrer and the subsequent stoning of the Cardinal's palace. We do not know what measures the Reich Commissioner will denounce."

The call to tonight's meeting was in consequence of the Cardinal's sermon last Friday and the subsequent storming of his palace. The Cardinal was wounded by a thrown rock.

TRAPPED BY FIRE

Those who escaped told Fire Chief Andrews Oscar Philion had left the apartment safely but re-entered the building, apparently for something he had forgotten.

He was next seen hanging from the sill of a front window by Constable Mousseau.

"I shouted at him not to jump," said the Constable. "But he disregarded my warning. His brother had told him to jump, that he would catch him. Dropping, he struck a ledge at the second floor. This turned him and he fell on his head."

Firemen had just about reached the scene when Philion made his plunge.

J. A. Philion suffered burns about the arms and face while Faught was scorched on the ball of a foot.

CANCER

It is a well known fact, he said, that countries where sanitation is the poorest have "a much lower cancer incidence" than regions where sanitation is highly developed, because people die much younger in the former.

Dr. Crotti is head of the Cancer Clinic, at Columbus, O.

Mortality Can Be Eliminated.

Pointing out that 150,000 persons died of cancer in the United States last year, Dr. Crotti said "it is generally conceded that at least one third of this frightful mortality could be surely eliminated if the laity would be fully cognizant of the cancer problem as we see it today."

The disease was not contagious and not hereditary, he said, adding:

"It can be truly said that cancer is not only an arrestable disease, but is a curable disease if caught early. In fact, one can say that any form of cancer no larger than a pea can be cured with almost 100 per cent certainty providing it is removed. However, the chances for complete and permanent cures dwindle rapidly if the size of cancer is allowed to progress unchecked for too long.

Early recognition and early adequate treatment of the disease, Dr. Crotti said, provide the only solution for the time being of the high death rate problem.

PROPOSES TEST DRILL OF BRITISH CIVILIANS

Germany Would Limit Britain's Air Strength to One-Third of Her Own

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

CURIOSITY PROVES EXPENSIVE

Detroit, Oct. 14 (CP)—Detroit, where a year-old model automobile rates as a jalopy, was thrown into a bit of a turmoil by a 1902 car.

So excited was Charles Stemler of Detroit at the sight of the ancient car, he crashed into another car and forced Frank H. Christopher, driver of the old car into a three-way crash.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP)—"Shoo, doggie, shoo" said city worker A. V. Sallaway to what he thought was a small black and white terrier pecking away at a can of garbage. The "terrier" turned out to be a skunk. Sallaway went home for a change of clothing.

JUST TOO MUCH!

Detroit, Oct. 14 (CP)—Mrs. Margaret F. Beedon told the court she didn't say a word when her husband of less than a month slapped her down. She even stood for him using a hairpin to rob her dime bank, but when she prepared a lunch for him and he fed that lunch to his milk wagon horse, that was too much.

The Judge agreed and she received a divorce.

CORRIGAN VISITS FORD

Detroit, Oct. 14 (CP)—Douglas Corrigan, who won fame through his famed "mistake" in flying to Europe instead of California, was visiting Detroit today. While here, he had luncheon and a business discussion with Henry Ford, automobile magnate.

LIFE PRESERVER TAKES FORM OF HEAVY ANCHOR

Salt Lake City, Oct. 14 (AP)—It is proper procedure to toss an anchor to a person drowning in Great Salt Lake, says Prof. Thos. C. Adams of the University of Utah. A 15-pound weight is about right to hold a distressed bather's feet down in the highly buoyant water, he discovered in tests conducted by Boy Scouts. A life preserver tips a swimmer face down.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Clouds and temperature! Naturally one would expect higher temperature with more sunshine, but this is not always the case. In summer, in the temperate zones, the radiation from the sun to us throughout the long day is greater than the outgoing radiation during the short night. Therefore a cloudless day is hotter than a cloudy day. In the winter, however, radiation away from the earth during the long nights exceeds the incoming heat from the sun during the much shorter day, and in this case a cloudy day is warmer than a sunny day.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 14—(CP)— Pressure is high off the Nova Scotian coast and over the western portion of the continent, with a deep low area over Hudson Bay and a shallow trough extending southward across the upper lake region. The weather has been fair in the western provinces and from the Ottawa Valley eastward while showers have ocurred in many sections of western and northern Ontario.

Lake Superior — Moderate or fresh southerly to westerly winds; fair and somewhat cooler tonight. Saturday—fresh westerly winds; fair and cool.

Manitoba—Fresh or strong westerly winds; fair today and Saturday; cool tonight.

Alberta — West to northwest winds; fair today and Saturday; cool tonight.

FIRE MENACE IS DRAWING CLOSER TO FORT FRANCES

Forests Ablaze On New Fronts Causing Much Anxiety

MIGHT JUMP RIVER

Those In Hospital Show Slightly Improved Condition

Fort Frances, Ont., Oct. 14 —(CP)—Forests ablaze on new fronts in Northwestern Ontario challenged firefighting resources today but flames were repulsed without further threat to life or serious property loss.

Overworked Forestry Branch troops, concentrating since Monday on a 60-mile stretch west from Fort Frances, were called into action east of the fire-embattled town when calls for help came yesterday from Atikokan and Crilly. Weary firefighters answering the call were aided in successfully combatting the fires by a drop in wind velocity.

Closer to Fort Frances

Red menace was brought closer to Fort Frances, fanned by a high south wind. Citizens turned out to stop a threat from along the river front. Backfires carrying the menace away from the town still burned fiercely last night two miles west.

Across the river, the 2,500 residents of International Falls, Minn., anxiously watched flames licking through timber a mere two blocks from the city limits. Residents of Sunnyside Addition, a group of 30 houses on the outskirts, were prepared to evacuate.

Throughout southwest outskirts of the town men and women were ready with garden hoses, pails and shovels to oppose fire threats. Tinder-dry slashing between the fire and International Falls added to the danger.

Fort Frances residents feared fire in International Falls would jump the river to this town. "If they go, there's nothing in the world that can save us," a forestry official said.

West of Fort Frances fires were being controlled within the 30-mile swath, 60 miles long, in which 17 persons died Monday. Three of the fire's 20 deaths occurred in Minnesota.

Thirteen Ontario victims were buried Wednesday and the other four, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fyles, their 18-months-old son and Mrs. Fyles' sister, 12-year-old Mabel Larsen, were buried yesterday in Fort Frances. Fyles was 21, his wife 19.

Clyde Kimble, one of the volunteer searchers who found bodies of the Fyles family near their Dance Township home, recounted evidence of their struggles to reach safety.

"Sam and his wife certainly put up a real battle for their lives and to save the children," Kimble said.

"They might have saved themselves by running to the garden patch in the centre of a clearing. Some pumpkins in the garden were not touched by fire. I think they suffocated. The hair on their heads was not badly burned and burns on their bodies could have been caused by smouldering ashes in which they fell."

Czech Developments With Relation to Democracy Discussed by Speaker

Developments in Czechoslovakia and their relation to democracy were discussed in a thought-provoking manner by Mrs. [illegible] I. Davidson, M.A., Toronto, who spoke to the Women's Canadian Club at an interesting meeting held in Christ Church Parish Hall last evening. Introduced as a favourite speaker in Belleville by Mrs. G. G. Wright, president fo the Club, Mrs. Davidson gave a searching address concerning recent events in Europe and the challenge they offer those who uphold the ideals of democracy.

While many would prefer to live in a world of make believe, one must live in a realm of reality, in a world in which at present three wars are progressing. While the average citizen dismissed Ethiopia upon Italy's acquisition, that imperial venture is not the success it was first supposed; the Spanish war in its second year remains undetermined, although the next two months are critical; and the Chino-Japanese war, with China taking a valiant stand, is over a year old. Should China manage to hold out until Spring, or even till Christmas, there is a possibility of a turn of fortunes in the Orient.

Situation Grows Worse

Against this background which could not be overlooked by the Foreign Offices of the nations, the situation in Central Europe gradually became worse. Hitler had a candid statement announced

CENSORSHIP OF NEWS BROADCAST PLACED BY FRANCE

MUST SUBMIT COPY

Paris, Oct. 14 (AP)— Premier Daladier's government today established virtual censorship over news broadcasts from 11 of France's largest privately owned radio stations.

An order published in the official journal without explanation brought not only news broadcasts of political affairs but those on economic and financial matters under the government broadcasting service.

The measure applies to four large Paris stations and seven key regional stations. Radio in France is a combination of private and state ownership, with the government communications ministry operating a network in competition with private stations.

Under the new set up stations affected are required to submit to the government daily the "full text" of "anything concerning news broadcasts or presenting a political economic or financial character."

Three Other Problems

The government at the same time was concerned with three other problems—unrest in Alsace-Lorraine, increasing production in the aviation industry and an effort to break the long workers' strike in Lyon.

It was announced that Vice Premier Camille Chautemps had decided on "various measures" designed to solve the economic problem of provinces along the German frontier, where increasing Nazi propaganda activity was reported.

The measures, which were not specified, came as the Strasbourg Chamber of Commerce demanded that the government negotiate commercial treaties with Germany in order to improve the economic condition of the border provinces. The Chamber denied political motives.

HOUSEKEEPER GETS ESTATE

Detroit. Oct. 14 (CP)—Capt. William J. Burrell, widely known at Lake ports in Canada, left his house keeper, Miss Elizabeth Ariel, his home, his yacht and $75,000. Burrell died Oct. 2 after years as a member of the Great Lakes Survey and the United States Lighthouse Service. The will was disclosed today.

Creator of 'Popeye the Sailor' And 'Thimble Theatre' Dies

E. C. Segar Became Cartoonist After Taking $20 Mail Order Course

CONTINUE COMIC STRIPS

Santa Monica, Calif., Oct. 14 — (AP) — E. C. Segar, the house painter, who became a cartoonist by taking a $20 mail order course, left in death today a $1,000,000 legacy of comic characters to amuse the world.

The creator of 'Thimble Theatre' a quaint comic strip printed daily by more than 500 newspapers, and "Popeye the Sailor", a movie cartoon with fans around the globe, died at his home here last night. He was 44.

Since last January, his condition had been so serious that he did little actual drawing. Others carried on the whimsical adventures of Popeye, spinach eater de luxe; J. Wellington Wimpy, hamburger chef, and the Oyl family— Olive, Castor and Anna.

King Features announced in New York that "Thimble Theatre" would be continued as a daily strip, just as "The Gumps" lived on after the death of Sidney Smith, the cartoon family's creator, in 1935.

Segar was a native of Camptown, Ill, where he got his artistic start When a St. Louis newspaper rejected his first cartoon, he took a correspondence school course. R. F. Outcault, drawer of Buster Brown and Tige, got him a job on the Chicago Herald turning out a Charlie Chaplin comic strip. But it was years before he struck a gold mine with the "Thimble Theatre".

Popeye, the be-chinned sailor with a punch in either fist, was born in 1929 after Segar had moved to California.

400,000 CHINESE SENT TO INTERIOR FOR PROTECTION

40,000 Japanese Moving Close To City of Canton

NEARLY CUT OFF

By ELMER PETERSON
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Hong Kong, Oct. 14 (AP)—Preparations were hurried today to send 400,000 women and children and the municipal and provincial governments into the interior from Canton as a new Japanese force of 40,000 moved closer to that South China metropolis.

The invading Japanese army captured Tamshui, 12 miles from Bias Bay where it landed Wednesday, and was reported striking due west in a 20-miles drive to cut the Canton-Kowloon Railway at a point about 20 miles from the borders of this British crown colony.

Incessant bombing and shelling left Tamshui in ruins. The invaders drove relentlessly toward the Garrison City of Waichow, 82 miles east of Canton and 35 miles north of Hong Kong.

Chinese resistance improved as the Japanese columns moved steadily inland. The invaders' airplanes and artillery were being used with crushing force.

Events Move Rapidly

With the destruction of a long wooden bridge about 15 miles north of Hong Kong, Canton was cut off except for the highway to Waichow and the water route to Macao, Portuguese colony 70 miles south of Canton.

Events were moving rapidly in Kwangtung Province, of which Canton is the capital. Provisional and municipal archives, it was learned, were being sent to Yungyuen in Northern Kwantung.

Heavy Chinese reinforcements were being rushed to Cheungmutau, on the Canton-Kowloon Railway, and to Waichow, where a bitter battle was expected.

Kwangtung authorities were reported to have asked the Consular body of the Shameen foreign settlement of Canton to convey to the Japanese a request that Lingnan University and the French Catholic Cathedral in Canton be declared safety zones for noncombatants.

More than 200 foreigners remained in Shameen.

The United States gunboat Mindanao, with one French and five British war vessels, were bottled up in waters near Canton.

Turpentine Bottle Bears Fingerprints

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP)—Inspectors of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, investigating an incendiary attempt to fire St. Francis Xavier's Roman Catholic Church here yesterday, have found a bottle containing turpentine.

The bottle, said to show fingerprints, was sent to the fingerprint bureau of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Ottawa for further examination.

Attempts to fire the large stone church, only a few blocks away from the Brockville fire department headquarters, were discoveed yesterday.

Inspector Edouard Desjardins of Ottawa, Deputy Fire Marshal for Eastern Ontario, said the fire was definitely of an incendiary nature.

It was recalled that 25 years ago the same church was set on fire but the church suffered little damage.

APPLY PRINCIPLE OF NAVAL PACT IN REVERSE RATIO

Germany's Need For Greater Production Is Grounds For Proposal

A TRIAL BALLOON

Proposal Unofficially Transmitted To British Gov't

BY PAUL-LOUIS BRET

Copyright, 1938, The Havas News Agency

London, Oct. 14—(CP-Havas) — A tentative German proposal that Great Britain should limit its Air Force to one third the strength of Germany's has been unofficially transmitted to the British government through the Marquess of Londonderry, well-known proponent of Anglo-German cooperation, it was reported in informed political circles here today.

The German plan, it was said, is to apply the principle of the Anglo-German naval agreement of 1935 with the percentages reversed.

On the grounds that Germany's needs for protection are greater, Berlin would now ask that it be entitled to three planes to every one Great Britain builds.

Germany would agree to preserve the naval ratio and Anglo-German armaments would be thus stabilized in fixed proportions in the air and on sea.

This was generally regarded here as a trial balloon. Only if British reaction seems to indicate that negotiations on this basis are feasible will Germany make its proposal formally, it was believed.

Germanic Reaction

Rome, Oct. 15 (CP-Havas) — If Great Britain continues its large-scale rearmament Germany may denounce the Angla-German Naval Treaty of 1935, Italian observers in Berlin reported to Rome today.

According to this version of the present views of Germany's leaders, the British rearmament program will disrupt the balance of power in Europe and will be regarded in Berlin as an attempt to establish and maintain Franco-British hegemony.

French and British efforts to strengthen themselves are regarded in the Reich, these observers said, as efforts to make France and Great Britain strong enough to check the "natural evolution" of Germany.

PLAN TO PROTECT ALL KEY POINTS

Low-Flying Aircraft In Time of War To Be Combatted

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 14 (CP Cable) —A new plan to protect key industrial plants from low-flying aircraft in time of war was announced today by the War Office.

A reserve of the Territorial army will be formed with light anti-aircraft units in industrial plants. Officers and men will be recruited from employees of the plant and given special training in handling light anti-aircraft guns and machine guns which will be mounted round the factory. Each plant will have its own defensive force to combat low-flying planes.

The announcement followed sweeping changes in the Territorial army which have included in recent weeks a general reorganization in anti-aircraft divisions, which were increased from two to five. The five divisions, which will come into operation Nov. 1, will have headquarters at Uxbridge, Hucknal, Edinburgh, Chester, and Reading.

The scheme, which goes back hundreds of years to the time of private armies, will apply to all kinds of industries, but particularly armament plants, power stations, chemical plants, and oil tanks.

The idea behind it is to give extra protection to key industrial plants from enemy planes which get through the general defences.

Anti-aircraft strength of the Territorial army has jumped from 27,370 a year ago to 47,250 today and the increase from two to five divisions is expected to double the personnel in the next 12 months.

Mobilization of Hungarian Army Is Postponed

Budapest, Oct. 14 (AP)—Diplomatic circles reported today that Hungary had postponed scheduled mobilization of her army at the request of "great foreign powers", especially Germany, "in the interest of European peace".

Reliable sources said a Hungarian delegation left by airplane at noon (6 a.m. EST) for Berlin at Chancellor Hitler's invitation to discuss minimum territorial demands Hungary might make on Czechoslovakia.

The mobilization was said to have been scheduled for 11 a.m. today.

After an all night meeting the cabinet announced a decision to take "further measures for the military security of the country" and said heavily-armed Czechoslovakia had attempted to exert pressure on Hungary in the dissolved Komarom conference.

Shortly after the cabinet announcement, 500 students of the University of Budapest staged a demonstration in Liberty Square demanding arms to fight Czechoslovakia.

CALL OFF RACE BECAUSE OF RAIN

Third Race Between Bluenose And Thebaud To Be Sailed Saturday

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 14 (AP)—The third race between the schooners Bluenose and Gertrude L. Thebaud, in a three-out-of-five series for the championship of the North Atlantic, was postponed today because of rain, poor visibility and lack of wind.

Captain Angus Walters' Canadian defender, Bluenose, captured the second race yesterday while the Gloucester challenger, Captain Ben Pine's Thebaud, won the first race on Sunday. Twice before the boats have been unable to hold a race because of poor conditions.

The two skippers will battle it out again tomorrow over two circuits of an 18-mile triangle, the course which had been marked off for today.

Duck Flies Away Was Only Stunned

Winnipeg, Oct. 14.— (CP)— And now comes one for the duck book:

The adage of "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" didn't run true to form for Albert Armistead and Walter Scofield, of Winnipeg, while hunting ducks near Petersfield, 40 miles north of here.

Armistead fired into a flight of mallards and brought one down. Scofield placed the duck carefully in the pocket of his hunting coat.

But the duck was just stunned and soon figured it was time to take off again Scofield felt a rustle in his pocket but though nothing of it until the duck started to fly.

General Critchley's Plan To Meet Any Emergency Is Before Defence Board

Scheme Based On Precautionary Measures Evolved By Sports Promoter

TRIAL EVACUATION

Manning of All Branches of Defence Service Suggested For 1939

London, Oct. 14 (CP)—A plan for an annual test of mobilization of Britain's civilian population to meet any emergency of the future has been placed before the Committee of Imperial Defence by Calgary-born Brig.-General A. C. Critchley.

The scheme is based on precautionary measures evolved by the sports promoter eighteen months ago and applied to his vast enterprises during the recent crisis.

At that time a large number of his employees were promptly released for duties with the territorials, the balloon barrage, and the air raids precautions organization, but pre-arranged programs were carried out without a hitch by the immediate introduction of a shadow plan.

General Critchley now proposes that the civilian population should similarly be organized and called up for a test drill next summer. He suggests a trial evacuation of congested areas, the manning of all branches of the defence service, and mobilization on the basis of a national register with a minimum of disturbance in industry.

Military Activity Intensified Along Czech-Hungary Border

By LARRY ALLEN

Komarom, Hungary (on the Czechoslovak border), Oct. 14 (AP)—While military activity was intensified along the Czechoslovak-Hungarian border today, Dr. Joseph Tiso Premier of the new Slovak autonomous government, expressed confidence means could be found to settle differences between the two countries.

He insisted Slovakia wanted the closest friendship with Hungary, despite the breakdown of Czechoslovak-Hungarian negotiations on territorial concessions the Budapest government has demanded of Prague.

Dr. Tiso, a Roman Catholic priest, left his scene of previous negotiations for Bratislava, a Slovak centre. He said the preservation of Slovakia's territorial integrity would be his first objective.

Official sources felt Slovakia's unyielding attitude in the matter had Chancellor Hitler's support.

Thousands of young Hungarians entrained in many frontier communities today for army concentration centres. Troops with machine guns and light artillery pieces moved closer to the Danube River separating Hungary from Czechoslovakia. Some soldiers moving into frontier areas had full field equipment.

Hitler May Tell Delegates to Cede Territory to Hungarians

Delegation In Munich To Learn Hitler's Intentions

GUARANTEE FRONTIERS

Munich, Oct. 14—(AP)—An official German announcement said today Frantisek Chvalkovsky, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, had given Chancellor Hitler assurances Czechoslovakia in future will adopt "a loyal attitude" toward Germany.

The announcement came some two hours after Hitler had received the Czechoslovak envoy in the Fuehrerhaus, scene of the historic Munich conference which two weeks ago set the seal on Czechoslovakia's dismemberment at Hitler's behest.

The official account of the meeting said the Fuehrer had expressed profound regret that the question of Czechoslovakia's Hungarian minority had not yet been solved and had told Chvalkovsky he hoped an amicable solution of this problem soon would be found.

Prediction of Observers

Nazi circles predicted Hitler told the envoy:

1. The Prague Government must quickly cede to Hungary the Czechoslovak districts where Hungarians predominate

2. Germany will not favor the Hungarian-Polish idea of a common frontier to be created by the incorporation of Ruthenia with Hungary.

3. Germany will approve a new Czechoslovakia comprising Czechs, Slovaks and Ruthenians as autonomous sections of a republic having just "an army and a foreign policy in common."

4. Czechoslovakia must abandon her present alliances with Soviet Russian and France.

5. Germany lays little stress upon Czechoslovakia's future importance as a military factor, and hence is indifferent whether Czechoslovakia joins in a military pact with Germany.

No Plebiscites Planned

Another important question was said to involve a German guarantee of the new state's frontiers, badly cut up by the German-British-Italian-French accord announced here Oct. 1 and subsequent Polish-Czech negotiations.

The International Commission decided generally that the line to which German troops advanced Oct. 1-10 would be the definite border between Germany and Czechoslovakia. (Hitler indicated the territory occupied totalled 10,000 square miles.) The Commission deemed it unnecessary to conduct any plebiscite.

Comparison Drawn Between Two Flags

Irvington, N.J., Oct. 14 (AP) — A nine-year-old Jewish boy bore on his forearm today a crudely shaped double Swastika, carved into the flesh with a penknife by two older youths.

Judge Thomas Holleran told the Jewish lad and his tormentors, a 14-year-old boy of German descent and a 17-year-old youth of Italian descent, the United States flag "was a symbol of liberty and decency while the swastika was symbolic of bestiality and bullying."

The father of the Jewish boy, a Federal employee attached to the Internal Revenue Department, told court the two boys seized and branded his son as he walked through a park.

$15,000 DAMAGE IN LUMBER FIRE

St. Catharines Plant Badly Damaged By Unknown Blaze

St Catharines, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP)—Fire last night caused $15,000 damage to the Wise lumber yard and the adjoining sash and door mill of Kennedy and Pagatto. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

The blaze broke out in a section of the mill of the Wise Company and spread through the frame buildings which, with saw dust on the floors, proved a ready prey.

Almost the entire mill section of the Wise Plant was destroyed. A large part of the estimated loss is made up of machinery in the two plants.

One shed in which the Wise Company stored lumber was badly burned. Extensive storage sheds nearby were saved.

BOLD ROBBERY AT BONARLAW

Store of Bell and Barlow Entered And Goods Taken

Bonarlaw, Ont., Oct. 14—(Special)—A very bold robbery was committed here Wednesday night when thieves entered the general store of Bell and Barlow by way of the front door in spite of the fact that this entrance is always in the light of an electric bulb immediately over the entrance. A small amount of cash, chiefly coppers, was taken and some canned goods and tobacco. Officers Gray of Marmora and Dymon of Madoc are investigating.

DIRECTORS OF C. OF C. HEAR TALK ON HOSPITAL MANAGEMENT

Directors of the local Chamber of Commerce were given an interesting discourse on the subject of conventions concerned with hospital and institutional management at their regular Thursday luncheon by Gordon Friesen, superintendent of the Belleville General Hospital and guest speaker at the luncheon, who has recently returned from an international convention of hospital superintendents and managers held at Dallas, Texas.

REPAIR WARPED FLOOR OF THE ENTRANCE TO THE CITY HALL

Warped and checked at the time of its submersion during the period of the big flood of the Moira River in 1936, the floor of the entrance to the city hall is in first process of repair. Badly swollen by the water, the floor had since that time become increasingly worse until it had become a source of complaint on the part of city hall visitors.

FEW EMPLOYED ON OUTSIDE WORK

Work in city departments reached a low ebb this week with a total of only five and six men being employed by the departments of public works on the necessary city routine jobs. The greater part of the work has been in connection with blocked sewers. No immediate prospects of strengthening the labor rolls are reported.

FAIR OFICIALS RULE M. CARL'S PUMPKIN IS REALLY A SQUASH

Miller Carl's 150-pound pumpkin which was grown by him at his Stirling farm this year, after having won ten first prizes at fall fairs in this district has been ruled a squash by Norwood Fair officials. A protest against the ruling has been made by Mr. Carl who declared that government officials had passed it as a pumpkin, described as the Mammoth Field variety. His 128 pound squash took first prize, however.

Surviving besides the parents is one daughter, Nancy Ann, age two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will receive the sympathy of their friends in their bereavement.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

R. C. A. VICTOR DEALERS MEET

Addressed By N. J. Sims, Division Manager, of Toronto

Paying a fine tribute to their salesmanship ability, in which he termed them "one of the finest organizations in the country," Norman J. Sims, Toronto Division manager of the R.C.A. Victor Corporation of Canada, told thirty-five dealers and salesmen of Belleville and environs at a "get-together" banquet held at the Queen's Hotel last night, that the per capita business done in this district last year was one of the highest in the province.

"Your company is one of the finest in the world and its splendid record today is due to the fact that it does more advertising, has a consistent product, and boasts of 2,500 satisfied dealers that cover the country from coast to coast," he said.

Business conditions at present, Mr. Sims pointed out, indicated a banner year in 1939. He urged harmony and co-operation between dealers and salesmen and their opposition." There should be an honorable arrangement among all, and a gentlemanly attitude shown toward each other at all times.

Tribute to Local Dealers

Further tribute to local dealers was paid by the speaker when he told them that no further representation in this district was being sought by the company. "We are perfectly satisfied with what we have," he said, "and as a matter of fact we would have no trouble in getting any amount of dealers to represent us here, but we do not want them."

In a poll taken by a prominent standard magazine, Mr. Sims stated, forty-three per cent of the vote taken derived their news from newspapers, twenty - three per cent from radio and the balance from both. The prime function, however, of radio was not to give a news service but entertainment.

People were gradually drawing away from the cheaper articles in every line of business, the speaker pointed out, and are beginning to realize that in value there is safety. They will buy the better products if they are convinced they are better.

He brought out in a forceful manner the many highlights of salesmanship that are essential to a successful business. He described the smaller things. Simple yet effective methods, that always resulted in big returns if properly handled. He urged the same cooperation of dealer and salesman with the company that has characterised them during the past.

Radio Not a Luxury

Radio in the home was regarded not as a luxury but a necessity, he said, "for it is the only piece of equipment that treats all members of the family alike. It is as good to baby as it is to grandfather, but people should see that it is kept as modern as the family car."

Dealers and salesmen from Belleville, Trenton, Tweed, Picton, Napanee, Stirling and other towns and villages of the district were included at the banquet and ensuing social hour at which they were the guests of the company. An outstanding guest was Mr. Thomas P. Hord, district representative of the R.C.A. Victor Company, Toronto, who enjoys a unique popularity with his own and other business associates in this district.

Included among the Belleville representatives were Messrs. T. A. Tucker, manager, Weaver Music Store, J. J. Hibbard, and Percy Cornell.

MORE COMMENT ON ADDRESS BY MAYOR J. BONE

Replies are still being given to Mayor Bone's address at the Albany Club, Toronto, where he declared that education costs of the country were too high.

"It is quite possible that if Mayor Bone had had a more liberal education, he would not now be trying to close the doors of the schoolrooms in Ontario to the boys and girls who are desirous of obtaining an education,' is the latest reply of J. W. Noseworthy, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, Toronto.

"Nor would he be envious of the salaries paid the teachers" added Mr. Noseworthy.

"Outside of Toronto, I know of no centre which pays its high school teachers $1,800 as a minimum, though there may be other centres in the Dominion that do. More of them received $1,000 at the start in Ontario than $1,800. Our teachers do not, as a rule, go to the West Indies as Mayor Bone remarked, either for holidays, or to escape the income tax", he added.

Railroad men are still continuing their defence outlined in previous remarks by officials of the various Brotherhood.

"Is $3,000 a big salary?" inquired W. D. Donaldson, secretary of the Toronto Parkdale division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. "As a matter of fact that amount would be earned only by engineers who are about the retiring age, with the best runs. They are paid by the mile, not on a salary basis, so if they are not working their pay does not go on like that of a Mayor. I would say the average engineer earns about $2,000, some of them less, according to their run and the length of time they are employed."

Chief Lynch Expresses His Appreciation for Cooperation Shown

Appreciation of the cooperation of merchants and business men of Front Street in conection with Fire Prevention Week, was voiced today by Fire Chief William Lynch. "We have just concluded an inspection of the stores, shops and other buildings," Chief Lynch stated, "and we find an exceptionally high state of cleanliness and lack of fire hazard. Cellars in particular are in fine shape, while other places and equipment that usually house fire hazards, are free from such things."

"The merchants are to be congratulated on their care of their places of business and other buildings, and it is a source of satisfaction to the Fire Department to know that we are receiving the fullest cooperation in this respect from the business men of the city," Chief Lynch added.

Inspection of factories, and other buildings of the city is now going on, in conjunction with the Fire Prevention Week program.

False Information Charge is Laid

Tweed, Oct. 14 — A charge of spreading false information was laid against Cecil Revoir of Magog Quebec, Thursday afternoon by Chief Constable Clare Hayes of this village.

Chief Hayes claims Revoir came to his home Wednesday evening, with a story that the Bank of Canada at Ottawa was to be held up Thursday morning. "He gave a description of the robbery that was to take place and also described the men who were to take part in the holdup," said Chief Hayes. "Revoir was taken to Perth Wednesday night where he admitted Thursday morning that he had made up the story."

CHILD'S DEATH IS ACCIDENTAL

Harry McMullan, Tweed, Exonerated By Coroner's Jury

Tweed, Oct. 14 (Special) — A Coroner's jury Thursday afternoon exonerated Harry MacMullan of this village from all blame for the death of Erma Leveque, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Leveoque of Johnson's Corners, on Oct. 3. The jury's verdict stated that the little girl had come to her death "when accidentally run over by a truck operated by Harry MacMullan."

Dr. J. F. Doyle, who performed the post-mortem on the deceased, stated that she had died from severe internal injuries caused by being crushed. "She died only a few minutes after the accident", stated the doctor.

Chief Clare Hayes, who investigated the accident, stated that the truck, which was carrying four tons of crushed stone, could only have been travelling about ten miles an hour.

"From my investigation, I am of the opinion that the girl dashed out in front of the truck, giving the driver no chance to avoid the accident," stated Chief Hayes. "The truck was travelling south on Victoria Street at the time of the accident. The little girl was lying directly behind the right rear dual wheels of the truck when it came to a stop, and I think the rear wheels passed over the child."

Mrs. Ethel Vanness of Northbrooke, a witness of the accident, stated the truck was going slowly. "I saw the little girl fall in front of the truck and the wheels pass over her. In my opinion, there was nothing the driver could do to avoid the accident."

Garrett Morten also stated "the driver could not avoid the accident."

Harry MacMullan ,driver of the truck, stated that he was not driving fast at the time of the accident. "I did not see the girl until she was directly in front of the truck. I jammed on the brakes, but could not avoid hitting the child."

CONFINED ABED BY LUMBAGO

In Pain for Weeks

Acting on his principle of "when you know a good thing tell your friends about it," a man who has had very bad lumbago pains writes as follows:—

"I suffered from lumbago, and for weeks could scarcely move in bed. I had treatment, but it did not ease the pain very much. A friend said, 'Why not take Kruschen Salts? Take them every morning, and you'll likely get relief from that pain in your back.' So I have taken them every morning for some time and I am in fit condition for my work again—thanks to Kruschen."—C.B.

Why is it that lumbago, backache, rheumatism and indigestion in many cases yield to Kruschen Salts? Because it is a combination of several mineral salts that are vital for your bodily well-being. Each of these salts, has an action of its own. Stomach, liver, kidneys and digestive tract are all benefited and toned up to a high state of efficiency.

... the radio that has every MODERN improvement

A radio receiver must be outstanding to win the country-wide approval accorded Marconi by people in every walk of life. They all like Marconi; some for one reason and some for another. Put these reasons together — all in one receiver — and you naturally have the finest radio in the world today; peak performance, easy tuning, engineering detail, cabinet beauty, entertainment value. That's the kind of receiver you want — a Marconi — available everywhere in a wide choice of console and mantel models to fit into every budget: See and hear this radio masterpiece and you, too, will say, "I like Marconi!"

I like Marconi ... for its CABINET BEAUTY!
I like Marconi ... for its ENGINEERING PERFECTION

Model 141 A.C.
8 Tubes—9-Tube Performance
Marconi Automatic 6-button "Electro-Tune". Broadcast from 538-1720 kc. and short wave from 5.5 to 22.3 mc. $139.00

Model 134 A.C.
6 Tubes—
8-Tube Performance
Marconi Automatic 4-button "Electro-Tune". Full range broadcast entertainment from 538-1720 kc. Short wave reception from 5.72 to 19.5 mc.
$69.95
Other models from $32.95 to $334.

BAND SPREADING
It is actually easier to tune in short wave on the new Marconi band spread dial than to tune in your local station on standard broadcast. Here's the reason: by opening out the bands, there is now several times more tuning area than on the old hard-to-read dial. Hair-line tuning has been eliminated, making the dials easier to read and the stations easier to locate than ever before.

AUTOMATIC TUNING
"Electro-Tune" is a Marconi development of automatic tuning that is instantaneous and simple in operation. Any station can be tuned in automatically by pushing the proper button. Instantaneous in operation — Simplicity of setting — No tools required — Highly efficient — Rapid tuning — Individual tuning of all automatic circuits — Ease of operation.

"WHO'D BUY MY EGGS IF IT WEREN'T FOR THE AUTOMOTIVE PLANTS?"

"I'll admit the automotive plants don't buy my eggs, but they paid wages to 130,000 Canadian workers and their dependents who bought over 33 million eggs last year.

"They bought our butter, milk, cheese, wheat, wool and livestock too. They had money to pay the barber, dentist and doctor, and to buy the food, clothing and the needs and comforts of life made by other thousands of workers.

"Export markets are uncertain. Our factory employees are our best market. Industry and agriculture have got to work together in this country. What's good for one is good for both."

• • • • •

A fair estimate of the agricultural products purchased by employees of plants making cars, parts and materials would be: 507,000 bushels of wheat, 2,126 tons of butter, 8,281 tons of meat, 229 tons of cheese, 1,179 tons of poultry, in addition to immense quantities of milk, honey and numerous other products. Think of these figures when you buy an automobile.

INVENTIONS KEEP WATCH

It "takes" an insurance company to make sure what some holders of insurance on motorcars are doing with respect to the observance of rules and regulation of traffic. In some of the newspapers this week appeared a picture of a speed indicator on a car following another car. The picture had been snapped by a camera above the windshield of the second car (owned by the insurance company) and operated by the driver. It photographed the car ahead, its number and the speed dial showing over sixty mile speed. It also indicated that the first car was running past a stop sign at the sixty mile an hour clip.

Police are not using these yet. Probably they can get their offenders without so thorough a device, but the picture shows how modern inventions can keep tab on other inventions.

Incidentally it is good business for an insurance company to know what a driver is doing when he is on the highway. It aids in keeping records which may be valuable in the case of drivers who are chronic accident principals.

COLUMBUS

Columbus Day, October 12th., was marked by an editorial in the New York Times dealing with the timely discovery of America which has changed the course of history. It was, says the Times "a tragedy of errors". America had already been discovered." "Columbus did not discover America, he discovered the West Indies and died in the belief he had sailed clear around to the East Indies, and the honor of naming the new world went to an obscure traveller and geographer who deserves no credit whatever."

"Columbus, for his pains, endured poverty and imprisonment, Amerigo Vespucci, with a bright eye to the main chance, christened the new baby."

Columbus had the courage of the discoverer; if the voyage had been less dangerous, America would have been discovered before his day. He was "a superb leader to handle the jailbird crews and dock sweepings and turn them into men and sailors to complete the voyage. He had far-reaching ambitions and an imagination that could people the unknown with wonders.

"To the end of recorded time history will have to credit him with doing a hard and dangerous thing first. No doubt some one else would have done it in his generation if he had not. Exploration, like invention, moves in great surges, in which many men and many ideas are carried along. America was ripe for discovery. Curiosity awakening after the somnolent centuries, joined with practical business interests to demand it. Europe, needed and got a new Western outlet. But while others talked and hesitated. it was Columbus who tramped from court to court until he had money and backing and then took his three egg shells and his 120 frightened wayfarers into the unknown . . . He had no conception of what he had accomplished. The faithful servant of an autocratic queen he could not look four and a halt centuries ahead and see that he was finding a refuge for the oppressed and a sanctuary into which democracy might have room to grow. But what he did affects the plight of the world today — the New World keeps Liberty's torch lighted, though in the Old World it flickers."

And again. "He did not want to discover America — he wanted to reach India. It seemed to one of his biographers, Jacob Wasserman, 'as though in the grave he must yearn for his India, his beloved Espanola, and there as a shade and a skeleton, set his face against the manifest existence of America, that gave the lie to his high dream of Paradise and the fabled empire of the Great Cham'. But perhaps what he meant to do and what he did came as near together as these things do in most lives. What he did was greater than any dream of India or Cathay."

FIRE PREVENTION IN THE HOME

The best place for fire prevention to start is in the home. Charity should start there according to the ancient saying, and certainly safety should come first. In order to safeguard the home, inspection should be made, not only Fire Prevention Week but periodically throughout the year. All heating and lighting equipment examined, chimney and pipes kept clean of soot. No smoke pipes permitted through combustible walls; disposition of ashes safeguarded. The fuse cabinet should be of metal or asbestos lined. Fuses in all fuse blocks, none of them bridged, and not over 15 ampere fuses used in branch circuits. All drop cords should be insulated, and not supported on any conductive material. Electric irons always detached when not in use and kept on metal stands.

Matches should be kept out of the reach of children and the children should be regularly taught the danger of fire and not to play with matches. The safest type of match to use is the "Safety Match" which may be lighted only on the box.

Closets should be kept clean and all rubbish removed from the entire premises. Cleanliness is next to Godliness. Perhaps that is the reason it always plays such an important part in fire prevention.

This year special emphasis is being placed on the inspection of dwellings during Fire Prevention Week and you may expect a visit from your local firemen. Are you ready for them?

WHAT A TREMENDOUS INDUSTRY IS THAT OF MAKING MOVING PICTURES — Let's consider the question as one of the seven or seventy wonders of this wonderful inventive age. The making of moving pictures gives employment to thousands in the industry itself and gives work to many factories supplying materials needed in the industry, as well as making it possible for many theatres to operate six days in the week, with the resulting employment and expenditure of money locally. The motion picture industry centres at Hollywood but it reaches out to the remotest parts of the earth, from the most distant jungle town of Java or India to the newest mining metropolis of Northern Ontario. Have you ever stopped to think that the dynamo which gives life, immediate, long and lasting to the moving picture theatre is advertising, newspaper advertising particularly — and the publicity department is the one most carefully guarded and controlled. The motion picture industry does everything on a grand scale, even to the smallest hand bill for public distribution, colors and, the finest of paper are none too good, lithographs, which are works of art are used and the newspaper advertisements are works of art designed by clever artists. If we do not take the motion picture industry as a matter of course we can see in it much that is tremendously interesting — a miracle, made, and in the making. In the State of Illinois recently, motion picture theatre men held a contest for an essay on the industry, and a woman resident of that state won first prize of $1,000 with this answer:

THE MOTION PICTURE

"It entertains me. It draws me without my accustomed self and lets me laugh until the tears come, or sit upon the edge of my seat in suspense. It makes me glad to be alive. Education, inspiration and entertainment. These three the motion picture means to me."

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT LOBSTERS? An article in the Canadian National Magazine for October goes into lobsters in a big way. Things you never knew about lobsters unless you were close to the lobster producing grounds, are here unfolded. Did you know that the lobster sheds his shell? He just gets fatter and fatter until he swells up and splits his shell down the back and it drops off. Then the lobster crawls under a jutting rock or some other sanctuary and waits from two until six weeks until the new suit hardens, when he travels again. Cod, pollock and other large fish esteem the soft shell or shelless lobster, hence the necessity for a good hiding place during the moulting season. But the female of the lobster species, what of her, or she, or it? Several weeks after the male has shed his coat, and when his new coat is nearly ready for use he goes a-courting. The female lobster can produce from ten to twenty thousand eggs. Lobsters nine to twelve inches long are about six or seven years old, and those weighting from twelve to twenty-five pounds are estimated at from twenty to thirty years of age. The small lobsters are canned, the large lobsters are shipped alive in Canadian National Express refrigerator cars to the New York market. The lobster season lasts for sixty days and the catch will run from 5,000 to 25,000 pounds, with a value of from $400 to $2,500 per fisherman, and the Strait of Northumberland between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick is said to be the world's best lobster fishing ground.

Ground has been broken for the erection by Capt. Sewell of a covered skating rink upon the lot on Pinnacle Street, south of John Lake's livery office and residence. It is to be a wooden structure covered with galvanized iron and metal shingles. The dimensions of the entire rink will be 127 feet by 175 feet. On the north side of the building will be a double curling ring 32 feet by 150 feet, and on the south side there will be a single curling rink 16 feet by 150 feet. In the centre will be the skating and hockey rink, 75 feet by 157 feet. In the front of the building there will be rooms for the curlers and hockey players and also room for ladies. A refreshment room will be a special feature. Each of the three rinks will have a separate entrance and there will be galleries all around the rink for spectators. Work will be pushed in order to have the rink ready for this season. The cost will be about $3,500.00.

Wright and George Thrasher. Mr. J. F. Wills acted as secretary of the meeting.

Hard Times and Luxuries

What a strange medley of contrasts and contradictions is human behavior! Most of us have been talking about "hard times," complaining. Yet comes the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to tell that last year, 1937, Canadian liquor stores took in the tidy sum of $109,000,000—or about $10 for every man, woman and child in the country.

We smoked a lot, too. We smoked, in fact, about 6,000 million cigarettes of about $60,000,000 worth, and topped that off with 123 million cigars. In between, just for fun and relaxation (we are again quoting the Statistics Bureau), we wagered $21,000,000 at our various racetracks.

All of this money, of course, wasn't lost. A lot that we spent on "smokes" went to tobacco growers, to tobacco factory workers. Much of it (and this goes for the liquor in an enormous amount) went to the Government in taxes. Yet it seems a tremendous thing, certainly a curious repartee upon all our complaining, that in a single year we should spend something like $190,000,000 on just three or four luxuries.

It makes one almost believe that, apart from the unemployment of many, much of our "hard times" thought is largely psychological.—Ottawa Farm Journal.

BIRTHSTONES!

For laundresses, the soapstone; for architects, the cornerstone.

For cooks, the puddingstone; for politicians, the Blarneystone.

For borrowers, the touchstone; for policemen, the pavingstone.

For stockbrokers, the curbstone; for shoemakers, the cobblestone.

For burglars, the keystone; for tourists, the yellowstone.

For beauties, the peachstone; for editors, the grindstone.

For motorists, the milestone; and still another might be added:

For careless gents the tombstone. —Exchange.

UNIVERSITY EDUCATION

The University of Toronto, on the word of W. J. Dunlop, "extension department director," is considering a course for policemen. Here, it will seem to a growing body of citizens, is one answer to the question: What is wrong with our modern educational methods, and especially what is wrong with those top institutions of our educational methods, the universities? They are trying to do too much for too many people—and especially of the sort of thing which is not properly education at all. . . .

If a police force can not train its own policemen better than any university, then it does not know its own business. When univeraities begin to think that they ought to be training policemen, perhaps it is the sign that they do not know their business either.—Victoria Province.

RETURN TO HATS

The makers of hats for men, whose business has suffered severely since the bare-head mania has prevailed, have reason for new hope. It has been discovered, according to some authorities on disease of the scalp, that going hatless in summer, instead of promoting the health and growth of the hair, is a potent factor in producing baldness.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

The Causes of Insomnia—Sleeplessness

There is always something wrong when an individual cannot sleep. The cause is either physical or mental. There are the three types of insomnia or sleeplessness, (a) delayed sleep where there is difficulty getting off to sleep, (b) 'light' sleep where the patient falls off to sleep when he lies down at night but wakes during the night, usually 2 to 3 o'clock; and (c) 'curtailed' or shortened period of sleep, that is awakening during the early morning hours and being unable to go to sleep again.

In the treatment of insomnia, Dr. Henry Cogen, Liverpool, in The Practitioner London, says:—

"All physical or mental discomforts, disturbances in the home or neighborhood, all infections with their poisons must be remedied. A comfortable bed, equable temperature, regulation of habits, relaxation of body and mind, with a frank discussion of anxieties may be sufficient. If this is not sufficient it may be necessary to use other methods.

Drugs are valuable if used intelligently. Dangers arise, however, because of forming the drug habit or because the drugs may depress the vital functions or actually poison some organs.

Physio-therapy—massage, electricity, baths—is often useful. With mild insomnia, especially with anxiety, soothing massage to the head and neck will often induce sleep. Luke warm baths for 20 minutes followed by a warm drink induces a relaxation which promotes sleep".

Often the awakening at 2 to 3 a.m. is due to eating too much food or too much starch and fat food at the evening meal as the liver is at the peak or height of its work 8 hours after a meal. By eating a small meal in the evening or eating less fat and starch at the evening meal, this awakening at 2 to 3 a.m. may be avoided.

"Psychotherapy—treating the patient through his mind— plays a big part in all measures to overcome insomnia. Sympathetic reassurance and understanding, frank discussion of all troubles or anxieties, all help. Simple measures must be prescribed by the physician with confident assurance of good results".

The lesson for those afflicted with insomnia is to get rid of phyzical discomforts and infections, eat less at the evening meal and gradually acquire the ability to face or handle their anxieties.

What About the Morning Cold Bath?

It is hard to understand how the idea started that a cold tub or shower bath the first thing in the morning was good for the health, hardened up the body, and warded off disease.

As a matter of fact the morning cold bath does much harm to a great many, not because there is anything wrong with a cold shower and a brisk rub first thing in the morning for a strong, hardy individual, but because the average individual is not strong and hardy.

The reason so many feel that despite the discomfort and shock the morning cold tub or shower bath is helpful is that after the bath and rub there is a 'bracing' reaction for a short time. However, one to two hours afterwards there is a feeling of tiredness and depression which they do not know is due to the cold bath.

Why is the morning cold shower a mistake for so many?

When we awake the body is really at its lowest point of resistance due for the most part to the need of food or fuel. The temperature is low, the blood pressure low, the heart beat slow and not as strong as at any other time. To make the body, in this low condition, undergo the 'shock' of a cold bath is like kicking a person when he is down.

However there is the individual (about one in four) who, because of inborn or acquired resistance, can take this cold bath, have a brisk rub, feel a good reaction without any 'let down' during the day.

An idea used by many who wish to get the refreshing reaction to the cold water without too much shock to the system is to run a few inches of hot water into the bath tub, stand in it for a minute to let the heat of the water strike the large bloodvessels of the ankles, and then step into the cold water shower. The heat of the water, by adding warmth to the blood and a little more speed to the circulation, prevents the severe shock of the cold water. A brisk rub down stimulates the circulation and the benefit of the morning cold shower is felt all day.

Those who are thin, have thin blood, or a poor circulation would do well to avoid cold showers or tub baths unless prescribed by their physician.

STREETS OUTGROWN

Cities whose streets were built to accommodate horse and buggy traffic are foolish to waste time over debate on parking. What they need to do is what anybody does when his family outgrows his flat. He moves into a larger one. The streets must be widened and the longer the work is postponed the more costly it will be.—Hamilton Spectator.

Tiger of the Sea

When the New York Aquarium's saltwater man comes back from Key West this summer with a cargo of deep-sea fish, he will probably bring a couple of barracuda. And they will be a disappointment to everybody except the Aquarium people.

They won't be more than fifteen inches long. You could pick them out of the water with your bare hands. Visitors who have heard the barracuda called "the tiger of the sea" will wonder how it got its reputation.

"Any deep-sea fisherman knows how. Fifteen-inch barracuda are mere babies—tiger kittens of the sea. But wait until they put on a little size—and then try picking them out of the water!

I once saw what can happen. We were on the narrow catwalk that runs across the top of the exhibition tanks at the Aquarium and somebody issued a warning to walk carefully and not fall in. We assured him we could all swim.

"Not in there. That's the barracuda's tank. Just watch this—"

There was a heavy rubber glove lying on the edge, one of the gloves they use in handling the electric eel. Our guide tied the cuff of the glove to a pole and lowered the stiffly extended fingers toward the water. The tank seemed empty.

One black finger flicked the surface of the water, and splash! A streak of lightning struck the end of the pole, showered salt water over all of us—and the pole came up with only the cuff and part of the thumb dangling from it.

The aquarium man was almost as surprised as we were. He looked guilty as he pulled the rubber shreds off.

"That's one on me. I'll have to buy a new glove. That barracuda was 'way over in the far corner and I didn't think he could get here so quickly!"

The great barracuda that ranges the warm waters of the Atlantic and occasionally gets as far north as Massachusetts has been known to reach ten feet, although they are rare above six feet. Man-eating sharks and the South American piranha are their only rivals in ferociousness. They will attack any living, moving object and their close-set teeth can sever a man's finger as easily as an axe can sever a cheese. As a matter of fact, a good many bites that are attributed to sharks are actually the barracuda's.

Their very ferociousness is a good enough reason why the Aquarium has never been able to exhibit a really big one — only such barracuda as were caught in the "kitten" stage and reared in the tanks until they were three or four feet long. A big barracuda is a vicious fighter. Generally, in the process of landing him at the end of a line, the most careful fisherman cannot help damaging the fish. Some of his spiky teeth may break off, or his jaw be otherwise damaged. The very problem of getting the hook out of a live barracuda's mouth has extreme difficulties and dangers.

A few times the Aquarium has attempted to transfer big barracuda that had been caught in a net. Ordinarily a fish of four or five feet would simply be turned loose in one of the large eight-foot travelling tanks. But not the barracuda. A creature of the wide-open sea as it is, it would batter itself to pieces against the walls of the tank before the steamer reached New York.

That same inability to adapt itself to close quarters makes it impossible to keep a big barracuda in the largest aquarium tanks, even if it could be transported undamaged to New York.—By William Bridge of New York Zoological Park.

Like the Slums

Slums areas in British cities are being demolished steadily. It will take a good many years to complete the civic cleansing. Hundreds of thousands of new houses have been erected and a host of former slum residents have been transferred. Yet the authorities are encountering difficulties.

The new homes—be they self-contained, duplex or in blocks — are clean and modern, and a large percentage of them have "a bit of a garden." The slums are back-to-back houses or alleys where the sun seldom penetrates. There is no garden, probably not even a back-yard, no place to wash or dry clothes except in the kitchen or living room. There is inadequate sanitation, no bathroom, perhaps only a communal tap for water that has to serve a dozen or more families. Altogether, the living conditions are such that one would think the occupants would loathe the place and all its associations.

But not so in a great many cases. Families have moved back from the new houses to other slums in the old neighborhood, or have even refused to accept a new home after dispossession and have simply gone right over to another slum. The new homes are not so "neighborly," for the housewives cannot talk to each other out of the windows or on the staircases. The nearest "pub" is some way off. The change in their ways of living is too drastic; or too sudden. Old friends are separated.

A peculiar characteristic about the Londoner is that, unless he comes into a real lot of money, he likes to live in the neighborhood where he was born or where he first settled. If his first home was in Brixton, or Stepnay or Hampstead he prefers to stay there all his days. He will improve his home if it is his own, or he will get better furniture and lights if it isn't. But he hates to leave it.

Reporters in Uniform

Even German newspaper reporters now wear a uniform, and a sad affair it is—a matter of brown shirt and tunic, black trousers and brown peaked cap, making the stout ones look like Storm Troopers gone to seed, while the little ones resemble under developed Boy Scouts promoted for diligence to the dignity of "long pants."

The Italian correspondents all wear Fascist uniforms when they must. They contrive to escape sometimes into the freedom of civil garb.

Only the foreign correspondents from free countries retain liberty in the matter of attire and they are tiny islets in the Brown and Black ocean.

The plight of their less fortunate brethren has produced among the British, French and Americans a reaction toward pullovers, slouch hats or no hat at all.

Being hatless, even if not lacking nature's head covering has its advantages because one does not have to watch out for the endless passing flags; one has nothing to remove. It is a great timesaver because the banner parts of the possession sometimes extend for a block or so.

All German diplomats are in uniform day and night. Their's is black with silver buttons and with silver stripes down the trousers. High boots seem optional.

The dress uniform for evenings, however, is a stupendous affair with tails, wider silver stripes, silver cord festoons from chest to shoulder and a profusion of silver foliage—apparently since it corresponds to nothing in this climate—around the collar and lapels. Over all this is worn a long cloak with a silver spread-eagle below the shoulder.

Thus, although the German diplomat may seem a mere blood brother to an admiral in the daytime, after dinner no hall porter in any fashionable hotel anywhere is more resplendently caparisoned. — Frederick Birchall in New York Times

President's Mother Pays Brief Visit To Canada

Mrs. James Roosevelt, 84-year-old mother of the United States presidnet is pictured here as she paid an informal visit to Victoria, B.C. She was caught by the camera talking with Mrs. Gwen Hethey, Canada's top ranking woman shot, who this year tied with the two best men shots for the governor-general's medal at Connaught ranges, Ottawa.

Mrs. Drader is home for the first time since her marriage in June. The rooms were prettily decorated with autumn flowers. Mrs. Ben Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Lough received the guests at the door.

After spending a time in social chatter the bride was asked to come forward and the following address was read by Miss Helen Lough:

Mountain View, Ontario,
October 6, 1938.

Dear Mary,—

We, your friends and neighbours of Mountain View and Massassaga have gathered here tonight to show the high esteem in which you are held among us.

Mary, we have watched you with interest grow from childhood to womanhood, and your life has been a success both in school and your useful profession as a nurse.

We are sorry that you have gone so far away to spend your future, but we feel what we have lost another has gained.

We hope and pray that your future life will be as successful as the past.

We ask you to accept these small gifts, knowing that they, along with our presence here tonight will remind you of your Mountain View and Massassaga friends.

Signed,

Helen Lough, Audrey Way, Mrs. Elick Brummell, Helen Jose.

Mrs. Elick Brummell and Miss Audrey Way carried in a pretty decorated basket filled with gifts. Mary unwrapped the gifts assisted by her cousin, Mr. Arthur Graham of Brandon, and expressed her appreciation on behalf of her husband for the beautiful presents. West Lake

West Lake—A pre nuptial shower honoring Miss Allison Maitland, was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Brown. The weather was ideal and about sixty ladies were present. Mrs. Roy Cooper, Mrs. Ray Wright and Mrs. W. Furze asisted in receiving the guests placing the gifts, etc. Mrs. Brown's pleasant rooms were bright with autumn flowers and potted plants and Miss Maitland was lovely in dainty gown in ashes of roses shade. She was assisted by her sister Miss Lillian Maitland and Mrs. Libbie Furze, in opening and placing the many gifts of linen, silver, china etc. One of the ladies present had inclosed a cleverly written bit of verse with her present, which consisted of a dainty made cloths pin bag and clothes line pinned full of tiny garments, which caused much merriment.

Among the gifts was a silver cream and sugar set and troy from the United Church Ladies' Aid, of which Allison was a member. Miss Maitland thanked the ladies for the many beautiful gifts and Mrs. Brown for the effort put forth to make the occasion a pleasant one and hoped all would visit her when she is settled in her new home in Picton. Mrs. Helen Hyatt at the piano rendered excellent music both before and after the gifts were distributed. A dainty lunch of sandwiches, jellies, cake, candies, ets., was served by the hostess and her assistants.

Allison is a general favorite with old and young alike, always ready to assist with any church work or social gathering, always courteous, and always and everywhere a lady. She will be greatly missed in our neighborhood. Kind wishes from many friends go with her to her new home in Picton.

Pain Like Knife From STOMACH TROUBLE
If you suffer from stomach pains you'll sympathize with Mr. J. F. S., of Ipswich. "Sometimes," he writes, "I had taken only half my dinner and had to walk about the room, the pain was so dreadful, like a knife." But Mr. J. F. S. no longer suffers stomach trouble, and he owes his happy recovery to the highly effective action of the four alkalies prescribed by stomach specialists.
You can take these same alkalies, as Mr. J. F. S. did, simply by getting a bottle of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. These alkalies are perfectly balanced in Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. They relieve pain extremely rapidly. And they do more. They soothe inflamed stomach walls with a protective coating which allows the stomach to recover its normal functioning. Get Maclean Brand Stomach Powder (always in bottles in cartons, 75c) from your druggist. Look for the signature "Alex. C. Maclean" which must appear on every bottle and carton. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is not genuine without this signature. Never sold loose. 125

Personals

Mrs. John I. Davidson, who was in town last evening to address the Women's Canadian Club, and Miss Winnifred Ross, who accompanied her from Toronto, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mikel, while in Belleville.

Mrs. Ralph Pulver of Rednersville is leaving for New York for the winter.

Mrs. R. J. Leonard, North Front Street, has returned home after spending the past couple months with relatives at Watertown and Utica, N.Y.

A news item from London, England in today's Globe and Mail says—Miss Sylvia Tett, has returned to London after touring with a repertory company for the summer months. She has been playing ingenue leading roles.

"MISS TORONTO" TO APPEAR HERE

Miss Diane Perkin, "Miss Toronto" for 1938 will be the star attraction of the Kiwanis Karnival that will be held in the Belleville Armouries from October 18 to 21st inclusive. Miss Perkin will positively appear at every evening performance, modelling clothes in the Fashi. . Show and then assisting the committees in the various booths. Ivan Scott, chairman of the Entertainment Commitee made a ten strike when this petite Miss was secured for the duration of the Karnival.

It is reliably reported that the committee in charge of the Amateur Hour, the last night of the Karnival are simply swamped with entries. This should be the biggest feature of the Karnival, the committee stating that some excellent talent has been uncovered for this event. Anyone wishing to send in entries can do so by applying at the "Y". The Popularity Contest is hitting a new high with Miss Gladys Knox in the front running position but others in the contest are quite close behind. Marian Clark and Nellie Dorian are tied for second place, while Eva Hogle is in third place The other girls are working hard and there will be many changes before the final figures are given out.

Bud Haines and His Commodores will supply the music for the program and also the dancing, which will be a feature of the Karnival. The Younger Set will have an opportunity to trip the light fantastic to the best of modern swing music with a couple of "Jam sessions" thrown in for good measure. The program will not be lengthy but packed full of entertainment while the games arranged are something new and different. The Armouries will be artistically decorated for the occasion and all in all the Karnival should be one of the best.

The Karnival is being arranged with one object in view, to raise money to continue the many projects of the Kiwanis club All money derived is used for a good cause, to help underprivileged children and assist those less fortunate than ourselves. The club is working hard to give a good show and the co-operation of the general public is earnestly solicited.

Margaret Anglin Will Play Queen Katharine In 'Henry the Eighth'

Margaret Anglin, actress, who will be heard in CBC Radio Drama of Shakespeare's Henry VIII on Sunday.

Toronto, Oct. 14—A famous Canadian actress, Margaret Anglin, daughter of Hon. T. W. Anglin, former Speaker of the House of Commons, has accepted CBC's invitation to take the leading role in the Corporation's second Shakespearian production, "Henry the Eighth," which will be presented from the Toronto studios Sunday, October 16, 9.00 to 10.00 p.m. E.S.T. under the direction of Charles Warburton. Miss Anglin will be cast in the role of Queen Katharine.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes a Successful Marriage?

Are You a Victim of In-Law Fears?

Why is it that from the beginning of time in-laws have a way of coming together like wrestlers awaiting the sound of the gong?

If the truth were known, perhaps both sides are victims of fear. In their souls they hope to evade the blight of the word "in-law", thrust upon them like death and taxes; with the best intentions in the world, they don't seem able to sidestep it. They're hypnotized. They wait, ready to pounce on a look or a word that stresses the ticklish relationship in which they find themselves. Sometimes they don't wait. They invade like aggressor nations.

If the mother-in-law has to live in her son's house, she is regarded as the firebrand. In the years in which I have done this column, I've had heart-breaking letters from older women who have sold their own homes, turned the proceeds over to their sons and daughters and have gone to live with them, as a fair exchange.

These women may have slaved to educate their children and to give them a start in life. The obligation of looking after mother in her old age has been implied, if not put in writing, but these women have lived to know the taste of bitter bread, to grope their way up the back stairs of a house which they have often helped to buy.

On the other hand, there are mothers-in-law who deserve all the name stands for . They are the comic supplement type; fair play for the funnies and the slap-dash comedian. They're out looking for trouble and they find it.

Of this school is the possessive type of mother. Her son was her little pet and plaything. When he married, she expected to find two little pets to boss unmercifully, and her disappointment has made her peevish and grouchy.

Of the two, the younger woman, with all of life before her, is the favored one in the race. It is she, more often than not, who balances the chip on her shoulder. And, cruelty of cruelties, she teaches her children to be disrespectful and to hate their father's mother.

One can't help but wonder what the fates will hand out to her when her turn at being a mother-in-law begins. There comes to mind that old saying of the Italian peasantry, that the good God doesn't pay all his bills on Saturday night.

With tact, reserve and large doses of common sense, the embattled relationship of two women who love the same man can be made into something not only beautiful but also profitable. Who is so safe to leave the children with when the young father and mother have a yearning to go out? Who is so devoted in illness? Who is so ready to make the best of things?

The unreasoning jealousy of a son's wife and his mother, when it exists, is a stupid as it is unnatural. The love that a normal man feels towards these two women is as far apart as the poles, and it's perverse, unwholesome and downright psychopathic to confuse these two. That old devil, Fear, to which so many of our troubles may be attributed, is at the bottom of much of this grief.

New religions are being started at the rate of a dozen a year. Any cult which would add the following prayer to its litany could depend on millions of converts:

"Even if I am a despised in-law, from the unpardonable sin of acting like one may the powers deliver me."

89TH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

Mrs. Charlotte Smith, Stirling Received Personal Greetings

Stirling, Oct. 14 — About twenty friends were present at a birthday party given in honour of Mrs. Charlotte Smith, Church Street, on Wednesday as she celebrated her 89th birthday added to these personal greetings were communications from all parts of the country bearing the good wishes from those who have shared the friendship of Mrs. Smith for many years.

Born in the village of Frankford, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moyle, she has spent her entire life within the district. Enjoying remarkably good health she is active about her home and garden doing all her own housework and maintaining an excellent vegetable and flower garden. Recounting with justified pride a brief history of the family she told of her father sailing with her grandfather from Cornwall, England, and taking up residence in Kingston, the elder being a medical doctor. Development of the country in the early days was slow it has naturally developed momentum with the passing of years. Mrs. Smith recalls the opening of the Trenton Maynooth Railway line and the first train to pass through the village of Frankford. Also she recalls dimly the first screeching whistle of a train of the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway. Until twenty-one years ago she resided with her late husband on their farm in Sidney Township and at that time retired from active werk and came to live in Stirlink.

Lives Alone

Since her husband passed away seven years ago, Mrs. Smith has lived alone happily completing the numerous little tasks that are necessary about the place, unassisted. Her cheery smile and happy good-morning greeting to passersby brighten the lives of all with whom she comes in contact.

"I must let you see my potatoes", she told a friend who called to add his greetings. At the entrance to the cellar was a large woodbox filled to the top with fire wood and kindling she had prepared for use the next day. In the cellar was a large bin of huge potatoes that had been planted, cultivated and harvested by this remarkable lady who is one of the village's eldest inhabitants.

Seeing a copy of The Ontario Intelligencer upon the table as the reporter returned to the dining-room, asked how long it had been coming into the home. "We have taken it since the days, when we had to go into Belleville to get the mail. There was no rural mail delivery in Sidney Township".

On Sunday last Mrs. Smith enjoyed a hundred mile motor trip with friend and commented upon the excellent conditions of the highways throughout the county as compared with the "old days". Her eyes gleamed with happiness as she displayed her many messages and gifts and flowers sent to her as she began her ninetieth years of happy useful and independent life.

Fashion Notes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

NEW CHARM lurks in the new hats. Most becoming is a squared visor brim hat of wine red felt, worn tilted forward and brimmed with upstanding wings and bird of the same color.

Plenty of color marks the new evening frocks. A wide-skirted gown of lilac-pink satin has the base of the skirt covered with appliqued scroll work in fuchsia velvet. Velvet ribbons trim the off-shoulder neckline.

Wider and wider grow new evening frocks, skirts, some going in for hoops and whaleboning. A picturesque frock is of copper threaded brown moire with hoop-skirt. The off-shoulder neckline is marked by bands of kolinsky.

Going out we find the streets a riot of color. A nice daytime frock is of purple grape woollen, the lumber-jacket opening over a blouse of silver and lilac metal cloth.

Just as effective as fur or fur trimming is the new wrap of tweed or woollen. A charming full length, slim coat has leg-o-mutton sleeves and a very wide hem. It is of terra cotta tweed, the front trimmed with huge leaves of gold sequins, one on either side of the closing, very large at the hem and diminishing towards the throat line.

Hold out arms to slip into fur-sleeved cloth coats. The fur-sleeve is the strongest trimming appeal of the new models. A coat of medium brown woollen, with a self-tie front at the waist, has bracelet length sleeves of mink worked in circles and a neat tippet collar.

Sparkle in Eyes Due to Health, Animation

FRANCES GIFFORD

Good health keeps a sparkle in her eyes

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

FROM the beauty standpoint, eyes should be neither too round nor too long, should be set apart the width of the eye. We can't change the shape, we can't change the color, but health and animation will put in the sparkle and that's what counts. Without question the eyes are the most interesting feature, the longest remembered.

Long, dark, curly eyelashes lend enchantment, even to eyes that are colorless. The shaping of the eye brows should conform to the outline of the soul lamps to a certain extent. Duckies who have gone in for phantom eyebrows haven't treated themselves well. Those pretty scimitars have more substance now; girls look like human beings instead of wraiths. Not that we approve of letting eyebrows go to seed. Oh, mussy, no!

Eyestrain brings a train of beauty troubles—frowns, turkey tracks, nervousness, headache. If the poor orbs smart and burn and a boric acid solution doesn't help, toddle to an eye specialist. If you like to wear dark glasses, have an optician select them for you.

Eye exercises are all right when the doctor says so. But don't plan your own. Eyes are hard workers, usually in need of rest, not extra.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, October 15

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

RATHER adverse planetary testimonies are shown for this day, with some unsettling conditions of a surprising or sudden character. These might possibly be attributable to illness, bereavement or some other untoward state of affairs, causing disruption or change of plans, probably a journey. Money seems at stake and the feminine element is at least disconcerting, if not primarily involved.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have to change their plans or revamp their objectives because of some sudden event or surprising situation. This might be due to illness, sorrow or another disappointing development, in which feminine factors have important part.

A child born on this day may be studious, serious, sensitive, shy and aloof preferring undisputed pursuit of rather unusual knowledge to feminine comradeship, although it should not be unfriendly or unkindly.

Popular Couple Honored by Friends

Centenary—A happy time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Hart on Monday evening, Oct. 10th., when friends and neighbors met to honor their only son Elwin and his bride. About 9 o'clock Rev. Mr. Flatt called the meeting to order, after a few well chosen remarks he asked Elwin and Mable to be seated in the centre of the room.

Miss Coza Calvert then read the following address after which Gordon Garrison and Art Calvert presented them with two large baskets filled with all sorts of mysterious parcels. These were opened by the young couple and a lovely display of miscellaneous gifts and good wishes for their happiness proved to them they had many warm friends in the community.

Mrs. Arthur Calvert representing the Pathfinder Class and Y. P. U. read an address and Gordon Garrison presented them with a beautiful cut glass salad bowl, fork and spoon. Elwin and Mable, though completely taken by surprise, managed in a few words to express their thanks to their friends for their kindness and good wishes. Mr. Flatt led in singing "For they are jolly good fellows". A social hour was spent and refreshments served by the young ladies, bringing to a close just another happy gathering in the lovely home which for so many years has been known for the good times and generous hospitality.

Centenary, Oct. 10th., 1938.

Dear Elwin and Mable,—

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we gather in your home tonight to congratulate you on your recent marriage, also to wish you all kinds of happiness and success in your wedded life. We are so glad Elwin that you and your bride are staying right with us in Centenary, in your boyhood home which has been handed down from generation to generation, from your pioneer ancestors. We know we shall as ever have your help in the Church, Sunday School, choir and Y. P. U. where you have both done your bit so willingly and efficiently. Elwin, you are a lucky boy in your choice of so worthy a woman as your partner through life. We know that Mable with her sunny smile and happy disposition will be your help and inspiration during the dark days as well as the bright, in the years to come.

We kindly ask you to accept our gifts as a token of high respect and esteem for you both and we all join in wishing you many long years of happiness. May God bless you both.

Signed,—

Centenary, Oct. 10th., 1938

Dear Mable and Elwin,—

We, your friends and neighbors have gathered here this evening in honor of your marriage which is just past.

We learned of your marriage with feelings of pleasure and we are sincere in our wishes for a very happy married life.

In all our church work you have taken active parts, and have given your time and talents unceasingly, in the choir, in the Sunday school and staunch supporters of the Y. P. U.

Mable, we feel sure that you will be a helpmate worthy of any man. Elwin, we indeed feel that you will make a good husband deserving of a good wife. We are very glad that you will still be making your home at Centenary and we hope you will continue in our young people's work, and so feeling that you are worthy of much more we ask you to accept this gift as a slight token of the esteem and appreciation we have for you.

We again join in wishing you every joy and happiness. May success crown all your efforts and God's richest blessings follow you always.

Signed on behalf of the Pathfinder Class—Gordon Garrison.

Habits Form Nucleus of Education

Let Experience Teach Too-Careless Child, Lisa Grenelle Says

(By LISA GRENELLE)

WHEN MARY, who was four years old, felt thirsty, she was permitted to go to the icebox for a drink of milk. A pint bottle was left where she could reach it, and she learned very quickly to help herself.

But she learned less quickly to put the milk bottle back after she was through—that seemed harder to remember. And she couldn't see much point in even trying to remember, until someone had the bright idea of telling Mary that milk which was left out of the icebox turned nasty and sour.

Proof convinced her that that was true; it cost one pint of milk to find it out. A bottle she had left out turned very sour. It tasted very nasty, indeed; Mary knew because she tried to drink it. Moreover, reach, and nobody to call, so Mary went thirsty and milk-less.

Thirst, like hunger, is an excellent teacher. Mary never again forgot to put the milk back in the icebox. She had learned that milk, and other things, if not kept in a cold place, soon tasted nasty and might even make you sick.

So Mary acquired a great respect for iceboxes. Everything that she wanted to save she stuck in the ice-box—a piece of candy, half an apple and tidbits to be kept for the cat, or her doll. The ice-box was at times cluttered with them, which was a minor nuisonce, but Mother didn't scold Mary, or throw them out. They proved that Mary had really learned something of importance.

If Mary had been scolded, in the beginning, for not remembering to put the milk back in the ice-box, it might have prodded her into remembering occasionally. But it anything, because she'd have seen no reason behind the scolding.

GOOD MANNERS

Hospital Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to the hospital very soon, and I wish you would answer my questions for me.

1—If one patient in a semi-private room (two beds in the room) has guests, should she introduce them to the other patient, if the other patient has no visitors at the time, and should the other patient be included in the conversation?

2—When visitors bring flowers and are thanked by the patient at that time, should a written note be sent, and, if so, should it be sent from the hospital or after the patient goes home?

3—Question two also applies to gifts brought for the baby. When should the letters be written?

~~4—My relatives~~ and close friends will be notified of the baby's birth by telephone as soon as the baby arrives. Should I also send them the formal announcement? I do not want them to feel slighted and I know some of them like to save birth announcements for later reference. Should the announcements be sent while the mother is in the hospital, of after she returns home? If sent from the hospital, or, for that matter, later, what should be done in case of friends who have already called to see the mother and baby? Would the announcement be out of place after they had already called?

R.

1—The polite thing to do would be to introduce your visitor to the other patient in the semi-private room. Not to do this would be socially awkward and ungracious. For the first few minutes (only the first few), the other patietnt would be included in the conversation. Then probably she herself would be thoughtful about returning to her reading, leaving you and your visitor to chat together. If the other patient isn't this thoughtful, you and your visitor can easily and not brusquely, direct the conversation so that you can have your visit together. For after all, your visitor has come to see and talk with you.

2—When visitors bring flowers or other gifts to the patient in a hospital, it is not necessary or expected that the patient also write a note of thanks.

3—Gifts brought for the baby too if they are thanked for personally, needn't be thanked for by note. The notes for gifts that are sent may be written at any time convenient to the patient. Friends will understand that a patient's strength is to be conserved.

4—Yes, people do like to save birth announcements for convenient future reference, and so, in both these cases, I suggest that you send birth announcements. It is a pleasant bow for you to send them, and, as you say, if you don't send them, the relatives and friends might feel slighted.

Church Wedding Garb

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What does one wear to a church wedding at three-thirty in the afternoon?

2—And does one send a gift?

Anna

1—Wear your best-looking day dress with a coat or a suit. The skirt should be street-length. Choose very carefully your hat, gloves and other accessories, so that they combine into an effective ensemble.

2—You send a gift if you wish to and if you are a friend of the couple, or of either one, you will undoubtedly wish to send some gift for the new home. The gift should be sent to the bride-to-be.

When Should "Tails" Be Worn?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be incorrect for ushers to wear "tails" at a wedding that is to be held at five o'clock during the first week of next month? My friend says that it is correct. Please tell me who is mistaken.

Fran

A five o'clock wedding is a day wedding, and, for a formal day wedding, the men in the wedding party wear formal day clothes; cutaway coats, dark striped trousers, and appropriate accessories. Full dress (tails) would be the appropriate attire for the men to wear to a formal wedding held after six o'clock.

At Debaters' Club on Tuesday, after four, Loretta Stark, convener of the Program Committee, presented an interesting report. For our next meeting, we will have Mr. Alan Sprague to speak to us on "Some Principles of Debating." This is to be an open meeting, the rest of the school being welcome. The next few meetings will take the form of a series of debates. After much discussion, partners and opponents were chosen.

Our president, who had been at a Dramatic committee meeting, dropped in at the last to say "Hello" and to relieve the vice-president, Lois Bankier. We then adjourned until next meeting.

The Collegiate Art Club weiner roast was held on Wednesday, Oct. 12th, after school. A jolly group of boys and girls gathered outside the school and proceeded to Zwick's Island on foot and bicycles. It was a fine day and everyone was in excellent spirits. When the hikers arrived, the cyclists had already gathered a large pile of branches and we set to work to help them. Waiting for our genial hostess, Miss Ash, who was transporting the refreshments, everybody had a general confab, recalling other good times. Then Miss Ash arrived with much acclamation by certain members (Phillip F. (?). On her suggestion, we went in separate groups to sketch. Many fine (?) sketches were accomplished. Then one fact impressed itself on us. Oh! were we hungry? (Three guesses). Well, anyhow the weiners disappeared with amazing rapidity (but can you imagine Mary C. having only one lone weiner?) In the meeting which followed, Lois Wilkin was elected president; Betty Skelcher secretary and press agent; Bill Davies, Jim Hunter and Joan Bennett as form representatives. Soon after the meeting, with only one flashlight among five or six cyclists, Miss Ash's car was loaded down with honourable members, one young miss hanging for dear life on the running board. Then with much jollity we sped towards the city.

An informal afternoon tea for women staff members and wives of the staff, held in the living-room of the Domestic Science Practice Apartment on Wednesday, was the occasion of a presentation to Baby Gloria, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Reid, the gift being a white fur carriage rug. Miss Brown presided at the tea-table. After the presentation, made by Miss Priest, Mrs. Reid in a short speech graciously accepted the gift on behalf of her daughter.

Annual Harrier Race

A good athlete will tell you that it is a true test of endurance to finish the Collegiate Harrier course with the majority. Of the seven contestants in Wednesday's race, seven finished—an excellent record.

Starting at the Collegiate the runners cover a distance of three and one half miles in a rough circle to the north of the Collegiate. They go down Belleville streets to the C.N.R. freight depot, across the county bridge through rough fields and rougher roads, north of the Prince of Wales School, the old Albert College, and King George School, across the Coleman Flats, and then back to the Collegiate by way of the Church Street hill.

Gordon Griffin finished in first place, leading Bill Pigden by twenty yards. Neil Babcock finished in third place and Gerald Spafford in fourth.—C. T.

The Young Thespians have again begun to function under the able leadership of Miss Merry and have one play already under production. This is a three-act play, "Journey's End", and is to be presented in the near future.

The newly elected officers of the club are:—

President— Gerald Atyeo, Secretary— Bill Bush, Treasurer—Stewart McBride.

Obituary

MRS. J. C. FERGUSON
Peiping, China

A message received from Peiping, China, conveys the intimation that Mrs. Ferguson, wife of Dr. John C. Ferguson of that city, has passed away.

Mrs. Ferguson had been in failing health the past two or three years and her demise was therefore not unexpected.

The remains will be brought to Mrs. Ferguson's former home at Newton, Mass., for interment.

Dr. and Mrs. Ferguson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home at Peiping in the summer of 1937. On October 5, 1937 they also celebrated the 50th anniversary of their arrival in China, where Dr. Ferguson first went as a missionary representing the American Presbyterian Church and where he was to enter upon a brilliant career in the public life of China. He became the founder of a university in that country, founder of an English language daily newspaper, and for many years was confidential adviser and diplomat at large for the Chinese government.

Dr. Ferguson is well known at Belleville. He is a son of the late Rev. John Ferguson who filled many pastorates in this vicinity and who passed away at Belleville some years ago. Dr. Ferguson was educated at Albert College and after graduation migrated to the United States and from there to China.

CZECH

that he knew he could get Sudeten, but had no idea how this would be accomplished. The shock of Austria being annexed by Germany last Spring turned all eyes to this part of the world. There was deep feeling of uncertainty concerning Great Britain's attitude that finally was declared as envisaging certain conditions in Central Europe, which might make her intervention possible.

The Sudetens continued to press the Czech government for many things. Germany and Czechoslovakia found it increasingly difficult to bridge these demands. The crisis was reached at the great Nazi demonstration in Germany in September when Hitler in his most belligerent speech, asked no more than that the rights of the Germans in Czechoslovakia be recognized. He did not dare put his real purpose into words.

As the world became increasingly nervous, all sorts of border incidents were provoked by Henlein so that it might be said that Czechoslovakia was unable to maintain order. The accelerated feelings of unrest and the stepped up demands led to the series of meetings between Hitler and Chamberlain, and finally to the Munich Pact. The outcome of that pact has been summarized by a leading journalist as three cornered; the victor is Germany, the victim is Czechoslovakia; Czechoslovakia has ceased to be and the gateway to the East and the avenue to world power is open to Germany.

Hard Hit Territorially

Czechoslovakia has been hard hit territorially and strategically, but her loss in economics is far greater. Over seventy per cent of her industrial advantages were located in the territory Germany has now taken over. These included the yearly output of twenty million tons of "brown" coal, fifty million tons of bituminous coal, of radium mines, and it will be remembered that it was from this part of Europe, that Madame Currie obtained the chemicals which led her to develop radium, factories of every kind, and three health resorts bringing crowds of tourists each year. Those who cannot stay in the Sudeten territory lose property, stocks, and effects in an amount approaching one hundred million dollars. The exodus of from 100 to 150 thousand homeless people into Prague provides, also an enormous unrest, unsettlement and impoverishment.

Moreover the "pact" of Munich consummated under such duress and without previous contemplation by the Ambassadors' Committee has left unsettled such questions as the fate of Czechoslovakia with it power plant lost to Germany, its telephonic communications disrupted, questions which seem small but which put altogether become voluminous documents of objections.

Resignation Regretted

The resignation of Dr. Benes, described by Mrs. Davidson, as possessing great qualities of statesmanship, qualities more satisfactory than those of any other post war statesmen and his declaration that he still maintained the cause of democracy and hopes for his country's future were discussed by the speaker. With him went three things, the possibility of settling differences by arbitration, the place of small nations in the world of today, the possibility of collective security for years to come.

Yet the case of democracy must not be abandoned. Democracy has as its tenets, rule by the majority, belief in decentralization, liberal attitude of mind and of heart, opposition to tyranny.

A true democrat must have the will to change conditions, must endorse government interference if it is for the general welfare, must learn to recognize the needs of social legislation. The democrat has to be awake. People, and especially children must be educated to their responsibilities as democrats confronted as they are with the consistent and relentless propoganda of other forms of government.

Sincere appreciation of Mrs. Davidson's address was expressed by Mrs. Wright, who also made several announcements of interest to members.

FIRE MENACE

east of Fort Frances, Chief Fire Ranger William Darby sent a special freight car there with 5,000 feet of hose, two fire pumps and a relay tank.

Equipment was sent by hand car to Crilly, site of one dam of the Manitoba and Ontario Power Company which supplies power to Fort Frances. A large construction gang working on the dam fought the fire and reported it under control last night.

A fresh outbreak near the town of Devlin, 15 miles west of Fort Frances, was under control after residents made a gallant and successful effort to save the United Church building, standing on a hilltop. Volunteer workers established huge backfire guards and the Church and village were believed safe.

Settlers Removed

In Kingsford Township, 40 miles northwest, settlers were removed from the Off Lake and Clearwater Lake districts as officials feared spread of outbreaks there. Fires were fanned into renewed life in Dance Township yesterday but little further damage can be done in that area, already burned over.

The 10 persons in hospital here were in slightly improved condition last night. Most seriously ill, 13-year-old Burdine Labell still fights against burns and pneumonia. Burdine lost her mother and four sisters in the fire on Monday. Seven other members of the Labelle family died and eight are in hospital. None will lose their eyesight, a danger feared earlier.

Plan Rehabilitation

Relief authorities are planning rehabilitation of homeless settlers.

M. K. Morrison of Port Arthur, directing relief administration will request the forestry branch to make a survey of fire-swept districts as soon as men can be spared. Later an agricultural survey will be made to determine feasibility of rehabilitating refugees on homesteads they vacated.

Morrison said last night 22 families of refugees are in Fort Frances, 30 women and children are being cared for at Emo, 40 miles west, and 75 women and children are billeted in a large farm house and the community hall at Stratton, 25 miles west.

Stories of great loss, great courage and patient resignation are many.

"After all, it was home," whispered Mrs. D. K. Robson as she choked back tears and turned away from her farm house in Kingsford Township.

Family Moves by Truck

Mrs. Robson and her six small children set out by truck for Fort Frances and safety while behind them her husband and neighbors battled in a last desperate effort to save the farm buildings.

The Robsons moved to the Kingsford Township homestead from a prairie farm just a year ago and were "beginning to make a go of things."

"Then this had to happen," said Mrs. Robson, "It's hard to leave you know but I had to for the sake of the children. The fire is awfully close."

OTHER NEWS ITEMS

Trenton, October 14—A blaze believed to have resulted from an overheated stove almost completely gutted the frame residence of Geo. Benns on the corner of McGill and McLellan streets late yesterday afternoon when in the absence of members of the household it gained such headway that firemen arriving a few moments later were unable to save more than the shell of the building. Of frame construction and covered with tarred paper the home went up in a hurry, and few of the effects were saved. According to report, members of the family had stepped out for a few moments to a neighboring store leaving a fire in the stove, and upon return found the interior ablaze. Firemen raced to the scene at once but little could be done. Damage, unofficially estimated at $1500.00, is said to be partially covered by insurance.

Brick Work Started

Walls of the new College St. school are soaring these days as workmen are now well up on the second storey. Spacious steel-framed windows show the most modern construction trend, and a maximum of light and comfort is assured, when the building is complete. Daily groups of interested citizens gather to watch the gradual rise of a structure which is certainly long overdue east of the river, and parents and teachers particularly are fervent in their thanks to the groups in the town who worked to secure the much-needed school to replace the old one. The present school is said to have been erected some sixty-five years ago and has been the "seat of learning" for many of Trenton's most famous sons and daughters.

The cost of the new school is estimated by Mayor Harry Cory as about $101,000.00, with an additional $11,000. for architect's fees and equipment.

The New Commandant

Beginning today Trenton Air Station officially is under the command of a new high official, Wing Commander A. A. L. Cuffe of Vancouver succeeding Group Captain A. E. Godfrey, M. C., A. F. C., V. D., as Commanding Officer of Canada's largest air station. Since the announcement some weeks ago of the selection of Group Captain Godfrey to attend the Imperial Defense College at London, England, some time early next year rumours have been rife as to the identity of his probable successor; but not until a few days ago was the prospect of the change made public.

Wing Commander Cuffe comes to Trenton from Vancouver Air Station, where he has been commanding officer for the past two years. Prior to that time he has seen service at Camp Borden for four years as commanding officer there, at the Department of National Defense headquarters in Ottawa as assistant director for three years, at the Royal Air Force Staff College at Andover, England, for one year, as Canadian liaison officer in London, England, for one year, and in many other places. The new commanding officer is an official of wide experience and qualification, and already many favorable reports have come from Vancouver here indicating that he will be a very popular commanding officer.

Meanwhile a host of friends of Group Captain and Mrs. Godfrey will be sorry to see them leave. Speaking to the Ontario Intelligencer in his office on Monday of this week, just prior to the transfer of command, Group Captain Godfrey stated, that as yet he had no official word of his trip to Britain to attend the Imperial Defense College there. His name had appeared as being one of those chosen to take the course commencing in January of 1939 he said, but for the present he will report back to headquarters in Ottawa and will hold himself in readiness for any service until official word of the trip to London comes through.

Won High Esteem

During his three-year stay in Trenton, Group Captain Godfrey has won high esteem as a most capable and an always obliging R.C.A.F. official. His interest in civic affairs has been keen, and citizens of Trenton have been indebted to him on many occasions for the assistance and support of the R.C.A.F. members and of the band during various local celebrations such as the staging of the Coronation Day parade a year and a half ago. Among sportsmen he was highly regarded, and his unfailing support of hockey, rugby, softball and other R.C.A.F. sports raised him high in the esteem of members of the force. His departure is much to be regretted, and only the fact that Wing Commander Cuffe bids fair to similarly establish himself in local esteem adds consolation to the hundreds, who regret the transfer of Group Captain Godfrey and Mrs. Godfrey.

Workmen are hurrying the erection on Dundas St. west of new places of business for J. G. Aziz, and W. H. Ireland. On both sites foundations have been laid and the workmen expect to really get under way ere the week is done.

School children of local public schools were given an extra bit of leisure time on Tuesday afternoon when both boys and girls of Dufferin and College St. schools met at Bayshore Park to stage their annual inter-school softball games for points in the Weddell Trophy competition. Unfortunately for westside supporters who saw their hopes raised on field day when Dufferin came within fifteen points of the College St. total, the east-siders took both engagements by healthy margins, and only a miracle apparently can now turn the tide of victory, and with it the possession of the cup, back to Dufferin school.

Apple Picking in Full Swing

Apple picking is in full swing at orchards along the York Road and near Trenton in a half dozen other directions, and growers report a good bear with a heavy loss sustained from the wind of a few weeks past which dropped many of the early varieties. One grower at Albury is reported to have had eight hundred barrels of apples lying on the ground after that storm, and it is a blessing that in spite of the storm the crop still is good.

Teachers of the town attended convention in Belleville on Thursday of last week and were guests on Friday at the Air Station as the members of the inspectorate were taken through the grounds under the direction of officials. Incidentally several local teachers were named to executive posts, among them being Misses M. Martin and M. Haffey. Murray township teachers apparently did more working than playing at their convention, and spent a half day in Campbellford and another in teaching at various schools. A report from one of them states that under the direction of Inspector A. A. Martin of Brighton they are being divided into syndicates or groups so that during the coming winter they may work at various projects.

OVERFLOW CROWD FOR VARSITY VS McGILL SQUABBLE

Winners of This Tilt Will Temporarily Head Intercollegiate

2 GAMES IN DOUBT

Balmy Beach Squad Should Down Peterboro Orfuns Handily

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

They are dusting off the extra bleacher seats in Toronto's Varsity stadium and getting ready for an overflow crowd when the Redmen from McGill invade the U. of T's home grounds Saturday. A Toronto-McGill football clash hasn't attracted such interest in several seasons

It's all because the Reds and Blues seem to be the class of the Intercollegiate Union and, on paper at least, they should provide the outstanding game on the east's schedule this week-end. The result will decide leadership of the college circuit.

Only the result of two other games are in doubt as the section swings into the second week's play with McGill and Toronto tied for the college lead, Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts heading the Interprovincial Union and Sarnia Imperials and Montreal Nationals atop the Ontario Union senior series.

Little Chance for Change

Chances are small for a change in the Big Four standing. Riders, runaway victors over Montreal Cubs last week, move into Hamilton against the inexperienced Tigers while Argos, who started defence of the Union championship with a 21-7 win over Tigers, tackle the Cubs. Neither of last week's victors should encounter much difficulty in winning again, paving the way for a "crucial" two-game series between themselves starting a week from Saturday.

Ranking below only the McGill-Toronto clash in interest to the section as a whole, Imperials play hosts to Nationals in a game designed to provide the first real test for the Ontario Union's newest contender. If Nationals, led by burly Johnny Ferraro, can defeat the seven-time O.R.F.U. champions, they will be given serious consideration for sectional honors.

Beaches Get Call

Despite Nationals lop-sided victory over Peterborough Orfuns in their first start, while Impeials were held to an 8-6 win over Toronto Balmy Beach, the champions will start as favorites to overcome the Montrealers on Hugh Stirling's booting and their general heavy offensive. Meanwhile, Balmy are conceded a wide edge over Orfuns. They will play at Peterborough.

The third game in which the result is a toss-up, besides the featured attractions, is Queen's and University of Western Ontario at London. The champion Tri-Color showed defensive strength for three quarters in losing to Toronto last week while Western never were far behind McGill, losing 4-1. Both teams have been concentrating on line play during the week's practice and the result may be decided on the work of the punters, Jack Brown for Queen's and Lyn Thompson and Jack Kennedy for Western.

DUTTON'S AMERKS ENJOY WORKOUT

Body-Checking, However, Is Taboo In The Drill

Saskatoon, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP) — Manager Red Dutton sent New York Americans through a tough, two-hour practice session here yesterday with everything in the workout except body-checking. Dutton gave the players orders to "lay off" that for the present.

Earl Robertson and Alfie Moore worked in the nets with Al Murray, Joe Jerwa, Wilf Field and Pat Egan, Nelson Amateur, on defence. Dutton also moved Joe Benoit, Trail Smoke Easter winger, up among his professionals for worout on the forward lines.

McLAIN DEFEATS ROBERT WAGNER

Deciding Fall Gained By Favorite Flying Tackle

Toronto, Oct. 14 (CP)—Mayes McLain, claimant to the world heavyweight wrestling title, last night won two of three falls in his match with Strangler Wagner of Portland, Ore. The former Oklahoma University football star gained the deciding fall by use of his favorite flying tackle.

Ted Cox, the former masked marvel, whom McLain defeated and unmasked to gain title recognition hereabouts, entered the ring accompanied by a still-masked manager. Then the former "hooded horror" who comes from Arizona, proceeded to pin Wee Willie Davis shoulder stand.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)— Some queer things are happening out there in that Minnesota football powerhouse....Bernie Bierman has a 217-pound fullback (Larry Buhler) playing right half and running the ends....Wilbur Moore, born and bred a right-half, is playing left and tearing the tackles apart for amazing yardage....Bierman has a converted fullback — George Faust—playing quarter and oh yes, just for a change, fullback Marty Christianson is playing fullback.... There is a hard-boiled hockey defence man (Mariucci) with a lot of body checking talent playing one end, and a basketball hot-shot guard (Butch Nash) playing the other....Guards play tackle and tacklers play guard.

Baseball gossipers have Burleigh Grimes catching on at Rochester and Jimmy Wilson at Buffalo .... Just to show you how Bill McKechnie feels about his second base problem, he has offered Lines Frey, Wally Berger and a promising kid catcher, Will Hershberger, to Boston for the aging Tony Cuccinello.. The Messrs. Bill Terry and Larry MacPhail didn't almost square off against each other during the world series, did they?....All because Brooklyn drafted a pitcher (Ross Eans) Terry had bought for Jersey City?....Anyway, their feud is at the "berling pernt," as they say in Brooklyn.

Ernie Lombardi of the Reds won the National League batting championship with a pair of sprained and tightly taped wrists during the last three weeks of the season.... They were so swollen the club doctor told him to quit and go home.. Old Ernie stuck and won the title with a mark of .342....Most baseball men think Ray Schalk already has signed to manage St. Louis Browns.

CHICAGO HAWKS MINUS MANAGER

Chicago, Oct. 14 (AP)—The world champion Chicago Black Hawks, who battled out of almost nowhere to win the Stanley Cup last season, left yesterday for Champaign, Ill., where they will train for the 1938-39 National Hockey League season.

Player-Coach Paul Thompson led the squad of twenty-one and will have charge of conditioning for two weeks. Manager Bill Stewart is recuperating from an appendectomy in Dorchester, Mass.

LAUGHING LARRY APPOINTS LIPPY LEO DODGER BOSS

Larry McPhail, LEFT, the man who put the lights and Babe Ruth in the Brooklyn Dodger ball park (and incidentally pulled in a couple of hundred thousand extra customers) shakes hands with Leo (Lippy) Durocher, after he had announced the latter's appointment as manager of the Dodgers for 1939. Durocher, acclaimed one of the greatest fielding short-stops of all time, was captain of the team last year and his promotion makes him the second youngest manager in the majors, Joe Cronin, of Boston Red Sox, having a one-year margin. Incidentally, under the new regime the aforementioned Mr. Ruth moves out into the cold again, along with last year's boss, Burleigh Grimes.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

Frank Tunney, secretary of the Queensbury Athletic Club and Jack Corcoran's field man of the wrestling racket in Canada, dropped in on us early this week to enquire as to the local sport conditions here. "What's this I hear about Belleville divorcing itself from general sporting activities?" Frank asked us and we were forced to admit he might have something there, especially the indifference that has been shown towards sporting activitis in Belleville of a recent date. Practically every line of sport has felt the heel of indifference in this city. (Incidentally we are referring to sport at which public attendance is necessary to have it function). Just why this disregard of such sport locally we are not prepared to openly state at this time, but it is a generally accepted fact. Put softball inside an enclosed field in this city and see the falling off of patrons. Eddie Thomas has taken a financial beating at hockey for years, those behind baseball also have gone in the red, while boxing and wrestling are out of the question from any promoter's viewpoint, but the worst blow of all came when the local football was forced to turn thumbs down on a proposed exhibition game with a senior grid squad as the possible attraction. "What price sport" can well be hurled in our faces.

Getting back to Mr. Tunney who was accompanied by one of the largest bulks of humanity we ever saw outside a circus sideshow, one Wee Willie Davis, it might be stated, that the Queensbury A.C. could be induced to return big time wrestling to Belleville, but only if increased interest is shown. "We can assure your wrestling fans of such men as Willie Davis, Ted "King Kong" Cox, former world's champion, Ray Steele, George Zaharias and others," assured Frank as he introduced Davis, who extended a hand that was honestly as large as one of Harry Green's mammoth "T" bone steaks and when he finished shaking our petite mitt it writhed with pain. (And we had to take it and (smile). The Queensbury A.C. promote wrestling shows in Montreal and Ottawa and as we understand it the grapplers pass through Belleville enroute to these points and would gladly stop over to break there journey in this city for the odd wrestling show, if it was found sufficiently profitable.

A real innovation has been put in force at the Recreation bowling alley, which will tend to speed up games and have the players ready to play at the advertised time. If a league game is to start at say nine o'clock a whistle is blown and play commences with the players on hand at that time. In ten minutes another whistle is blown and if one of the players have arrived in that time he will be allowed to bowl the frames to cath up, but when the second whistle is blown and all the players are not present, the team will be handicapped with a John Doe, which is the lowest game score of the opposition. Practically every night bowlers are on hand on time for their scheduled matches but some members of the team hold up the parade by turning up late. This new scheme will have a real effect on starting games on time and prove of mutual benefit to all concerned and a boom to the game in general.

Remember, 'way back when school opened and the kids, who had gone bare-footed all summer, found they couldn't get into last year's shoes ...and the White Sox won a flag on six hits a game?

There's plenty of zip in the camp of Archie Duffield's youthful Panthers these nights. The Panthers realize the importance of their scheduled tilt with the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" at the Airport on Saturday. The 'Airmen' and the Panthers got off to a poor start on opening day, both losing so it naturally stands to reason that both squads are endeavouring to refrain from dropping into sole possession of the cellar position by virtue of a possible loss on Saturday. Lack of condition was a large factor in the Panthers' initial defeat although the better squad won when the "Army boys" trounced the locals. However, the youthful Duffieldites held the sturdy Garrison well for 30 minutes and have been out to practice ever night this week in preparation for the forthcoming Flyer tilt. Louie Lecompte, of Flyer hockey fame, is doing the booting for the Airmen this season, Laurie Gibson their previous punting star, being on leave in Ottawa. Coach Eddie Schrieder has induced a couple of veterans to return to the local line for Saturday's game, he says.

Having batted a thousand in our last week's football selection we shove out our chin again, so don't say we didn't warn you with the following selections: Intercollegiate: Varsity over McGill; Western over Queen's (close); Interprovincial: Argos should beat Montreal right in Molson Stadium; while the Ottawa Roughriders should take Hamilton in Tigertown; (both of these selections call the home team to lose and are we asking for it?) in the senior O.R.F.U.: Balmy Beach to smother Peterboro, and Sarnia to bet Montreal handily.

The standing of the local group of the O.R.F.U. reads:

	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Garrison ..	1	0	31	6	2
Cobourg ...	1	0	14	0	2
Belleville ..	0	1	6	31	0
R.C.A.F. ..	0	1	0	14	0

Canadiens Practice With New Haven

Montreal, Oct. 14 (CP)—Montreal's lone entry in the coming National Hockey League season, Canadiens, will abandon gymnasium drill and step out for their first ice workout Saturday, Manager Cecil Hart announced today.

The Flying Frenchmen, bolstered by the acquisition of six players from the disbanded Montreal Maroons, will stage a "pick-up game" among themselves in their initial skating venture, said Hart.

Then their ice practices will be combined with those of New Haven Eagles. International - American League squad now managed by Pete Lepine, long a Canadiens' star forward.

About thirty-five players are in training in the Frenchmen's camp just now, including Marcel Tremblay from Flin Flon, Man. A number of last year's Canadiens were to talk contracts with President Ernie Savard today.

GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

Make Yourself Comfortable

Sixteen of the world's best golfers have one thing in common, a comfortable body position for putting. Included in this group are such outstanding performers on the greens as Johnny Revolta, Horton Smith, Paul Runyan and Harry Cooper. Each of them uses different body positions, and few of them use the same grip or stance.

HAVE BODY IN COMFORTABLE POSITION FOR PUTTING!

To be sure you can see many points on which they differ as you go over their respective methods of putting, but as I watched them in a recent tournament I looked for the points on which they were alike, the points which the average payer might accept as fundamental and of value to him. One of these main points is this matter of having the body in a comfortable position. As each expert would take his position over the ball his first move would be to settle his body into a position of comfort, one that found him sort of sitting down to the ball.

Only after such a position was obtained did he go on with the business of stroking the ball. The result is simply this: the comfort of the body makes possible a smooth putting stroke. Very often you are forced to jab at the ball because lack of body comfort prompts you to get the stroke over in a hurry. You should make it a point to settle into the sitting position over the ball before starting the clubhead back.

Australia Takes Over Cruiser

Devonport, England, Oct. 14 — (CP-Havas)—Stanley Bruce, Australian High Commissioner in London, presided today at a ceremony here in which the 7,000-ton cruiser Apollo was handed over to the Royal Australian Navy. The cruiser, armed with eight six-inch guns and four four-inch anti-aircraft guns, was re-christened the Hobart in honor of the capital of Tasmania.

The vessel was the one selected to bring back to England the body of Ramsay MacDonald, who died at sea last year while en route to South America. It was subsequently purchased by Australia. An Australian crew headed by Captain R. R. Stewart has been on board for a fortnight.

GUARD BORDER FOR BANDITS

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP) — Privincial Police concentrated today in guarding the border area as they stretched a traffic patrol net to capture two bank bandits who yesterday robbed the Royal Bank of Canada at Mount Brydges near London and escaped with $4,000.

Police worked on the theory the two were experienced United States bandits who entered Canada at Windsor.

Produce Continues Firm

Toronto, Oct. 14.—Continued light offerings sent top-grade eggs still higher and gave another fillip to butter prices on the local produce market yesterday.

Less available current supplies with the declining production, no offerings out of storage in view of present low-price levels and traders' demand to fill their immediate needs combined to lift prices on the butter market. Trading was not heavy, but it was sufficient to readily absorb the light arrivals for fresh receipts. Ontario creamery solids generally sold for 23c for No. 1 grades and 22 1-4c for 38 score. Prints advanced in sympathy with solids, top grades ranging at 24 1-4c to 25c, and 38 score at 23 3-4c to 24 1-4c.

Scarcity in receipts of top grades boosted prices on these grades a full cent per dozen on the egg market. Dealers state that sales through retail channels are holding up well despite upswing in quotations. Ungraded eggs changed hands at 37c for grade A-large, and 36c for medium, while undergrades were unchanged. The retail section of the market rose accordingly. Graded shipments cleared at 40c for grade A-large, 39c for medium, 30c to 31c for pullets, 26c for B's, and 21c to 22c for C grades.

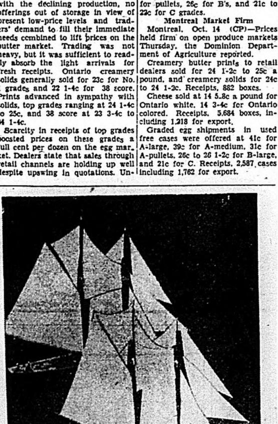
Montreal Market Firm

Montreal, Oct. 14 (CP)—Prices held firm on open produce markets Thursday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24 1-2c to 25c a pound, and creamery solids for 24c to 24 1-2c. Receipts, 882 boxes.

Cheese sold at 14 5-8c a pound for Ontario white, 14 3-4c for Ontario colored. Receipts, 5,684 boxes, including 1,218 for export.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 41c for A-large, 39c for A-medium, 31c for A-pullets, 26c to 26 1-2c for B-large, and 21c for C. Receipts, 2,587 cases including 1,762 for export.



The schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud and Bluenose presented a pretty picture as they drifted side by side during the second of the series of races for the International Fishermen's Trophy. The race was cancelled due to lack of wind when neither boat finished within the time limit set for the race. The Thebaud has a slight lead on the Bluenose. ABOVE, as the crafts drifted out to sea on the first leg of the race.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)—Utilities, coppers and specialties breasted profit taking waves in today's market which shook down industrial leaders fractions to more than a point.

The list frequently boiled over in the forenoon as buyers and sellers battled for position and the ticker tape occasionally was late. The pace steadied subsequently. Near the fourth hour there was a come-back among the most depressed motors and steels ,but recessions still predominated.

Transfers were at the rate of approximately 1,900,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 14—(CP)— The price level of practically all groups simmered down on the Stock Exchange today under moderate profit-taking and all indices were narrowly lower at noon. Trading was only moderately active and turnover in the first three hours reached only 485,000 shares. In selling off the list trailed the New York market.

National Steel car dropped 3 1-2 and general weakness ruled in the Steel, Paper, Utility and miscellaneous groups. Foods held better and Laura Secord sold at a new high for the year.

Losses were narrow in the mining section. Nickel and Noranda weakened about a half point and Waite-Amulet lost twenty cents. Soft spots in the Golds included MacLeod-Cockshutt, Uchi, Powell-Rouyn and Moneta.

Western oils were slow. Calgary-Edmonton, Okalta and Anglo-Canadian slipped back 1 to 3 cents and Home was up a cent or two.

Edward Keith-Roach, British district governor of Jerusalem, who escaped with his life when four bombs were hurled at the automobile in which he was riding, by assassins on the old city wall in Jerusalem. This attempted assassination and another battle of British troops against Arab outposts marked the bitter dispute in Palestine among Arabs, Jews and British authorities who are attempting to restore order.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The majority in the Street are confident that the market is headed much higher over the immediate weeks ahead, and that technical setbacks will be of minor proportions. This optimistic attitude has permeated the even more conservative quarters, and it would appear as if business is in line for improvement to bear out these bullish opinions.

On the other hand, if experience in Canada's automobile industry duplicates that of the United States, September output will be somewhat lower than the previous month. Early reports from the United States and Canada indicate that the new models are being enthusiastically received by the public. The real test, though, for the automobile industry will not come until after the November Motor Shows.

The trend of least resistance at the moment is upward and it has always been a wise policy for traders not to buck the trend. So long as no danger signals develop, profit taking should not be accepted, as no one can foretell how high stocks will go on the present momentum of public demand.

Lady for Shanghai

—By—

Kaye Fox

He hesitated only for a brief moment. His face was impassive, but Christine knew that he was making up his mind whether it would be best to deny all knowledge of Martin Royde and Fay, or to be as helpful as possible. Perhaps some dim idea that he might find himself mixed up in trouble with the shipping company made him decide to be frank.

"They have gone for a drive through the jungle in one of the hotel cars, and they are coming back to dinner at ten o'clock," he said. "Naturally, we did not know that they were passengers from the Hay Tor, or we would have warned them about sailing time. But I will tell them myself, madam, the moment that they return—your mind can be at rest about that."

"I should prefer to wait," she said. "They may return too late to get to the ship in time."

"And the young lady has no friends in Penang?—ah, I understand you, madam," he said suavely. "You will have coffee while you wait?"

A silent-footed waiter brought coffee and cigarettes to the little table at which Christine established herself, close to the door. Because the clerk at the desk was watching her, she forced herself to appear very calm and collected, and not to glance too often at the big clock over the desk, but it was difficult to keep her eyes away from that clock, at the hands which seemed to be moving round the dial at incredible speed.

If Fay and Martin Royde did not come back until ten o'clock could they possibly get to the ship before ten thirty? Even if they did, only by the most amazing luck could Christine herself get on board unobserved, since in the half hour before sailing time the gangway would be crowded and the quartermaster would be most unlikely to leave his post.

But she could not worry now about herself or her own future. As the minutes passed, she was wondering whether Martin Royde had changed his plans—perhaps, while she was waiting here for them they were in some other part of Penang and she would never be able to find them. Though they had gone for a drive in one of the hotel cars, it was quite possible that they had been put down somewhere, instead of coming back to the Palm Tree.

"Would you mind finding out whether the car has returned?" she asked the clerk, at a quarter to ten.

"It has not returned," he said. "The chauffeur would have 'phoned through from the garage if he had come back alone."

Almost as he spoke, a big blue car drew up in front of the hotel steps, and Martin Royde and Fay got out. Christine ran down the steps to meet them, and she saw Fay turn deadly pale at sight of her, and give a little gasp of dismay.

"Mr. Royde," Christine said swiftly, "one of the passengers overheard you telling Miss Lind that the ship sailed at midnight—she only discovered after she got back to the ship that you had made a mistake over the time. The ship sails in a little over half an hour."

"Are you sure of that?" Fay asked, pulling herself together. "Martin, you went and looked at the notice board and came straight back to us—you can't have been mis-en."

"Look at the notice board yourself, Miss Lind," Christine said "Be quick—there's no time to lose."

THE "MISTAKE" EXPOSED

Fay ran up the steps and along a short passage to the notice board, and Martin Royde stared at Christine.

"By Jove," he said, "you're the stewardess—the very same stewardess who came to the cabin de luxe one night with a message about my gramophone. I thought I recognized you—and that you were not a passenger."

"Martin—it is 10.30," Fay cried, running back to them. "It's written as plainly as possible on a notice headed 'Hay Tor Sailing Time. Notice To All Passengers.' I don't see how you can have made a mistake."

"I'm most desperately sorry, Fay," he said. "There are several notices on that board, and I must have looked at the wrong one—the one I read simply stated that the ship sailed at midnight, and was on the shipping agent's letter paper. I don't think it gave the name of the ship."

There was no time for Fay to go back to see whether there really was such a notice. The proprietor of the Palm Tree, who was hovering in the background, had prevented the chauffeur from driving away, and now Martin Royde and Fay and Christine hurried to the waiting car. They had just half an hour in which to reach the ship.

For a long time not one of them spoke. Fay leant back in her corner, her face very pale and her eyes bewildered, and Christine knew that she was trying to make up her mind whether Royde really had made a mistake. Perhaps, if Christine had not been there, Royde would have made some further attempts to defend himself, but as it was, he left her alone.

It seemed to Christine that she had never driven in a slower car than that big blue car which looked so powerful, and that no traffic had ever been more congested than the traffic in the narrow streets through which they passed. At one place a native cart, drawn by a wretched horse, had overturned in the middle of the road, and their car came to a standstill behind a block of cars, taxis and bicycles, wtih a man pushing a wheelbarrow just in front of it.

"Stewardess," Martin Royde said, leaning forward to speak to Christine, "tell me—it was Mrs. Smythe who overheard my remark to Miss Lind about sailing time? There was no other passenger present, as far as I remember."

"Yes—it was Mrs Smythe," she admitted.

He would conclude, of course, that Doria had developed conscience qualms at the last minute, or that she had given him away out of sheer spite, but Doria herself would tell him later exactly what had happened. There was no reason for Christine to pretend that she had got her information from someone else.

"And she sent you ashore? It is not generally known amongst the passengers that Miss Lind and I risked missing the ship—if indeed, we have not already missed it?"

"No one knows except Mrs. Smythe and her friend, Mrs. Collins."

Royde hesitated for a moment and went on: "Stewardess, you are experienced enough to know that if this story gets about it will be greatly exaggerated, and it may even be suggested that I deliberately made a mistake over sailing time. I'm not worrying about my own reputation, but Miss Lind is a young girl, going out alone to Shanghai and if she is mixed up in a scandal ——"

"The story will not get about through me," she said, "but I may have to make a report to the Chief Steward ,to explain my absence from the ship."

"I can deal with the Chief Steward—and with Mrs. Smythe and her friend," he said easily. "And I will make it worth your while, stewardess, to mention this matter to no passenger——"

"I am not taking any money from you, Mr. Royde," she said, and there was such anger in her quiet voice that Royde flushed a dull red and leant back in his seat. He must have guessed, of course, that Christine knew perfectly well that he had tried to trick Fay into staying in Penang with him.

Christine glanced at Fay, who was staring at the people in the street ,and who seemed to have taken no notice at all of the talk between her sister and Royde. Fay still looked bewildered and a little frightened, but it was impossible to tell what she was thinking about, for she was watching the busy scene as though she was wholly absorbed in it.

"We'll never get there in time," Fay said suddenly, turning her head and meeting Christine's eyes.

"We still have a quarter of an hour," Christine pointed to the illuminated face of a clock on a tall building .

And at that moment the car began to move forward slowly, though it seemed an eternity before they were clear of the block, and in the long street which led to the wharf at which the Hay Tor was berthed. As soon as the car stopped at the wharf, Royde jumped out to pay the Malay driver, and Christine and Fay got out together.

"Christine," Fay said hurriedly, under her breath, "will it all have to come out—I mean about our being sisters?"

"If I can get on board without being seen, nothing need come out, and if I don't—well, I shall lose my job, but it'll be a staff matter, and the passengers won't know anything about it. You go on ahead with Mr. Royde, and I'll follow."

Up to the very last, Christine had hoped that sailing time would be delayed, after all, for it was quite usual for a ship to sail half-an-hour or more after the hour at which passengers had been warned to be on board. But one glance at the Hay Tor told her that the Captain meant to get away dead on time, for already men were standing at the gangway pulley-ropes, waiting for the order to haul up.

She paused for a few moments in the shadow of a warehouse, to give Royde and Fay time to go on ahead, for she did not want it to be obvious to anyone at the head of the gangway that she had been with them. Royde, after one swift glance at her, clearly understood what her intention was, for he took Fay's arm and walked towards the gangway with a very casual air.

"We've run it pretty fine this time, quartermaster," Christine heard him call up, and the man answered: "You have sir—two minutes later, and we'd have sailed without you."

As Christine went forward, knowing that she would have to go up the gangway alone, and that she would certainly be recognized, two cars drove up to the wharf with horns sounding furiously, and half-a-dozen of the Hay Tor passengers tumbled out of them. They were all strangers to Christine, for the two girls in the party came from Mrs. Parr's section, and they were far too excited to notice her, for they were all chattering about the clock in the hotel, half-an-hour slow, which had nearly caused them to miss the ship.

Christine was close behind them when they made a rush for the gangway, so close behind that she hoped it would look as though she was one of the party. She slipped past the quartermaster with her head bent, and once through the companion-way it was easy to slip away unobserved from the group of passengers who had come on board with her, and to hurry down the deserted alley-way to the bathroom.

When she strolled into her own cabin, a few minutes later, Mrs. Parr was still playing patience and Miss Crane knitting.

"Been sitting with that child again, I suppose?" Mrs. Parr said to Christine, looking up from her cards.

CHAPTER XI.

AFTERMATH OF ADVENTURE

"Christine, did you go completely crazy last night?" Arthur Grant asked her, too worried to remember that Edwards might hear him call her by her Christian name.

They had met in the alley-way, when Christine came up from the pantry with her tray of fruit, first thing in the morning.

"Why—what do you mean?" she faltered.

"It's all over the ship that you were ashore last night, and came on board just before sailing time. Is it true, Christine? That quartermaster, Smithson, put the story round, and you know what he is—always ready to start a scandal about someone."

"It is true," she said, "but I thought he did not recognize me. He didn't say anything when I came up the gangway."

"He's said a mighty lot since, and he's absolutely certain to report to Perrin. Oh, Christine, what possessed you to do it? Here's Perrin been trying to find a reason for sacking you, all the voyage, and you've handed him one on a dish. You can't have been all that anxious to have a look at Penang."

"I can't explain all in a hurry, Arthur," she said. "I found out something last night which made it necessary to go ashore, but I can't tell you all about it now."

"You'll have to explain to Perrin—though you may as well save your breath, for Perrin isn't going to lose this chance of sacking you. Going ashore without leave is just about as good as reason as he could have for reporting you to the Liverpool office as insubordinate. In fact, I shouldn't wonder if he hauled you up before the Captain, just by way of a start."

"You needn't be so—angry with me, Arthur," she said unhappily for Grant sounded furious.

"I am angry—because I like you, Christine, and I've been hoping you'd struggle through the voyage somehow, in spite of Perrin, and get a transfer at the end of it. And now you've gone and played straight into his hands. How you could be such a little fool——"

A passenger who was waiting impatiently for his morning tea put his head out of one of the rooms and called Arthur off, and Christine was left to get through her own work as well as she could.

Arthur Grant had been right when he said that the news was all over the ship, for that morning all the stewards looked at Christine curiously, just as on the morning after the night watchman had made the scandal about her and Grant. When she went down to the cabin after taking round the morning teas, Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane stared at her stonily, and they did not speak to her at breakfast time.

Every time that a bell-boy came down the alley-way she expected a message from Perrin, ordering her to the office at once. It was not the Chief Steward's inspection that morning, and she got through somehow, but she grew nearly crazy with suspense when inspection was over and still no message came.

The bell-boy came to the cabin for her at two o'clock, when they were all getting ready for their afternoon rest. Christine scrambled into the apron and cap which she had just taken off, and followed the boy down to Perrin's cabin, next the pantry.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. "START CHEERING"

Roaring with rhythm, glittering with girls, sparkling with stars and loaded with laughs, the feature presentation at the McCarthy Theatre is rated as this season's hottest, fastest "JAMBOREE" of musical - comedy entertainment, that one could wish to find. The screenful of stars headed by Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, Walter Connelly, Joan Perry, Charles Starrett, Professor Quiz, Gertrude Niesen, Raymond Walburn, The Three Stooges, Hal, LeRoy and Johnny Green and his orchestra all provide clean wholesome hilarious fun that all will enjoy. We urge you not to miss "START CHEERING."

Charlie Chase in his latest two reel comedy release entitled "The Wrong Mis sWright," an interesting "Screen Snapshots" representing movie stars at work and play, a clever all-technicolor musical cartoon, "The Merry Mutineers" and another chapter of splendid and thrilling serial "The Great Adventures of Wild B'll Hickok" combine to make up an hour of excellent screen pleasure in addition to the excellent feature presentation.

AT THE BELLE

"Valley of Giants"

"Valley of the Giants" produced by Warner Bros. in beautiful technicolor, with Wayne Morris and Claire Trevor heading a brilliant cast, is scheduled for the next presentation at the Belle.

Based upon the famous Peter B. Kyne novel of the same name, the picture tells a story typical of the valiant fight waged some thirty-odd years ago to prevent the utter despoilation of California's noted redwood forests by ruthlessly selfish lumber interests.

Craft and corruption, legal trickery and plenty of outright physical violence were employed by the would-be despoilers to gain their ends, and all of this is strikingly depicted in the tense and exciting course of the unfoldment of the new Warner color picture.

Most of the action of the picture takes place outdoors and all of these outdoors scenes were filmed in the heart of the redwood country, with the result that the picture is not only an exciting piece of drama but also one of the most impressive productions ever filmed. For people who have never seen these forests of giant trees, the film probably will also be a rare educational treat.

The hero of the tale, depicted by Morris, is a young lumberman but an altruistic one with a deep regard for the heritage of the ages represented by the big trees, and he leads the battle—it is literally a battle—to prevent the potential despoilers from gaining their ends. The latter are personified in Charles Bickford, an eastern lumberman who has already runned the forests of his native state and sees in the giant redwoods only so many feet of valuable lumber.

His chief device to gain control of the acreage in which he intends to operate is to import several hundred of San Francisco's most raffish citizens to file homestead claims which they immediately turn over to him. This plot is defeated when a friend of the hero's "accidentally" upsets a lamp in the land office and it burns down, destroying all the records of the filings and transfers of title.

But Bickord has other cards up his sleeve, cards marked "violence", and he sets to work trying to win by force what he could not gain by trickery. The native lumbermen, led by Morris, meet force with force, and the result is several of the most hair-raising sequences ever filmed.

Three Featurettes

Three splendid featurettes are announced for presentation on the same program including "Zero Girl", a smart musical revue, Paramount News presenting World News Events and "The General Lied at Dawn" a funny and original merrie melody cartoon, on Saturday matinee the opening chapter of the thrilling adventure chapter-play "The Fighting Devil Dogs" featuring Lee Powell and Herman Brix will be presented.

Pleasing Show

A pleasing program of screen entertainment is now being presented at the Belle. Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell and Patric Knowles featured in the romantic laugh jamboree "Four's A Crowd"

Dennis O'Keefe and lovely Ann Morris are featured with Lewis Stone in the romantic action-packed drama "The Chaser", the added feature attraction "Pow Pow" an entertaining sport capers reel will also be exhibited.

It's a thing I feel I ought to know and I'm not going to let it lick me, he said.

And he wrote it down some more times, saying, Now it seems to make sense both ways, can it be possible that there are 2 ways of spelling it? In that case I feel justified in looking it up, he said.

And he started to reach for the distionerry, and ma said, No, dont look, Willyum,I can tell you.

You can what, I thought you were asking me for Peet sake, pop said. and ma said, Well yes of course I was, I mean in a way, just to find out if you knew. There was a spelling-bee on the air this afternoon and practically everybody went down on the word balance because they spelt it with 2 ells instead of just one, she said.

Yee gods give me air, pop said.

Owner and Manager of the Goldfields Drug Store. Established in 1923, the Goldfields Drug Store is one of Timmins leading drug stores. Under the able and progressive management of Mr. Trench, it enjoys an enviable share of Timmins drug trade.

EXPERIENCE has taught me that dollars pay big dividends in increased sales when invested in consistent advertising in the local daily newspaper.

I believe that subscribers to our local daily have learned to look for my regular advertisements and to read them with the same interest as the local news, because my advertisements are news of the products on sale.

A close check has shown me that there is a definite increase in my sales of a nationally advertised product when the manufacturer advertises it in the local daily.

The local daily brings home my advertisement and the manufacturer's advertisement. It locates my store as the most convenient place for local consumers to obtain the articles advertised and makes it easier for the customer to buy.

No other form of advertising is so helpful to retail selling—so vital in completing the sale of a national product to a local consumer.

BURGLARS RIFLE JEWELLERY SHOP

Tousands of Dollars In Watches And Rings Stolen At Barrie

Barrie, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP)—Daring burglars rifled Reeves Jewelry store in the business section here during the night and made away with wrist watches and rings valued by the proprietors at between $2,000 and $3,000.

The robbers entered the store by climbing through a fanlight over the main entrance door fronting on the main street. They left the building by the same method, leaving a chair parked against the door inside.

They had apparently used it to climb back up to the transom.

More Than 100 Watches.

Proprietors of the store reported that the floor of one show case had been entirely cleaned out of wrist watches and low priced rings and a portion of the show window in front of the store. More than one hundred watches, valued at from $10 to $50 were taken.

The robbery, discovered by Gordon Reeve, one of the proprietors when he arrived at the store this morning, was linked by police with the theft of a motor truck during the night from in front of the residence of Jack Dyck. Two men are thought to have escaped in it.

It was the third burglary of the Jewellery store in three years.

3000 EMIGRES PAY LAST TRIBUTE

Workmen And Generals Honor Late Grand Duke

Paris, Oct. 14 (AP) — Russian workmen in threadbare clothes rubbed shoulders with bearded generals in faded Czarist uniforms today at funeral services for the Grand Duke Cyril, pretender to the throne of all the Russians. He died Wednesday at the age of 62.

Three thousand White Russian emigres representing the aristocracy as well as other classes of the old imperial regime, crowded the Russian Orthodox Church on the outskirts of Paris to pay last respects to the late head of the House of Romanoff.

Thirty priests officiated at the service which was attended by Prince George of Greece, Princess Olga of Yugoslavia, and the Ministers of Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Greece. Representatives of President Albert Lebrun and former Kaiser Wilhelm were present also.

The fourteen ushers were members of prominent old Russian families and included a bartender in one of the fashionable Paris hotels and a taxi driver.

CONFESSES TO SEX SLAYING

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 14 (AP)—Detective Captain John Taylor said early today Adrian H. Miller, 32, had confessed the sex slaying of Alice Girton 17, pretty brunette business college student. Miller lived in the same rooming house as Miss Girton, just across the hall from where the girl's nude and ravished body was found early yesterday, her own clothing stuffed down her throat to strangle her.

HEAVY LOSSES BY BOTH SIDES

Chinese-Japanese War Now On For 464 Days

Shanghai, Oct. 14—(AP)— Heavy losses were admitted by both sides today as the 464-day-old Chinese-Japanese war swept over 550,000 square miles in eleven Chinese provinces.

Invaders from the sea smashed toward the Canton-Kowloon railroad in South China with the aim of severing vital communications systems which fifteen months of frequent bombings have failed to cut.

More than 500 miles to the north, other Japanese columns, warships and bombing planes redoubled efforts to pierce the ring of defences around Hankow the provisional capital.

Bitter fighting raged in the Siuyang sector, on the Peiping-Hankow railroad 100 miles north of Hankow, where the defenders said they had recaptured Liuling and thereby blocked a projected Japanese drive down the railroad to Hankow.

Breach Between State and Church Growing Wider

Vienna, Oct. 14.—(AP) — Nazi leaders said today the breach between the State and the Roman Catholic church was wider, than ever, after Austrian Nazi Commissioner Joseph Buerckel's anti-cleric speech, and predicted many Nazis would withdraw from the church.

Buerckel's listeners in Heroes' Square last night cried "we'll leave the church" after he announced:—

"If they pray against us in church, then I demand of every individual National Socialist that he have nothing more to do with such a church".

Buerckel revealed that negotiations for a working agreement with the church had been broken off.

He charged the Catholic leaders delayed the negotiations because they "speculated" in a war over Czechoslovakia which would give them a "new chance".

He blamed Czechoslovak Jews for demonstrations in behalf of Theodore Cardinal Innitzer last Friday. The demonstration fired Nazi resentment, and in fighting on Saturday the Cardinal was injured by a stone. [illegible] Windows of his palace were broken.

"I have decided," Buerckel said, that "all Czechoslovak Jews and those Czechs who compromised must leave Vienna as soon as possible".

Move Taken to Have Gov't Take Over Highway From Belleville to Algonquin Park

A definite move to have the present highway from Belleville to Whitney at the border of Algonquin National Park taken over by the Provincial Government as a super highway for tourists from south of the border which eventually would bring increased trade and business to the whole of the area, will be taken by officials of the local Chamber of Commerce, and representatives of the Belleville city council, the Hastings County Council and villages of Bancroft and Madoc, and towns of Huntsville, Callander and North Bay when a taken on October 25th, when a combined meeting of these representatives will be held with the Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minster of Highways, at his Queen's Park office on Oct. 25th.

For some time past concerted action on this project has been sought by the Belleville Chamber, and efforts to create a solid body of opinion on the matter have at last been successful. It is understood that the Ontario Highways Department have offered encouragement to the local bodies in their effort.

1134 BUSHELS GRAIN THRESHED DURING ONE AFTERNOON

What is said to be a record in grain production and threshing occurred on the farm of J. F. Westfall, Second Concession of Sidney, the other day when Charles St. Hilaire, well-known thresher of this district, threshed 1,134 bushels of mixed grain in an afternoon.

The grain, grown and harvested by A. Herrington and his son, is said to be one of the finest yields in the district.

Hand is Mangled By Ensilage-Cutter

His left hand terribly mangled after it had been drawn into the knives of an ensilage-cutter, Fred Maynes, 60-year-old Thomasburg farmer, was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital yesterday afternoon, where his injuries necessitated an amputation at the wrist. The operation was performed by Dr. Harold Welsh, Roslin physician.

According to reports emanating from the scene of the accident, Maynes was feeding corn to the cutter when in some manner his hand became caught in the revolving drums, drawing it into the machine where swiftly turning keen-edged knives slashed it to virtual ribbons.

The injured man was given first aid treatment by Dr. Welsh who immediately ordered him to Belleville Hospital where the major operation was performed upon arrival. His condition this afternoon was reported as being fair.

Village of Foxboro Plunged into Darkness

The village of Foxboro was plunged into total darkness early today when a large switch box atop of a hydro pole was loosened from its fastenings after the pole had been struck by a motor car driven by Henry Hubbs, of Moira, formerly of Wellington.

Hubbs was proceeding north through the village when he apparently lost control of the vehicle, which crashed into the pole. Fortunately the pole did not break but the force of the impact loosened the switch box, which controls the lights of the village. The impact was so great that when the pole was struck, the electric wires leading into the home of George Ketcheson, were pulled from their place on the side of the house.

The automobile was a complete wreck, Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine reported after investigating the matter today. The accident occurred shortly aft[illegible] 2.00 a.m. today. 2 REMANDED ON THEFT CHARGES

Alleged Chicken Thieves Advised To Secure Counsel

Five members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, John Powers, 27; Leonard Irish, 25; Roland Lamoureaux, 23; Harvey Provost, 23 and Geo. H. Fulford, 23, appeared in local police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today, charged with disorderly conduct.

The quintette pleaded guilty and were fined $1.00 and costs in each case, the costs amounting to $13.75.

"These cases arose out of altercations which occurred in a local restaurant last week and terminated with a general brawl outside. A local young man sustained severe injuries at the time, but I understand the accused men are willing to pay his doctor's bill," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., and following which His Worship assessed the one dollar fine, providing all costs were forthcoming.

Forty eight hours after he had been released in order to raise funds to meet a fine levied for intoxication in a previous court, an old offender again faced His Worship this morning charged with drunkenness. A second offence charge was laid and conviction registered which resulted in a month's jail term, in default of a $50.00 fine and costs, which were levied.

Milo Ellis, Belleville, was convicted of issuing a worthless cheque and given a suspended sentence. "Restitution has been made and due to the fact that this man has never been in trouble before, I would urge a suspended sentence," asked Jacob Goodman, local barrister, who appeared on behalf of the accused. The request was granted.

James Bradford, who faced charges of assault, was bound over to keep the peace for a period of two years. "Keep away from your family unless you want more trouble," warned Mr. Donnan.

Norman Clapper and Joseph Storms, two local men who were arrested yesterday on charges of stealing eleven chickens, appeared for trial today. "Have you men a lawyer?" asked Mr. Donnan. When the reply was in the negative His Worship enlarged the matter for one week in order to permit the accused men the benefit of the counsel.

Lester Milford, Picton, was convicted of reckless driving. The charge arose out of a motor accident which happened near Latta one week ago when a motor car driven by the accused struck a cow, the property of Harry Sills. The animal had to be destroyed.

Milford protested his innocence, but was convicted following evidence by Mr. and Mrs. Sills who were driving the cow on the highway and also investigating Provincial Police. A fine of $20.00 and costs was levied, while Milford had to pay for the cow, the sum of $40.00. The fine, costs and payment of the loss of the cow amounted to $88.50 in all. Police established the brakes on the car driven by Milford were decidedly defective. "Such vehicles should not be permitted on the highway as it is a grave violation of the H. T. A," commented His Worship.

Milford protesting his innocence mumbled—"that's a lot of money." after the fine and total costs had been compiled.

Army And Navy Veterans Elect Officers For Ensuing Year

At a largely attended enthusiastic meeting held in the Club rooms last night, members of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201, elected J. T. Clark as their head for the coming year.

Other officials chosen on the 1939 slate of officers are 1st Vice-President, F. Wiggins; 2nd Vice-President, Alderman Laurie Lewis; Sergeant-at-arms, J. McGuire; Sergeant-Major Sam Johnson; Executive Committee, Arthur Newman, T. Horton, F. Gillette, H. Ranson, and S. Pointer; Treasurer, H. Willerton; Secretary, James Lazenby; Auditors Messrs. Hatfield and Jordan.

J. C. Lancaster was elected from the general body to act with the president and treasurer as a special finance committee.

Officers Inducted

Installation ceremonies conducted by Past-President George MacIntosh followed the election of officers. The Past-President's jewel was formally presented to retiring president W. J. Ford during this part of the meeting by incoming President J. T. Clark.

A highlight of the meeting was the presentation to the retiring president by Past-President George Smith on behalf of officials and members of the organization of a beautiful pen and pencil set, in appreciation and recognition of faithful and efficient service rendered during his tenure of office.

Considerable discussion featured the question of Armistice Day celebrations and services. The annual church parade will be held on November 6th at the Salvation Army citadel it was decided. Regular Armistice Day observation will be held in the City Hall as in former years on November 11th.

Committees in charge are now laying tentative plans for the Armistice banquet at which one of the outstanding speakers of Ontario will be invited to address veterans and ex-service men of the district.

BASIC RIGHTS CLAIMED BY JEWS

Crisis Believed To Be Near In Palestine Disorders

Jerusalem, Oct. 14 (AP) — The Jewish Agency for Palestine replied to a warning by the Palistine Arab Defence Committee today with the declaration that further killings would not deter the Zionist movement.

The Arab committee on Monday warned Jews of the Far East to expect trouble if the Zionist movement persisted in further immigration into Palestine.

A Jewish agency statement said "we see a possibility of fruitful cooperation between Arabs and Jews in Palestine, but an essential condition is the recognition of the basic rights of the Jewish people in the Holy Land."

Returns to Palestine.

The statement added that no dangers would deflect the Jews from a policy of returning to Palestine which "is dictated by historical necessity".

There was widespread belief a climax was approaching in the Palestine crisis. Disorders in the last 12 weeks are unofficially estimated to have claimed 1,850 casualties, including more than 800 lives.

With the return, scheduled for today, of the High Commissioner, Sir Harold MacMichael, from conferences in London, and the arrival of British troop reinforcements, it was believed the military would resume the initiative and reoccupy the country.

More Troops Arrive.

The troopship Neuralia was due at Haifa today with additional soldiers, to help the thousands already here.

The liner Montclare docked at Haifa with a second battalion of West Yorkshire Regiment and various auxiliary services.

Politically, the Arabs appeared confident of eventual victory. Frequent attacks on Arab notables indicated the rebels were trying to liquidate opposition in the ranks leaving one united party as sole negotiator with Great Britain, which has a mandate over Palestine and has entertained proposals to split the Holy Land into Arab, Jewish, and British-dominated districts.

London, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP) — Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada, told a special convocation of the University of Western Ontario today that it is "the happy fate of Canada" to be so far removed from the European political turbulence.

"Canada has, beyond question, great duties and responsibilities, as a sovereign nation and as part of the British Empire," he said after receiving an honorary degree from university. "But she does not live in the feverish atmosphere of the Old World. Her problems are mostly long-range problems which can be considered at leisure . . .

"She cannot exclude herself from the world any more than can any other people and it is her duty to have a policy in international as well as in national affairs. But her prime interest is self-development; her chief concern is not with the Old World but with the New."

Two Frontiers

He said Canada has two frontiers—the frontier of thought and knowledge and the physical frontier.

"Let me take first the frontier of thought and knowledge, the drought area of the southern parts of the Prairie Provinces. These were long ago mapped and surveyed and settled and provided with the apparatus of a civilized society. But the Climatic barriers! These barriers in the past stopped explorations about as effectively as did the fear of falling off a flat earth. The prevailing westerly winds and storms (cyclones) probably greatly delayed the discovery of America. Mountain ranges were crossed with great difficulty because of the severity of the weather, with the blinding glare of the sun, avalanches, low temperatures, rarity of the air, and lack of vegetation. The polar regions were not explored until years of trial taught man just how he should feed and clothe himself and how to use sleds and dogs. Deserts, with their vast stretches of parching sand, made walking and breathing difficult.

NEW MINISTRY OF NATIONAL SERVICE MAY BE FORMED

Organize Men And Women For Service In Time of War

NATIONAL CENSUS

Considering Vast Net-Works of Bomb-Proof Shelters In London

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 15 (C.P. Cable) — A Ministry of National Service to supervise every aspect of civilian home defence may be formed by Prime Minister Chamberlain's government.

The scheme will be discussed by the government at a cabinet meeting Wednesday although it is understood details already are in an advanced stage. One report mentions Sir John Anderson, former undersecretary at the Home Office, as a likely minister in charge of the new department.

One function of the new ministry would be to organize men and women for service in time of war.

A national census would supply the government with information on every man and woman, such as age, occupation, physical condition, technical abilities previous military or other training and the form of national service preferred. They could choose either the Territorial Army air raid precautions, auxiliary fire brigades, First Aid crews or munitions making.

On Voluntary Basis

The register, to be on a voluntary basis, would enable the government to make sure that technical experts would not be wasted in routine jobs. It also would provide a list of key men who would keep jobs in wartime and ensure that men's eagerness to join the fighting forces would not disrupt the essential services.

The King's speech at the state opening of Parliament November 8 is expected to foreshadow the necessary legislation which in effect would place services of all men and women at the disposal of the country and would permit their ready allotment to the various home defence services.

Women Classified

Women would be classified for specialized jobs such as motor and ambulance driving, nursing and munition work.

Professional organizations like the British Medical Association may be requested to circularize members asking for special information. Doctors would be classified according to their willingness to serve anywhere in Great Britain or in their immediate localities. The same thing applies to scientists, architects and engineers who, in the last war, often fought in the front trenches while others lacking specialized knowledge attempted to carry out their work at home.

Bomb-Proof Shelters

It also was reported the government is considering plans for a vast network of bomb-proof shelters throughout London costing £4,000,000 ($28,000,000). They would necessitate a change in the government's plans for evacuation of the city.

Admitting that the situation in Palestine was very grave, Malcolm MacDonald, colonial secretary, has announced that additional troops are being despatched from England and India to aid in restoring order in the Holy Land, where the Arabs are conducting a systematic program of terrorism against Jewish settlers. Members of the Jewish Settlers Defence Corps are pictured, TOP, with barbed wire and iron fence posts as they set off to erect a barbed wire barricade to protect their homes from marauding bands of Arabs. Because of frequent Arab attacks on convoys of trucks and shooting of truck drivers, British troops have been established in highway outposts, BOTTOM, along all important roads in the Holy Land. Entrenched troops and armored cars feature these British highway patrols.

Yorkshire Post Expects Italy And Germnay To Be In Opposition

London, Oct 15 (CP-Havas)—The Yorkshire Post (Conservative) said today Germany and Italy, if not now in direct opposition, are in danger of difficulties resulting from differences between their dependents, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

In connection with Hungarian mobilization and the termination of negotiations with Czechoslovakia for a new frontier, the newspaper said Czechoslovakia is considered in Berlin to be a protectorate of the Reich, while Hungary and Poland look to Italy for support.

In connection with the desires of Poland and Hungary to establish a common frontier through the further partitioning of Czechoslovakia the editorial said that the deeper interests of Germany would be affected if a new "cordon sanitaire" were formed farther east and southeast than the one just broken.

"The ground usually advanced for this Polish interest in a common frontier," it continued, "has hitherto been that it would strengthen the eastern 'vordon saitaire' against Bolshevism. It is conceivable that it is no longer only a common interest which might be in view.

"One of the heavily leaded passages in 'Mein Kampf' deals with the fundamental requirement that the new German Reich, when formed, should consider as an attack on Germany, to be resisted by every means, including if necessary force, 'any attempt to organize a second military power on the German frontiers even if it is only in the form of the creation of a state capable of developing into a military power'."

POLICE SEEK TO LINK PAIR WITH THREE ROBBERIES

Willard Lark and Woodrow Racicot of Sudbury Are Men Held

TAKEN IN SUDBURY

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—Police in three Ontario municipalities today investigated the recent activities of two youthful Sudbury residents, held in custody in the Northern Ontario city on warrants issued by Huntsville and York Township police.

Authorities sought to link Willard Lark, 23, and Woodrow Racicot, 21, with the holdup of a motor-car sales room and burglary of stores in Huntsville, 150 miles north of Toronto. In suburban York Township, the men were wanted on charges of shooting with intent, laid in connection with the hold-up of a King City, Ont., bank last Sept. 23.

Acting on a request from police here, Sudbury officers yesterday arrested Lark as he walked along a street. Racicot was taken into custody at the International Nickel Company's refinery at nearby Copper Cliff where he had been employed for several days. Both men had lived in Sudbury most of their lives.

Secured $800 in Holdup.

Informed of the arrests, Chief Constable Robert Alexander said the men were sought here in connection with the King City hold-up. In that robbery, two youthful gunmen held up a branch of the Bank of Commerce in King City, twelve miles north of Toronto, and escaped with $800.

A spectacular 80-mile-an-hour chase followed. Fifteen minutes after the hold-up, as the bandits fled southward, York Township police sighted the gunmen's automobile. Several shots were exchanged during a 25-minute chase before the pursuing police car was eluded.

Two bullets from revolvers fired by the bandits struck the police machine. Three bullets were found to have hit the bandit car, abandoned after the chase. One bullet smashed the rear window of the gunmen's machine, found to have been stolen. No one was wounded.

Late Night Telephone Calls Arouse Young Women's Ire

Male Voices Request "A Date" In The Early Morning Hours

PURPOSE UNKNOWN

Telephones shrilling harshly, breaking the stillness of the early hours of the morning. Alarmed young women, wakened from a deep sleep to answer the insistent clanging of the bell. A masculine voice identifying the house, and asking for the owner of the name as listed in the telephone book. An offer to make a "date". Refusal. The click of a receiver hanging up.

In five different households this annoyance has taken place within the last few days. In a particular case a lady residing on the east hill was called at a late hour by the telephone, on no less than five different occasions.

Always the calls have been made from a pay telephone booth. Always it has been a masculine voice asking for a young lady, whose name is listed as being the rentee of the telephone.

When queried as to who was speaking, the masculine voice gave a name strange to this listener and on each occasion stated that he was from out of town. Always came the offer to take the listener "out".

On another occasion, the "voice" explained that he had called to apologize "for the fellow that called the night before".

Whether it is the work of practical jokers, or an attempt to work a racket similar to that staged in Toronto a short while ago, in which the telephone was used by potential burglars to ascertain whether their prospective "victims" were at home or not, is yet to be discovered.

HUNGARY STARTS TO DOUBLE ARMY IN ANTICIPATION

Mobilization of Five Classes Necessary For Hungarian Securtiy Is Claim

CZECHS TO RESIST

Spokesman Declares No Occupation Will Be Allowed

Budapest, Oct. 15 (AP)—Hungary started doubling her army to an estimated 420,000 men today for what officials said was peace, not war.

The mobilization of five classes (age groups) totalling approximately 200,000 youths was called a measure necessary for Hungarian security, "endangered by the continued mobilization of the Czechoslovak army" and the collapse of negotiations on Hungarian demands for parts of Czechoslovakia.

Surprise was occasioned by disclosure the Hungarian army numbered about 220,000 because the post-war Trianon Treaty, declared abrogated just two months ago, limited the force to 35,000.

The official press declared Hungary was not alone in demanding Magyar-inhabited slices of her already-dismembered neighbor. "We have powerful friends, who fully support us," said the newspaper Pester Lloyd. The reference was perhaps to Germany and Italy.

Would Resist Occupation.

Komaron, Hungary (on Czechoslovak border), Oct. 15 (AP) — A Czech officer declared today his soldiers would resist occupation of rfontier communities by Hungarian troops under any circumstance.

The captain, who commands a regiment stationed on the Czechoslovak side of the Danube near here and who fought with the Czech Legion in Russia during the Great War, added that "I think it will not be long until our soldiers try to take back territory already taken from them."

Czechoslovakia continued to move more troops closer to the Danube as news spread of Hungary's orders to mobilize five new classes by Monday.

The Czechs kept light artillery and heavily-armed troops at the entrance of bridge leading over the Danube into Hungary.

On the Hungarian side there were counter precautionary measures, and the possibility was discussed here that thousands of newly-mobilized men would be moved shortly toward the frontier.

Could Mobilise Million.

A Hungarian general staff officer said Hungary probably would mobilize 1,000,000 men if her territorial dispute with Czechoslovakia leads to war.

He emphasized, however, Hungary needed more time to complete defence preparations and equip the soldiers.

"In about four or five months we would be ready for any eventuality," he said.

Members of the Hungarian minority mobilized into the Czechoslovak army probably would play a big role in the outcome of any conflict, the officer said.

About 400,000 men of Hungarian blood, he said, were serving or were liable to military service in Czechoslovakia, and might desert to help Hungary.

The number still in the Czechoslovak army after the apparently

Britain Would Refuse Return of Colonies, Says Genevieve Tabouis

Might Agree To Set Up Colony For Germany In Africa, Is Stated

DOMINIONS' ATTITUDE

Prediction Is That Italy And France Would Be Asked To Contribute

Paris, Oct. 15 (CP-Havas)—Genevieve Tabouis reported today in L'Oeuvre (Radical-Socialist) that a memorandum demanding the return of pre-war German colonies will be presented "in these coming days" to Great Britain by Chancellor Hitler.

The well-known commentator on foreign affairs predicted Great Brittain would refuse but might agree to set up a colony for Germany in Central Africa, asking a share from France and a slice of Ethiopia from Italy.

Says Memorandum Ready.

"Every day recently Hitler has conferred on colonies with General Franz von Epp (Nazi Colonial Campaign leader) and most of the colonial governors of the pre-war Reich," Mme. Tabouis wrote. "After great hesitation, the Fuehrer is understood to have prepared a memorandum in which he purely and simply calls for a return of all former German colonies which the Treaty of Versailles tore from it.

"In this memorandum the Reich declares that it is a question of honor, these colonies having been taken away under the pretext that the Reich did not know how to colonize. The memorandum adds that the old Germany, however, in its possessions never had incidents similar to those which Great Britain now has in Palestine.

"Great Britain's position on the subject of the return to Germany of its former colonies is known. It would not seem about to change, according to information gathered yesterday evening.

Attitude of Dominions.

"Great Britain cannot take back from its dominions the colonies which were given them.

"Protests have already been made by the dominions. But it would not be impossible that Great Britain should envisage the setting up of a territory in Central Africa by means of the co-operation and generosity of all.

"France would be asked for Togoland, and Italy for a zone of Abyssinia (Ethiopia). In this manner it would be easier for Great Britain to ask a contribution from its dominions. But that point is still far off."

(South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand are the dominions holding League of Nations' mandates over former German colonial territories.)

PRAISES PRESENTATION OF NEWS IN PAPERS

Cleveland, Oct. 15—(A)—Newspapers are doing a better job than ever in making the world's most complicated news clear and informative for their readers, a New Orleans editor declared today.

And the readers are grateful, said George Healy, Jr., Managing Editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Previously Kent Cooper, A. P. General Manager, predicted the newspaper of the future—perhaps in 10 years—would devote only half its editorial content to type. The other half will be in pictures, he said.

LADY TWEEDSMUIR RECEIVES DEGREE

Governor-General Will Also Be Honored At Western University

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—The three-day visit to Central Ontario of Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir neared an end today as Canada's Governor-General moved on to London to receive an honorary degree from the University of Western Ontario.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Dr. R. C. Wallace, Principal of Queen's University, and other distinguished Canadians will receive degrees of Doctor of Laws at the University's Autumn Convocation. Rt. Rev. Charles A. Seager, Anglican Bishop of Huron, will pronounce the benediction.

Their Excellencies travelled to the Western Ontario city after a busy day in Toronto yesterday during which Lady Tweedsmuir received a degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Toronto. She was one of 11 distinguished Canadians and visitors so honored.

The Governor General and Lady Tweedsmuir last night attended the eighth annual Creche Ball where 40 of the season's debutantes were presented.

In accepting the honorary degree, Lady Tweedsmuir termed the occasion "one of the greatest moments of my life." The university thru' her was honoring the many amateur historians, non-professional writers like herself, "an humbler laborer in the tangled vineyard of history."

Others receiving degrees included Hon. J. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice; and Malik Sir Firozkhan Noon, high commissioner for India in Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Eden Calls on Democracies To Show Enthusiasm, Unity

'Build Up National Defences' He Urges Britons

NATIONAL EFFORT

Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 15 (CP)—Anthony Eden last night called on democracies to show the same enthusiasm, unity and determination of spirit of sacrifice as the totalitarian state if democracies were "to hold their own in the challenging modern world."

The former foreign secretary spoke to a business club here.

He called on Britons to relegate to the background the differences of party and class and make a supreme national effort "to build up the national defences".

Continuance of the present methods spells permanent inferiority," he declared.

"In the position of which we now find ourselves," said Mr. Eden, "no effort to put our national defences and all that that implies socially and economically, on a really secure basis can be made wholly successful without the agreement and active support of all classes and parties.

"A broadly based national government is the only basis on which our democracy and our constitution, by which we rightly set such store, can stand up to the competition that awaits us."

City and District News

FIRE DAMAGES OLD GARAGE BLDG.

Flames shooting high in the air from an old garage in the rear of the Elvins Building on Upper Front Street a few minutes before nine last night, caused a mild furore among pedestrians before the blaze was finally controlled by city fire-squads.

Believed to have been caused by a group of small boys who were seen leaving the building shortly after the blaze broke out, the flames swept rapidly through the tinder-like wooden roof. Prompt arrival of fire squads, and the speedy application of water soon extinguished the flames that for a time threatened surrounding buildings. Damage was confined to the roof and one of the walls.

CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING IS LAID

Following police investigations into a motor accident which occurred at Foxboro, early yesterday morning when a motor car driven by Henry Hubbs, Moira, struck a hydro pole plunging the village of Foxboro into total darkness as the result, charges of reckless driving and operating a motor car without being in possession of an individual operator's licence were preferred against Hubbs by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine late yesterday. Hubbs was arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and remanded in custody to appear in Monday's police court.

MEDICAL STUDENTS ATTEND LOCAL CLINIC

Speed and perfection in emergency operations as performed at the Belleville General Hospital were brought out in vivid fashion for forty-five medical students of Queen's University, Kingston, classes in the operating room of the local hospital yesterday afternoon. The students were privileged to observe Dr. G. H. Stobie in two emergency operations co-incident with their visit to the hospital. The operation room clinic followed a clinical lecture given by Dr. Stobie to the students during their visit to Belleville which visit included a complee inspection of the local Filtration plant, and a trip through the plant of the Modern Cleaners and Dyers where the mechanical and chemical features of this daily industry were clearly explained. They were accompanied to Belleville by Dr. J. W. Wyllie, professor of public health and preventive medicine in the Queen's Faculty of Medicine.

BRIGHTON TRAFFIC COP STILL GOING STRONG

"Provincial Traffic Officer Fred Blucher is a good man at his job," says the Brighton Ensign, "in fact too darned good a lot of folks used to say. He is also accused of looking very cross when on duty. Well, if there is much about Mr. Blucher's job to look happy and perked up over, we never heard about it."

"But at any rate", continues the Ensign, "we were glad to learn that Mr. Blucher says it is quite untrue that he was captured and shot as a spy recently—in fact, he says he isn't even dead."

VISITORS TO NORTH URGED TO USE CAUTION WITH WOOD FIRES

Residents of the city who contemplate taking a last look at their summer camps or fish'ng lodges before closing them for the season are advised by residents of North Hastings to use care with fire or matches if visiting the north section over the week end.

"North Hastings woods are as dry as the proverbial tinder", declared T. P. Stinson, of Ormsby, a visitor to the city this morning. "Residents in most sections back there have had a good scare from the Fort Frances fire, and are taking every precaution against any outbreaks in their own particular areas," it was stated by the visitor.

ERROR IN NAME APPEARS IN PAPER

In the account of Friday's police court proceedings appearing in this newspaper the name of Norman Clapper was used in connection with a charge of chicken stealing. This name was published in error, the person charged being Nathan Clapper, Belleville.

Nathan Clapper and an alleged accomplice, Joseph Storms, both of this city, appeared yesterday before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K. C., charged with the theft of eleven chickens. The case was enlarged for one week at the request of the accused men, who informed the court they desired the services of counsel.

NOT EVERYONE LIKES PASTEURIZED MILK

Though new regulations by the provincial department of health require that all city and municipal dairies deliver pasteurized milk within the municipality, not all consumers of Belleville are using pasteurized milk, according to the statement of one district farmer this morning. Having an unconscious dislike for the treated milk, the head of the family has made arrangements for the purchase of the raw milk at the farm. He is one of the few who have protested vigorously against the new pasteurization regulations, it was reported. In order to be on the safe side, inquiries made by the farmer indicate that the sale for raw milk on the farm is quite legal so long as no attempt is made to deliver it in the city, it was stated.

MARION CLARK SLIGHTLY AHEAD

Kiwanis | Club | Popularity Contest Is a Close Race

Favorites all, they are getting ready for that final drive down the stretch to the wire that will bring them fame, and a handsome prize.

Six pretty, attractive young Belleville ladies, in the glow of youth and beauty are now centering their activities on that eleventh hour effort that will culminate in the Armouries at 10.30 o'clock Friday evening Oct. 21st, when officials of the Belleville Kiwanis Club will announce the winner of their now famous Popularity Contest.

While naturally they are striving for the prize, yet these young ladies who have so generously given of their time and efforts have a deeper meaning behind their quest for the major honors in the contest. They know full well that the Kiwanis Club, under whose sponsorship the forthcoming Karnival and Popularity Contest is being held, is working for a cause that is a pre-eminent one in the service work of the city.

Depend on Public

They know that a generous public will again respond to the efforts of this live wire service club in their drive for funds which in turn will bring untold happiness and joy to hundreds, yes thousands of children of the city.

And with this at heart, they are entering into the spirit of the thing as wholeheartedly as if something vitally personal was at stake.

Up to the present they have been doing a splendid job. In fact so popular has this sextette of Belleville beauties proved, that although exact figures are not available at the time of writing, a hurried survey of the standing reveals small margins separating the entire six contestants. They ask for your support, not only to assist them in winning the coveted prizes, but for the splendid cause behind the entire project.

Be a sport. Buy a ticket from the girls, and do a two-fold duty.

The standing last night of the six contestants is; Marion Clark, Gladys Knox, Nellie Dolan, Eva Hogle, Marguerite Hebert, Jean Ramsay.

The next standing of the contestants with all figures will be published in this paper on Wednesday, Oct. 19th.

Police Blotter

Following complaints regarding the possible illegal consumption of liquor in the vicinity of dance halls throughout the immediate district, Provincial Police visited several such places in the vicinity of Belleville last night conducting an investigation looking into the matter. The authorities revealed today their investigations substantiated the complaints, as a charge was preferred against one young man of the district as the result of last night's investigations. The matter will be presented in district police court next week, Provincial Police announced this morning.

Elmer Labarr, Jr., No. 2. West Bridge Street, reported the theft of a tire, tube and rim from his parked automobile. Mr. Labarr left his automobile parked on Coleman Street recently, but upon his return the tire, tube and rim were missing. A description of the missing articles was given police for investigation.

Minor fender damage resulted from a motor car accident at the western city limits shortly before 10.00 p.m. last evening, when a car driven by H. Paque, Trenton, was in rear end collision with another motor car driven by David Pelkoff, Toronto. Both vehicles were travellign easterly at the time and no injuries resulted. Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine reported following investigations. The matter of damages was amicably settled between the parties concerned and no charges deemed necessary.

1950 POUNDS TAFFY SOLD AT ROSENEATH FAIR YESTERDAY

Whatever the failings of Hastings County residents may be, it cannot be said they are not sweet-toothed.

Yesterday at Roseneath Fair, six vendors of candy "pulled" and sold nineteen hundred and fifty pounds of the sweet delicacy.

"Never did such a business in my life,". Wesley Evans, local concessionaire, who is a familiar figure at all county fairs, and who has been selling candy for years, stated.

"The demand was the greatest I ever saw," he said. "People bought it by the dollarsworth, and it was all we could do to supply the demand."

AUTUMN PRODUCE FEATURES DISPLAY ON CITY MARKET

Potatoes Note Increase, With Eggs And Other Produce Steady

BRILLIANT WEATHER

Brilliant Autumn sunshine tempered with warm breezes from the south, reminiscent of balmy summer days greeted a large Saturday morning clientele at the city market today where a large variable offering of harvest produce was on display.

While the offering was not as heavy as previous Saturdays there was a splendid variety of fall and winter vegetables and dairy produce.

Prices generally noted a slight uptrend, as seasonal produce noted a decline in quantity. Potatoes shot upward sharply today with bushel lots selling at sixty cents and baglots at ninety, an increase of fifteen cents over last week's quotations. Eggs likewise maintained a high tone with "A" selects selling at thirty-eight and forty cents per dozen, mediums at thirty-five cents and pullets at thirty-two cents per dozen.

Chickens were fairly plentiful in the inside market with young five and six-months old birds offered at sixty cents each. Yearlings and fowl were offered at from eighty cents upwards each. A few ducks were offered today and sold briskly at one dollar each.

Northern Spies made their market debut today, and headed a fine fall and winter apple display. Tree-picked No. 1's were offered at one dollar and one half per bushel, with some windfalls quoted at one dollar per hamper-lot. Tolman Sweets in increased quantity and of good sample, were quoted at the same prices. MacIntosh Reds, tree-picked fruit were quoted at $1.75 per bushel while Snows moved fairly briskly at $1.50 per hamper for picked fruit.

Blue and white grapes, gradually passing out of the market picture were sold today at thirty-five and thirty-nine cents per six-quart basket. Grand Duke plums and German prunes were offered at fifty and sixty cents per six-quart basket respectively.

Winter vegetables in bushel lots made their appearance on the market today with onions quoted at eighty cents, parsnips at seventy-five cents. Cabbage and cauliflower, the latter productive of some splendid samples, sold at from five cents per head upwards. Lettuce, radishes, broccoli, and other staple vegetable lines sold at prevailing prives.

The cynosure of boyish eyes were small collie pups which a youthful vendor offered at two dollars each.

Lovers of fish were offered whitefish and fresh lake trout at twenty cents per pound, with a slight additional charge for cleaning and filleting, with pickerel quoted at eighteen cents per pound and the popular mudcat moving well at two pounds for twenty-five cents.

CANNOT EXCLUDE

settlement was done hastily and unscientifically and the recent dry years have compelled us to retracc our steps. There is no cause for pessimism about the Prairies . . . Our problem is how to make Prairie farming weather proof, to so readjust it that in a bad year a farmer will not be ruined."

Lord Tweedsmuir said the Federal and Provincial Agricultural Departments have done "brilliant work" on this problem and the "work of rehabilitation is being admirably done, and I wish it were better known."

Showing True Spiirt

"No less brilliant is the handling of the question of soil drifting. In this Prairie question Canada is showing the true frontier spirit; confronted with a desperate problem she is solving it by pushing further forward the frontier of thought and knowledge."

The physical frontier is in the northwest, he said, with its chief wealth underground.

"Slowly the work of exploration and development is creeping on. The chief medium is the air. In that lacework of lakes and rivers flying, both in summer and winter, is probably the safest in the world. If the local oil fields can be developed and gasoline cheapened—and there is every hope of that—you may have the airplane in the north as common as a transport vehicle as the motorcar is elsewhere."

Great Assets in North

Comparing the Canadian Northwest development with Russian development in Northern Siberia, Lord Tweedsmuir said he thought "we have in our north far greater assets than any that Russia can claim.".

The frontier work offers no occasion for grandoise dreams as the problems are difficult and many will only be solved by toil and patience of many years, his Excellency continued.

"I want especially to see our young men alive to the opportunities offered to adventurous and intelligent youth who have the true frontier spirit and are eager, both in the physical and intellectual spheres, to enlarge the boundaries of knowledge."

OBITUARY

CARL MEREDITH (St. Ola)

The death occurred in the Belleville General Hospital this Saturday morning, Oct. 15th., of Carl Meredith, age two years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meredith of St. Ola, Ont. The child was a patient in the hospital for one day.

LATE MRS. IDA ANNE DENIKE

Stirling, Oct. 15.— (Special) — Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. Mary Vandervoort Sine, who on Tuesday received the sad news of the death of her sister, Mrs. Ida Anne DeNike of Union, Mich. The late Mrs. DeNike who was the widow of Dr. Isaac DeNike was well known in this district being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson and was born in Rawdon Township on the farm now occupied by Mr. W. J. Bateman. Mrs. DeNike passed away on Monday, October 10th., in her seventy-ninth year at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gene P. Ohmer in Eckhart, Ind., after an illness of two weeks duration. Possessed of a lovable character and a very mild dispocition, Mrs. DeNike will be remembered and mourned by many throughout this district. A lover of art and music she at one time attended Ladies College at Whitby, Ontario.

Left to mourn her passing are three daughters, Pearl, Nellie, Ollie; one sister, Mrs. Mary Vandervoort Sine of Stirling, one brother, Dr. George H. Wilson of Union, Mich. She was predeceased some years ago by one brother, Mr. John C. Wilson of Stirling and one sister, Mrs. T. H. McKee, Stirling. Mrs. George E. Green of Stirling, is a niece and Mr. F. N. McKee, a nephew. She was a member of the United Church in Union, Mich., where she has resided since leaving Stirling some forty years ago. Funeral services were conducted at her late residence in Union, Mich., on Thursday, October 15th.

Beautifully arranged tables, with decorations carried out in the school colors of blue and gold were present and thoroughly enjoyed the delicious banquet prepared by the members of the Association.

Interesting Program

An interesting program, a feature of which was a travel talk by Miss Jessie B. Tuite, was presented. The president of the organization, Mrs. J. R. Ashbury, acted as chairman. She welcomed the graduate class, the parents, guest speaker and guests and called on Mr. Charles Brown to propose a toast to the King, for which all sang "God Save the King."

The toast to the graduating class was proposed by Mrs. William Little. Speaking on behalf of the class, Miss Elaine Little responded. She referred to the pleasant memories of days in King George School, which would be treasured by the pupils, and said the fine example and inspiration of the teachers would remain with their students always. Miss Little thanked all those who had been responsible for the success of the class and for the banquet.

Tribute to Principal

Tribute to Principal L.A. Kells and the staff of the School was paid by Ted Wells in a well expressed toast. In responding, Mr. Kells said it was a great pleasure to see so many fathers and mothers enjoying the evening with their sons and daughters on this important occasion. He expressed appreciation to the Club for the splendid banquet and to Ted Wells for his kind remarks and good wishes.

The guest speaker, Miss Tuite, was introduced to the gathering by Miss Jane Smyth who had the pleasure a few years ago of accompanying her on a continental tour. Miss Tuite prefaced her address with a message to the graduating class.

This forward step in their scholastic career, she said, proved that they had measured up to the faith put in them by teachers and parents. As they continued in their studies they would always retain memories of this, their "first school" and on it would be reflected all the honors they attain. These young people were the coming leaders of industrial and professional life; in their hands to a great extent lies the future of Canada. Miss Tuite congratulated the young students and wished them all the happiness that would come from work well and rightly done.

Highlights Recalled

Highlights of a pleasant summer on the continent were recalled by Miss Tuite in her address which sparkled with sympathetic humour as she described, vividly places and personalities. First days in England on a "land cruise" introduced her audience to ancient Cornwall and quiet Devon and to Torquay, St. Ives, Land's End. which have a familiar sound even to the untravelled. A real thrill was experienced by the Canadian visitors when they caught a brief glimpse of the King and Queen, just leaving for Paris and were moved by the charm of Her Majesty and the manly bearing of George VI, every inch a King.

Switzerland, one of the loveliest spots in Europe, captured the affection of the visitors who were in Berne, Interlaken, where a folk festival was in progress, and Lucerne. Here Toscanini conducted a Wagnerian program, and it was in Lucerne, too, that one saw the Memorial Chapel to the late young Queen Astrid whose death was a tragedy that all hearts mourned. Three crowns are represented in the chapel, that of Sweden, for Astrid was a Swedish princess, of Belgium, whose Queen she was, and the third —the crown of thorns. Journeys were made into Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia before the party turned to Scandinavia. Vivid impressions of the land of Hans Anderson, of Stockholm with its Venice-like atmosphere, of Bergen happily combining the old and the modern were carried away by the travellers. Once more in the British Isles where the sense of "coming home" was experienced by the party, a stay was made in Glasgow. Finally on September 3rd came the return voyage across the Atlantic and as the mighty St. Lawrence, unequalled even by the Danube at its bluest in Budapest, welcomed the sojourners they agreed with the words of the poem, "East, West, Home's best."

Appreciation Expressed

Appreciation of the very interesting address was expressed by Mrs. C. H. Bankey. Miss Norma Smith delighted the guests with a well-rendered reading.

Mrs. L. M. Moult who conducted the Red Cross Home Nursing Course in the school presented certificates to the girls who had completed the course. Miss Marjorie Gillespie was presented with a gift for having the notebook judged the best in the class.

A letter from Inspector H. J. Clarke regretting unavoidable absence was read by Mr. Kells. Inspector Clarke conveyed his congratulations and best wishes to the graduates, to which Mr. Kells added his personal congratulations. Miss H. M. Thompson then presented High School Entrance Certificates to the successful candidates. They were as follows: Annice Adams, Roy Ashmore, Clarence Blakeley, Bert Brown, Russell Brown, Douglas Coleman, Jeane Corneal, Keith Davidson, Eileen Fitzgibbon, Vernon Flindall, Marjorie Gillespie, Dorothy Hannah, John Harris, Shirley Hitchon, Marguerite Jeffs, Margaret Kilpatrick, Benson Kilpatrick, Leonard Knott, Elaine Little, Blanche McBrien, Barbara Patterson, Ethel Renouf, Joan Sandham, Donna Sayers, Margaret Smith, Ted Wells, Laverne Wilson, Doris Whittle.

Miss Doris Whittle who made the most progress during the year was presented with a prize by Mrs. Quincey.

Mr. Everett Smith was present at the function last evening and entertained the guests with several very amusing numbers. Miss Joyce Fraser added to the enjoyment of the guests with her graceful toe dance.

The thanks of the Association were extended those who had assisted in the program by Mrs. W. J. Harrison and the singing of "O Canada" concluded a very successful and happy event in the school year.

FRIENDS HONOR STIRLING COUPLE

Popular Young People Are Showered With Gifts

Stirling—A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Gunning on Mill St., on Wednesday evening for a surprise party and shower given in honor o fMiss Thelma Gunning, her daughter, who on Saturday will become the bride of Mr. M. Sarles of Rawdon. The early part of the evening was spent in musical numbers, community singing etc. and the presentation followed the brief interesting program.

Arthur Duncan acting as chairman for the evening. The program included instrumental solos by Mr. Couch, Mr. Matt Hedley and Frank Harding; vocal selections by Mrs. Wilson, Arthur Duncan and Frank Harding; recitation by Mrs. Duncan Montgomery, and a brief address by Rev. W. J. Scott of St. Paul's United Church. Explaining in detail the purpose of the gathering the chairman then called upon Mrs. H. Foster to read an address on behalf of those present, and Misses Dorothy Montgomery and Molly Belshaf placed three large baskets of lovely and useful gifts before the honored couple and the opening ceremony began. At the conclusion of this long task which revealed many useful and excellent gifts, both Miss Gunning and Mr. Sarles briefly exprsesed their gratitude for the gesture. Luncheon was then served by the ladies to climax a most pleasant evening.

The address:

Dear Velma:

It is with pleasure that we, your friends and neighbors have gathered here this evening to rejoice with you on this the happiest occasion of your life, your marriage. We could not let this momentous event pass, Velma, without in some slight way showing our appreciation and love for you. We have always found you ready to lend your assistance whenever needed, and we shall be glad to have you with us again at any future time.

And now we ask you to accept these few gifts, with the hope that they may minister in some way to your happiness in that new home into which you are to enter as its soul and uncrowned queen.

The poem "A Message from old married folk" was read.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors, Mrs. C. Rollins, Mrs. E. Foster.

St. Paul's Mission Band

The regular meeting of the Hands Across Mission Band of St. Paul's United Church was held on Wednesday afternoon in the church parlours under the capable direction of the leader Mrs. Roy Woodbeck. About twenty five members and officers were present to enjoy the fine program. During the business period which included the various dept. reports it was decided the next month an open meeting would be held. One of the constructive projects completed at this meeting was the preparation of bales for needy families within the village and in other districts.

The interesting program provided for the afternoon included the following numbers: Recitation, Eileen Bradshaw; reading, Muriel Gibson; reading Helen Hick; piano solo, Joan Pedley; guitar selection, June Woodbeck. The singing of the closing hymn and the Mizpah Benediction climaxed this interesting and helpful meeting.

Mr. Wm. Dermidy has returned home after spending a few days in Toronto where he attended the annual convention of the Provincial Young People's Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Mr. Roy Juby spent the week end in Toronto and attended the holiday sessions of the Presbyterian Young People's Societies held there.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Bishop accompanied by Arthur Duncan were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cuff, Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Knox and Betty of Glen Miller accompanied by Miss Sarah Knox of Stirling were Sunday evening guests at the home of Miss Knox's niece Mr. and Mrs. Scrutton, Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mason were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Sid Mason, Springbrook.

Friends of Mrs. Thelma Tulloch will be glad to learn that she is progressing favorably along the road to complete recovery after her recent operation in Belleville Hospital. Mrs. Tulloch returned home last week.

Mrs. C. Wright, Mr. Knowlton Wright and Mr. Clarence Wright of Stirling and Mrs. Mary Andrews of Coe Hill motored to Atwood and were week end guests of Mr. Alexander.

Miss Joan Green spent the week end visiting he grandmother Mrs. Heath at Springbrook. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woodbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Green of Stirling and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lummiss, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Reid, Frankford, spent the holiday week end at Millbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Green spent Thanksgiving day at the home of Mrs. Green's mother Mrs. Heath in Springbrook.

OPEN HOUSE AT GRANITE CLUB

Open New Sports Quarters Rebuilt Following a Fire

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—The 73-year-old Granite Club held open house last night in celebration of opening of new sports quarters, rebuilt following a fire last spring. More than 900 members entertained 700 guests.

Spectators were treated to displays of figure skating, badminton and swimming by some of Canada's leading exponents of the sports as the club demonstrated the variety of activities which may be carried on simultaneously under one roof.

In the badminton courts, one of Canada's greatest singles players, Rod Phelan, played singles and doubles matches with Dave Robertson, Ted Terry and Herb Long, other club members. Gordon Devlin, Toronto, a Canadian champion in several classes, gave speed swimming displays. George Young, Toronto's "Catalina Kid" also gave an exhibition.

So long as we humans must depend so largely on visual capacity for almost every good in life, we must realize the beneficial importance of modern ANALYTICAL OPTOMETRY—it's practised in Belleville by McFEE.

Conference Will Be Held For Municipal Officers

MISSION WORK IN WESTERN CANADA THEME OF TALK

Rev. W.T.R. Delve Addresses M. & M. Rally At Tweed

Tweed—(Special)—A rally for the United Church of North Hastings in the interests of the Missionary and Maintenance work of the church was held in Tweed United Church on Wednesday evening, October 12th. Rev. Ivan Kennedy of Madoc presided over the meeting. He was assisted by Rev. H. B. Herrington of Thomasburg and Rev. H. Lloyd Morrison, B. A., pastor of Tweed United Church.

The meeting was addressed by Rev. W. T. R. Delve, B. A., B. D., of Ivanhoe who spent some years in Peace River District and prior to that served as a student missionary at Churchill for five summers. Rev. Delve gave an interesting account of his experiences at Churchill. He told of his first church service at a construction camp at Mile 412 on the Hudson Bay Railway. The service was held in a pool hall, with a pool table as the pulpit. Two hundred men attended the service and at its conclusion took up an offering of eighty-five dollars. "Many of my experiences" said Rev. Delve, "are indelibly imprinted on my mind. Some are amusing; some are tragic. But they all serve to show that the people who live in these distant places are glad to have the missionary come to them and carry on the work of the Church among them.'

Rev. T. T. Faichey, M. A., B. D., who has served the Church in Western Canada and in North China delivered a very fine address on the work of the Church in China. Rev. Faichey is a very fine speaker, one of the best who has ever been heard in Tweed.

For a number of years Rev. Faichey had charge of the British people in the city of Tientsin in North China. Tientsin is a city of 1,500,000 people, with numerous foreign concessions. "The Japanese invaded North China and bombarded Tientsin while I was in that city", stated Rev. Faichey, "and I was reported missing, but I was not missing anything. I took advantage of every opportunity to gain first hand knowledge of the situation. I have come to the conclusion that where destructive forces are at work, God is also at work."

"The Japanese have destroyed eighty institutions of higher learning in Manchukuo. They want no educated Chinese. The cream of the intellectual life of China is now flocking to the Christian Union University in West China. The effect of this upon life in China will be far-reaching. The Japanese in many cases spare the Chinese who have become Christians. The Chinese note this, as also the fact that the missionaries have remained at their posts in the present crisis at great personal danger. The Chinese ask, "Why are you doing this?" There is no place of safety except the Christian compound. As a consequence the Chinese are turning to God.

"At Hankow, the seat of the government, where the Chinese Generalissimo has his headquarters, 80 per cent of the Chinese Government officials are Christians. although in all China not one-half of one per cent. are Christians. Only Christian Chinese are chosen for positions of importance and responsibility, because it is only they who have moral dependability."

MARRIAGE LAW STANDS IN WAY

Fight To Have Law Awarded Will Be Carried To House of Commons

London, Ont., Oct. 15—(CP)—William Shipway, 40, member of the Ailsa Craig village council, went free on suspended sentence yesterday, while representatives of the law and church prepared to carry to the House of Commons their fight to revise the strange law which frustrated Dan Cupid and brought Mr. Shipway before the courts.

Because of the law, the prominent Ailsa Craig garageman was forbidden to marry a girl of his choice, though she was of age, and of no blood relation to him. Unable to wed, they lived together anyway, charged Crown Attorney Newton, and on Sept. 26, a child was born.

IN COURT FRIDAY

After complaints to the Crown Attorney — complaints which defense counsel Meyer Lerner said came from busybodies — Shipway was charged under the morality section of the criminal code. He appeared before County Judge Wearing Friday and pleaded guilty.

The court then listened to the story of Shipway's long fight to be married. Several years ago, the judge was informed, Shipway had married a widow, and the girl in the case is the daughter of the widow by her first husband.

Three years ago, the widow died, and Shipway and the girl, who is 20 years old, wished to marry. But they found the way blocked. The law will not allow a man to wed his deceased wife's child.

Appeals Are Made

The court was told that they had appealed to the Provincial Secretary, to see if special permission might not be obtained for the ceremony. The Provincial Secretary's department could find no special powers.

They turned to the United States, and visited two or three states, believing the laws there concerning marriage might be less strict but again the law was against them.

Coming back to Canada, their case was again taken up by interested parties of the church, with the Provincial Government, and there it was indicated the law itself would be taken before the Federal House for review.

Judge's Comments

"This is an extraordinary situation", commented Judge Joseph Wearing. "It seems strange the couple can't marry. I'm not speaking from a theological standpoint but from a practical standpoint."

The court suggested that further effort be made to discover a place where the couple might marry.

Former Resident Honors Grandmothers of Her District in Montana

At a special function held at Central Butte, Montana, honoring grandmothers of that section of the State, prominent mention is given Mrs. A. C. Faulkner, one of the most popular residents of Central Butte, and mother of Mrs. Clarence Vermilyea, First Concession of Sidney, who has for the past fifteen years provided this gracious entertainment at her Central Butte home.

Sixty-four guests were present at this year's function. Mrs. Faulkner was assisted in receiving by Mrs. G. Gorman and Mrs. Runions of Central Butte, and Mrs. Wrenshall and Mrs. Ed Mills of Milden.

"It was a happy and grand occasion, so the grandmothers thought", according to an account in a Montana publication. "All care was forgotten it was shown by their radiant faces. Mrs. Faulkner had made complete arrangements for their happiness."

Mrs. Faulkner presented a prize to the oldest grandmother, Mrs. McLean of Riverhurst, who was 90, and who responded with a humourous story of a Scotchman and a Scotch thistle. A prize was presented the youngest great-grandmother, Mrs. Hugison of Riverhurst who is 73, and also a prize to the youngest grandmother having the largest number of daughters, Mrs. H. Halliday of Gilroy. Mrs. J. Hawthorne presented a a prize to Mrs. Faulkner on behalf of the guests for remembering them for fifteen years. Mrs. Faulkner replied by inviting her guests to the same "tea" in 1939, and wished all full health and happiness. Mr. Faulkner, Rev. M. Ambler and Mr. Ed. Mills, Milden, joined the guests and made happy comments, the Central Butte publication reported.

FIRE LESSONS TAUGHT

Reduction in the number of fires and of fire losses would naturally result in lower rates.

What better argument for prevention and for precautions against fire can be required?

Fire losses may amount to millions and they are very heavy, but they are not so terrible as those other losses—the destruction of human life, so often of children and the helpless. Man cannot contemplate a worse fate through nature than a fire which claims life.

This week the papers have been waging a campaign of precautionary measures to reduce fire. The Department of Insurance, the Government, the fire departments and the newspapers have done their best to inspire care with regard to fire.

THE ROYAL VISIT

The contemplated visit of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth to Canada next summer will call for plans of welcome all across Canada as the people desire to pay tribute to the Sovereigns on the first occasion on which a ruling monarch and his consort will visit the Dominion.

What this visit will mean is readily understood by Canadians. The Empire, always a reality, has become more and more real in these days of world changes. Canada as the great Dominion in the northern hemisphere fills a greater space in the minds of mankind than ever in its history. The shrinking of distance through the use of planes and communications has thrust Canada into the forefront of interest. Canada stands also as a link between Britain and the United States which are being brought closely together through the turn of world political events and through the developments of science. Therefore when Their Majesties come to Canada, they create not only a precedent by their visit but also put the seal of a new day upon the Empire's Dominions and upon the place of Canada in the imperial bond.

The suggestion has been made by the New York Times that the United States could not do less than invite the Sovereigns to visit White House at Washington and the World's Fair at New York. The Republic and Britain and Canada have been drawn more and more into the same orbit through the ties of race and language and of kindred democratic development and the Times notes that the Royal visit to the United States would symbolize in an unprecedented manner the friendship of the great English speaking peoples and a century and a quarter of peace between them.

THANKSGIVING DAY DATE

Is Thanksgiving Day too early? The question has again been raised by persons who would desire a more even division in season between Labor Day and Christmas, as long as a date could be chosen which would be suitable from the standpoint of weather. Merchants it is said would not be opposed to a later date on the grounds that business would benefit in the purchase of late autumn merchandise. The attitude too of the householders and of the people who wish to return to their family gatherings is believed to suggest the desirability of a later date somewhere about the first of November. High feasting which has been from earliest days associated with the holiday seems to require a late autumn date when all the crops have been gathered in, when there is a touch of frost and when turkey, duck or goose seems to taste better. From this household and family standpoint the wish seems to be for a date when all the trees which shed their leaves are bare and when men and women, boys and girls can hold high festival just before winter begins. Early fall temperatures are likely to be experienced during the first half of October, they lack the tang of real autumn, and the season does not appear to suit the spirit of Thanksgiving and its associations which have always been with late autumn.

Canada of course is a wide domain and no one date will suit all climes. In Eastern Canada the early date is too early and in other parts later dates would be too late. Canada is a land of many climates (though distinctively Canadian) and consideration has to be given the whole Dominion in arranging the date. In the United States the date is very late; near the end of November but there is the difference of climate to be reckoned with. This date must be considered chilly for northern states as much as the American Thanksgiving Day date appears cold for Ontario and Quebec, where the climate is largely the same as it is in the northeastern states. Naturally there can be only one Thanksgiving Day, a day of observance from coast to coast and from the forty-ninth parallel and in the southermost portion in Ontario and Quebec and the Maritimes to the Arctic that is clear, and that date must be chosen as nearly as possible to suit the entire country. That is the problem in the fixing of the date.

Thanksgiving Day is one of the holidays peculiar to the New World and the New World will not yield this holiday to which it has so long been accustomed.

OCTOBER'S GOLD

October's a spendthrift gay, today,
She's flinging her gold without measure,
With every wind that blows,
She gives of her golden treasure.

Casting it down at my feet,
And it rustles where I tread,
Yellow and red-brown leaves,
Reflecting your autumn head.

WHEN LORD KITCHENER WANTED A NEW ARMY IN A HURRY he advertised for it and lo and behold, as if by magic, a new and greater army was produced, called forth by the message in the daily newspapers that the Empire needed men to turn back the newest threat of the enemy. Whenever a big job was mooted and time was the essence of the contract the daily newspapers have been called upon and always produced the goods promptly. Almost every department of public life has found the needed tonic and dynamic power in newspaper publicity to put over new movements and great ideas—politics, religion, sports, theatres, industry large and small and all lines of endeavor have found the daily newspaper columns the open sesame to success. A case in point concerns the contest for the Governor's chair in New York State. The present incumbent, Governor Lehman, candidate for re-election, has a particularly hard nut to crack in the candidature of Thomas Dewey, super racket-buster of New York City. Realizing what a tough battle the contest promises to be Governor Lehman's first move was to engage a publicity man, or advertising manager, and he asked five of his close friends for suggestions. Strangely enough all five, separately but emphatically, recommended one John C. Kelly.

Says Kelly: "I was flattered, very surprised. I first met Mr. Lehman when he was selling Liberty Bonds. We've been very good friends since. I tried to help him when he wanted to be Lieutenant Governor. But I'm not a politician. I've never held a political job. Of course, I accepted."

John Callahan Kelly is a brisk, successful advertising man. His father was a well-to-do Albany contractor. John stumbled into philanthrophy when he got out of Villanova College, and has since been dividing his time between charity and publicizing steamship lines and hotels.

"And I'm going to give the Governor's campaign the same technique that I use in advertising. A lot of people like to travel, they like Bermuda, and they like our hotels. They're going to like Lehman better—if that's possible.

"Please remember that the Governor is personally a man of great dignity. He has conducted his office with dignity, and we cannot conceivably run his campaign except with dignity and restraint."

All right, Mr. Kelly, what makes a dignified political campaign?

Kelly shot back the answer promptly:

"The absence of any venom, and the honest assertion that you're concerned more with the welfare of New York's thirteen million people than you are with a political job".

GLADIATORS

A traveller, spinning the yarn as only travellers can, said: "From the boat the river looked alive with gladiators."

"Alive with gladiators."

40 YEARS AGO

OCT. 15TH, 1898

At a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Council for the purpose of drafting an agreement between the city and the Belleville Brussels Carpet Company, there were present Mayor J. W. Johnson and all members of the executive committee and Messrs J. L. Biggar and W. H. Biggar. A draft agreement was submitted and after some slight changes had been made it was accepted by both parties. The agreement will be submitted to the city council at the next meeting.

Eggs sold on the market today at 14 cents to 15 cents per dozen and butter sold at 20 cents to 22 cents per pound.

Messrs. C. M. Stork, Almon Reid and Thomas Ritchie returned today after spending some time in the northern part of the country.

Mr. Will Matheson is home from Boston, Mass., on a visit to his parents Mr. A. Matheson, Bursar at the D. and D. Institute, and Mrs. Matheson.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 15th., 1888.

Mr. Crawford, teacher in the Belleville High School, has been appointed to deliver the Latin Oration at the approaching convocation of Toronto University. Mr. Crawford won the gold medal at this university for different subjects and will receive another gold medal at the convocation to be held shortly. This is, indeed a high honor.

The bay fishermen have generally had a fair return for their labors. Hoop nets have done well, the catch of bull heads or mudcats has been considerable, and seines have taken some good hauls of whitefish. Some fishermen, who use seines, complain that the gill nets greatly interfere with their industry.

In the organization of the Belleville Mock Parliament, Mr. Geo. D. Dickson, Q. C., has been commissioned Governor-General. The following portfolios have been filled: W. C. Mikel, Premier, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior; C.R.McCullough, Minister of Finance and Customs; H. H. Johnston, Secretary of State and Minister of Marine and Fisheries; C. E. Lyons, Minister of Justice, Public Works and Railways and Canals; A. E. Halliwell, Minister of Militia and Defence and Superintendent General of Indian Affairs. Several portfolios remain to be filled. It is rumored that Adam Scott will be the Speaker.

Gloomy Messages for Posterity

Three of the world's famous intellectuals were asked to write messages for people living 5,000 years hence, the messages to be placed in a "time capsule" (whatever that is) and buried on the site of the 1939 New York World's Fair. The intellectuals were Dr. Albert Einstein, author of the theory of relativity; Dr. Robt. A. Millikan, scientist, and Dr. Thomas Mann, novelist and Nobel Prize winner. All three were pessimistic.

Einstein's message was that because the "intelligence and character of the masses are incomparably lower" than those of the few who "produce something valuable for the community," people of different countries "kill each other at irregular time intervals, so that . . . any one who thinks about the future must live in fear and terror."

Dr. Millikan wrote that "at this moment the principles of representative ballot government . . . are in deadly conflict with the principles of despotism." If despotism triumphed, he foresaw a repetition of "the sad story of war and oppression."

Dr. Mann said that the idea of the future as a "better world" was a "fallacy," let it go at that.

Five thousand years are so far away, it seems profitless to wonder what those who dig up these messages (if they ever do) will think of them. But for the sake of historical accuracy many must hope that some of the things our archaeologists are digging up now tell more truly the thought and conditions of those times than the messages of these three intellectuals tell of the thought and conditions of the present. For they reveal, or so it seems to us, a curious lack of proportion, of measure.

Take Dr. Einstein. His lament that the "intelligence and character of the masses are incomparably lower than those of the few" is true, but it is not nearly as true as it was a thousand years ago, or a hundred years ago, or even fifty. Even a hundred years ago, education was for the very few; the masses were not merely uneducated, they were illiterate. Not until the advent of the printing press, and of free education did the masses know what was going on in the world, much less to help to influence it. Wars, killings, were incessant.

Dr. Millikan sees the principles of "representative ballot government" in peril, endangered by despotism. But a thousand years ago, five hundred years ago, there was no "representative ballot government"; despotism was supreme everywhere. Indeed, up to about a hundred years ago, democracy made no headway against despotism; in Europe it was everywhere in flight. One wonders whether Dr. Millikan has ever read history farther back than the French Revolution; whether he ever heard of Napoleon, of the Holy Roman Alliance, or even Bismark.

Dr. Mann? Let those who may be cast down by his message to those 5,000 years hence take heart from a volume the good doctor has just published: "The Coming Victory of Democracy." It is a glorious, stimulating thing, charged with high courage and optimism. They really should put it, just as a hedge, with his other message, in that "time capsule."—Ottawa Journal.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

An Upset Mind Can Upset the Organs and Processes of the Body

A large industrial organization in an endeavour to find out why so many of their leading employees failed to keep their work at a high level and finally dropped out of the organization, engaged a professor of economics to investigate. He found that while domestic unhappiness was a big factor, the greatest cause of failure to continue work on a high standard was ill health.

In other words, an individual with brains and ambition can only go as far with his work or career as his body will take him. And the unfortunate part of this lack of health is that so much of it is due to nervousness and tension which disrupt the normal working of the various organs.

Recently in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases, Sir Farquhar Buzzard, professor of medicine University of Oxford, said that one third of all the sickness in Great Britain was due to causes that were not really organic. If he should be placed at the head of a great business organization, the first thing he would do would be to take on a whole-time medical psychologist to study his employees and their conditions in health and deal with all cases of nervous disorder as they arose. The sick roll would rapidly become smaller, the certificates given to patients that they were suffering with general debility, stomach inflammation, and anaemia, would gradually become almost unknown and the efficiency and happiness of the staff of the organization would be greatly increased.

Fortunately, medical schools are now fully aware of the importance of the health of the worker to himself and to his employer that more time is given to this subject than ever before. So helpful have been the findings by laboratory examinations—blood count, Xray, kidney, liver and gall bladder and other tests—that there was danger that the body, not the mind, was receiving all the attention. As an upset mind can cause an upsetment of the various organs and the body processes to the extent that heart, bloodvessel, stomach and other symptoms occur, it is only common sense that the upsetment of mind should be first treated, if these symptoms are to be made to disappear.

USED TO THEM

The typhoon which struck the Tokyo area and caused a heavy loss of life and property was nothing compared to the earthquake, tidal wave and fire which virtually destroyed Tokyo on Sept. 1, 1923.

The property loss from the 1923 disaster was estimated at $2,500,000,000.

And the casualty list included 99,331 known dead, 43,476 missing and presumed to be dead, and 103,733 injured.

Japan is a group of volcanic islands, with an average of four slight earthquakes a day and a very serious one every six or seven years.

We may not like some aspects of their foreign policy, but we cannot help admiring the fortitude of the Japanese—some 70,000,000 of whom are crowded into an area, the tillable acreage of which is less than one-half of that of California—and their ability to take the worst nature can hand them and come up smiling.—Detroit Free Press.

Weather Prophecy in Rhyme

When the days grow short and the cold winds blow and the black clouds threaten with rain or snow, and the sun slides down like its track was greased and the gales howl down from the black northeast, and the fruit gleams red on the mountain ash, and the spume flies high as the breakers crash, and the seagulls scream and the wild ducks halt at the river's mouth on their way to their haunts in the sunny South, and the nights grow long, we are always told that the winter is sure to be long and cold.

When the summer's gone with its heat and drought and the wild geese honk on their journey south, when the crops are in and the fall work's done and the days are dreary without the sun, and the berries red on the mistletoe and the ground is whitened with trackin' snow, and you feel where your BVDs leave off and an ice scum forms on the water trough, and it's time for buckwheats and cornmeal mush, and you slog, slog, slog through the mud and slush, and the bird flocks gather for autumn flights and the sky's brilliant with Northern lights; when the days are raw and the weather's rough, it is time for the prophets to do their stuff.

"Me savvy weather by nuts on trees," says Chief Big Bear, of the Cherokees. The chief avers with no ifs or buts, he can tell by the shell on the butternuts. Big Bear is an unspoiled child of nature and uses the red man's nomenclature. The chief admits he's a century old, and he knows we are in for a heap of cold. When he's primed with a pipe and a pint of liquor, he will state that the shells this year are thicker, which means to the Indians in the know that winter is coming with plenty of snow. And another sign is the banshee wail he can hear in the trees on the hunting trail.

Then there's Trapper Bill from the river flats, who resides alone with his dogs and cats. Ol' Bill chaws hard at a quid of scraps and he casts an eye at his muskrat traps as he whittles away at a pitch pine splinter and allows we are in for a long hard winter. As a weather prophet he has his pride. He foretells by the fur on a muskrat hide. "If the winter is mild, then when fall begins, there ain't much fur on the muskrat skins. If the fur is long it will be worth while to be prepared with a big woodpile. Fur's long," says Bill, "so it would appear we are due for a long cold spell this year."

Says Grandma Jenkins when interviewed, "Those weather forecasts are all squirrel food," and grandma smokes as she knits and purls. "You will know what's ahead if you watch the squirrels. If they gather acorns in piles so high a long hard winter is drawing nigh. When they don't do that then it stands to reason we can look for a short mild winter season. I kin recollect now back in '84, when it snowed a lot, then it snowed some more. Then there was that winter of '93—but there ain't no snows like there used to be. Now I know I'm right, 'cus the squirrels ain't wrong and this winter'll be cold and long.

When you shiver with cold and you shrink with dread of the winter weather that lies ahead; when your cheeks glow red and your nose is blue and you cough and sneeze with a touch of flu, and your feet are cold and you feel your age, it is time for the prophets to make front page with stories of winters away back when and to prophesy snowbanks and cold again. To endure the weather is bad enough without the prophets to make it tough. Regardless of whether it's false or true they might lay off—but they never do.—R. E. Prescott in Detroit Free Press.

Finds Corn Crop Messy Job

In common with most farmers who feed and milk a number of dairy cows, we like to have a good silo full of ensilage when the feeding period opens—and the unfortunate part of it is that barn feeding is rapidly drawing near.

We much prefer to have a little corn left over when the silo is filled and re-filled, rather than be a little short on the second filling. The trouble is our silo is a bit on the small side, considering the stock we keep, and in sowing corn in Spring we generally figure on an average or below-average crop, and sow a bit extra. That is what we did last Spring and then found that the corn was actually going to be an above-average crop. Just about the time the cobs were forming the field looked wonderful. Then one day came a terrific storm, and what a sorry mess that corn field was in next morning. Stalks broken and twisted. The whole crop severely checked from further growth and development, particularly of the cobs.

Then, not so long ago, came the day to start harvesting the corn crop. A corn binder makes a good job of many a tangly field, but there are some crops that are just too messy for a corn binder to handle properly, and this was one of them. Now, cutting corn with a hoe is not a pleasant job. The average man tackles it with reluctance and finishes with sore hands and ailing back; and from the farmer's standpoint the labor involved is rather costly. Finally we thought that enough had been cut to fill the silo once at least, and nearly an acre was left untouched. The silo was filled and there was enough loose corn in the field to refill. Thus we have not only had the problem of a crop difficult to handle but a crop too big for the silo. Perhaps we would be speaking more correctly, though, if we said a silo too small for the crop, because we could use all the corn to good advantage if we had the storage space. Some day we must have more silo space.

Today the silo was to have been refilled, but this is one of those days that we would naturally expect in late November rather than in September. How much of the corn is going to go into the silo and what can we do with the remainder?

The month of September has been one of raw weather and the stock, particularly milch cows, has suffered. Speaking of cows, where is that Consumers' League that complained so bitterly about the high cost of butter last Winter? The farmer certainly is not making a fortune with butter fat at present levels, though even the price of butter is overshadowed by the dangers of war. It is generally conceded that the price of farm produce will advance in case of war, but the farmer would object most strenuously to any increase in price if war could be prevented.

But can war be prevented? What anxiety one man, dizzy with his own rise to power, can cause a world! Just at a time when the leaves are turning, when the last of the harvest, corn, roots and potatoes are being gathered, just when we should be well satisfied with the yields of our fields, this most serious of all war threats comes up. Surely peace can yet be maintained.—By Rusticus in Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Rose Hoard, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. Irvin Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bailey, Miss Eileen MacMullen, Mrs. George Weaver, Rev. J. E. Beckel represented Mount Pleasant at the 13th annual meeting of Belleville section held at West Huntingdon on Thursday.

Salem United Church was decorated with autumn flowers and foliage, vegetables of every hue with rosy apples and other fruits for their regular anniversary on Thanksgiving Sunday. Rev. E. Delve of Morven took charge of the morning service and Rev. R. E. Newman of Holloway Street Church at night. The offering amounted to around one hundred and two dollars. On Monday evening a special Thanksgiving supper was served with a large crowd in attendance and the proceeds were $65.40. Rev. W. R. Delve, pastor of the church was chairman and greetings were given by Rev. J. E. Beckel, Rev. W. R. Tristram, and Canon Swayne. The Ivanhoe quartette sang twice Mrs. W. Fitchett, West Huntingdon and Mr. Frank Palmer, Ivanhoe, gave two duets with guitar accompaniment. Miss Dorothy Tristram and Miss Della McMaster each gave two recitations. Mr. F. Dafoe sang two vocal numbers with guitar accompaniment. Mr. Arthur Duncan of Stirling delighted with a round of comical stories. All enjoyed the evening and the ladies are being congratulated on their splendid meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Muriel and Doris attended Salem supper on Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen spent Friday at Hazzards Corners and attended Madoc Sectional rally W. M. S., when Mrs. MacMullen gave an address on "Our Financial Need."

On Sunday evening at Mount Pleasant, Rev. J. F. Everson of Plainfield took charge as Rev. Beckel was taking anniversary services at Zion. Mr. John Coggins rendered a solo, the church was prettily decorated with flowers, fruit and vegetables.

Mrs. S. J. Archer, Havelock, visited Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Andrews were guests Sunday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott.

Miss Marjorie Bush, River Valley, spent the week end with Miss Marion Rose.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Gummer, Bethel, attended service at Mount Pleasant, Sunday evening.

The Sunbeam Mission Band held their October meeting at Mount Pleasant United Church on Saturday afternoon. The service opened with quiet music, call to worship and Master Eric Summers presided. Miss Marion Rose offered prayer.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers read the Bible lesson and gave the Thanksgiving lesson and story. Five girls sang a selection and readings were given by Misses Marjorie Bush and Gladys Summers.

FAREWELL TO BACKACHE!

Her back ached—she felt miserable—no pep—she couldn't be "bothered" to go out—lost contact with her friends and was lonely. Her sister advised her to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Her backache soon vanished—enthusiasm and energy returned—her eyes sparkled—her step was sprightly—and once again she was her "old self." 115

Say GOODBYE TO BACKACHE with Dodd's Kidney Pills

Miss Ruth Rose gathered the offering. After the meeting the children decorated the church very nicely with autumn foliage, flowers, fruit and vegetables in preparation for the mission band thankoffering which was taken on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hubble, Windsor, Mrs. Will Hubble, Campbellford visited Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle McAdam and Lois attended Salem anniversary on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Morrow, Peterborough, visited Mrs. Sarah McKeown, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Johnson, Don and Marian spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Redg. Warren at Balderson near Perth.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes entertained over the holiday Miss Frankie Livingston, Toronto, Mrs. John Fitzgerald and Jack of Eldorado, Miss Evelyn Lutz and Mr. Bobby Murray, Yellowgrass, Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pauley entertained Wellman's Women's Association at their home with about twenty-five in attendance.

Rev. J. E. Beckel was chairman and Mr. John Pauley gave a resitation. Master Gerald Clancy sang a number, Mrs. George Maybee read a missionary article and Mr. George Godden gave a reading. An appetizing lunch was served and a vote of thanks tendered to host and hostess.

Several Rawdonians attended anniversary services at Salem, Halloway, Burnbrae and West Huntingdon on Sunday.

Some from here attended the funeral of Mr. E. Hannah last Wednesday in Belleville.

Mrs. Herb. Mech of Port Hope spent last week with her sister, Mrs. W. Sine.

The funeral of the late Mr. Charles Blakely was held on Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Scott.

Rawdon folks were well represented at Tweed Fair last Saturday and Norwood Fair on Wednesday.

West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon—The Thanksgiving holiday was duly observed here. The farmers did not declare Monday as a legal holiday, but nevertheless they were truly thankful for what the season of 1938 has meant to them. Hay, grain, corn, potatoes and apples were all an abundant crop. Prices have been slightly higher. Considerable improvements have come to the town, to assist the citizens here to enjoy life more. All of which the citizens here are very grateful.

Anniversary Services

The United Church held their anniversary services on Sunday. Both morning and evening services were well attended. The minister, Rev. W. R. Tristram had charge of both meetings and gave most inspiring messages. The choir was assisted in the morning service by Messrs. Charles Ketcheson, Joe Williams and Milton Vanderwater of Moira, who gave a most excellent number, "Were you there when they Crucified My Lord."

Institute Meeting

The Huntingdon Branch of the W. I. held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Morley Haggerty on Tuesday, Oct. 11. This meeting was largely attended. The Roll Call revealed 40 members present. The president, Mrs. Thomas Fleming, presided over the meeting and after the opening number, the minutes, business and correspondence was dealt with. Mrs. Foster Wilson was appointed delegate to attend the Area Convention to be held in Belleville in near future.

Plans were also made for the Hallowe'en Concert on Oct. 31st.

Mrs. Chester Sills gave a paper on Child Welfare. Mrs. Samuel Donnan gave a humorous reading. Mrs. John Wallace also gave a paper on Buyingship. At close of meeting a lunch was served and a vote of appreciation extended to Mrs. Haggerty for her hospitality.

Conservative Annual Meeting

The Conservative annual meeting was held at the Town Hall, Ivanhoe, on Tuesday evening with a fair attendance present. Delegates were appointed to attend the convention to be held at Marmora on Nov. 12. The officers for 1939 appointed were:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. Henry Wallace.
Pres.—Mr. R. Downey.
Vice pres.—Mr. Sam Donnan.
Secretary—Mr. Matt. English.
Treasurer—Mr. Albert Dugan.

Board Meeting

The Quarterly official Board of United Church of the West Huntingdon Circuit held their October meeting at Moira on Tuesday evening. All the appointments were represented.

Personals

Mr. William McMechan of Madoc spent a few days this week with Arthur Wilson.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Wright were: Mr. and Mrs. John Reynolds of Carmel, Miss Olive Howe and Mr. Carl Thompson also of Carmel, and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wright and family.

Marmora

Marmora—Under auspices of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's United Church, the annual chicken supper was served to a large gathering in the Church Hall on Wednesday, the ladies well sustaining their reputation for this annual event. After the supper an intensely interesting lantern lecture on "Palestine. Ancient and Modern" was given in three sections by Mr. Grafton of Belleville Collegiate Institute. The first series of scenes focussed around Bethlehem, the central section featuring Bethany with Jerusalem and scenes incidental to Holy Week and Easter. Prefacing the lecture, Mr. Grafton gave an elucidating map talk on places mentioned in news dispatches of the past few days. The lecture was interspersed with songs by George Woodhouse, the first being "The Open Road" and the second "The Eternal Pearl" of which a Marmora man, W. J. Cottrell is author and which was being sung in public for the first time in this country. At the conclusion of the lecture "What a Friend We have in Jesus" was sung. Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth as chairman voiced appreciation to the lecturer for his wonderful lecture and pronounced the Benediction.

Mr. Hugh Phillips of Toronto visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillips on Monday.

Mr. Wes. Richardson of Toronto visited friends in Marmora and Deloro on Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. McCarry of Madoc spent Sunday with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Airhart, son Douglas and daughter Iladell, attended the chicken supper held by St. Andrew's Church on Wednesday.

Miss Grace Prentice of Belleville attended the chicken supper held by St. Andrew's United Church on Wednesday evening.

Marmora

Marmora—The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. G. Kerr drew a large attendance. Prior to the opening, exercises of the members were filmed by Dr. Frank Carlton in connection with the film which he has been taking of the village. The president, Mrs. J. Gordaneer, occupied the chair and the meeting opened in the usual way. The roll call was "My Pet Superstition" and was well responded to. It was decided to approach one of the High School teachers with a view to the teacher acting as a captain for the tag day for the National Institute for the Blind. Plans for the operation of the booth at the Fair were concluded. Mrs. W. C. Spry followed with some thoughts on Legislation. Current Events prepared by Mrs. Fred Wells were given by the Secretary, Miss Grace Warren. Mrs. Fred Wells gave a humorous reading which was also much enjoyed. Another reading on "Old Shoes" was given by Mrs. Robert Phillips. A splendid paper on the Monthly Motto, "The Happiness of your life depends upon the character of your Thoughts", was given by Mrs. J. A. Rice. The meeting then adjourned following which lunch was served.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Cross of Deloro was held at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, on Thursday afternoon. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiated. The pallbearers were as follows: Messrs. Floyd Gray, Orval Trumble, George O'Neill, Hector Boudreaux, Jules Ethier, William Simmons. Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

A view of the obverse side of the magnificent monstrance, or ostensorium, which will be used in the 8th National Eucharistic Congress which opens in New Orleans on October 17. The monstrance weighing 24 pounds, is said to be one of the most exquisite and valuable sacred vessels ever created. More than $200,000 worth of jewels, platinum and silver were used in fashioning it. The monstrance itself is of pure gold except for the angels supporting the luna. CENTRE, the Virgin Mary and the saints at the base, which are of sterling silver.

Leonardo da Vinci is probably best known for his painting, "Mona Lisa". It was he who first lifted painting from its two-dimensional appearance that had prevailed up to his time. By use of light and shadow, he gave his paintings depth.

Da Vinci's seeing eye guided his gifted hand; and another forward step in progress was made. Eyes guide 80% of our actions. They give us, too, 83% of our knowledge. How important it is that vision be clear and sharp. Good vision means better work, happier play—greater safety. Be sure that your vision is good. Weddings

DE NURE—WIGHT

The home of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Wight, Wellington, bright with Autumn flowers, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, when their only daughter, Evelyn Agnes, was married to Mr. James Ivan De Nure of Gananoque, youngest son of Mrs. Margaret De Nure, Gravenhurst, and the late Mr. C. R. De Nure.

Rev. L. S. Wight, Belleville, uncle of the bride, was the officiating clergyman.

The ceremony was performed beneath an arch banked with brilliant foliage, ferns and Autumn flowers, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. R. A. Wight, Hillier, aunt of the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a picture of loveliness in a gown of white bridal satin, fashioned on princess lines, with Peter Pan collar and tiny satin buttons. The yoke was of Alencon lace, and the fitted sleeve ended in points of lace.

Her tulle veil fell softly from a halo held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and seed pearls. She wore silver slippers, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and bouvardia, tied with silver bow.

During the signing of the register, Miss Lela De Nure, Gravenhurst, sister of the groom, sang "I Love You Truly".

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. N. A. Tice, Mrs. L. Smith, Mrs. W. Wight, Mrs. R. Wight, Mrs. G. Newson, Miss Doratha Sprague, Miss Iola Wight and Miss Marjorie Pearson

The bride's mother received wearing a gown of American rust crepe, with yoke insertion of black net and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother was unable to be present.

The groom's gift to the bride was a yellow gold filigree bracelet, to the organist a black leather bag, and to the soloist, a yellow gold pendant.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left by motor for Ottawa and Northern Ontario, returning by way of Muskoka Lakes.

For travelling the bride wore a tailored suit of navy blue with matching accessories, and Boy Blue coat.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. De Nure will reside at 115 William Street, Gananoque.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Stewart Showered With Felicitations On 50th Wedding Anniversary

Home On Highland Avenue Opened To Many Friends In City

RECIPIENTS OF GIFTS

Couple Have Made Their Residence In Belleville For Many Years

Friends throughout the city and province were happy yesterday to join with Mr. and Mrs. George F. Stewart, 77 Highland Avenue, in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Residents of the city for over forty years, they have made an enviable place in the affections and esteem of fellow members of the community who were grateful for yesterday's opportunity of paying tribute to their friendship.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart received during the afternoon and evening, and their home was thronged with visitors. Others who were unable to be present showered them with messages of good wishes, tokens of bonds of association that have strengthened with the years.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart was solemnized in Lynden, Ontario in 1888. Mrs. Stewart was formerly Miss Mary Jane Forster, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Moffitt Forster. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. Fred Brown, now of Detroit, and by Mrs. Stewart's sister, who is now Mrs. Moore, wife of Dr. J. Albert Moore, Toronto, former Moderator and General Secretary of the United Church in Canada. Dr. Moore's illness, made it impossible for them to attend the celebration. Other members of Mrs. Stewart's family are two brothers, Dr. F.J.R. Forster of Stratford and Mr. Jas. Forster of Toronto.

Of a family of four, all Mr. Stewart's brothers and sisters are living and their ages average slightly over eighty years, truly a record. They are William L. Stewart of Brantford, Mrs. Samuel Pickett of Grimsby and Mrs. James Patterson of Brantford.

Born in Brant County

Mr. Stewart was born in Brant County and after attending the schools of that district, chose teaching as his profession. He was engaged in public school work for a short time when his ambition led him to the field of journalism. He was on the staff of the Star-Transcript, Paris, the Ottawa Free Press and the Woodstock-Sentinel-Review, and then came to Belleville as editor of the Daily Ontario. He brought to his position a scholarly mind, a keen and sympathetic understanding, qualities which have distinguished his life.

Shortly after establishing himself in the city, Mr. Stewart was asked by Dr. Robert Mathieson, then Superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, to accept a position on the teaching staff and on the editorial staff of the school publication "The Canadian." For forty-three years, Mr. Stewart taught at the school. Many young teachers have been grateful for his inspiration and kindness. Hundreds of deaf students who came into contact with him, recognized in him a kindly teacher and a true friend, and went out into the world confident in the knowledge that here they would always find encouragement and assistance. Evidence of their affection was shown yesterday when from all Ontario cities where deaf clubs are organized came telegrams and messages of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. Stewart signed by each member. A basket of fifty Talisman roses was received from the Ontario Association for the Deaf all of whose conventions, save one, Mr. Stewart has attended during the past forty years, and of which he has been an Honorary President. From Mr. John L. Shilton, president of the Association, there was a personal letter in which he paid heartfelt tribute on behalf of his associates, referring to Mr. Stewart as "The Deaf's True Friend", and conveying good wishes to him and to Mrs. Stewart.

Valuable Contribution

As editor of "The Canadian" Mr. Stewart made a valuable contribution to Canadian Literature in his series of articles concerning the Dominion, and each issue contained worthwhile and admirable material.

Members of Bridge Street United Church, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have both taken active part in the work of the church. Mr. Stewart was for seven years president of the Young People's Association and has served as member of the Board. Mrs. Stewart conducted a Bible Class of thirty-five members, was corresponding secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society and has interested herself in the various women's enterprises of the church.

Much of Mrs. Stewart's leisure time, however, has been devoted to the work of the Women's Christian Association, Belleville's community organization unique in Ontario. She has been a member of the association for twenty-five years and was particularly interested in the Belleville Home for the Aged, acting as chairman of the Home Board for many years. Her gracious personality made a lasting impression on her associates in the work and on those who came under her care.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have resided at 77 Highland Avenue for thirty-one years and neighbours in that vicinity expressed their congratulations on yesterday's event by the gift of a huge basket of golden chrysanthemums. The jubilee's color was also carried out in the decoration of the dining table which was centred with a beautifully decorated wedding cake the work of students at the O.S.D., and with yellow tapers. Flowers in the same shade decorated the reception room, one basket being the gift of the W.C.A., and the library which contains a treasury of literature, particularly Canadiana.

Received at Home

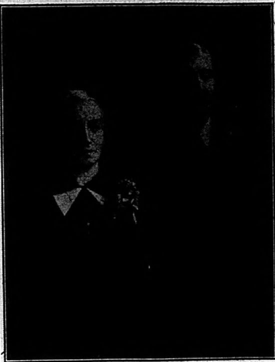
Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Stewart was their daughter, Mrs. Irene Aman. There are four grandchildren, Mr. Stewart Aman of Kingston, who has a position at Queen's University, Bob, Mary and Margaret Aman of this city, and two great grandchildren, Thomas Arthur and Shirley Jean Aman of Kingston.

The door was opened to the many guests in the afternoon by Miss Rita Thompson and they were invited to tea by Mrs. E. B. Lally. Mrs. J. Wilfried Holmes and Miss Catherine Ford poured tea and the assistants were Misses Mary and Margaret Aman and Miss Beth Stock. In the evening Miss Helen Thompson opened the door. Mrs. W. H. Lattimer invited the visitors to tea, and Mrs. W. J. Morrison and Mrs. E. N. Baker presided at the tea table

Among the visitors last evening of whom there were over two hundred were five of Mr. Stewart's deaf students who had motored from Toronto to attend the reception.

Members of the staff of the Ontario School for the Deaf recently honored their former associate, and firm friends, at a reception held at the school, when Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were presented with a handsome bouquet of flowers and sincere good wishes for many more years of happiness and good health.

Former Latta Residents Celebrate Golden Jubilee



Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cleveley of Lockport, N.Y., formerly of Latta, who observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cleveley formerly of Latta, Ont., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at a gala party held on October 2nd., at the home of their daughter Mrs. Percy Lamburd, Lockport, N.Y. The house was decorated with gold, and Autumn flowers, the dining table being centred with a large wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Among those present were four children of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveley, Mrs. Percy Lamburd, Mr. Will Cleveley, Mr. Fred Cleveley of Lockport, N.Y., Mrs. Will Brigden of Waterport, N.Y., five grandchildren, Irene Barstow, Clayton Brigden, Lefa Brigden of Waterport, N.Y., Hazel and Howard Cleveley of Lockport. Dinner was served to the family and a few friends.

Mrs. Cleveley was born and educated near Latta, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Reid. Mr. Cleveley was born in England, coming to Canada when a small boy.

GOOD MANNERS

Tea-Hour

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—For years it has been my custom, when a guest pays a friendly afternoon call upon me, whether formal or informal, to serve tea and some simple refreshment—perhaps buttered toast and cookies, or thin bread and butter sandwiches and cake. This summer when calling upon some newlyweds and some new arrivals in our community there were no refreshments of any kind served. Please tell me is it no longer the thing to serve tea in the afternoon to callers? When these people return my call should I do as they did, or shall I continue to do as I have been doing?

2—Is the etiquette of calling cards as rigid as it was some ten years ago, or is it quite correct when paying calls (in a small town) to omit the use of calling cards? I am a mother with a grown-up family and custom seems to be changing in many respects.

C.

1—Please don't give up your friendly observance of the tea-hour. I am as enthusiastic as you are about this informal (or formal) bow to this "pause in the day's occupation", the gracious and welcome interlude between luncheon and dinner.

The serving of tea by the hostess is so simple, so casual, so enjoyable, so friendly and refreshing for guests. No service is necessary, and not much planning required. Your simple and appropriate menus are just right.

Don't be dismayed or influenced by the fact that the brides or the newcomers in your community did not serve tea. Tea-time observance is a custom that remains unaltered and serene, and, since you enjoy serving tea, hold high the torch of enthusiasm for this attractive and appealing service. I am convinced that when these newcomers to your community observe the grace of your habit of serving tea they will decide at once to "do likewise".

2—The etiquette of visiting-cards is definitely not as rigid as it was "when Mother was a girl". But what we do about leaving cards depends on the customs of the community in which we live. "When in Rome, do as the Romans do" is the rule.

Thank You Letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Please tell me how to word a letter to send to a friend of my husband's thanking him for tickets to a show that he is producing.

How should such a letter be signed?

S.

Your note of thanks might read something like this:

Dear Mr. Forbes:

You gave Tom and me a very special happiness in making it possible for us to see your excellent production of "The Great News". Thank you so much for so thoughtfully and generously sending us the tickets. We enjoyed every minute of the performance which was a great credit to your inspiring direction. We felt very proud sitting in such grand seats, and indeed the whole evening was a memorable occasion for us. Many, many thanks to you, from us both.

Very sincerely

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Hair-Trigger Temper Fatal to Happiness

The first essential of a happy marriage is a good disposition.

Please don't think I'm advocating a yes-yes, namby-pamby life partner who hasn't enough personality to blow up into a good storm occasionally. An occasional storm isn't a bad thing for clearing the domestic atmosphere. But these storms should be spaced plenty far apart.

The husband or wife who indulges in such long-spaced disturbances is a different creature from the one whose temper is of the hair-trigger variety, one which explodes at the least touch. There's no peace in a house where the temper of husband and wife is set on a quick fuse.

If father has one of those slight-pressure, explosive temperaments, you can detect it in the way the wife has of moving about as if she were dodging shots. She's never at ease for the shot may come from any quarter. The slightest deviation from preference —newspaper in an unaccustomed place, imaginery forays on his possessions (collar buttons, cuff links, tools, books, necktie, etc., all of which he find later on exactly where he has put them) —and the wife's face reflects an expression of being too long on the firing line.

A husband of this type may be a good provider. He may have intervals of charm, kindliness and devotion but you can't count on him. The highly mechanized trigger and secondary trigger, on which his temper is set, goes off as if it were demonstrating its terrible efficiency.

The girl with the hair-trigger temper is more of a menace to happy marriage than a husband with the same quick-firing disposition. She'll be around the house for longer periods than the husband and you'll be submitted for longer intervals to her hair-trigger state of mind. But unless a man is utterly and besottedly in love, he may discover before fatal words are said whether he is about to domesticate this type of firearm.

Let him observe, when he calls, if the family flinches when she asks a question. Do their words tumble over each other in answering her? Has her voice a way of taking on a razor edge if you don't agree with her?

Can she adapt herself to a new environment; or, for instance, if you happen to go with her, on a picnic, does she pick out the most comfortable log and expect the hot dogs to be brought to her without turning a finger—and look angry if they do not come? Does she have a "you'd better"! manner of asking for things? Does she borrow other girls' hats, coats, furs and slippers, as if she were Columbus taking possession in the name of the King and Queen of Spain?

She may out-Hollywood Hollywood in the matter of beauty but remember she's loaded and the least touch will send her off. She is seldom witty, clever or amusing, this hair-trigger girl. If she had those desirable qualities, she'd know her line is fatal.

If you're picking out a husband or wife, the first thing to be considered is a good disposition. Pick the good-natured, even-tempered life-partner, and leave the high-strung creature to someone else.

The barometer of the home is a good, sunshiny temperament. If you've been submitted to a hurricane or two, move out of its range as quickly as possible.

Pains In The Back
Tell of deranged kidneys

Pains in the small of the back tell of kidney derangements.

Other symptoms are pallor, loss of weight, dryness of the skin and swelling of the limbs.

Backache is the most certain warning that the kidneys are failing to filter the poisonous uric acid from the blood.

You may also have frequent headaches and aching limbs, for acid poisons always cause bodily pains and aches.

If you want to remove the cause of such ailments, it is advisable to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For half a century they have proven their success as an effective means of restoring the health and activity of the kidneys, the liver and the bowels. It is because of their direct and combined action on these organs that they prove effective when ordinary medicines fail.

Sauces For This and That

It is often said that the sauce makes the dish. This may seem an exaggerated statement, but it is true that a good sauce adds flavour and appeal to the food with which it is served, and that a well-seasoned sauce seems a necessary complement to many foods. Cream sauce with its innumerable variations is undoubtedly the most generally used of all sauces. A few practical, easily prepared variations of the sauce with their uses are suggested for the homemaker who is looking for new ways of serving simple dishes.

Medium Cream Sauce

(Basic Recipe)

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper

Melt butter. Blend in flour. Add milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Season with salt and pepper. A little paprika added to the sauce gives it a richer colour.

Variations of Cream Sauce

Cheese Sauce: Add 1-2 cup grated cheese to cream sauce. Beat well. Serve with vegetables such as cauliflower and asparagus.

Egg Sauce: Add 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped, to 1 cup cream sauce. Serve with fish.

Celery Sauce: Add 1-2 cup chopped cooked celery to 1 cup cream sauce. Serve with oysters or fowl.

Curry Sauce: Add 1-2 teaspoon curry powder to 1 cup cream sauce. Serve with eggs, lamb, rice, chipped beef, chicken.

Caper Sauce: Add 1-4 cup capers to 1 cup cream sauce. Serve with fish.

Onion Sauce: Cook 1 cup sliced onion for five minutes Drain and rub through a sieve. Add to 1 cup cream sauce. Serve with pork chops, mutton or hard-cooked eggs.

Vegetable Sauce: Use 1-2 cup vegetable stock and 1-2 cup milk as liquid in making cream sauce. Add 1-4 cup cubed vegetables. Serve with cooked vegetables.

Mock Hollandaise Sauce: Make 1 cup cream sauce. Pour some of hot mixture over beaten egg yolk. Add to sauce. Cook two minutes. Remove from heat. Add one tablespoon lemon juice and one tablespoon butter. Serve with vegetables or fish.

SHANNONVILLE W. M. S.

The ladies of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church held a very successful all-day meeting and quilting at the home of Mrs. W. D. Robertson on Thursday, Oct. 13. A delicious pot luck dinner was served at noon, 24 ladies were present. A meeting was held in the afternoon with Mrs. Sam Elliott, persident, in charge. After the opening hymn and theme song all repeated the Lord's prayer. The Scripture lesson from the eleventh chapter of Matthew was read by Miss Florence Terry and Mrs. (Rev.) Craig led in prayer. A reading "Worship with God" was given by Mrs. E. Elliott. Minutes of the last meeting were biven by Mrs. Orval Stratton and adopted as read. Miss Sara Stickney expressed thanks for remembrance while she was confined to Kingston Hospital, also for flowers sent after she came home. Money was voted to Miss Florence Terry to carry on her work of sending birthday cards to the aged members of the community. It was decided to buy a stove and permission was given the W.M.S. to put in their quilt for sale at the bazaar. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Allan and Mrs. Stanley MacDonald for so kindly making quilt tops for the W.A. Mrs. Walt Morden offered her home for an all day meeting Nov. 10th. After the closing hymn the W. A. benediction closed the meeting. Proceeds of the dinner $4.14.

AIKEN'S W. M. S.

The October meeting of Aiken's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Westover on Tuesday of this week, with an attendance of seventeen. Quiet music by Mrs. Lee Grills brought the gathering to order and the President, Mrs. Thos. Irwin read the opening meditation. "O God our help in ages past" was sung, followed by a prayer of Thanksgiving by Mrs. Harley Hubble. The Scripture and devotional lesson was read by Miss Jennie Moon. Members responded to the roll call with verses pertaining to "Thanksgiving." During the business session plans were made for the Sunday service to be held Armistice Sunday, also the afternoon meeting at Stone Church on Oct. 19. Mrs. Bruce Hogle, Secretary of Christian Stewardship gave a report of the givings through the envelope and the Treasurer. Miss Jennie Moon reported having raised $126.00 so far this year. This meeting was dedicated to the celebration of the Honan Jubilee. The war in China has made it impossible to have a jubilee celebration in Honan itself, but the war has not destroyed, nor stopped the Christian work which had its beginning there so many years ago.

A graphic description of the work done during the past 50 years in the Honan Mission was given by Mrs. W. H. Kells and Mrs. S. Westover also described work accomplished, which was followed by prayer for China and Japan by Mrs. C. Moon.

A piano solo by Mrs. Lee Grills was enjoyed by all present.

Splendid reports of the sectional Rally held at West Huntingdon were given by Mrs. Leon McMullen and Mrs. Perry Hamilton.

The society's honorary member, Mrs. Abe Finkle of Belleville was present, bringing a message of encouragement.

Rev. Johnson announced that Rev. Mitchell of Honan, China, would be present at Aikens' Anniversary Services. This meeting was closed with a helpful prayer by Mrs. A. Finkle. Offering received was 2.07, also a donation by Mrs. Finkle.

FIGHTING FAT CELLS CHECKS DOUBLE CHIN

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

LIFE is bitter to the woman who discovers a double chin. Romance is only a memory. She fancies she'd better settle down to her knitting, and that's where she makes a mistake. The thing to do is to roll the chins into a state of single blessedness be on with the dance and the merry flirtations.

When once there is a cross line, beware. In no time at all, fulness appears. A few little fat cells come along, raise a big family; the beauty jib is up.

Get out the massage cream, spread it on with flattened fingers after the face has been washed at night and the flesh is warm and glowing. With finger and thumb pick up tiny folds of the unwanted pouch; roll between the fingers. You'll be crushing the life out of adipose tissue. Don't roll so violently that you bruise the skin. Tissues are soft there and resent rough treatment.

While the cream remains on, get an ice cube; frisk it over the throat from collar bones to chin tip. Rub up and down, never crosswise. Remove the cream with tissues, apply witch hazel. In the morning use cold water and witch hazel. Astringents are necessary so tissues won't be flabby.

Take no chance of injuring the delicate glands.

To develop the bust, every night bathe with soap and warm water, rinse with warm water and dry. Oil the palms of the hands with cocoa-butter, send them in round and round motions over the breasts with light upward pressure. Be gentle.

In the morning use cold water freely, friction well with a coarse towel. Apply rubbing alcohol which stimulates the blood streams. When they get busy bringing nourishment to deflated tissues, the bust measurement will gradually increase.

Stiff Wind May Cause Baldness?

(Goodnight Stories)

By MAX TRELL

ALL THE flowers in the garden were talking about Mr. Dandy-Lion's hair turning completely white. It was a very important piece of news. Even the violets, who seldom had anything to say about anybody, whispered to their neighbors, the blue-bells. "Mr. Dandy-Lion's hair used to be yellow. And now it's white."

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow children with the turned-about names, heard what was happening, and they went down to the garden wall to see Mr. Dandy-Lion. They couldn't believe that his hair really had turned white.

But when they came to the spot where he always stood, they found that it was all quite true. His hair had turned completely white and fluffy. He looked a good deal like a powder puff standing on a green stem.

He was quite proud of himself.

Is He Handsome?

"Of course," he said, "it's very beautiful. I suppose I'm the handsomest flower in the garden now."

"You are" Hanid said.

"You know, it makes me feel quite a bit older than I used to feel, a little like a grandmother. However, I don't mind. The summer is getting on. I'm not as young as I used to be. Some folks get completely bald when they grow old. But me—I'm different. I'll never get bald. Ah, what a lovely breeze!" he sudddenly said as a puff of wind came over the garden wall.

He tossed his head in the breeze. As he did so, three or four of the little fluffs of white hair pulled themselves loose and went floating too across the garden and over the meadow.

"No 55 he said. "I don't think I'll ever get bald. But if I do—well, I won't mind that either. I can be a grandfather just the same. But I would like to have some grandchildren."

And then Hanid and Knarf smiled. "Oh, you'll have them all right. They're going to grow up in the meadow next spring."

Mr. Dandy-Lion was very happy to hear that.

Fashion Notes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

Young things are going in heavily for velveteen reefer suits. A grand model is in wine red velveteen, the reefer made with flap pockets at the breast and hipline and trimmed with jeweled buttons. A reefer is nice to wear over evening things.

A nice choice for general daytime wear is a dress of soft green woollen with a matching short jacket. The jacket is bordered around the front and the hem with baum marten, the fur borders continuing from the narrow collar.

Leisure hours and a charming boudoir provide the right setting for a grand lounging costume consisting of trousers of greenish-yellow matelasse satin and a fuchsia velvet jacket top with self belt that ties in a soft bow.

Nice going in a daytime dress of wine red woollen worn with a tailored jacket of bright red velveteen with seamed detail ending in tiny buttoned breast pockets.

It isn't easy to avoid the picturesque evening gown this season, for nearly every model has a picture quality about it. Devastating and demure is a frock of wide red and black horizontal striped satin with high puffed sleeves and the skirt fullness worked to the back. Off-shoulder neckline. Worn with long black gloves.

BREADED LIVER —One pound liver (four slices) two eggs, four tablespoons lemon juice, one cup bread crumbs, two tablespoons bacon fat, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper. Wipe and parboil liver gently for five minutes, drain and remove any loose membrane or skin. Add lemon jouice and seasonings to slightly-beaten eggs. Dip liver in eggs, roll in crumbs and again in egg. Place in shallow pan containing hot fat, set in oven of 375 degrees Fahrenheit for 25 minutes. Turn liver once during baking. This recipe serves four. You may very this recipe by adding tomato sauce to cover liver when it has browned cover and finish cooking.

Dishes Made With Crumbs Are Tasty and Inexpensive

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

DON'T LET your crumbs "fall from the rich man's table." Collect them, save them and use them. Crumby little dishes are mighty good. There are crumb puddings and crumb casseroles and croquettes rolled in crumbs. Crumbs, mind you, may be of cake or bread, or cornflakes or other cereal, or even of nuts. A crumb is anything reduced to minute size, adaptable for a coating. So here are some recipes that are crumbs of wisdom, especially for you!

Brazil nut croquettes are made with two cups hot mashed potatoes, one-quarter cup cream or milk, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper and one cup crushed Brazil nuts. To the hot potatoes, add the cream or milk, baking powder, seasoning and half the nuts. Spread mixture on plate and cool. Shape, roll in nuts and cook in deep, hot cooking oil 390 F. or until golden brown. Drain on soft paper.

Apricot Crumbles

Apricot crumbles with coffee sauce is a new and delightful dessert. Crumbles require two cups canned apricots (drained), one-quarter cup butter, one-half cup flour, one-quarter cup brown sugar, few grains salt and two drops almond extract. Cut apricots in pieces and arrange in bottom of baking dish. Cream butter, add flour, brown sugar, salt and almond extract; blend well. Cover apricots with crumb mixture. Bake in moderate oven (375 F.) for 30 minutes until apricots are heated and crumbs well browned. Serve warm with coffee sauce. The sauce requires one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon cornstarch, few grains salt, one cup hot, freshly-brewed coffee, two tablespoons butter and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg if desired. Blendsugar, cornstarch and salt; add coffee. Cook in double boiler or over low heat until it thickens. Add butter and nutmeg and cool.

Stuffed Eggplant

Stuffed eggplant is a delicious vegetable, an answer when something different is suggested. Ingredients include one egg plant, one cup soft bread crumbs, two tablespoons cooking oil, one tablespoon finely-chopped onion, salt and pepper, one-third cup browned crumbs. Cook egg plant 15 minutes in boiling water to cover. Cut slice from top, and remove the pulp. Chop pulp and add one cup soft, stale bread crumbs. Heat oil, and add finely-chopped onion. Cook two minutes. Add pulp, season with salt and pepper and, if necessary, moisten with a little stock of water. Cook five minutes. Fill egg plant and oover with browned crumbs. Baqe in 450 F. oven for 25 minutes.

Stylish Hats For Smart Coiffures

By ALICE ALDEN

The wise gal isn't going to let the new hats go to her head. She is going to choose a hat because it becomes her, not because it happens to be high fashion and the choice of stylists or models. There's a hat for every type, so it ought to be easy to choose the right model. And the hat should be thought of in terms of the whole head, since the coiffure is an integral part of the hat this season. The hat worn tilted forward over the right eye seems to please many women. Margaret Lindsay, the famous movie star, likes that line, as can be seen from these pictures. The hat, top, is of black felt, the brim being manipulated to achieve a flaring beret effect. A stitched piece of Chartreuse ribbon makes the lower part of the back and the side of the hat. The other model, more dressy, is of wine-red felt, with ostrich feathers shaded from pale pink to deepest wine.

Better for Young Man to Stick Job With Low Pay Than to Strike Out Looking for Work These Days When Jobs Are Scarce

opyright, 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Chatfield:

For seven years I worked on a farm from sun up to sun down, six days a week, and received board and clothes. Five months ago I found a job which averages me seven dollars a week. I work twice as hard as many others but don't make as much. In these live months I have bought myself some clothes and saved forty dollars. The work here isn't pleasant because my foreman has some relatives he wants to run in ahead of me. Sometime I think the best thing to do is to take my forty dollars and go just as far as it will take me and then let nature take its course. I have never had a vacation since I started to work and I would love to see something of the world and do some of the things young people of my age enjoy. I am a steady boy, don't drink, smoke or gamble. Please tell me what you would do if you were in may place.

K. M.

Young man, I might yield to the temptation to take the high road were I in your place; but discretion is the better part of valor and I think you would do well to stay where you are a little longer; at least until you have saved a hundred dollars and until you have made some investigation of prospects for work elsewhere.

You have had fine training in hard work without pay; and you've shown admirable thrift in saving a nest egg on poor pay. You have taken your privations like a man and shown that you have character. It's possible that you may get a raise before the year is up. But even if you don't, you can finish out the hundred dollars by the end of the twelve months and with that amount tucked in your pocket you'll feel that you can take your time in landing the sort of job you're looking for.

You musn't indulge in self-pity even for a moment because self-pity will sap your strength and kill your ambition. While you've certainly earned the right to a vacation, you won't mind postponing it when you think of what a good time you will have on your trip a few months hence. The young people and the fun will wait for you.

With all the talk about scarcity of jobs any business or industrial man will tell you that he has difficulty in filling his vacancies with the right sort of employees. When you can take credentials from two former employers, saying that you are conscientious, hard-working and reliable, you will doubtless be gobbled up quickly by some man that's on the lookout for your sort.

What a grand sensation it must be for a young man in the prime of health and strength to strike out, all bills paid, money in the pocket, to seek his fortune! He can't fail to find it. An old gentleman who has watched the parade of life go by for many years is fond of saying that hard work has never yet failed to yield results, and that any sensible young man of good habits, who is industrious, ambitious and thrifty, can get ahead in the world.

Caroline Chatfield.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Written by DEAN HALLIDAY

For Central Press Canadian

THIS IS the time of the year to take precautions which will prove life insurance for trees next spring against canker worms. Canker worms feast in the spring on elm, cherry, linden and oak trees, and sometimes they attack the leaves of the maple tree as an appetizer.

In October the wingless female moths come out of the ground and swarm up the trees for the purpose of laying eggs, from which in the spring the canker worms hatch and begin feeding on the foliage. To head off these female moths trees should now be branded with a sticky guard as shown in the Garden-Graph. These bands will trap the female moths and thus lessen the plague of canker worms next spring. Set the bands high enough on the tree trunks so they will be out of reach of children.

The late blooming tender plants, such as cosmos and dahlias, should be watched carefully during cold spells, as much handsome bloom may be saved by a timely covering of pepper or cloth during the early

Plants intended for growing indoors this winter, whether potted up from the garden or greenhouse grown will do better if taken indoors this month and gradually accustomed to the dry house air while the windows and doors are still open part of the time.

Acadamey Gives "Do's and Dont's" For New Hairstyles

Are you getting tired of hearing about the "Up" hairstyles? We hope not, as we will have to talk "up" to you for some time to come, but there will always be the individual styles of some of our best designers and some variations as the season advances.

Just now we will give you the "Don'ts" from Mr. Louis, National Director of the American Hair Design Institute.

He tells us that at the early Summer International Exposition the Institute exhibited nine high hair-do's that caused a furore among the Parisian hairdressers and were responsible for the present upsweep.

Now for the "donts":

Don't brush up the long bob. Cut it first. If the hair is too long it makes an ungainly coiffure and you won't be able to wear your hat.

Don't pile your hair too high at the top of your crown. Suggest the feeling for height rather than overstress it.

Don't wear the "Up" coiffure if your features are not suited to the upsweep.

Don't be surprised if at first you don't fancy yourself in the high hair-do, and then don't be surprised if after a few days you decide you can't live without it.

This is timely news for the thousands of girls who are now faced with the momentous question of the "up" or low style.

Here are the "do's":

If you have a good neckline, wear your hair short and reveal it. The ideal length of the upswept coiffure is two inches from the nape of the neck. If you have a bad neckline, wear your hair in a medium (never long) bob with soft curls at the nape.

In either case, sweep your hair up from the sides, and, if you are the type, also at the front over your forehead.

Have a soft loose permanent as a fundation and see to it that your hair is cut and shaped to follow the natural contour of the head. This is a "must' if you want the "up" business to stay up.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

Let Child Learn Responsibility at Home

YOU AND I know homes in which growing children learn good habits of responsibility. How is it done? The details differ somewhat from home to home; the principles are about the same.

As soon as the tot is able to wash his own hands, dress himself, feed himself, he is allowed and encouraged to do so. Older persons do not do those things for him which he can do for himself. Patiently they let him learn and set the stage so he will learn.

Comes the time when he plays out of doors. Then he is trained to bring himself in at a regular automatic signal; to hang up his hat and coat on low hooks provided for him, as he enters the house. Having gone to bed by the clock in infancy, he continues to do so and is held responsible soon after entering school for sending himself to bed at a regular time. If penalties (not nagging) are necessary, they are announced and carried out effectively.

Even the tot, and certainly the child over six, learns to prepare himself properly for meals upon a first signal or call, and to appear promptly, properly prepared, on the second signal. Dad abides by the same rules.

He early learns, on going to bed, to hang up his day clothes in an airy place, and to hang up his nighties in the morning. Soon after entering school, he learns to tidy up his own room and to make his bed, regularly.

As he begins to volunteer to help about the house—to bring things to his mother, to wipe or wash a dish—these favors are warmly applauded by her.

One Job Assigned Child

As soon as he is old enough to set the table, wash the dishes or dry them alone, one such job is assigned him, first one evening a week, later one or more evenings always by the calendar. But new assigned jobs are added very, very slowly; no new ones until the old one or ones have grown into perfect habits, self-started and self-carried through. Above all such jobs are definite and regular. He knows when to plan for them and when they are finished.

Where there are several children in the family old enough for such responsibilities, no two are set on the same job at the same time. Boys learn to do what girls do; there is no argument about it.

From early years increasing opportunities are afforded the child to do things that lack suggestion of drudgery, such as baking a cake or pie, planning and preparing a meal, making or repairing simple articles about the home, usually done only by adults. Opportunities grow for him to make choice and decisions and to contribute toward the plans and programs of the family. Gradually he learns to handle money and operates on an allowance which by the time he enters high school includes many articles of his clothes. Gradually, too, he learns to make practically all his own purchases within a budget.

Essential Functions Of the Body Studied

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN THE body is considered as a unit, we recognize four fundamental functions that it has to perform — digestion, respiration, metabolism and nervous activity.

It is an energy machine; food is its energy source and digestion supplies this. In order to form energy the food unites with oxygen, and respiration furnishes this. These combine to furnish the activities of growth and movement, which we call metabolism. And certainly our reason for existence lies in the activity of the nervous system.

All the other functions of the body are really secondary to these. Circulation of the blood simply carries the energy sources to the tissues. Excretion of waste products occurs in all engines. Reproduction of its kind is really a part of metabolism.

Gland Secretions

Digestion of food is accomplished by the action of a great number of gland secretions which mix with the food in the stomach and intestines. These chemical secertions are called hormones and they act with the greatest speed and efficiency. From the saliva, which converts starch into sugar almost instantaneously, down through the pepsin of the stomach and the hormones from the pancreas, their action is incredibly thorough. Pepsin, for instance, can convert 3,000 times its own weight of protein into peptones.

It is probable that the body developed these hormones in the course of time as human beings used more and more of the world's products. We have in the pancreatic secretion alone hormones which will digest any kind of foodstuff on earth — tryspin for the protein or meats, steapsin for the fats, and amylopsin for the starches.

The action of these juices occurs under certain circumstances. Saliva works only in an alkaline medium, while the pancreatic digestion occurs again in the alkaline medium of the intestines. Some people have become very worried about these things and advise that such foods should be given that will not call out the acid flow in the stomach, or will not produce alkaline digestion side by side with acid digestion.

Not Desirable

Now even if such an arrangement could possibly be made, it would not be desirable. Nature has ways of accomplishing her purpose far better than any substitute we can make for her. The point is that the digestive glands are capable of digesting any form of food—animal, vegetable and a lot of minerals — and if they are not interfered with or monkeyed with too much they can do their work very well.

Even when a large part of the digestive secretion has been put out of commission, digestion goes on quite well. A man can lose a large part of his stomach, or his salvary glands, or even his pancreas, and nature compensates and allows digestion to go on just the same.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

LOTS OF mail from home, and am I glad that I can answer it in person! Helene and Igor are back in town after a long honeymoon trip that took them to California, to Washington, to the Pacific northwest and to Alaska. She wrote that she was terribly disappointed when she arrived in California to find that I had left for Europe.

She met Madame in Alaska, of all places. They met at Sitka where Igor had gone to see the remains of the Russian occupation of Alaska. Helene says that she had never been so thrilled in all her life. She is so happy with Igor and they have grand plans for the future. Igor's brother-in-law wants him to come to Paris, but Igor wants to stay in America. The chance encounter may prove very valuable, as he was able to have a long talk with Howard. And it sees that Howard can use Igor nicely in a new mining enterprise. But whatever the future holds, Helene and Igor are happy now, and will have the memory of a wonderful honeymoon to color their whole life together.

Note From Bill

Bill and I so often talked about our honeymoon, but it never did materialize. I had a note from Bill in the mail. He says that he is so pleased that Consuelo liked the pictures of the Florida job. His letter is rather impersonal, not at all as friendly as his letters have been in the past. Maybe he has fallen in love and wants to gradually drift away from me altogether. Well, I'm not going to do anything to prevent it. I have become a fatalist, and feel that if such a thing is to happen, it will do so, no matter what steps I take to try and prevent it.

I think that my doctor friend is a little bit smitten. Maybe it is because he is away from home and I am the first American girl he has met abroad. Whatever the reason, he has been calling me several times a day and trying to make me promise to write to him often once I am home again. Of course, I will give no such promise. I am a rotten correspondent and owe letters to my friends; so I certainly can't be expected to keep up a running correspondence with someone who is virtually a stranger. I told him that I would be pleased to send him magazines from home once in a while, but that I could not promise anything else.

Consuelo selected this smart golf costume, and I hope she gets a chance to wear it. The sweater blouse is of gray jersey, and it has a broad band of brown forming the yoke and sleeve tops. It buttons with tiny self-buttons to the end of the brown portion. The skirt is of gray flannel with a yoke that buttons center front. Knife pleats at either side of the yoke give a neat touch.

Lovely Net Curtains Shown

By ELEANOR ROSS

WE'VE BEEN window shopping again, which in this case means that we've been viewing new lace net curtains. There is a vast array of new and exciting designs, textures, finishes and colors. The American manufacturers have done well by our windows, so well that a very, very distinguished visitor from abroad took back with her a whole collection with which to beautify the windows of her chateau nar Paris and her lovely apartment in London's Mayfair. What greater recommendatino could there be?

In looking over the new curtains we noted more lightweight textures, featherweight lightness and delicacy. Yet even the most gossamer, shimmering curtain is durable. There are some striking texture effects, interesting, as always, in the cotton and in the rayon weaves, and sleeky new and rich-looking effects in the spun rayon styles. We like that very new idea of novelty edgings, such as straight or novel fringes, the ball edges and fine braids. We think that these novelty edgings are a great improvement over anything done before.

Softening Effect

Many designs in lace net curtains look especially well over Venetian blinds, an idea that gives a softening effect to the blinds that we admired. Then there are definite designs for definite period furnishings and rooms, something entirely new. There are lace net curtains in Swedish modern patterns and textures to go with Swedish modern furnishings, as well as styles to match 18th century English, early American, French provincial and other traditional periods. And for the room done on modern, functional lines there are some swell rugged texture weaves.

Even the least expensive curtains have fine new details of tailoring, such as hems or decorative edging on both sides of the curtains instead of just on one side, adding to the well-tailored lines. All of the curtains really wear and really wash. All are woven on lace machines which spiral one thread around another so that each thread is actually tied in place. This makes the weave very firm, and when it comes to the wash tub there aren't likely to be any tears or rips.

Adjusting Tops

Many of the curtains have adjustable tops that make it a simple matter, without any sewing to adjust the curtains at the right length for the window, and, of course, there are plain tops for women who want the heading sewed in their own patricular way. All in all, our domestic manufacturers have done themselves, and us, proud and theri product is not only as good, but is infinitely better than any importation from the lace curtain centers of Europe. Nowhere in Europe have we seen a curtain with the fringe woven on the same lace loom as the rest of the curtain, of the same material and other.

Tommy Pedder is Honored And Placed on 'All-American' Weightlifting Team Selection

Local Champion Included On Team With Three World Champions

GREAT HONOR

Belleville's weight-lifting champion, Tommy Pedder, who won the North American weight-lifting championship at Cleveland last spring, was recipient of further honors in his chosen field of athletic endeavours, when he was given a position on the "All-American" weight-lifting team, recently announced.

Pedder was included on a team that consists of the ranking weight-lifters on this continent and included on the team are three world champion lifters. The team is composed of one weight-lifter from each of the eight respective lifting divisions, ranging from 112 pound class to the heavyweight division. Pedder was given a position on the team in the 118 pound division of which he is North American champion.

Is Signal Honor

Although there is no material advantage to being named on the "All-American" weight-lifting team, to be selected to such team is considered a mark of distinction and a great honor in the weight-lifting realm. Pedder at present is employed as weight-lifting director at the Belleville Y.M.C.A.

The "All-American" weight-lifting team is composed of the following champions:

112 pound class: Firpo Lemmas (world champion).

118 pound class: Tom Pedder (North American champion).

126 pound class: Mike Mongioli (U.S.A. champion).

132 pound class: John Terry (North American champion).

148 pound class: Tony Terlazzo (world champion).

165 pound class: John Terpak (world champion).

Heavyweight: Steve Stanko, (North American champion).

N. H. L. Season Opens Soon As More Compact Loop But Over-Stocked With Players

Montreal Maroons Will Not Operate As Team This Season

SIX IN PLAY-OFFS

Team Finishing First In League Schedule Wins Championship

(By Jack Calder, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—Professional hockey, the biggest business in winter sports, plunges deep into another build-up campaign this week end when the last two National League clubs to enter training camp leave Toronto.

This is the sport that has brought more money to New York's Madison Square Garden in the last 10 years than any other, the sport that set new attendance records almost everywhere around the league last winter and is out to gain new customers this season. In line with its rise, hockey's inner picture has changed rapidly.

This time it comes out more compact but more nearly overstocked with players. Voluntary suspension of Montreal Maroons' franchise, because the business has become more highly competitive, has in turn made other clubs stronger and made it harder for the young player to win a position. No team besides Chicago, which has no farm club to draw from, has called less than 40 men to camp.

Pre-season training means more this year because the matter of getting away to a successful start has taken on new importance. The league's 1938-39 setup—purposely or not—places greater emphasis on gaining first place.

Six Teams in Playoff

Six teams again will enter playoffs for the Stanley Cup, symbol of the world championship, but because the league has been cut from eight clubs to seven it will operate as one group instead of the two. There will be only one leader, when the schedule ends and that leader will be declared N.H.L. champion. The Stanley Cup playoffs will be an aftermath to the big race.

Oddly enough, Chicago's world champion Black Hawks will be as greatly altered as any club when they leave their training headquarters at Champaign, Ill. Paul Thompson, long a high-scoring forward, has been installed as coach and Bill Stewart has dropped the coaching duties to preside as manager. The Hawks have picked up Baldy Northcott, Russ Blinco and Earl Robison from the defunct Maroons and have traded Louis Trudel to Montreal Canadiens for Joffre Desilets.

BILL COOK HAPPY ABOUT RECRUITS

Manager of Cleveland Expects Another Good Year

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP)—Manager-Coach Bill Cook watched his Cleveland Barons veterans and potential recruits in early season workouts here today and forecast a bright future for them in the winter's campaigning in the International American League.

"The recruits are the most promising in years," the former New York Rangers star said. "You can't tell yet, of course, but the situation certainly is bright, for all the veterans have recovered from the injuries that crippled us during the closing weeks of last winter's campaign."

The Barons set a minor professional hockey attendance record last year.

ALBERT COLLEGE SCORES 8-6 WIN OVER THE B. C. I.

Second Half Touchdown After Fumbles Paves Way For Victory

EVENLY MATCHED

Albert College gridders triumphed over their arch and ancient gridion enemies, the Belleville Collegiate, in an exhibition rugby football game played at the Exhibition Grounds yesterday when the tri-colored clad Alberts staged a last period rally to come from behind and win by an 8 to 6 score. Fully 300 cheering students encouraged their favorites vocally from the sidelines.

Coach Pete Beach's ultimate victors forged to the fore in the initial half of the game when Hagyaid booted a perfect placement from 25 yards out for a three-point count. Minutes later Bill Carson tossed a long forward pass over Albert's left end, which Ross Clare cut into nicely for a 30 yard gain. Coach George Laughlin's "Collegians" applied the pressure and "steam-rolled" to Albert's five yard line, where Clare crashed over for a major score, putting the Collegiate ahead 5 to 3 at the half way mark.

Touch in Second Half

Albert College returned to the fray with determination in their collective eye, but the "Collegians" held well only to fumble on their own 15 yard line, Albert recovering. With two successive line plunges the more husky Alberts scored when Harrison ploughed through the crumpled B.C.I. line for a touchdown. Neither of the major scores were converted the game terminating 8 to 6 for Albert College.

Both Clare and Wooley, the respective punters, kicked well while Dickens, Muir and Clare gained considerable ground for the losers with Lougheed, Blackman, Harrison and Loveys looking the best for the winners. Previously these two squads had played a six-all draw contest and another game is being contemplated before Albert College launches into the C.O.S.S.A. playdowns.

The lineups:

Albert College: snap, Maidens; insides, Allen, Downing; middles, Hagyaid, Rutherford; ends, Lougheed, Partridge; quarter, Wooley; halves, Moulden, Blackman, Harrison; flying wing, Loveys.

Belleville C.I. & V.S.: snap, Zufelt; insides, Stewart, Farquharson; middles, Cavanaugh, Mulholland; ends, Weller, Ethier; quarter, Dickens; halves, Carson, Muir, Thorne; Flying wing, Clare.

Subs: Albert College: Crouch, Watson, Burrows, Worrell and Gerow. Subs: B.C.I. & V.S.: Goodwin, Haffey, Watson and Tripp.

Officials: Art Cole and Bert Noakes.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)— Ed Barrow and Joe McCarthy will have fits when they hear those reports from St. Louis that Bill Dickey will be player-manager of the Browns next season....Natre Dame starts drives at blocking and tackling," says a headline....For goodness sakes, what for?

Tony Palazola, San Francisco promoter, is burned up plenty that he didn't land the Fred Apostoli-Young Corbett match, which would have been a natural out there.... The Cleveland Plaindealer takes exception to the fact that each Cub received 4,674.87 for his world series share....The Plaindealer thinks the 87 cents would be more like it.

The United States college football situation: It looks like Fordham over Purdue by a close score.. New York U. has too much power for North Carolina....Alabama figures to beat Tennessee, but we have an idea there's a sleeping giant at Knoxville which might wake up today....Duke ought to whip Georgia Tech, which has a tough one last week....Everybody will laugh at this one, but Columbia is due for a letdown, too....Therefore, we pick Colgate and make no bones about it....If the Army doesn't breeze through Harvard, there should be an investigation....We'll take Cornell over Syracuse; Navy over Yale and Rice over Tulane.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

Today is the last day for hockey migrations within the O.H.A. With that thought in mind and reading so much N.H.L. chatter in the newspapers we have been taking stock on the local hockey situation. Last season the Belleville Redmen advanced to the Intermediate "B" semi-finals, after winning the O.H.A. championship the previous year, but where are last year's players today? Ab Hinton and Ken Watt the goalies, are about twon, but it appears as though the Redmen's defence of last year will be minus quantity. Ken Murphy, our hard-hitting rear-guardsman of last season, has migrated to Northern Ontario, while his teammate Fred Bentley announced his retirement, but Fred might be persuaded to change his mind. Roy Wilson, who patrolled the right boards with the Jackson kids, is also in the northland, where he expects to play hockey this winter. Incidentally the Owen Sound "Trappers" were hard after Wilson this fall, but could not locate him. While speaking of migrations we might add that Walter Gerow Jr., and Evans of the Napanee juniors are also up north.

We approached Eddie Thomas today relative to his future plans and whether or not he was going to sponsor hockey in Belleville again. Eddie smiled and replied he intended to be present at the annual meeting of the O.H.A. if only for old time sake. That was sufficient for us—Eddie will be back again. But what of material Harry McCreary can be counted on as a regular defenceman this season, but he'll need an experienced running mate. The Jackson boys are available, we understand, but here again a new right-winger will have to be obtained to work with the prolific pair of goal scoring artists. "Speedy" St. Louis, who was offered a position in Niagara Falls early this fall to play senior O.H.A. hockey, is still in the city and will undoubtedly be available, while Cy Barriage has returned after a season of ice campaigning up around Thorold. Give the Redmen a good steady defenceman and a couple of high class forwards and they should be right back in the intermediate O.H.A. hunt again, providing a suitable grouping can be obtained.

So much for the Redmen, but what of junior hockey in Belleville? in Canada's national winter sport? would expect nothing short of a junior "B" entry. However, in years past we have noticed that anywhere from 30 to 40 ambitious teen aged kids answer the call to junior O.H.A. practice, of which some 10 or 12 are selected for a junior "B" squad, but what becomes of the remainder of those disappointed youngsters, whose heart and soul is wrapped up in Canadas national winter sport? Would it not be a good suggestion to organize a junior "C" squad from the left-overs of the junior "B" team? Give Ed Thomas the choice of the city's crop of ambitious kids, leaving the remainder to junior "C" hockey. Last year Napanee and Picton had a two-teamed junior "C" loop, which we feel could be enlarged this year to the mutual advantage of all. Wellington might be induced to sponsor a team and with a second junior squad in Belleville, a four teamed "C" group could well be organized, Picton and Napanee agreeing. At least it's a suggestion.

Apparently Harry Moore, publisher and editor of the Trenton Courier-Advocate, thinks little of the Peterboro lacrosse club. Harry, a recognized authority on lacrosse of long years standing says Peterboro never had a high class lacrosse team and scoffs at the idea of the Liftlock gutted stick artists even so much as suggesting a game with the Canadian champion St. Catharines club. In his sporting column recently Harry adds: "We are somewhat amused in reading that the Peterboro team will challenge St. Catharines for the championship of the Dominion should St. Kitts win the Mann Cup. In our opinion Peterboro would make a rather dismal showing against this double blue team that has class stamped all over it and can score almost at will against the best that the coutry can produce. And as Peterboro played Orillia in an exhibition game and were so astounded at times that they stood and watched the Orillians run all around them what chance would they have with St. Kitts which is perhaps the greatest lacross team that Canada has seen in a decade or more."

Do you remember when Roger Peckinpaugh, Washington Senator shortstop, was the "goat" of the world series against Pittsburgh which finished just 13 years ago today? "Peck" committed eight errors in the seven games, two more than Hans Wagner in 1903 and Joey Sewell in 1920. Then also remember when Joe McCarthy, only man in major baseball to win pennants in both the American National Leagues, was appointed manager of the New York Yankees exactly seven years ago yesterday. McCarthy has the distinction of being the only big league manager to pilot the same team to three consecutive world series championships. It was one year ago this week that the Yankees defeated the Giants four games to one to win their second consecutive world series.

When it comes to a gab-fest, this guy Lefty Gamez is tops. The other day Gomez was reminiscing and popped out with the following: "This guy Gehrig has a better constitution that the United States. The toughest day of my life was when I made a double and a single and the game was rained out in the fourth.

"I never will forget the afternoon I asked Pipgras to warn me when Gehringer came up and George laughed, 'Gehringer was the guy who just hit the homer'."

Now Pipgras is an umpire in the American League. He won't tip his decisions the way he used to tip his fast ball—by sticking out his tongue.

Tommy Pedder, who won the North American weight-lifting championship in the 118 pound class at Cleveland last May, was honored more recently by being placed on the No. 1 all-American weight-lifting team, including one lifter from each of the respective eight classes, ranging from 112 pound to the heavyweight division. Tommy has more on the weight-lifting ball than perhaps he is given credit for locally. What's that old story about "a poet not being without honor, save in his own country?"

HAMMOND KEEPS ENGLISH CRICKET BATTING HONORS

Test Cricket Captain Holds Title For Five of Past Six Years

CAPTAINED ENGLAND

London, Oct. 15 (CP)— W. A. (Wally) Hammond, 35-year-old cricket star who captained England against Australia in the test series this summer, is winner of the British cricket batting title. It marked the fifth time in the past six years he headed English county championship batsmen.

He made his debut to first class play in 1920 as a schoolboy amateur and one year later turned professional. He forsook pro ranks at the end of the 1937 county campaign.

In 42 innings during the season concluded early in September Hammond had an average of 75..27 and was the only English player to exceed 3,000 runs. Final compilation showed him with 3,011 runs, the third time in his record-studded career he had achieved this distinction.

Joseph Hardstaff, Nottinghamshire, repeated his performance of 1937 by finishing second in the standing. His average of 60.90 in 37 innings barely edged out Leonard Hutton of Yorkshire who wound up the campaign with 60.45, representing a similar number of innings.

The 22-year-old Yorkshire player, however, leaped into prominence in the fifth and final test match when he astounded the cricket world with a record-smashing score of 364. It was the year's outstanding individual achievement

The Pudsey-born youth who joined the northern county four years ago, pounded Aussie bowlers for more than 13 hours to become the world's highest scorer in international competition. He eclipsed Don Bradman's eight-year-old record made at Leeds, England, by 30 runs.

when PENNIES count — The "Ontario Intelligencer" is The Ideal 'Shopping Guide'—

How to get the most out of every penny is mighty important to folks who are just starting out. An error in buying judgment that would be considered trivial by anyone else, might be tragic for them. They can't afford to make mistakes . . . they can't run the risk of "gold bricks". Every penny counts. Every penny has to do DOUBLE-DUTY. It's interesting to know (and we can't deny that we're a bit proud!) that The Ontario Intelligencer is making it possible for people like these to get more for their pennies. For the pages of The Ontario Intelligencer are a "Shopping Guide" to values. Every day advertisers offer definite savings on the things all of us need. Of course, if you are already an Ontario Intelligencer reader, you are well aware of this fact.

FARM PRODUCTION WORKERS MOBILIZED

Budapest, Oct. 15—(AP)—Hungary today ordered mobilization of agricultural production workers to assure an adequate food supply in the event of trouble over the frontier dispute with Czechoslovakia.

The order followed military moves to double the Hungarian Army to an estimated 420,000 men.

The tremendous amount of potential buying power greatly eliminates the possibility of a sustained reaction, and it is for this reason that many quarters in the Street are advising clients to purchase stocks on all setbacks, as the opinion prevails that over the next few months, the list will work higher.

MANION NAMED FOR LONDON SEAT

Conservative Leader Opposed To Unification of Two Railways

London, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP) — Hon. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader and party candidate for the London Federal by-election November 14th, will leave here today for his first trip to Western Canada since his election last July as party leader. The first stop will be Edmonton.

To the convention that last night unanimously nominated him for the House of Commons seat vacated by the death of Fred Betts, Dr. Manion made his first extended declaration of policy on Canada's railway problem. He was opposed to unification of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Even if economic reasons could be found for it—and Dr. Manion said figures furnished him seemed to disprove the claims of those who foresaw huge savings in unification—there was ample justification for opposing it on the ground the great majority of Canadian people did not want it.

But while waiting for a natural increase in population to take care of the railway problem, which he said was caused chiefly by overbuilding, there should be efforts toward economies and railway employees should be consulted in effecting them.

METEOR SEEN NEAR OTTAWA

Ottawa, Oct. 15 (CP)—A meteor, throwing off a stream of sparks and followed by a tail of flame, is reported to have fallen southwest of Ottawa early today. Efforts to locate it have been unsuccessful. Residents said they sa wa ball of flame and sparks shoot across the clear night sky. They said the meteor made a hissing sound like eggs frying.

Prizes to be Given for First Time Exhibitors

A suggestion that officials of the various companies finance their cheesemakers in buying cheese for exhibit at the British Empire Cheese Exhibition to be held under the management of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association in this city at the end of next month was made at this morning's meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board.

The suggestion followed a letter read by Mr. Mallory, secretary of the Board, in which receipt of the grant of $25 by the Board was made by the Cheesemakers' Association. Advice was also given, that a considerable number of good prizes for winning cheesemakers, who have not exhibited before would be included in the prize list of the exhibition.

"Lots of our younger cheesemakers would like to enter their exhibits in this exhibition, but they may be prohibited from doing so by the lack of finances. It would be a splendid idea if the officials of the various factories would finance them in the matter,' commented secretary Mallory.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, October 16

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds auguries of fine opportunities for promotion, progress and prosperity, with those in high places contributing to advancement, preferment and dignities. At the same time there are definite omens of doubtful or actually fraudulent contacts to guard against. Success may be wrung from such menace by tact, precaution and good judgment, particularly in relations with superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of excellent opportunity for progress, achievement and attained hopes and aspirations. There should be influential support and recognition. However, there also are portents of snares, entanglements, fraud or deceit, with plots or lures to expediency rather than to integrity and high principle.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever and ambitious, with many high and desirable traits leading it to success and respect. But it may have certain lures to easy ways, short cuts and sharp practices, unless properly directed in early youth.

For Monday, October 17

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST is for much activity, bringing interest to affairs that may have long been rather static. There should be rather sagacious and determined effort brought to bear for arousing productive issues and putting the fortunes on a stabilized basis. However, such endeavors may encounter some jealousies or attempts to defeat. An inheritance or a contested will might cause this anxiety, although papers, writings, etc., contribute definitely to success and prosperity.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of much activity, especially in connection with the revitalizing of stagnant or static affairs. Determined effort and sagacity should offset the crystalization and put the fortunes on a firmer basis. But beware of jealousy and protect the possessions which may be bound up in wills, insurance or old investments. Papers, documents and writings are factors of success.

A child born on this day may be serious, determined, hardworking and sound in aspiration, but also passionate, indulgent and wayward. However, it should be loving, sympathetic and socially inclined.

IN MEMORIAM

JUBY—In loving memory of a dearly loved husband and dad, Bert Juby, who passed away October 16th, 1937.

His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are passed,
And in our aching hearts
We know he has found sweet rest at last.

Taking a lesson from Madrid and Barcelona, Britain would construct shelters for men, women and children rather than move them to the country in vast numbers. The two Spanish cities found shelters the best defence against sky raids and despite the large number of bombings casualties have been comparatively small.

At the height of the crisis two weeks ago shelters were started in many city parks and open spaces. Gangs of men worked day and night but a halt has been called until a definite long-range policy is settled.

slow mobilization in ceded northern border areas was unknown here. (During September crisis Czechoslovakia mobilized an estimated 1,500,000 men.)

Thousands of these soldiers have moved southward toward the Hungarian border, and reinforcements have been sent to Ruthenia where clashes and demonstrations favoring Hungary's territorial claims have occurred.

Theatres

AT THE BELLE

"Valley of the Giants"

An intensive dramatic film story, enacted by a great cast, and based on a well-loved novel, can hardly fail to be exciting motion picture fare. Add to this the exquisite pictorial beauty of California's redwood country, filmed in vivid technicolor—and you have "Valley of the Giants," based on the famous Peter B. Kyne novel, which is the feature attraction at the Belle.

The Kyne saga of the redwood forests has been picturized twice before—in the days before the screen learned to talk. Milton Sills and Wally Reid were the stars, and they have a worthy successor in young Wayne Morris, who is probably closer to the author's conception of the hero than either of the former stars. He is to the very life, the big, lusty—and finely altruistic—young lumberman who fights so valiantly to prevent the despoilation of his beloved redwood forest. Comparatively a new-comer to Hollywood's list of ranking star names, Morris who won his laurels in "Kid Galahad," gives a magnificent performance, which is backed up by the fine work of an outstanding supporting cast.

Merely listing the names of the performers in the Warner film is impressive enough, for they include Claire Trevor, Charles Bickford, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Donald Crisp, Jack LaRue, John Litel and Dick Purcell. But none of them rests on previous laurels; they all prove anew their right to their well-earned reputations.

It knits together in one well-integrated tale typical incidents of the successful fight of native Californians to prevent the ruthless despoilation of their eastern lumber forests by rapacious eastern lumber interests.

It is a perfect subject for color picture, and persons who have never visited the redwood forests are likely to find as much interest in the views of the big trees and the shots of their being felled by lumbermen as they are bound to find in the unfoldment of the tensely dramatic lot.

Without its "big" scenes, "Valley of the Giants" would still be fine dramatic entertainment; with these scenes, the effect on the audience is actually spine-tingling. Color and sound when added to photography as brilliantly as they are in this production become enormously effective dramatic devices.

Some of the impressive and exciting scenes are: The felling of a huge, 325-foot-high redwood; the burning down of the land office in the fictitious town of San Hedrin; the rescue of the heroine from a runaway freight caboose; the crumbling, like a mass of toothpicks, of a high railroad trestle as four redwood-laden flat cars are rolling over it; a bitter hand-to-hand battle between hero and villain on the narrow top of a dam spanning a turbulent stream; and the dynamiting of that dam.

It's truly an hour and a half of continuously interesting entertainment, and an achievement of which Director William Keighley may be proud

3 Select Featurettes

Three selected featurettes are announced for exhibition on the same program including a smart musical revue "Zero Girl" introducing favorite stars of stage, screen and radio, Paramount News with its latest important World News Events and an exceptionally funny merrie melody cartoon "The General Lied at Dawn."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Expensive Husbands"

A new team of romantic screen lovers —in the persons of Beverly Roberts and Patric Knowles— comes to the McCarthy Theatre in a comedy of gay life in Hollywood and in the Old World, turned out by Warner Bros. under the title of "Expensive Husbands".

The blonde, tousled-haired Beverly and the tall, dark, handsome Pat (recently from the London stage) are said to make excellent foils for each other, and if this picture makes all the success that previewers predicted for it, they will most likely be teamed up again shortly.

Beverly plays the part of a movie-actress whose popularity is waning because she's been given some poor pictures to work in. She feels that a big publicity smash will bring her back to the hearts of her admirers, so she goes to Europe with the delicate purpose of buying a titled husband, no matter how expensive he may prove.

She buys Pat, naturally— but has no end of difficulties before they get matters straightened out between them.

Also with important parts in the story are Gordon Oliver as a rich socialite who wants to wed Beverly and Allyn Joslyn as her picturesque press agent.

Edgar Kennedy, in his latest comedy creation "Ears of Experience that's a howl from beginning to end and an excellent musical treat entitled "Music Will Tell" an R.K.O. Radio special new season featurette offering. Also an interesting screen novelty that all will enjoy called the "Pathe Parade" will precede the feature "Expensive Husbands" at each performance.

"New Radio Given Free"

In addition to the above programme presentation at the McCarthy Theatre, through the courtesy of the R.C.A. Radio dealer in Belleville, a new 1939 model electric tuning R.C.A. Radio will be given to the lucky person who's name will be drawn from the drum containing all the coupons that have been deposited there during the past two weeks. The draw will take place at 9 p.m. Monday night and every adult patron will be given a coupon Monday until 8.45 p.m. come early. You may be the winner by attending Monday night.

gets a prize!

Have you ever attended a "Treasure Hunt" and raced frantically all over the neighborhood searching for cleverly hidden clues? It's fun, but only the fastest win the prizes.

But there's another "Treasure Hunt" run every day where EVERYBODY wins! It's in the newspaper you are reading now. The clues aren't hidden or in code—they're made easy for you! The advertisements in this paper are the clues—and they lead you directly to prizes you choose yourself.

Perhaps you want a toaster or a pair of shoes or a certain kind of soap. Look over the advertising clues till you find what you want at the price you can afford to pay. Without the ads, you'd have to Treasure Hunt all over town, from store to store, from counter to counter, to find just what you want. You can save lots of time and money by getting your clues from the advertising columns.

Little Benny's Note Book

Satiday afternoon me and Puds Simkins and Glasses Magee were going passed Shorty Judge's house and I said, G, look, a wedding.

Meaning a lot of rice all over the payment and the front steps, and Puds said, I wonder who got married?

It's a cinch it wasn't Shorty at his age, Glasses said, and I said, And his size either, nobody would marry him except maybe some midget.

Hay, maybe it was Shorty's mother, Puds said, and Glasses said, How could it be, his father is still alive.

That's rite he hasn't even been sick, I said, and Glasses said, Sure, I saw him on his way to his office this morning and he didn't look as if he was worrying about anything.

Well good nite, how do you know they didn't get a sudden divorce? Puds said, and I said, That's rite, I heard them arguing one time and they both sounded as if they thought a ivorce would of been a good idea.

Wich just then the front door opened and we heard Mrs. Judge's voice saying, Now not another word please and I expect you back here in 5 minutes with no excuses and 2 pounds of rice whole and intact, the idea of walking in here as if butter wouldn't melt in your mouth and handing me a smashed up bag with about 20 grains of rice in it, I've got a good mind to take it out of your spending money to teach you to be a little careful, now hurry up I'm waiting.

And Shorty came out and quick started to walk down the street, us fellows saying, Hay Shorty, what's a matter? Where you going? and him saying, Nothing, nowheres, and we all scraped up a handfull of rice and threw it after him yelling, Happy marriage, merry wedding bells, there goes the bride.

Lady for Shanghai

—By—

Kaye Fox

Perrin was sitting in his chair, smoking a cigar, and his own steward was clearing away the remains of his lunch, which had been laid on the cabin table. He stared at Christine through the smoke of the cigar, his slow gaze travelling from the crown of her cap to the tips of her shoes; she stood very still, and hoped that he would not notice that her knees were shaking.

"You know why I have sent for you, Miss Jordan?" he said, as the steward closed the door softly behind him.

"Yes—I know, Mr. Perrin," she said quietly.

He suddenly began to work himself into a rage. Christine saw the veins on his forehead swell and his face grow crimson, and recognized the familiar signs; Perrin worked himself up almost deliberately, as if rage with him was a secret, evil pleasure.

"And what have you to say for yourself?" he thundered, crashing his fist down on the table. "You were ashore without leave. There is not a man on this staff who would not be dismissed for going ashore without laeve, however good his record, and you—a woman who has been giving trouble from the beginning, slack at your work, defiant, mutinous——. Have you anything in the world to say for yourself? I'll condemn no one unheard—not even you."

She said, in a low, steady voice: "I overheard two of my passengers talking, Mr. Perrin—Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins—and I learnt that Mr. Royde had deliberately arranged to be stranded in Pennag with Miss Lind. He had pretended to her that the ship did not sail until midnight. I went ashore to warn Miss Lind."

"I don't believe a word of it," he shouted. "Is it likely that two sane women would discuss such a thing in front of you? Why didn't you come to me, if you thought that little fool of a girl was in danger, instead of dashing off to the rescue, as if you thought that you were the girl's guardian angel disguised in a cap and apron? Why didn't you come to me?"

"Because you would not have believed a word of it.

"It was not your place to take any action. And let me tell you this, Miss Jordan: if you go running round the ship, making yourself out a heroine, telling people that you snatched Miss Lind from Mr. Royde's clutches, you'll find yourself in serious trouble. You'd better hold your tongue, for your own sake."

"YOU'LL BE SACKED!"

She knew then, without a shadow of doubt, that Royde had been to Perrin and told him to make sure of her silence. Perrin didn't believe her story of the conversation she had overheard, because he had been heavily bribed not to believe it, and to bully her into suppressing it. Although Royde would not have worried at all at dragging Fay into a very nasty scandal, if they had really been stranded, he wanted no scandal now that he had failed.

"I told Mr. Royde last night," she said, "that I would hold my tongue—for Miss Lind's sake. But I shall speak openly at the head office, Mr. Perrin, when I am questioned about your report. I have a right to defend myself."

"At the head office!" he shouted, glaring at her across the narrow table. "Do you think they're even going to grant you an interview at the head office? You'll be sacked out of hand—I'll send my report in beforehand, and you'll find a letter waiting for you when you get home. There was enough without this. I shall report that your work is disgraceful, that you've been carrying on a squalid affair with one of the men——"

"You can't report that lie without proof, Mr. Perrin," she interrupted.

"I'll have proof enough before the voyage is over. If I've no proof, I shall report that everyone on board knows it, but that you're too sly to be caught. Why, even this morning, you and Grant were talking intimately in the alley-way—you're brazen. And there's plenty more that I can put in—your impudent attitude towards the older stewardesses, your hostility towards the decent stewards, like Cator. There'd be enough to get you the sack twice over, without this last thing—going ashore without leave."

"My record on my last ship was excellent, Mr. Perrin," she said confidently. "They'll hear what I have to say at the Liverpool office, if it's only to find out why I have changed so completely."

"Get out of this room," he said, his voice choked with anger. "I've got nothing more to say to you—I'd send you back to England on the Yes Tor if I didn't know that you'd jump at the chance of telling your own story at the office before they hear mine. I'm not going to give you that chance."

She went at once, her head held very high. Almost to her own surprise, Perrin's bullying had had very little effect upon her, far less effect than when he had stormed at her over some trifle. It was as though, now that he had succeeded in catching her in a serious fault, which would make dismissal almost inevitable, she no longer had any reason to worry for the worst had happened.

Of course she and Arthur Grant would still be closely watched, for Perrin hoped to get some evidence against them, to make his report to the Liverpool office still more black. But neither Perrin nor his toadies would be likely to take the trouble to persecute her in small ways, over her work; he would make the sweeping statement at the office that her work was disgraceful, but this was such a minor accusation, compared to her going ashore without leave, that the authorities would not expect him to go into details over her bad work.

Although she had said so boldly that she was sure that they would interview her at the Liverpool office, she was not really so sure. She might, as Perrin had said, merely find a letter when she got home, to say that her services were no longer required. The stewardesses, like the rest of the staff, were signed on for each voyage, and were not actually in the employment of the Company between voyages, so that no notice was necessary. Naturally, Perrin would do his very best to prevent her being interviewed, and since every Chief Steward was a trusted servant of the Company, his word would go a long way.

There was only one thing to be thankful for—her mother would understand. Mrs. Lind knew Perrin, and knew how easily a case could be made against anyone at sea if the Chief Steward disliked them.

Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane stared at her curiously when she went back to the cabin, but they asked her no questions. They must have known perfectly well why Perrin had sent for her, but if they hoped that she would return in tears, they were disappointed.

Arthur Grant was hovering about in the alley-way when Christine went up to her own section before dinner.

"Edwards and Cator are having a row on the starboard side, over a passenger's bath," he said, "so we've got a few moments. How are you feeling, kid? It's hard lines to have to carry on with the work just as usual."

"I'm not feeling too bad, Arthur. Of course I'm going to be sacked, but I've been expecting that all the voyage, and it's almost restful to have it over—like having a tooth out."

"At least you kept your end up, and he didn't make you cry. It must have made him mad that you kept cool, instead of dissolving into tears."

"How on earth do you know that, Arthur?" she exclaimed.

"From Perrin's steward," he said, with a grin. "Perrin leads Potter a life, but there's mighty little that goes on in Perrin's cabin without Potter knowing.

"I didn't want to be sacked," she said, "and I've no idea what sort of a job I shall get ashore, if any—but it won't be a job where everybody listens at doors. It's like living in a spy story on board this ship."

"Only no one gets shot at dawn. Anyhow, Christine, Potter's done you a good turn, for now the whole staff knows why you went ashore last night, and except for a few of Perrin's special pets, they're all sympathetic. Perrin's gone too far in letting Royde bribe him to hush up a story like that, which ought to have been reported to the Captain."

"And which would have been flatly denied by Royde and Mrs. Smythe."

"Yes, but linked up with some of Royde's previous capers, it would have got him black-listed—there would never have been room for him on one of the Company's ships again. Perrin knows well enough that you're telling the truth, and I shouldn't wonder if the chef had a word to say about it all at the Liverpool office. He was saying to the baker——"

"You're making me dizzy, Arthur," Christine laughed. "You'll be telling me next that the bell-boy happened to be listening at the door when the chef was talking to the baker."

"No—it was the second pantryman, not the bell-boy," Arthur said, his eyes twinkling, "and he didn't listen at the door. He was passing through the pantry, and the chef and the baker were talking near the hatch between the pantry and the baker's shops."

It was queer, Christine thought, that the very people who had been hostile to her all the voyage should now have veered round and become sympathetic. She couldn't help being glad, for though by this time she had a very poor opinion of the lot of them, it would certainly make things easier if they were friendly—and it was still more than two months before they would all get back to England.

x x x

Christine had managed to avoid Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins all day; she was in a very awkward position with regard to those two, for though she had been perfectly justified in acting on the information which they had accidentally given her, they were sure to be furious with her.

When duty required her to go to number eighteen Christine found Mrs. Collins sitting at the dressing table trying out a new way of doing her hair. Her eyes met Christine's in the mirror and she turned round slowly.

"Still waters run deep, apparently, stewardess," she said, lifting her eyebrows. "I hadn't the slightest notion, last night, that you were going to rush straight off to the rescue of Fay Lind. I thought you were hardly listening to what we said."

"If you had known what I was going to do, wouldn't you have stopped me somehow? Christine said quietly.

"I would not, as a matter of fact—I think you were quite right—but I admit that Mrs. Smythe would have done her best to stop you."

"WE'RE BRIGANDS"

Christine looked at her, and she saw that there was something different about Iris Collins to-night—she looked very weary and dispirited, as if she had come face to face with her own soul, and been shocked by what she had seen.

"I simply can't understand Mrs. Smythe," Christine said. "Mr. Royde is bad enough, but I can't understand how any woman can plan to ruin a girl like Fay Lind."

"Can't you?" Iris Collins asked her with a bitter little smile. "Other women were ruthless with us when Doria Smythe and I were as young as Fay Lind. We're brigands, all of us, and we can't afford to be scrupulous."

"But you wouldn't have done—this thing yourself, Mrs. Collins."

There was tragic self-knowledge in Iris Collin's eyes as she looked at Christine.

"Who knows?" she said, shrugging her shoulders. "It's true that I'm shocked by it, and that I had a row with Doria last night about it—after I'd heard that Royde was going to make sure that you were dismissed for the part you played. But if I'd been in Doria's place, if a man I was depending on to back me financially in my club was running after a girl, I might have felt towards the girl just as Doria feels towards the Lind girl—that there was nothing I wouldn't do to hurt her. Are they really going to dismiss you, stewardess?"

"I expect so. You see I ought to have reported the matter to the Chief Steward, instead of going ashore without leave."

"To our dear friend Mr. Perrin, who eats out of Martin Royde's hand? What a hope! Well, I wish I could do something to help you, stewardess, but the fact is that I can't. Although I quarrelled with Doria last night, I've got to make it up, because if I can't persuade her to give me a job at the club, I don't quite know what's going to happen to me."

"It may turn out all right for me," Christine said, moved by profound pity for Iris Collins, beautiful and expensively dressed, who must look forward with terror to the day when her beauty would be gone.

Beauty passed so quickly, and they had nothing else, these women who lived precariously, spending every penny which came into their greedy hands. Christine was going to lose her own job, but she had no terror of the future. She'd find work of some sort, even if it was scrubbing floors—but Iris Collins had never learnt to work

"Good luck to you then, stewardess," Iris Collins said, and turned back to the mirror. Before Christine left the room, Iris seemed already absorbed in trying the effect of a tinsel butterfly poised on her dark curls.

All that day, in spite of her suspense over her own fate, Christine had been wondering at the back of her mind how she could see Fay. She must find out what Fay's reaction had been to the happenings of the night before; when they got out of the car, Fay's one anxiety seemed to be that Christine might reveal the fact that they were sisters but surely, when she came to think things over, Fay must have realised that Martin Royde had tried to trick her.

In the end, Christine decided to go boldly to Fay's room after she had paid her usual visit to Mrs. Carlyle at ten. After all, Perrin had already told her that she was going to be dismissed, so that she had nothing more to fear from him, and everyone on the staff knew that she had been ashore to fetch Fay the night before. She did not really want to be seen visiting a passenger in Miss Crane's section, but if the steward on watch did see her, he would think it natural enough that she should want to speak to this particular passenger.

It was not queer to feel furtive as she walked down the main companion and along the alley-way to Fay's room. As it happened she met neither of the bedroom stewards on late watch, though she did not take the trouble to find out where they were before going to Fay.

Christine had only half expected that Fay would be there, for since the time when she first began to associate with Martin Royde, Fay had seldom been in her room as early as this. But if Fay wanted to talk to her, and it was likely that she did, she might arrange to be in her room at the hour which Christine had come to see her, in the early days of the voyage.

Fay was there, and she was sitting on the settee doing nothing at all, as if she had been waiting so impatiently for Christine that she could not occupy herself in any way, but could only sit watching the door.

"Oh Christine, I'm so glad that you've come," she said thankfully. "I couldn't think of any way of getting a message to you, and I was so afraid that you wouldn't come to-night. I's been like living on a volcano all day—not knowing what was going to come out. What has come out, Christine?"

"That I went ashore last night—that's come out," Christine said, rather drily. "Mr. Perrin is going to report that, and some other things to the Liverpool office, and I'll be dismissed at the end of the voyage."

"But you didn't tell him—that we're sisters?" Fay asked anxiously, as if the fact that Christine was going to be dismissed was no concern of hers.

"No, it wasn't necessary to tell him that. He simply knows that I overheard a conversation between Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins, knew that you were going to be stranded, and went ashore to warn you. He doesn't know that I've ever even spoken to you in my life before."

"And I've been worrying all day," Fay said, with a sigh of relief. "I've kept thinking that some of the passengers were looking at me in an odd way, and wondering if they knew."

"Fay, have you really been worrying about a little thing like that?" Christine asked gravely. "I should have thought you had something much more important to worry about—Martin Royde's attempt to trick you into staying in Penang with him. Doesn't that upset you at all?"

"But it was all a mistake—really it was, Christine," Fay insisted.

"Fay, it wasn't a mistake. I heard Mrs. Smythe telling her friend how it had all been arranged between herself and Martin Royde."

"Martin's explained all that," Fay said quickly, "and he's furious with Mrs. Smythe. You see, when she found out that he'd told me the wrong sailing time, she thought he was doing it deliberately, and so she never said a word about it to him or me. He says she's knocked about the world a lot, and met some very queer people, so she wasn't shocked at the idea of anyone doing an awful thing like that."

"She told Mrs. Collins that it had all been fixed up beforehand that she should have a headache and leave you two together."

"I'd trust Martin," Fay said, with shining eyes, "even if I'd been there myself when Doria was talking to Iris. I'm terribly grateful to you, Christine, for coming ashore last night—but I wouldn't have come to any harm if we had been stranded. Martin would have taken me to friends of his in Penang."

Inefficiency Expert

By ELIZABETH G. GRAY

"Working, Bill?"

"Just taking a little needed rest between jumps, Al."

"Like to sandwich in a little impersonation for a few weeks?" A discerning eye could see that the jumps had long since over-reached their mark, for the pitiable signs of forced dieting were tracing needless, premature lines between Bill's handsome, dark eyes. Bill wasn't complaining. His chances were even at college and he had chosen the theatre instead of business. He had already proven his ability, but the shows were not going too strong just now, and the managers were afraid to take a chance. Too much competition. Movies, you know.

Bill smiled. "Break it easy, Al. Murder or robbery?"

"Bill, I've always thought you missed your vocation. As an efficiency expert you'd make a fine actor. Here is your chance to try. Remember Uncle Eb? He came to visit me once at college, and you entertained him for me because I was ...I forget the trouble. Well, as a sort of post mortem joke, he left me the pulp mills as my share of his fortune.

"The thing is this: Since I have been long-distance boss of said mills they have barely been paying expenses. They produced thousands annually for Uncle Eb, under the same regime."

"Dawn is cracking, Al. My new role is that of the little Dutch boy who discovered the hole in the dyke and put in his thumb to stop the leak".

"Bill, my relief is like sudden vision to a blind man. All you have to do is to pretend you are me, call someone's bluff, and collect a hundred a week as long as you want the job? O.K.?"

Out of the first hundred (in advance), Bill adopted an orphan sport model. He chugged into town Saturday with the prospect of a long, lonely Sunday ahead of him. Then he saw HER. She was so beautiful that she left Bill breathless for a moment. He approached her hurriedly, holding out a small, newly wrapped parcel and in his most perfect, irresistible, matinee-idol voice he said, "I beg your pardon, but is this yours?"

Very seriously she took the package. "If it isn't yours, perhaps it is mine. Thank you."

She was leaving him. "May I give you a lift somewhere?"

"Thank you, Napoleon, but your carriage awaits without—me." She stepped into a shining new white roadster and, without so much as a backward glance, was out of sight.

For a week Bill put all his time into the mills, trying to discover why such a busy place was not producing results. Everyone liked him. He liked everyone but the manager. Therefore he appointed the part of villain to him and watched him. This led to the discovery that very often the white roadster was waiting outside to drive the villain away of an afternoon. And from the rumble seat two golf bags nestled closely together and nodded wisely to each other.

The day Bill decided that he was taking money from his friend under false pretenses he saw the car drive away from the mills with a single passenger. Racing to his own coughing steed, he cried gayly: "Do your stuff, T.B. This is just to say goodby."

The car immediately stopped sputtering and gave chase to the sleek white beauty ahead. About four miles outside of town he saw the car parked by the roadside. Just ahead he saw another car wrapped around a telegraph pole. She was on hre knees before the battered form of the manager of the mills.

"Got a flask?" she wanted to know. "No, you wouldn't! Well, go find a doctor. No, wait. See what you can do for him. I'll go." Instantly she was out of sight.

"I'm in love," sighed Bill, gazing after the departing car.

The form on the ground moved and spoke. "Josephine!"

"That's fine; you're doing fine," he told the man, while his heart sang. Her name was Josephine and she had called him Napoleon. Suppose it was love at first sight with her, too? The injured man was speaking again. "Josephine. I stole the money from the mills because I wanted enough to marry you. We must go away quickly now, because I think he suspects. Where are you, dear?"

"I am here, dear. Where is all the money now?" asked Bill, softly.

"In the bank in New York. Safe—safe We must hurry."

Bill sent a telegram to Al later that day, which read: "Got my finger in the hole in the dyke, and all's O.K. Can't leave just yet. There is a woman in the case."

The answer came immediately: "Fine. All ends as I expected. Sis says if you don't propose soon she is going to. Better keep that manager's job as she likes living in the country. Good luck—Al."

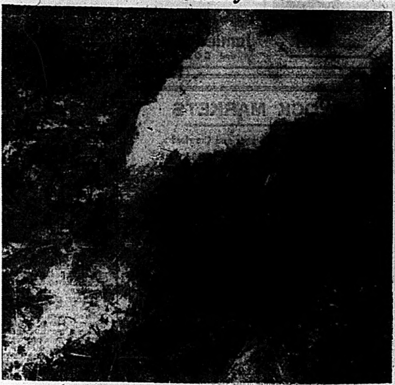
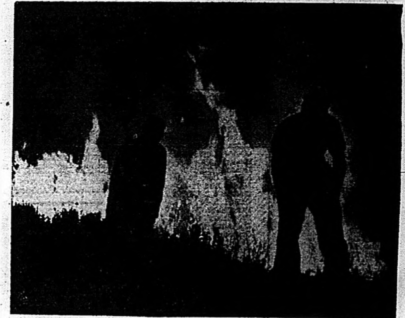
Forest Fires Bring Death and Devastation in Rainy River District



Unchecked in their fury the forest fires which are ravaging the Rainy River district, are seen here in this aerial view. Scores of settlers have been made homeless, with all their worldly possessions devoured by the flames. Many settlers were trapped by the flames, as they attempted to flee to safety, and burned to death. Twenty persons are known to have perished in the flaming forest, while still others are reported missing.



Silhouetted against the raging flames of the forest fires that have spread death and destruction in the Rainy River district, are these two firefighters. They are but two of the thousands of men fighting to gain control over the roaring forest fires which have claimed at least 20 lives, made scores homeless and inflicted millions-of-dollars worth of damage to valuable timber land.

Five persons, including a five-year-old child, met death when a car driven by Dr. George Racey, of Parkhill, crashed into a C. N. R. Diesel engine at Denfield, Ont. Eye-witnesses reported that evidently Dr. Racey's car skidded on the wet pavement and slid into the centre of the engine. Instantly killed in the crash were: Dr. Racey; Miss Evelyn Mason, of Parkhill, 20, a nurse and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wills of Thedford. Norma Wills, 5, was rushed to Victoria hospital, London, where she died shortly after admittance. The wreckage of Dr. Racey's car is shown, above, shortly after the fatal crash.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ketcheson accompanied by Miss Edith Sayers of Belleville spent the week end in Ottawa the guests of Dr. and Mrs. McGregor Easson.

Mrs. James Holmes of Ottawa and Miss Gertrude Myers, Reg. N., of Whitby were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ketcheson.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 15.—(CP) — The Toronto Stock Market finished the week with a strong tone showing in the Base Metals and the Industrials while the golds and the Western Oils posted few and narrow changes. Turnover was about 500,000 shares.

International Nickel advanced 1 1-2 to a new high for the year at 57. Hudson Bay and Smelters firmed about a half point each. Noranda held steady. Gains of 10 to 20 cents were boarded by Waite Amulet, Pend Oreille, Falconbridge, Sherritt, Sudbury Basin and Aldermac. Proposals for a speeding up of armament construction in the United States were evidently a factor in stimulating buying of the Base Metal shares.

Macassa firmed 15 cents, and the close was up slightly for Kerr-Addison, Siscoe, Little Long Lac, Oro Plata and East Malartic.

Papers, Steels, Liquors and Utilities advanced. Inter-listed leaders Brazilian, Ford A, Distillers-Seagrams and Walkers common gained fractions to a point.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Selected industrials and utilities hit the high spots in today's market on a fast rallying swing that landed numerous issues in new territory for the past year. While the opening was a trifle mixed, bidding soon got under way at a speedy clip. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

A-Large Graded Eggs Advance

Toronto, Oct. 15—Values firmed slightly on A-large graded eggs during yesterday's session of the local produce market, while butter ruled steady.

The egg market maintained a firm tone, with fresh receipts on top grades still on the scarce side. Pullets, however, were increasing in volume and accumulation set in on this grade as demand lagged. Grade A-large in the graded division of the market showed the only price change. Graded shipments cleared at 40c to 41c for grade A-large, 39c for medium, 30c to 31c for pullets, 26c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

Trading slackened on the butter market. Traders apparently have taken on sufficient supplies in the past two days to last over the week end. Current receipts continued small, and dealers generally quoted previous prices, but one point reported the market 1-4c below the 23c mark.

Ontario creamery solids were quoted at 22 3-4c to 23c for No. 1 grades, 22c to 22 1-4c for 38 score. Prints traded in retail channels at 24 1-2c to 25c for top grades. Buyers offered 21c for No. 1 grade churning cream (country truck price), unchanged from Thursday.

Produce Prices Firm at Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 15.—(CP)—Prices held firm on open produce markets Friday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Quebec No. 1 pasteurized in wholesale job lots was 23 1-2c to 23 5-8c. Receipts 2,469 boxes including 851 for export.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 41c to 42c a dozen for A-large: 39c to 40c for A-medium, 31c for A-pullets, 26c to 26 1-2c for B-large and 21c for C. Receipts 2,250 cases, including 2,000 for export.

MARKET COMMENT

A good percentage of the current demand for stocks is emanating from financial institutions, with the public only a moderate factor in the market. The reason for this is that the average trader is expecting a reaction after the tremendous advance of the past fifteen days. It would not be surprising if a moderate setback did occur, even if only for technical reasons.

The higher price for copper this week was not surprising, the metal at current prices of 11 cents is up nearly three cents a pound from its recent low. Demand is still well sustained and while increased production is getting under way both here and abroad, the statistical position continues to favor higher prices and there are some in the trade who believe that domestic prices will work higher before they are stabilized. Some factors in the trade point to the fact that prices can still be regarded as low particularly in view of the demand and the further inroads into stocks.

KERR—ADDISON

Capital 5,000,000 shares of which 4,729,401 are issued. Property in Larder Lake area, Ontario. Two main shafts have been sunk to 705 and 793 feet respectively and are connected on the 300, 500, and 700-ft. levels. Development to date mainly on and above 500 ft. level; ore reserves estimated at well over 1,000,000 tons averaging above $6.00 per ton. Mill commenced in May 1938 with initial capacity of 500 tons daily and is now treating 700 tons daily with millheads of close to $8 per ton. Current production of around $150,000 a month yields an operating profit of about $80,000 a month with net profits estimated to be running a better than 15 cents per share. Interesting speculative possibilities, in view of possibilities of an important increase in production.

Pamour

Capital 5,000,000 shares all issued. Noranda is reported holding over 2,000,000 shares and Quebec Gold holds 558,000 shares. Property in eastern section of Porcupine camp. Underground development is being carried out to open up the mine to 1,600 feet depth, which will probably take till the end of 1939. In first six months of this year net profits were equal to 14 cents a share. Current production is 1,500 tons daily of $7.00 ore. Ore reserves estimated at 1,644,000 tons averaging 0.176 oz. gold. Very interesting possibilities.

RIPE STRAWBERRIES PICKED AT MARMORA

A second crop of ripe strawberries being picked in Marmora section this week in the berry patch of her home in the village. Mrs. T. W. Rhind picked enough of the berries to provide the family with a substantial meal.

GASOLINE PRICES DOWN ONE CENT

A general reduction of the price of gasoline was announced through the province of Ontario today, the reduction ranging from one to one one-half cents per gallon.

In Belleville local service station operators announced they had been instructed to lower the price of all grades of gasoline one cent per gallon from this date.

The reduction in gasoline prices will have no effect on oil prices.

Cross Section of Human Life Seen in Employment Offices

Young, Middle-Aged And Old Pass Through 'Clearing-House'

CEASELESS QUEST

It is one of the cross-roads of Life.

The clearing house of tales of life as it is known among the masses. Human emotions perhaps never portrayed so vividly in any other place are noted within its portals. Grey-haired men and women, their lives behind them, hopeful youth, keen and ambitious, have met success and failure here.

Its officials have seen the look of sometimes desperation, and despair on the faces of those who visit them. Joy, temporary perhaps, they have seen flash across countenances that a moment previous were dark with the flush of ill-fortune. Victims of circumstances and the depression, make it a central station in the hope that some day the worm of prosperity will turn.

In short, it is the Employment Office of any city in Canada, which a thoughtful government has provided for the alleviation of unemployment, and a liaison place for employer and unemployed.

Cross-Section of Humanity

Hope, thwarted ambition, despair, joy and desperation hold sway in these offices, personified in a cross-section of humanity to be met every day on the streets, but whose secrets are bared within the walls of these offices.

From the care-free, dapper, high school youth seeking employment as a summer diversion, to stooped, aged, grey-haired men and women, travelling along the last trail of life, bitter, disillusioned, without hope, in the chance that some kind stranger will throw a crumb of employment their way, they come.

Young girls, exemplifying in their healthy appearance and spirits, the splendid womanhood of which Canada is justly proud enter the doors, some shyly, some bold, yet with the secret hope that kind-faced office officials will nod their heads affirmatively to their questions for work.

Young men, suddenly faced with the problem of self-sustenance, financially unable to afford a college education; others born to work yet through circumstances unblest with even the rudiments of learning; others, knights of the road perhaps, who call and ask for work with a hidden hope that it will not be found, go to make up the human tide that flows into these offices.

A common sight in these days of depression is the young married man, suddenly deprived of a job, with his back against the figurative wall as a little family at home depends on his efforts for sustenance. Too proud to accept the relief; too proud to beg, yet fully cognizant of their responsibilities, these men are one of the sad yet inevitable problems of the present economic situation.

A Great Leveller

Unemployment, like war, has proved a great leveller. A glance at the records of any employment bureau would reveal a story poignant, as touching, and as full of human interest as any ever penned. If one could dig through or break down the wall of pride behind these names, there would be uncovered stories that the imagination of man has never reached.

Statistics reveal that within the past few years practically all walks of life have been represented in this cosmopolitan army. White-collared clerks, office men, even college professors, engineers, executives have mingled wtih skilled artisans from the trades and the humble laborer, in the eternal quest for employment.

Former Professor In College

In the Belleville office there is to be seen on its files, the name of a former college professor, another college man, an experienced newspaperman who desired to again join the profession of the fourth estate; carpenters, painters, masons, plumbers and steamfitters, men who in the heyday of prosperity held a place high in the esteem of the world. Perhaps the saddest part of all is the small army of unskilled men, men of humble origin who through no fault of their own, possess no calling. Yet with the natural desire to live and provide in their manner a livelihood for their loved ones.

Daily they flock to the office with the inevitable enquiry on their lips. Daily they turn away, disappointed and near hopeless. Young men, men of middle-age, old men, all members of that army who are fighting a desperate yet near hopeless battle against what seems to be at times overwhelming odds.

It has been said that large percentage of these mem do not want to work. No better proof of the fallacy of this statement can be had than a short visit to any employment office during the morning hours.

These Men Want Jobs

Offer the first man you see a job, then watch the eager light that flashes in his eyes. Ninety-nine times out of one hundred he will snatch avidly at the chance, and your generosity will be more than repaid by the look of gratitude that sweeps over his face.

You will see young girls unable to continue education through lack of family finances, searching for jobs as housemaids. You will see middle-aged women, wearily enquiring for day work and you will see pert stenographers, diplomas with ink not yet dry, shyly registering their names for positions.

But most of all you will see laborers and unskilled workers, some with large families, others with themselves to sustain. You will see heartbreak and hopelessness registered on drawn faces as officials slowly shake their heads with the familiar answer, "Nothing today." You will see them slowly turn away, shoulders hunched, head lowered. Some of the braver ones will effect a forced smile, and throw their heads back in a weak gesture of defiance to the hammers of depression that are slowly beating down their resistance.

Small Jobs At Low Level

The jobs are not there. This year, officials state, the small jobs that brought in meagre remuneration yet sufficed to keep the wolf of hunger and the spectre of relief from the door, have reached a low level not touched since the cloud of depression swept over the land. Perhaps it is the recession, now claimed to hold the country in its grip, that is preventing the small employer from parting with change that he formerly paid out to these people. Perhaps it is something else but the fact remains that nearly sixty percent of the "odd jobs" in evidence a year ago, are conspicuous by their absence this year.

What will be the outcome is a matter for conjecture. Relief questions are becoming acute with officialdom. The answer lies in the future. What it will be this writer cannot forecast.

Officials Sympathetic

Employment officials, at least those that this writer has met, are kindly, tolerant people. Perhaps it is the fact that they are in daily cnotact with that side of life which the average person on the street rarely sees. Perhaps they have been chosen because of these requirements. That is not the point. They are only human beings; naturally sympathetic, yet with this quality considerably enhanced because of their knowledge, through contact of life, seen sometimes in its rawest state.

They have seen the heartbreak in human faces; the gleam of hope turn to sudden despair, as they are forced to give negative answers to requests for jobs, and the darkness of disappointment suddenly wipe out in countenances, the light of eager anticipation.

And they have seen the look of grateful thanks come over care-worn faces, when they have the opportunity to say "Yes, there is something for you today."

Salesman Locked In.

From Huntsville came word that Lark and Racicot were wanted there for the holdup and robbery of the Jupp Motor Sales Company, Sept. 22. In that robbery, two men locked a salesman in an office and escaped with $28. The men were traced to Gravenhurst, 40 miles south of Huntsville.

It was disclosed last night that a man named Ratz, held in custody at Huntsville on a charge of forgery, had disclosed to police information concerning the hold-up. The men who held up the motor-car sales room also were believed to be those who broke into a Huntsville store two weeks ago and escaped with several guns and other goods.

VALUABLE HOMES

27 Families Evacuated

Twenty-seven families, comprising 105 persons, were evacuated yesterday from the Emo district 20 miles west of Fort Frances when the fire threat was renewed there. Relief officials are caring for 22 families here and 70 refugees at Stratton, 25 miles west.

More than 100 Squaws and Papooses were evacuated from the Koochiching Reserve when fire threatened to destroy their homes but the Indian men remained and apparently fought the flames successfully.

Ontario and Dominion cabinet ministers are en route to the fire area. Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, left Port Arthur for Fort Frances by train last night after heavy smoke prevented him taking off by plane.

Cabinet Minister on Scene

Hon. C. D. Howe, Federal Minister of Transport, reached Winnipeg last night after cutting short his western trip and immediately entrained for Fort Frances.

A swath of fire-break was soaked by 12,000 feet of hose along the borders of Fort Frances during the night to prevent further advance of blazes that threatened the town itself on Monday.

Manitoba fires extended as far north as Lac du Bonnet, 70 miles northwest of Winnipeg. Settlers in the Sandilands Forest Reserve, 48 miles southeast of Winnipeg, were ready to leave their homes if burning bush in that district flared out of control.

All Hog Carcasses Weighed Carefully

The introduction of rail grading brought new problems in the field of weighing. It was necessary to have a scales capable of operating at a high rate of speed, with accuracy.

To overcome the many difficulties it was necessary to add many new features to the electric automatic scales that were in use at the time, and the final result was a scales that marked a definite advance in the art of weighing.

There is no product that the farmer markets that is weighed any more accurately than the carcasses of the hogs that are sold on the dressed weight basis.

Some good lots of hogs received during the week of October 15th, are as follows:

I'll Take You With Me
By Farley Faulkner

With her name in lights and her picture on the billboards, vibrant and devastating Ann Miller will leave for New York tomorrow night.

In an exclusive interview today the 19-year-old dancing star of the screen told this column the story behind her trip to the Big City and several other facts, that she feels should be revealed to the press at this time.

"I am not running away from Hollywood, and there has definitely been no hard feeling between R.K.O. and myself," smiled Ann when this column queried her regarding her highly publicized exit from the ranks of R.K.O.'s contract players recently.

"William Morris, mother and myself just came to the conclusion that my interests would be best served if I left R.K.O. because, well—because they had no good pictures coming up for me within the next six months, and I do want to do something besides flit in and out of pictures. Morris my agent knows his business and I am satisfied, that he and mother have advised me in the best interests of everyone concerned."

"Shall you come back to Hollywood and pictures?" we inquired.

"Don't you see Ann has never been to New York and she is so young and has been working so hard, that we feel this trip will do her good," interjected Mrs. Miller, charming mother and pal of Ann.

"I'm so thrilled and excited, too," declared Ann in a voice that made you feel she is really thrilled and excited with the thought of dancing on Broadway.

"What will you do when you arrive in New York," we asked.

To Work at Paramount

"I'm to work at the Paramount Theatre for two weeks. And have I been busy tapping out new dance routines ....what do you think of this one?" Ann then leaped to her feet and tapped out a routine, that would do credit to Fred Astaire.

"Do you think they will like that?" she gasped.

And we sat back amazed at the sincere, unaffected attitude of this enthusiastic young lady, who already has to her credit such pictures as: New Faces of 1937, Stage Door, Radio City Revels, You Can't Take It With You, Room Service and Miracle Racket.

"It's my own idea and I'm rather anxious to see how they receive it."

This column not only likes Ann's dancing, but is convinced that such a refreshing personality should and will be allowed to do more than flit in and out of pictures. And if the dear Hollywood moguls had half an eye they would see that Ann's personality is not all wrapped up in her dancing feet.

Debut as Singing Star.

Joan Crawford, who has been studying voice for the past two years, will make her debut as a singing star in her forthcoming picture, "Ice Follies." And, at the same time, she will transfer her dancing ability to the ice. It was as a dancer in the Shubert Show on Broadway that Joan, then Lucille LeSeur, first came to the attention of Harry Rapf, who is producing "Ice Follies." Her only singing appearances on the screen have been in "Possessed" and in "The Bride Wore Red", in each of which she sang one number. In "Ice Follies" she will be seen as the feminine member of a skating trio, whose voice is far better than her skating ability, with the result, that she wins a job in films after the skating act has been fired from a Hollywood ice rink. Her male partners are Jimmy Stewart and Lew Ayres.

Only recently Miss Crawford turned down an offer from the Metropolitan Opera management to make a concert tour with tenor John Carter, feeling, that she was not yet ready for such an engagement. In "Ice Follies" she will be heard in several numbers, yet to be written. Her voice instructors, Arthur Rosenstein and Romano Romani, both predict a brilliant future in song for her.

Owen to Replace Barrymore

At the insistence of Lionel Barrymore, Reginald Owen has been chosen to replace him as Scrooge in Dickens' "A Christmas Carol", to go into immediate production at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The star, who has enacted the role every Christmas for five years over the radio, is recovering from a recent illness and does not yet feel strong enough to essay the character on the screen.

When the studio offered to postpone the production and release it for Christmas, 1939, by which time Barrymore will have fully regained his health, Barrymore protested. He urged holding to the original plan for release this coming yuletide.

"If the world ever needed a Christmas carol it is now," declared the actor. "In these days as never before the world needs Dickens' message of peace on earth, good will toward men."

He then proposed that Owen be cast in his place, and has offered to give active aid to Joseph Mankiewcz the producer, in any way possible.

"I know of no other player more ideally fitted to the part," says Barrymore. "Not only is Owen a fine actor, but he is an Englishman, and I feel, that no one but an Englishman can really portray the spirit of the story."

Barrymore long had set his heart on playing the character, but feels that he could not attempt it for at least two more months. He is recovering from the after effects of a broken hip, suffered several months ago.

Abruptly Ends Vacation

Canadian born Fay Wray flew back to Hollywood last week, abruptly ending a New York vacation, to be featured with Ralph Bellamy in "Spy Ring," scheduled to start early next week under the direction of Christy Cabanne at Columbia.

The story, said to have many timely aspects, deals with federal agents on the trail of a group of international spies who seek to steal the secret formula for a new lethal gas.

"Spy Ring" will be in the nature of a reunion for Miss Wray and Bellamy. The latter has long been under Columbia contract, scoring his greatest success in "The Awful Truth," while Miss Wray until recently was at the same studio.

Margaret Sullavan believes in conventions, for people who respect them.

She is definitely not a conventional person, nor actress.

She can be expected to be doing anything, at any time, regardless of place, hour or circumstance.

"I want to get all the fun out of life," she says, "and so I make my own rules. I respect others people and their rights, but I don't see why I should be bound by a lot of silly rules that have no bearing on my own happiness. If I think a thing is right, I'm going to do that thing. I have a mind of my own and it deserves the exercise of analyzing my own actions."

Miss Sullavan has been discovered sitting on an old nail keg, in an evening dress, reading a newspaper under a bad stage light.

Blossoms as Song Writer

Mickey Rooney is the most excited youngster in town since receiving a letter from Eddie Cantor, asking for an appointment to discuss his latest song, "Ring Around with Rosie," a jitterbug tune.

For the past year, Mickey has been pounding out songs, but no one has taken them seriously. But among the guests at the house warming party for his Encino ranch the other evening was Cantor's daughter, Marilyn. Mickey played several of his numbers for her and she thought they were great.

Marilyn apparently told her father, because Cantor wrote Mickey immediately for an interview. Inspired by the opportunity to get his songs plugged by Cantor, Mickey dashed off a new piece, "Love on the Range," dedicated to his latest Metro-Goldwyn- Mayer picture, "Out West With the Hardys."

Mickey has written more than fifty songs and is polishing up the best for Cantor.

Probabilities

MOUSE SINGS. EATS BIRD SEED

Lincoln, Ill., Oct. 17 (AP)—Richard Steiner owns a mouse which evidently has a grand opera complex and an affinity for canaries. He captured the mouse after it had squeezed into his canary's cage and joined the bird in a duet. Confined now to a finely screened cage, the mouse continues its singing, disdaining all food except—bird seed.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Gobi Desert! Crossing this desert is no holiday adventure at any time of the year. One traveller, in describing his crossing it in July, says that as soon as the sun came up it scorched everyone. They were obliged to halt for two or three hours as the air temperature rose to 113 degrees, while the surface sand registered 143 degrees or even higher. At depth of two feet the soil temperature was 79 degrees. At night there was no dew, of course, and during the day the air was terribly dry. Visibility was decreased so much by the dust that it was necessary to lay out the course with a compass. The wind blew almost incessantly night and day.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—Pressure is high over the Western Provinces, Northern Ontario and the Eastern States, and low over Hudson Straits with a trough extending southward to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, thence southwestward across the lake region to the southwest states, and pressure is also low over the Gulf of Mexico. It has been generally fair and cool in the Prairie Provinces, while showers have occurred in Northern Districts of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. It continues warm from the lower lakes eastward to the Maritimes and has become cooler over Northern Ontario.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh northeasterly winds; partly cloudy and cool. Tuesday, east and north-east winds; mostly cloudy and cool; probably light scattered showers.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan — Partly cloudy and cool today and Tuesday; probably light showers in some districts.

Alberta—Fair and cool today and Tuesday.

SETTLERS READY TO START ANEW IN BURNT AREA

Showers Over Fire Zone Brings To End Serious Conflagration

RECEIVE GOV'T HELP

Heroic Tales Told of How Settlers Saved Their Homes

Fort Frances, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Rain showers over the forest fire zone today brought the hope to settlers from the burned out areas that they might be able to return shortly to their land. They wished to rebuild and start anew in the 9,000 square miles of fire-wrecked countryside.

Ontario Government officials, headed by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, drove through the townships struck by the conflagration which broke out on Thanksgiving Day and swept for 100 miles along the International Boundary, causing 20 deaths in Ontario and Northern Minnesota.

It is estimated more than $100,000 will be required to rebuild settlers' homes. More than 70 families lost their dwellings, but further inquiry might advance the figure.

Gov't. to Provide Money

Government officials assured refugees, quartered at Fort Frances and Stratton, that the money will be provided and work will start immediately. The rain showers seemed to fall in line with the rehabilitation program as they came Saturday while the Citizens' Committee and relief officers were conferring.

The moisture brought grins to the faces of the fire crews who have battled day and night for a week against one of the most serious outbreaks in the history of the timber country.

Citizens of Fort Frances and International Falls, just across the border in Minnesota, relaxed after ceaseless vigils while flames crept to the outskirts. Thousands of feet of hose were wound up as the crews at Fort Frances headed for bed and the first unbroken sleep in seven days.

Keep Watch Near Lake

Fighters kept watch at Clearwater Lake, Sphene Lake and Crane Lake where flames still spurted through muskeg, timber and grass. Sphene Lake escaped the rainfall but the blaze near the tourist resort was described as under control.

Charles Plummer, 65 year old resident of Dance Township where 17 persons died, including two women and ten children, was located in good health during the week-end. The courageous settler clung to his homestead while the inferno ate up the countryside.

Plummer waged a lone and courageous battle against searing heat and flames to save his home.

Provincial policemen, seeking to learn his fate found him at a neighbor's place Saturday, happy that his

King and Queen To Travel Across The Dominion

London, Oct. 17 (CP) — While the official program containing details of the projected royal visit to Canada has not yet been made public, it is generally expected the king and queen will travel right across the Dominion.

It is believed their Majesties will tour Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts, although the restriction of the visit to three weeks would make the time they would stop in most places necessarily short.

The official announcement of the trip said it would be made in "early summer". It has been suggested the king and queen likely would depart in the last week of May. The official program covering the trip is not expected to be made public for several weeks yet.

TWO ARE KILLED IN MOTOR MISHAPS OVER THE WEEKEND

Head-On Collision Near Bowmanville Takes Life of Californian

KINGSTON DROWNING

Despite heavy traffic, drawn to the highways by summer-like weather conditions, only two persons were killed in motor accidents in Ontario during the week-end. Four fatalities from other causes brought the province's toll of violent deaths to six.

Falling beneath the dual wheels of a motor truck taking him home from work, Jack Reynolds, 40-year-old Porquis Junction laborer, was killed Saturday night. He is survived by his widow and six children.

The other fatal motor accident, a head-on collision on a highway near Bowmanville, took the life of Alvin Larson of Oakland, Calif. Police were told Larson had pulled out to pass a motor truck when his car struck one driven by John R. McGillivray of Montreal. Heavy fog hung over the road.

12 to 15 Gravestones Pushed Over at Guelph

Guelph, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Desecration of St. Joseph's Cemetery, the old Roman Catholic burial ground at the western boundary of the city, is being investigated by provincial police. From twelve to fifteen gravestones have been pushed over on graves, and other damage caused to the cemetery. During recent years the cemetery has been kept and maintained by members of Guelph Council Knights of Columbus.

Perfect Handling of Plane When Wing Rips Off Saves 4

Phil Sauve, Lands Ship In Lake At 90 Miles Per Hour

FOUGHT PLUNGING SHIP

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP) — Skilful piloting by Phil Sauve, who once landed an airplane on one ski when the other was damaged on a winter flight, was credited today with saving the lives of himself and three passengers when part of a plane wing was torn away 5,000 feet above orthern Ontario's dense bushlands.

Sauve and his passengers spent 45 hours on the shore of a little lake 35 miles north of here when the crankshaft of an Austin Airways plane broke on a flight Friday. It severed the propeller shaft. The "prop" flew off and struck the lower right wing, carrying away part of the lifting surface.

"When the wing began to shake and parts of the fabric started to fall, I felt sure we were done for," the pilot said on his arrival here yesterday after the quartet had been rescued by two of seven planes that engaged in a search. "But I decided if we had to go down we'd go down fighting."

He shut off the motor and fought the plunging ship as he aimed for a tiny patch of silver far below, a little, unnamed lake in the middle of Praleck Township's bush country. "Pieces of the wing were just shredding off into space as we swerved and glided down," Donald T. Groom, one of the passengers, said later.

Short Sharp Dive.

"I took a short, sharp dive and took to the water at about 90 miles an hour," Pilot Sauve related. "I couldn't reduce speed because I was rapidly losing control of the plane and the struts where the propeller had hit were falling off. If the other half of the lower wing had gone, we'd have gone, too."

But Sauve landed safely then fell limp over the controls. He said he "quaked like a school girl" after it was all over. Groom took off his shoes and socks and waded to shore, pulling the plane in close to the rocks and enabling the others to land.

Groom, Lawrence Ashcroft of Sudbury and Joe Laflamme, noted Gogama, Ont., wolf tamer, were Sauve's passengers on a flight from Gogama, 80 miles north-west of here, to Sudbury. When the plane failed to arrive here, seven searching planes took the other but poor visibility and smoke from a bush fire hampered the pilots.

Pilot Chuck Austin, co-owner of the airways firm, found the stranded party yesterday afternoon. The four men carried a week's rations of food and sleeping bags and were in no danger of starvation.

CHAMBERLAIN MAY RE-SHUFFLE THE BRITISH CABINET

Two Vacancies Must Be Filled And Other Ministers Appointed

TO DISCUSS DEFENCE

Agenda of Ministerial Conference Heaviest In Many Months

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain returns to London tomorrow to face the task of bringing the nation's defences into shape to meet any new war threat and to take the complex problems affecting Great Britain in all parts of the globe. On Wednesday he will preside at the first cabinet meeting in two weeks and the agenda of the ministerial conference is one of the heaviest in recent months.

Among the important questions to be discussed by the ministers are:

1. Defence.
2. Vacancies in the cabinet resulting from the resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper and the death of Lord Stanley.
3. The situation in Palestine.
4. The Anglo-Italian agreement concluded last Easter but not yet made effective.
5. The Anglo-American Trade Treaty.
6. The civil war in Spain.
7. The new Japanese offensive in South China and its effect on Hong Kong.
8. The situation in Central Europe in the wake of the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

Observers inclined to the view Mr. Chamberlain might seize the opportunity of two vacancies in his cabinet to effect a general re-shuffle, possibly adding one or two new portfolios.

National Service Minister

"A Minister of National Service" was widely predicted and Sir John Anderson, who had long experience in Home Office affairs as a civil servant, was mentioned for the post.

Some predicted a Ministry of Supply, with Sir Thomas Inskip possibly being chosen to combine those duties with his present post as Minister for the Co-ordination of Defence.

Another possibility was creation of a Ministry of Merchant Shipping for the purpose of reorganizing the merchant marine. Viscount Runciman, an authority on shipping, was mentioned for this post.

Earl Stanhope, president of the Board of Education, was mentioned to succeed Mr. Duff Cooper as First Lord of the Admiralty, as were W. S. Morrison, Minister of Agricul-

PASSPORT VISA OF FIGHTER LIFTED

Jack Doyle Will Likely Be Sent Back To Ireland

Los Angeles, Oct. 17 (AP)—If the State Department, which has cancelled the passport visa of Jack Doyle, singing Irish prize-fighter, sends him out of the United States, it will be to the country's financial loss, he indicated today.

"After all," Doyle said in jail, "I'm a fellow who has plenty of money. I planned to spend plenty in the United States.

"But if they don't want me here—well, I guess I can leave."

Doyle expressed bewilderment as to why he was taken in custody by United States immigration officers when he arrived by airliner from Newark, N.J., early yesterday, and his immediate concern today was to obtain his release on bail.

"I can't understand this at all," Doyle's lawyer, Jack Irwin, quoted him as saying. "Why, I know of no wrongdoing."

Dispatches from New York said the State Department had cancelled Doyle's passport visa without specifying reasons. He was booked here on illegal entry charges. It also was reported Timothy Godde may be called as a witness at the New York passport hearing for the "Irish thrush".

Godde's wife, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde, automobile heiress, once named by Judith Allen, Doyle's former actress-wife, in a $2,000,000 alienation of affections suit, which was later dropped. While it was pending Doyle insisted he and and Mrs. Godde had planned to marry, as soon as they were free of their respective mates.

BANDS EXCHANGE MUSIC

Gibraltar, Oct. 17 (AP)—The British battle cruiser Hood and the German pocket battleship Deutschland exchanged friendly greetings as they left the harbor here today.

The Hood's band played "Deutschland Ueber Alles" when leaving for Marseilles. The Deutschland, bound for Cadiz, responded with "God Save The King".

FOUR GERMANS HELD AS SPIES

Arrested Sunday While Taking Pictures of Key Defences In Panama

Panama, Panama, Oct. 17 (AP)—The United States military today held four Germans, one a woman, for photographing key defences to the Panama Canal.

A court of inquiry will determine whether they are to be charged with espionage on the waterway, vital link in American defence by which the United States fleet can be shifted from Pacific to Atlantic or back as emergency demands.

The four were arrested Sunday while taking pictures of Galeta Point, first defence of the Atlantic approach to the canal.

They entered Fort Randolp reservation in the morning by auto and denied, the sentry said, they had a camera. The question is routine to all visitors.

Search later led to the arrests and confiscation of the quartet's camera and automobile.

Authorities said they were: Ingeborg Guttmann, the woman; Hans Schackow, said to be employed by the German Hapag-Lloyd Steamship Line agency at Cristobal; Gisbert Gross and Edward Robert Kuhrig.

KEMAL ATATURK OF TURKEY, ILL

Built a New Nation Out of Ruins of Ottoman Empire

Ankara, Turkey, Oct. 17 (AP)—An official communique said today that President Kemal Ataturk was gravely ill. He is 58 years old.

The communique said:

"The condition of the president, who has long been suffering from a liver complaint, suddenly grew worse on Sunday. And although a slight improvement occurred overnight his illness is still maintaining a grave character."

The health of the "grey wolf" who built a new nation on the ruins of the Ottoman Empire had been the subject of disquieting rumors for months.

Last May Ataturk gave to the nation the bulk of his wealth, estimated at several million dollars. One of his last reported activities since then was a reception he gave King Carol of Rumania June 19 aboard his yacht, the Savarona.

During his fifteen years of power Ataturk has separated church from state, outlawed the fez and veil, abolished the sultanate and ended polygamy in Turkey.

EXPRESS SERVICE BY AIR STARTED

Trans-Canada Airlines Inaugurates East-to-West Service

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—A giant Trans-Canada Airlines plane arrived at Uplands Airport near here at 8.30 a.m. today from Montreal and took off 21 minutes later for Toronto en route to Vancouver, inaugurating an east-to-west airways express service.

During its brief stay here the plane picked up express, including a bouquet of flowers from Mayor Stanley Lewis and Mrs. Lewis for Mayor Miller of Vancouver.

Winnipeg, Oct. 17 (CP) — Two Trans-Canada Air Lines planes winged their way over Ontario today in inaugural air express service flights between Montreal and Winnipeg.

A plane, piloted by W. Coffin, soared from Stevenson Field, Winnipeg, at 5 a.m. E.S.T., today bound for Toronto and Montreal while at 7.27 a.m. E.S.T., another plane left Montreal for Toronto and Winnipeg.

Pilot Coffin was assisted by Co-Pilot J. A. Storie. They carried 25 pounds of express.

RADIALS COLLIDE EIGHTY PERSONS ESCAPING INJURY

A Few Sustained Minor Bruises And Cuts But None Serious

WINDOWS SMASHED

Slippery Condition of Rails Caused By Dew Reason For Crash

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—About 80 persons escaped serious injury about midnight Saturday when two Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto radial cars collided on the Niagara Falls main line near Hutt's Crossing in Stamford township.

Several of the passengers suffered from bruises and shock, but none of the men or women and children, returning from Niagara Falls, N.Y., was injured.

Two cars were operating and when the first car operated by Albert Smythe stopped to discharge passengers at Hutt's Crossing, the second car driven by Albert Lambert failed to stop and crashed into the rear of the stopped trolley.

Several windows in both cars were smashed. Passengers were knocked from their seats. Neither of the cars was badly damaged. After a check up had been made by officials to determine the extent of the injuries among the passengers the cars were able to continue. At the switch near Thorold, passengers in the second car were transferred to another trolley which had been sent out from Thorold.

Slippery condition of the rails caused by the heavy dew, leaves and some grass, was given as the reason for failure of the second radial to stop.

BREAKS BACK IN 40 FOOT FALL

18-Year Seamstress In Toronto Falls From Fourth Floor

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—Mildred Noval, 18-year-old seamstress plunged 40 feet today from the fourth floor of a central Toronto building and suffered a broken back and a badly smashed ankle.

The girl landed on a plot of ground below the window, narrowly missing the cement sidewalk.

She was given first aid in a neighboring doctor's office and rushed to hospital in critical condition.

Police were told by employees of the company (Imperial Pant Company) the girl had been seen standing before an open fourth-floor window shortly after opening time.

Republic May Be Forced to Readjust Policies Report From Rome Says

Negotiations of Czechs And Hungarians Will Resume Shortly

TROOPS ARE MOVED

Closer Economic Relations With Germany And Italy Forecast

Rome, Oct. 17 (AP)—A strong hint came from Italian official quarters today that in order to satisfy Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler Czechoslovakia must come within the orbit of the Rome-Berlin axis.

A bulletin of the Informazione Diplomatica, distributed by the Ministry of Popular Culture, indicated the Prague government's policies—political, economic and "spiritual"—must swing toward those of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

The bulletin said negotiations for the cession of Czechoslovak territory to Hungary would be resumed in a few days and the outcome would be successful for Hungary. It added that once the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia are fixed in accordance with Mussolini's principles they would be guaranteed by Italy.

Suggested Adjustment.

Informazione Diplomatica refrained from saying just how far Czechoslovakia would be expected to go in re-adjusting its policies to the ideas of Berlin and Rome. Foreign authorities here, however, suggested the following adjustments as most likely to satisfy the two poles of the Fascist-Nazi axis

1. Abandonment of any anti-Fascist attitude.
2. Closer economic relations with Rome and Berlin.
3. Severance of political connections with Soviet Russia and France as represented in Prague's mutual assistance pacts.
4. Outlawing of the Communist party and perhaps dissolution of Masonic lodges in Czechoslovakia.
5. Adherence in spirit if not in fact to the Anti-Comintern (Communist International) triangle of Berlin, Rome and Tokyo.

Hungary Moves Troops

Budapest, Oct. 17 (AP)—Hungary continued to move troops and war equipment to the Czechoslovak border today while the cabinet met to consider suggestions made by Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini to settle the minority dispute.

Ruth Etting Blames Gunplay On Her Divorced Husband

Martin Snyder Held, On Attempted Murder Charge

ALDERMAN WOUNDED

Los Angeles, Oct. 17 (AP)—Jealousy?—or self defence?—clashed as rival theories today to explain the shooting of singer Ruth Etting's new husband by her divorced mate and former business manager, Martin (Moe) Snyder.

Snyder, held in jail on suspicion of kidnapping and attempting to murder Myrl Alderman, 30-year-old bridegroom and radio musician, was quoted by police as saying: "He was shooting at me, so I shot at him. Ruth won't prosecute me, because she still loves me."

There was scant affection in Miss Etting's silver voice as she angrily blamed the gunplay in her luxurious home Saturday night on Snyder, whom she divorced in Chicago last November after 17 years of wedded life.

"I don't believe I will ever sing again . . . ever," she said, sitting beside the hospital bed of Alderman, who secretly married her in Tijuana, lower California, last July.

Merely Jealous Is Claim.

"Snyder's story that Myrl not satisfied unless he's making trouble. He's threatened to kill me before—and even telephoned from New York last January to threaten me.

"Snyder's story was that Myrl shot at him is ridiculous. That boy never owned a gun. I did, though, one that I had had for years. Snyder's gun was the only one there Saturday night until Myrl had been shot and was lying on the floor. Then I slipped into the bedroom and got mine.

"Snyder saw it. He took it away from me and threw it on the floor. Edith Snyder picked it up and shot at him—her own father. I believe that girl would lay down her life for me. Saturday night she almost did."

Miss Snyder, Miss Etting's step-daughter and secretary, concurred with the singer and Alderman's recital of events. It was:

Forced At Pistol Point.

That Snyder, at pistol point, forced Alderman to drive him from a radio station to the Etting hillside home, where, in the music room, he threatened to shoot all three members of the household. (Snyder told police he went there "to discuss arrangements for some Beverly Hills property with my former wife.")

That Snyder shot twice at Alderman from a distance of twelve feet as the music arranger sat near Miss Etting on the piano bench. Alderman was struck once in the abdomen.

That Snyder wrested Miss Etting's pistol from her grasp, but Miss Snyder picked it up and fired at him as he chased the singer to the kitchen. He was not wounded.

CANTON-KOWLOON RAILWAY CUT AND CHINESE IN PERIL

May Have Trouble In Getting Food Supplies Into Hong Kong

MANY AIR RAIDS

Hong Kong, Oct. 17 (AP)—Japan's invasion of South China swept on today with what military observers considered amazing rapidity.

The vital Canton-Kowloon railway was cut at at least two points. One column landed on the Pearl River delta and raced overland to sever the line fifteen miles north of

FOUR KILLED AS TRAIN HITS TRUCK

Returning From Quebec Church When Accident Happens

Montreal, Oct. 17 (CP) — Seven persons died in accidents involving automobiles in Quebec over the week-end, four of them in a train-truck crash at Yamachiche, twenty miles west of Three Rivers, in which five other persons were injured. The body of an unidentified woman was found in Riviere Des Prairies.

Mrs. Gustave Dussault, 32, eight-year-old daughter Jeannine and two sisters-in-law, Yvonne Dussault, 37, and Laurette Dussault, 40, were killed instantly when the light truck in which they were returning from church at Yamachiche collided with a Canadian Pacific Railway Montreal-Quebec express.

PHEASANTS RETURN TO CEDAR ISLAND

Pheasants have returned in their numbers on Cedar Island in the Bay of Quinte. From a few pair of birds liberated on the island earlier this year by Harry C. Hatch, popular resort owner there the birds have increased noticebly during the year. At midsummer a comparative absence of the pheasants was noted, but since cooler weather has set in they have returned in their scores, providing a vivid touch of color to the now almost deserted summer location.

MUST NOT BURN LEAVES ON PAVEMENT

Apparent disregard of a previous warning against burning leaves on paved or macauamized road surfaces in the city, which it is pointed out is prohibited by city bylaw, has resulted in a second notice being given by the department of public works, with the intimation that action may be taken against offenders. Fires in the past have resulted in some damage to these payed roads, it was stated.

CLEAN AND SCRAPE SHOALS AT BEACHES

Equipped with tractor and drags, workers engaged on the construction of the civic beach at the east city limits this week are taking advantage of the lowering of the bay levels to clean and scrape the shoals thoroughly. Material thus acquired is being used as fill for the beach. Work on the beach will be carried on as long as possible, it was stated by beach president Reg. Moncrieff.

PRIZED SHORTHORN CALF WEIGHS 280 LBS.

SALVATIONISTS HEAR BRIGADIER

F. Riches, Divisional Commander, of Toronto, Is Special Speaker

Attended by a large gathering of members and friends the Sunday services held at the Salvation Army Citadel yesterday was featured by impressive addresses given by Brigadier Frederick Riches, Divisional Commander of Toronto, and one of the Salvation Army's outstanding speakers

Brigadier Riches gave a forceful address during the morning service on "Worldly Amusements Handle with Care" in which he brought out in simple eloquence the effect and results of gambling, dances and the theatre on the Sabbath. "Great Men of Faith" was his subject of his evening address.

Featured by the presence of the Senior Band, the Songsters Brigade, the junior singing chorus and a seventeen piece band of junior musicians, a musical service was held during the afternoon.

Four young people were enrolled under the flag at this service, during which two bandsmen, Stanley Lessels, and George Wardle were presented with certificates for musical efficiency in a bandmaster's course taken by correspondence from England

KIWANIS KARNIVAL OPENS ON TUESDAY

Every Form of Entertainment Being Provided For By Committee

It won't be long now!

Conceded by those "in the know" to be one of the finest variety entertainments ever staged in this city, the Kiwanis Karnival that gets under way at the Armouries tomorrow night, is attracting widespread attention, on the part of residents of the district as well as those of the city.

And well it might, for the committees in charge have left no stone unturned to bring to the public a show that for variety will equal or eclipse anything of its nature shown here.

Color has been the keynote of pre-entertainment activities. A musical melange of mirth, melody and music will head a program of attractions that will not fail to please the most fastidious entertainment critic. A bevy of beauties, Belleville-born, will parade in a glory of fashion, bringing to the ladies of the district the very latest creations in a manner worthy of professionals.

The cream of amateur talent of the district, outstanding artists, highly proficient in many forms of entertainment has been secured by a keen discerning committee.

Color yet more color will be noted in the setting for the show. The Armouries now are receiving the last touches in a decorative scheme that will not only provide a dazzling background for the Karnival itself but lend a brilliancy to the entire affair that will offset the usual drabness of the interior.

There will be all kinds of games. Concessions of live-wire business men of the city will set off the merchandise for which they are justly proud, and famous for. Progress of the city and district will be exemplified in the many outstanding displays of this nature.

The big show opens tomorrow night, and a record crowd is anticipated by members of this outstanding service organization in their efforts to raise funds to provide for the children of the city a safe, clean, modern place to play in.

5 MILLION FEET OF LUMBER CUT

Hubbell and Son of Bancroft have recently finished sawing for the season and have around five million feet of lumber on hand, which is just about the same amount of stock on hand as in 1937, it is reported. The planing mill of the firm is still running night and day, and will be kept in operation as long as orders are on hand. It is reported by Mr. Hubbell that all 1937 stock has been sold and also a large percentage of the 1938 production has been contracted for. It is expected to have about three camps in the bush this year and the limits at Paudash Lake will be cleared. If conditions are favorable, the company will then move to the Algonquin Park district where they have acquired limits. "Lumber conditions have been in good shape generally during the past few weeks and we have been busier this year than in the last few years. Three quarters of our stock is softwood this season. The abolition of the sales tax has helped quite a bit in creating a more cheerful situation in the building year." Mr. Hubbell reports in Canada Lumberman.

World Now at Cross-Roads, to Progress or Barbarism, is View of Nellie McClung

Noted Canadian Points Out World Has Missed Missionary Message of Christ —Need Emphasized of Spirit of Lord's Prayer In International Affairs

"I believe we are right now at the crossroads, that we are going up higher or down to barbarism and chaos."

"We have great comforts. We have streamline trains. We live like kings and queens, but in international affairs we are wheeling ourselves around in wheelbarrows."

"I have seen in Europe enough of traditional hatreds. Educated men see only that other nations must be crushed to change them. I have come to the conclusion that only the power of God can change their hearts.

"If men drawing up the Treaty at Versailles had when they came to the question of war debts, gone to the old Book, they would have found the message 'Forgive us our debts.' The world would not be where it is today.

At Bridge Street Church

These were some of the remarks on Sunday evening of Nellie McClung, noted writer and public woman, who had just returned from the League of Nations at Geneva. She was speaking at Bridge Street United Church and holding up the missionary cause as the cause which really summed up the spirit of Christ. The missionary mesage delivered to the nations as Christ directed would have saved the world from the condition in which it is today, she said. Lack of this spirit has brought the world to the crisis which will mean either continued progress or international relapse into barbarism and chaos, she predicted.

The congregation which heard Mrs. McClung last evening drew from all sections of the city and the countryside as Mrs. McClung, whose works of fiction and writings as well as her public endeavors in state and church have brought her into the common knowledge of the people of Canada.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Semple, the pastor, it was unique that the Rev. L.S. Wight of this city should be chosen to take charge of the service, as he was at one time a pastor of one of the churches in Edmonton where Mrs. McClung lived at that time and where she was able to do noble work for the church.

Speaking of the richness of the Ontario autumn season, Mrs. McClung asked "Who could not admire the richness in the beautiful coloring of nature in Eastern Canada at this season? We have a great country. I hope we as a people are going to be built on as generous lines as our mountains.

Missionary Cause Paramount

"The church has come in for a good deal of criticism, not here so much as elsewhere. Yet the church is blamed even in our country. I think the reason the church is blamed is because the church cares. The church takes responsibility and does care. Far be it from me to say anything unkindly about the church. I did think it did not take a long enough view of the place of women, where as they are admitted into all professions."

Mrs. McClung told a story out of the family history. 'Our people went west when I was just six years old. We came by the covered wagon. I can assure you we did not have many comforts. I remember the first banana I tasted. It tasted like white flannel. It was the first winter we spent in Manitoba.

"That winter was very cold and a blizzard swept the country and at the same time her sixteen year old sister, was taken ill. Mrs. McClung said her mother attended the elder daughter and at last said that the daughter required an experienced hand. Mrs. McClung, then the little girl of six, went outside with her head muffled in a cloud. She recalled watching the blizzard and suddenly she saw a man approaching on snowshoes. She rushed into the house to give the joyous news. As the door was opened for the stranger, there was a burst of snow into the room, flakes of snow being blown to the stove on which they sizzled. The stranger said he came as a representative of a missionary body in the east and that he had heard there was a sick girl at the house and so as he had had some experience through studying medicine, he wanted to help. What with the service this mission preacher was able to give, the sister recovered and is still living. In addressing the man on his arrival, the mother had said, "you are as welcome as an angel of God."

"That was my first relationship with the missionary society to understand that it was owing to that body that it was possible for this missionary to help them.

1900 Years to Deliver Message

"Mrs. McClung went on to say—"Lots of people say that the church is losing its power. I note that it is said that only ten per cent of the people attend any church." She recalled how at Interlacken, Switzerland, there was read a telegram from an Arab stating his conviction that the ethics of Jesus Christ were the only cure for the troubles of his country. Here was the message of Christ finding its way back to the Holy Land 1900 years after it was delivered to men. His hearers had been unskilled men, there were no reporters present when He gave the commission, no megaphones, no radio, no morning newspapers to carry the story. In 1900 years the message arrived back in Palestine, a long time. Mrs. McClung characterized this as somewhat like a person carrying around in his pocket a letter which he has forgotten to deliver.

"I wonder if everyone had delivered this message, if we should have the world in the state it is today. I wonder if we would have the division between race and race."

Years ago a Japanese consul visiting a Christian land, went into a barber shop and was refused the privilege of having his hair trimmed. He went back disappointed to Japan, desiring no relation with Christianity. Today he is the closest adviser of the Emperor of Japan. Twenty years ago a com-tain terms he aired his opinions of hunters in general and especially those, who do not know a turkey from a partridge.

"This will cost you two dollars," he shouted. The luckless one heaved a sigh of relief. "Not bad", he thought. "I get out of this mess rather easily, and besides the bird is worth it."

Putting his hand in his pocket he withdrew a two-dollar bill. The farmer snatched it, and while his unwelcome guest stared with unbelieving eyes, picked up the dead turkey and strode away in the direction of his home.

OBITUARY

LATE CARL MEREDITH

The funeral of Carl Meredith, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meredith, St. Ola, Ont., who died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday morning last after a brief illness, took place at North Gower, Ont., today, (Monday). The body was forwarded to North Gower from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, this city.

MRS. S. H. BOOTH

Mrs. Sebina H. Booth, mother of Mrs. W. S. Dies of Shannonville, Ont., died on Sunday, Oct. 9th., at her late residence in Detroit, Mich.

The late Mrs. Booth was born at Old Niagara, Ont., her maiden name was Miss Sebina Mc Dermott. On March 22nd., of this year she celebrated the 95th anniversary of her birth. She married George S. Booth of St. Catharines, Ont., and for many years she was a highly esteemed resident of that city. In the year 1903 the family moved to Cleveland, Ohio, and in 1915 they took up residence in Detroit, Mich. Mr. Booth died in that city thirteen years ago.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, October 11th. After a brief service conducted by the Rev. Dr. Reid of Nardin Park Church, the body was conveyed to St. Catharines, Ont., and at three o'clock the same afternoon the Burial Office of the Church of England was conducted in St. George's Church of which Mrs. Booth was a faithful member for many years prior to leaving the city to reside elsewhere. Interment was made in the Booth family plot in Victoria Lawn Cemetery at St. Catharines. Many relatives were present from distant points.

The late Mrs. Booth was mother of ten children and is survived by two sons, Mr. William N. Booth of Detroit, Mich., and Mr. George Booth of Dearborn, Mich.; three daughters, Mrs. E. A. Pascoe, Oshawa, Ont.; Mrs. W. S. Dies, Shannonville, Ont., and Mrs. C. H. Tanton of Detroit, Mich. Also surviving are twenty-one grandchildren and forty-seven great-grandchildren.

ture, and John Colville, Secretary for Scotland.

To succeed Lord Stanley at the Dominions' office, Mr. Morrison and Euan Wallace, financial secretary to the treasury, were mentioned.

An outside possibility for a Ministry of Supply was Winston Churchill, who long has urged such a department. In a broadcast to the people of the United States Mr. Churchill predicted compulsory service in Great Britain in the near future and appealed to the American people to join the European democracies to "confront not only military but moral aggression."

SETTLERS READY

home still remained although other buildings had fallen.

"I fought her with buckets of water from my well." he said. "She got my buildings but I saved my house. Then I got a team and drove to a friend's in Burriss township. I've been there since."

Apologized for Trouble

Through cracked lips he apologized for being "such a bother" and told police officers he appreciated their trouble "but I guess I'll be kicking around for a long time to come."

Provincial police found Ivan Brandrick trudging along the road after surveying his fire-ridden bush clearing.

"I'm no baby but by gosh. I could cry," he said, after viewing the havoc wrought at the spot where he spent five years' hard work.

Nothing was left of his place but ugly black stumps and grey ashes.

Brandrick described the bitter fight that started just when the family was preparing to celebrate Thanksgiving. Waves of flame swept against the farm property and heat became intense.

"I told my son Pat, just 19, to run up and let out the beaver dam just above when the fire started to come close," he said. "I loosed a dam closer in so as to flood the place as much as possible. But it wasn't enough. The fire kept coming closer.

"We kept on hauling kegs of water and wetting buildings and hay. My housekeeper and her two children helped for a while but I told her to take the kids and lie down in the middle of the clearing. By that time it was so hot you could hardly breathe and sparks were dropping around us like rain."

Pulled Burning Moss

The hay went first, then the pulpwood pile. Finally nothing was left but the house on which sheets of flame played. With bare hands they pulled burning moss from between the logs in the cabin.

"When the flames started closing in again I lost my nerve," Brandrick said. "I guess I went out of my head for a minute when the flames started closing in again. I remember opening the door of the house. The hot air outside rushed in with such a force it almost threw me to the ground. I started to pull stuff out.

"But my son ran around and gave me a shake., 'Come on Dad, we're not licked yet,' he yelled. I was all right again after that. I yelled to the women to lie flat and keep the kids' heads down and we kept working at the house.

"It was a holy terror. I was through the Great War but this was far worse. I'd take the firing line any day. You'd have far more of a chance than against those raging flames."

In the tour of the ruined forest and farm land, Mr. Heenan and government officials saw farm homes, settlers' cabins and barns now nothing but charred wrecks. Bodies of farm livestock dot the still smouldering muskeg, and sheep and cattle, which escaped, glean little food from hay patches the flames jumped.

To be Put on Good Land

Mr. Heenan said the settlers will be encouraged to start agricultural operations instead of depending on pulpwood cutting for main financial returns.

"We are investigating the possibilities of putting these people on good lands now within the Crown or vacated by previous tenants," Mr. Heenan said. "Our tour has impressed me of the hopelessness of returning many of these people to their old home sites."

"I feel it would be much more satisfactory to place many of them in sections closer to the railroad tracks. It would be more desirable to place them near schools rather than to re-settle them in burnt-out country where not only new schools but new roads would have to be built.

"We will have to provide them with shelter, stoves and other necessities for the winter. They will also need food and clothing. All this will have to be done before the snow flies."

WORLD NOW AT CROSS-ROADS

mission of six men from an eastern country visited the same Christian land and finding children still undernourished and many conditions not what they ought to be, went back home and reported that Christianity was no better than their own religion.

Delivering Christ's Message

"Lately things have gone so badly in the world I have made up my mind to deliver the letter," said Mrs. McClung. Yesterday she talked to men in a prison." I could not have spoken to them but that I knew the remedy. So I told them the way of salvation. One of them was a boy of sixteen, tall and handsome, who had tears in his eyes.

"My heart is very much burdened for the church, because we have the key to the situation and have not used it. I am not blaming the ministers. We have better preaching in the pulpit than listening in the pews. The answer is The Book, both in individual life and in international affairs.

"If men drawing up the Treaty of Versailles, had gone to the old Book for an answer, when they came to the question of war debts, what would they have done. They would have found the admonition 'forgive us our debts' and if that had been followed at Versailles, the world would not be where it is today. I believe we are right now at the crossroads —we are going to go up higher or down to barbarism and chaos.

"Today we have great comforts —we have streamline trains. We live as individuals like kings and queens, but in international affairs we are living as it were in horse and buggy times, or as I think, we are wheeling ourselves in wheelbarrows."

As an example she told of a man who had written Mrs. McClung to tell her that he believed Germany would have to be crushed before the world would get better.

"When I said, I think we are at the crossroads, I want to issue a challenge. The appeal I want to make is that we begin at our own hearts, that we cast our sin and cast out that terrible sense of superiority.

"What is there about the Anglo-Saxon that makes him so superior? We don't like it when the Germans feel that way.

"I have seen the carpets of halls and churches [illegible] with the tears of penitents. I [illegible] seen drunkards reclaimed. I have seen miracles of salvation." This was due to the missionary zeal.

Traditional Hatreds in Europe

Speaking of what she saw in Europe during her stay at Geneva while representing Canada at the League of Nations, Mrs. McClung declared 'I saw enough of traditional hatreds, educated men see only that other nations should be crushed. I have come to the conclus'on that only the power of God can change their hearts. Legislation can help and there is just one way in which you can change the hearts of the people, and that is by the indwelling of the Holy Ghost.

"If I were a fairy and could wave a wand, I should ask only for the gift of clear thinking. That is the message of our Lord. He said "I am the light of the world. Light is the type of the Gospel.

'That is my message—that each one of you shed around you that light so that men may be better."

Mrs. McClung speaks tonight Monday in the same church on "What Happened in Europe."

PROPERTY DAMAGED NEAR REDNERSVILLE

Provincial Police investigated the damaging of property at Rednersville over the week-end with the result that several teen-aged juveniles were apprehended and questioned. Sergeant Harry Thompson and Constable W. E. Smith received the complaints from Mr. George Bonisteel, Highland avenue, yesterday to the effect that windows and screens of his summer cottage near Rednersville had been broken and damaged. After investigation the officers turned the matter over to Crown Attorney Walmsley of Prince Edward County for his final disposition.

Police Blotter

Complaining some person had stolen his truck and later wrecked it on Station Street, a man, who police say was Floyd Hill, Shannonville, hastened into the police station to register his complaints on Saturday night. After listening to Hill's story, however, Chief Kidd and Sergeant Arthur Harman became slightly suspicious and more dubious about the whole thing and conducted a thorough investigation which ultimately resulted in Hill being held in custody on a charge of the violation of the L.C.A.

Later, Hill's truck was found on Station Street with one front wheel broken off. Worn with age and said to be long past its usefulness, police say the wheel actually fell to pieces while being driven. No damage resulted to other vehicles or injuries reported.

Observing a large crowd gathered in front of Maraskas' billiard hall, Front Street, P. C. Eavns investigated the cause of the attraction and later was called upon to quell a miniature riot which was in progress inside of the premises where a general free-for-all fight was in progress. All concerned were escorted to the police station and released after being instructed to report to Chief Kidd this evening. The incident occurred about 11.30 p.m.

Considerable fender damage resulted from a rear-end motor collision at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets, Sunday afternoon. According to police, Edgar Muir, 251 Foster Ave., had stopped his motor car awaiting the change of the traffic light when his vehicle was struck in the rear by another motor car being driven southerly by Bernard Corrol, R.R. No. 6 Belleville. The rear of Muir's vehicle was badly damaged. Police stated today Corrol could not produce his individual driver's licence at the time of the accident.

Local police were quite busy over the week-end, several inebriates causing disturbances on Saturday night and resulting in subsequent arrests.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—Base metal stocks traded in substantial volume and at higher prices through most of the session and sagged a little in the final stage to give the index for the group a slight setback. Industrials and golds showed practically no net change for the day and the western oils posted narrow declines. Volume was fairly heavy at about 875,000 shares.

A generally firm tone ruled in the market throughout the early trading and base metals were higher in spots. Western oils were a bit heavy on light turnover.

Waite-Amulet featured the metals by rising to $8, up 70 cents in heavy turnover. Sherritt also was in active demand at better prices and the senior base metal showed little change.

Golds developed few changes and in the western oil group narrow losses appeared for Okalta, Home and Royalite.

Laura Secord and Walkers Common firmed to new high prices for the year and gains predominated in the steel, banks and utility groups.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 17—(AP)— The stock market went through a feverish session today as aircrafts and utilities were heavily bought in the face of profit selling which depressed numerous pivotal issues.

With low-priced stocks turned over in blocks of 1,000 to 30,000 shares, 950,000 shares changed hands in the first hour, one of the largest volumes for this period in months. The ticker tape was somewhat behind for about 30 minutes after the start. The pace subsequently slowed.

Several attempts at a rally were made, but these did not follow through and, near the final hour, the trend was irregularly lower. Gains among the favorites, however, ran to around two points. Transfers were about 2,500,000 shares.

RESTRICTED AREA NORTH OF CITY

No Milk May Be Sold Unless Pasteurized In Designated Areas

In Saturday evening's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer, in an article headed "Not everyone likes pasteurized milk", it was said that some persons had arranged to get raw milk outside of Belleville from a farm in the neighborhood, as "inquiries made by the farmer indicate that the sale for raw milk on the farm is quite legal so long as no attempt is made to deliver it in the city".

This omits to say that on the north of Belleville is a defined area in which no milk may be sold unless pasteurized. Dr. A. E. Berry, director of the Sanitary Engineering Division of the Department of Health of Ontario, referring to an inquiring producer of milk living within the restricted area outside Belleville, shows the bounds of this area:

"Among the areas designated for milk pasteurization under Section 95a of the Public Health Act:—

"In the vicinity of Belleville-Hastings County: The south-east corner of Sidney township bounded on the west by the road between lots 30 and 31 and on the north by the road between concessions 2 and 3: and on the southwest corner of Thurlow township bounded on the north by the road between concessions 2 and 3, and on the east by the road between lots 12 and 13."

This area has therefore been set apart for compulsory pasteurization and after October 1st no milk can be sold in that area unless it is pasteurized.

Dr. Berry says in the letter:

"If you are residing in this section of the township, the law would apply to you. If you are selling in any part of the township other than this area, it would not interfere with the procedure you have been following.

"If you are selling only a small quantity of milk in this area, the best arrangement would probably be for you to have this pasteurized at another plant so that you could continue to sell it as you have been doing in the past. This arrangement has been made in a number of places and the cost is quite small."

Saturday a number of persons who had previously bought milk in the restricted area sought on the strength of the story in Saturday's issue again to purchase milk from the usual producers, but were refused because of the fact that their area is restricted.

TEACHER FOR FIFTY YEARS GIVEN PRESENT

Members of the Napanee Board of Education have honored the retirement of Miss Elsie Parks, a school teacher of Napanee for the past fifty years with the presentation of a beautiful mantel chime clock. The address was read and presentation made by chairman of the Napanee School Board, Dr. D. R. Hall. Teachers of the east and west schools were present and served refreshments following the presentation.

FISHERMAN HAMPERED BY HEAVY FOGS

Lake and bay fishermen lately have been hampered by heavy fog banks which have drifted over the water early mornings and evenings reducing visibility to near zero. In many cases much lost time has been experienced in locating nets, and a few narrow escapes from colliding with other craft have been reported. "The condition is worse this year than I've ever seen it," reported J. Snider, bay fisherman.

LONGER HOURS OF DARK

While there is less driving in the evenings at this time of year than in the summertime, there is great danger of accidents because of the longer hours of darkness and of the conditions of travel. Glaring headlights which seem so difficult to eliminate or which at least still are to be found on the roads, piles of leaves on roadways making the surface of pavements and roads extremely slippery because of dampness and the substance in the leaves, are some of the factors which make for accidents.

Anyone who has ridden along roads in the dark, meeting dazzling headlights knows how difficult it is to face this condition and how easily drivers can allow their cars to sideswipe. In that sideswipe there may be death and injury. The person who drives with such headlights, who speeds along over fallen leaves, or damp pavements, is headed for possible disaster to himself and others.

AIR PARITY

Britain will insist upon parity in the air.

It has been authoritatively declared that Germany had not made any concrete proposals for an air pact or in connection with disarmament, apart from the brief discussions of Mr. Chamberlain and Adolf Hitler at Munich after the pact was signed. The other day there were reports of a German feeler or tentative proposal that Germany be permitted a three-to-one air force ratio as compared with Britain. Lord Londonderry to whom the German Government was rumored to have made these proposals has denied they are entirely without foundation, and that he had received no such proposals from that country.

Insistence in Britain upon rearmament in strengthening the air defences has of course been closely followed in Germany for the German press has been claiming that if there is rearming, Germany's only possible stand could be to increase her own armaments. One of the German papers spoke Friday in these words: "We are armed so thoroughly today that we are superior to other armed powers."

There can be no doubt that Britain and France in the Munich pact did not accept Germany superiority else why the insistence upon building up defences from the very time of the Munich agreement? The British Prime Minister made it clear that the British view was that it was important to preserve peace, and to work towards co-operation of the powers in disarmament. At the same time bringing up of the defences to required strength has been insisted upon.

There is a feeling that Germany desires to maintain what the German press calls her supremacy as an armed power as the status quo and that the future of events may be affected thereby. But the other powers would not accept this.

Britsih sea-power is dominant because she requires it for trade and for defence.

When Britons speak of defences, they mean in large measure defences by the air force. Most nations place a very high value on the importance of an air force in protection as well as in attack.

....Montreal Gazette says:

"Reports reaching London from Berlin that Germany is preparing to ask Britain to become party to an air armament limitation agreement which would allow Germany three times as many planes as the United Kingdom may not be dismissed as fantastic in the light of the accumulated knowledge of the wildly ambitious nature of the Nazi policy. The reports evidently are based on the fact that the redoubtable Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's Minister of Propaganda, has started a campaign against what he terms the "excessiveness" of Britain's armaments. Mad as the Goebbells propaganda often seems to be there is invariably a method in the madness. It is always safe to regard the official propagandist's every renewal of activity as the forerunner of a new adventure on the part of Germany's dictator. Events soon will prove the intelligence or otherwise of the current anticipations concerning the significance of the new campaign that has just been initiated by Dr. Goebbells; but of one thing there is alreday abundant proof. It is that the violence of the Nazi propaganda today serves as an unmistakable reminder of the immense difficulties which Premier Chamberlain will be made to encounter in the prosecution of his policy for a peace that may endure. It emphasizes likewise how esesntial it is that the Prime Minister shall have the support of a united nation. It is pertinently recalled that Mr. Chamberlain's immediate predecessor in office, Stanley Baldwin, long ago announced that the British air force must be at least equal to that of "any power within striking distance of these shores." Equally relevant is the assertion in London that "Baldwin's definition still stands."

"Chancellor Hitler, no doubt, is genuinely anxious to reach an understanding with Great Britain. He may be quite sincere in the desire he has latterly expressed that all issues between the nations of Britain and Germany shall be decided in the future by consultation; but surely he would be striving for the impossible were he to ask Britain to make a pact with him that would acknowledge the right of Germany to maintain permanently an air force treble the strength of that of Britain. It would be tantamount to a demand for an open confession that the Great War was won in 1918 by Germany."

THOSE TWO BELOVED SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE, FLOYD GIBBONS AND LOWELL THOMAS, have crashed the air lanes with radio talks, more or less remunerative, and they also have dug into the moving picture mine with pay dirt resulting. Floyd Gibbons operates a movie serial of youthful adventures, presumably true, reproduced on the screen, which are very interesting. Lowell Thomas is showing and explaining a number of educational films, his latest being a showing of the manufacturing methods used in spinning glass into house insulation material and also into cloth for women's dresses and like use. Another film shows the Japanese artificial culture of pearls, the planting waters, and the girl divers used to plant the oysters, together with the plant where the oysters are opened and pearls extracted and treated. Valuable assets for these gentlemen of the radio and screen are splendid voices, free from swank, and friendly.

"AUTUMN GLORY WEEK" is the title conferred on recent weather conditions and the appearance of the Ontario countryside by the Bowmanville Statesman, that vigorous editorial voice of Editor James which keeps Bowmanville on the map and does not permit Toronto the Mighty to overshadow the nearby smaller community of Bowmanville. Says the Statesman, in glorifying Durham County in words which would just as fittingly describe the neck of the woods in which this reference is penned:

> Editor Hugh Templin hits on the happy idea with nature in all its grandeur these days of appropriately naming it "Autumn Glory Week." Isn't it a good time to get outdoors? But forsake the main highways with their busy, overcrowded and speeding traffic, and take to country roads and side concessions of Durham County. We took such a motor ride leisurely on Sunday and at no time were we more than fifteen miles from home. Nowhere could one find more beauty at this time of year with the varigated and brilliant contrasting colors of the leaves lavishly spread over hillside and dale with woods spotted here and there along the route. Beautiful Durham County.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

The city physicians are rushed with many calls upon their services day and night owing to the influenza epidemic. The medical men are human, like the rest of us, and there is a limit to their endurance. The public can materially assist the doctors by showing consideration in the present emergency by refraining from calling the doctors unless absolutely necessary. Whenever possible calls for the services of a physician should be made in the morning so that the calls may be grouped to the best advantage and and the day mapped out in advance. A little thoughtfulness in this emergency will go far in assisting the doctors and render them more efficient.

There are now twenty one cases of measles among the thirty four children quartered at the children's Shelter.

There was a fair attendance of spectators at the Arena to witness two sporting events, namely, a 200-yard hurdle race and a three mile walking match. The affair was under the auspices of the Harriers' Club of the Y.M.C.A. In the hurdle race, two hurdles had to be surmounted. At the start Leo Barrett took the lead and maintained it to the finish. Murray Patterson came second. The referee was E. Wallace. There were nine entries in the walking match, the majority of the contestants being Englishmen. The walk was three miles and at the conclusion, but four of the competitors were on the track. Percy Gifford, a member of the Tabernacle Athletic Club, was first and was awarded the gold medal, which was the only prize given. J. Hickey acted as referee. Following is a list of the competitors: Percy Gifford, E. Wallace, J. Chapman, C. W. Gibbons, T. Aman, R. McCreary, A. Delong, J. Russell and M. Callaghan. The I.O.O.F. Band was present and rendered enjoyable music.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

Cancer is Curable

As you think of the research workers all over the world patiently trying to discover the cause of cancer, some working with elaborate equipment and others with nothing but a microscope, you may feel that until the cause has been discovered that all cancer patients must die within a short time after the cancer has been discovered.

As a matter of fact, because the cause has not been discovered after the many years of search, other research workers—physicians, surgeons, and Xray specialists (roentgenologists) —have been trying just as hard to find methods of curing cancer. That they have succeeded is one of the bright pages of medical history.

In many hospitals now, when a case is found to be cancer, there is a discussion by the staff as to which method of cure is best suited for this particular case.

The London letter from the regular correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association records the annual meeting of the Royal Cancer Hospital, London, in which Mr. (Dr.) Cecil Rowntree, senior surgeon, stated that the hospital was now supplied with the latest and most efficient apparatus that it was possible to wish for.

"We have now learned the best ways of dealing with the widely different types of cancer. We now know which are the types of cancer best treated by surgical operation. We know that in other forms such as cancer of the tongue, mouth and throat, we can confidently expect such results from radium treatment as have never been equalled or even approached by any other form of treatment, and with a certain type of Xray machine we are constantly and consistently curing such diseases as cancer of the lip and face and cancer of the skin with such certainty, simplicity and safety as has never been experienced before. In fact, give us a case of cancer in any of these situations in a reasonably early stage and we will now guarantee its complete and speedy disappearance."

What they are accomplishing at this well equipped hospital in London is being accomplished in well equipped hospitals in the United States, Canada and other countries.

The thought then is that in a reasonably early stage any type of cancer can be cured by operation, radium or Xrays.

CANTON-KOWLOON

Hong Kong. Another drove westward and cut it at Cheungmuktau, about midway between Canton and Hong Kong.

Other forces crossed the East River after the capture of Waichow and fought their way up the Waichow-Canton highway to within 50 miles of Canton.

May Drive South.

Indications the Japanese intended to drive straight on to the south China metropolis were seen in the fact that Japanese war planes heavily bombarded Tsengsing, Chinese troop concentration point 45 miles east of Canton. Canton was placed under martial law.

Wongsha railway station was hit by 17 bombs yesterday and more than twenty persons were killed in extensive Japanese air raids. Communications between Hong Kong and Canton were paralyzed.

In many instances it was reported Japanese planes, meeting no opposition, were diving continuously to within a few hundred feet of the ground and machine-gunning the Chinese.

Hamlets Razed.

Literally hundreds of hamlets and villages were reported razed or burning as a result of air attacks.

A new Japanese landing at Namtau, on the Pearl River delta near Hong Kong, was reported to have been made yesterday with remarkable ease and lack of opposition.

Military observers believe a decisive battle will be fought near Tsengsing, where the terrain is favorable for a defence stand and where the Chinese must block the Japanese or permit an attack on Canton from the east.

Amazing war refugee scenes were being enacted along the East River and at Canton as tens of thousands trudged into the interior. Fully 500,000 civilians were reported already to have left Canton.

Economic Future Doubtful.

With the Canton-Kowloon Railway in the hands of the Japanese and Japanese soldiers practically at the border of Hong Kong, the question of Hong Kong's economic future is a commanding one—whether the British colony can continue to receive the benefits of a wartime boom.

It is estimated that 750,000 tons of cargo are now in storage here. The immediate effect of the invasion has been a decrease of 2,000 tons a day in outgoing cargo, while an estimated 2,000 tons is arriving daily to swell storage.

Cargo now stored includes a large amount of military supplies intended for the Chinese. Estimates of this cargo run as high as $1,000,000.

"MEN AT WORK!"

The most cheerful sign on the road

"MEN AT WORK" is an encouraging, cheerful sign upon the highway.

It is the happiest sign on the business highway too.

Business enterprise, making wise use of banking service, is the mainspring of employment.

The contractor responsible for that "Men at Work" sign gets the job of building that stretch of highway by being the lowest responsible tenderer.

Not always does he have the ready money to buy all the materials, pay wages and build it out of his own resources. He goes to the bank and, having assets and a good reputation, he negotiates such advances as he may need.

He orders materials, sets men to work. As the job proceeds, engineers' certificates enable him to collect from those with whom he contracted, and the work goes on.

The highway finished, the bank is repaid. Such repayments enable the bank to supply credit to other responsible borrowers.

A manufacturer gets a large order, with an early time limit for delivery. With only a hundred men, his factory cannot turn out the articles within the time required. With more men he can do it—but he lacks sufficient cash.

Operating his factory, as a going concern, with a profitable order and having a reputation for integrity, he asks the bank to lend him what he needs to pay wages.

The bank makes him a loan. He takes on more men. They get wages. The goods are turned out, delivered and paid for. The manufacturer repays the bank with the agreed interest.

He has his profit and can spend some money developing new business to keep his men employed.

How does a bank make these advances — where does the money come from?

Banks, having branches throughout Canada, mobilize the surplus funds of millions of depositors, large and small, and, based upon them, make credit available throughout the country as may be required.

Millions of little sums represent the toil, production and lifetime savings of Canadians—your fellow-citizens.

Safeguarding these deposits is the bank's first care.

Deposits of $1,000 or less—most of them much less—are owned by 3,770,000 out of Canada's 4,084,000 savings depositors. The total of all bank savings deposits in Canada is nearly $1,584,000,000; the average savings deposit in a bank is only $387.

Wisely safeguarded by Canada's chartered banks these deposits furnish credit that keeps "men at work" when used by Canadian business and industry—producing new realizable wealth from Canada's great resources. The country and all its people benefit.

In the field of business deposits, out of an average of 660,000 "current" accounts, 596,000 amount to $1,000 or less.

Savings deposits are, primarily, the basis on which banks can make loans.

Only the confidence of the people and their willingness to leave their money on deposit, enable a bank to lend money and—at small profit-margin to itself—serve the community.

We have mentioned the contractor and the manufacturer. The same process stimulates employment throughout the whole fabric of production, industry and commerce.

Loans to agriculture and for marketing agricultural products totalled in 1937, $88,294,000—9.0 per cent. of all ordinary bank loans shown on the return to the Minister of Finance, October 31st, 1937.

Of this sum $57,490,000 went to farmers, cattlemen and fruit raisers and $30,804,000 to grain dealers, seed merchants and grain exporters.

Other bank loans went to municipalities and school districts; wholesalers, retailers, manufacturers of and dealers in lumber, pulp and other forest products; fishermen; fish packers and curers; public utilities including transportation companies; stockbrokers and bond dealers; provincial governments; mining men; churches, parishes; hospitals; and to charitable and religious institutions.

Canada's chartered banks defend and protect the safety of the funds of depositors—the millions of thrifty souls we have described, whose life-savings they entrust to their banks.

No Canadian depositor, through the world-shaking events of recent years, has had to fear for the safety of a single dollar lodged with Canada's chartered banks.

The funds of depositors are their own — not a pool from which everybody may draw at will for any and every new financial experiment.

REV. DR. RICHARDS SPECIAL SPEAKER

Holloway St. Church Holds Anniversary Services Sunday

"Love and love alone can make for the permanency of religion. What is needed now more than ever is more time spent on the religious development of mankind," the Rev. Dr. R. T. Richards, of Napanee, guest speaker at Holloway Street United Church told a large congregation yesterday morning when the first of two Anniversary Services was held.

Dr. Richards spoke again at the evening service when he delivered a stirring dissertation on the "Fight of Faith" before the joint congregations of Holloway Street and Tabernacle United Churches.

A feature of the Anniversary Services was the splendid music rendered by the Holloway Street Choir under the direction of S. M. Anglin, B.A. Tuneful anthems appropriate for the occasion were sung at both services and contributed a melodic addition to services that were outstanding in every way.

Love Plays Part

Taking as his text the famous Biblical quotation, "Greater love hath no man than this that he lay down his life for his friend," the speaker pointed out the many instances in the Bible where love has played a prominent part. "There was the Prodigal Son," he said. "Here was the inordinate love of a father for an erring boy, yet Love brought them together."

"Wherever the Gospel is preached," Dr. Richards stated, "you will find men and women laying down their lives in service for someone. It is the heart of the New Testament. Christ said, "that love is the prime principle that will save the world," and He tried to develop it to the utmost. He had it as a boy at Nazareth; He had it as a young man and He developed it all through His life."

"People thought He was a fanatic, and He wondered why they could not understand. But His disciples recognised His efforts as being the expression of the heart of love laid down in terms of relationship."

Filled With Retrogression

The pages of religious history, the speaker pointed out, were filled with stories of religious retrogression. They contain many instances of war and struggle in which certain groups attempted to force upon other groups their opinions according to their ideals.

"We have it in Central Europe today," Dr. Richards declared, "with dictators trying to force their religions and "isms" on people, who wish to worship in their own manner. Religious development grew out of bigotry, pride and arrogance. We see the whole story in Revelations."

"The spirit of the cross wherein we see love and hope, will save the world. It will cost something, and sacrifices will have to be made, but through love and love alone can salvation come about," he said.

"What is a Christian man's religion, and that of the Christian Church," the speaker asked. "It cannot be judged by an elaborate outward display but by individuals and groups being prepared to lay down their lives in sacrifice and in terms of service. If that is done then can Peace come to the world. It is the only way to demonstrate the true Christian spirit, and true Christianity. It is the heart of the Gospel and religion, not in terms of life, but in the sacrifice of living in terms of service," the speaker concluded.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

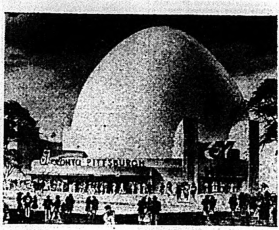
First Exhibitors' Building Completed at New York for 1939 World's Fair



New York, N.Y., Oct. 17.—Flags of the great nations were raised over the New York World's Fair today when the first of the exhibitors' buildings was completed. It is a huge dome, towering [illegible] feet and 150 feet in diameter, and will be occupied by the H. J. Heinz Company.

Grover Whalen, president of the Fair Corporation members of his staff and others were the guests of Howard Heinz, president of the Heinz Company, at a luncheon at the Fair Grounds, after the party had inspected the building.

Resembling a bee hive, the Heinz dome is in harmony with the theme architecture of the Fair buildings, already developed in the sphere and trylon. It is supported by nineteen columns, arranged in symetrical lines. Startling light effects have been devised and the curvature of the interior will be flooded with light by the use of fluorescent tubes. Twenty thousand square feet of floor space are crowned by the dome, which will be a landmark at the Fair. Sixty million visitors are expected.

NEURITIS
"Kept from work for 3 weeks"

Anyone who has experienced the pain of Neuritis knows only too well how this ailment will put a shoulder, arm or leg out of action. Not only do you have the sharp pains to contend with, but perhaps fear of lying up and losing your job, too. Mr. V. H. says:

"My left arm kept me from work for three weeks with Neuritis. I went to one man, and he gave me oil, but it was no use. I then went to another, he gave me ointment, that was no use. Then I tried a bottle of Fynnon Salt, and within a few days, I was ready for work."

This is only one of the many cases where the regular use of Fynnon Salt has helped Rheumatic ailments. Why is this particular remedy so beneficial? Because it gets down to the cause. A ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water releases a combination of Sodium, Potassium and the elements of Lithium—"Salts of the Earth" similar to those that give famous Mineral Springs their beneficial properties. They work through your system, assisting in breaking up the painful Uric Acid crystals, driving out poisons, and assist the liver to fuller action. Large bottle of Fynnen Salt, 75c at all druggists.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT CHRIST CHURCH

Products of The Soil Adorn Altar To Show Goodness of God

"If we balance our worldly misfortunes and adversities against the blessings we receive at harvest time, when the bounties of the earth are reaped, we will surely find God has been generous," expressed Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church at the annual Harvest Thanksgiving service at Christ Church yesterday morning.

The Church was arrayed in the splendors of the products of the soil, large loaves, sheaves of grain, fruits, vegetables and other products of the good earth were in abundance to exemplify the goodnesses of the Almighty at this annual harvest time. Special prayers and praises thanking God for the current bountiful harvest were included in the two services yesterday. Rev. Herbert Pringle, rector of Tyendinaga Anglican Church delivered the evening discourse, which also was of the spirit of thankfulness.

Taking the 12th and 13th verses of the 116th psalm for his text yesterday morning, Rev. Wright dwelt on the early Biblical teachings of the praise of harvest as an introduction. "The harvest festival down through the ages has been expressed in literature, song and praise, which can be expressed in terms of 'count your blessings', as the harvest time is a period when we should not think of our losses and misfortunes, as the harvest is the bounteous expression of God's love.

"God has been merciful, when we stop to remember there has never been a universal crop failure, Even in our fair Dominion we have much to be thankful for, as there has never been a national crop failure, which brings us to remember the words of God's when Noah emerged from the ark when He said 'There shall always be seed time and the harvest shall never fail.' When we take our inventory we surely can say our blessings outnumber our reverses and there is a large balance at harvest time. Therefore we should take God as our guiding influence and accept His spiritual blessing in prayer and praise, not only at our annual Harvest Thanksgiving, but throughout the entire year," concluded Rev. Wright.

The products of the soil, loaves and other outward expressions of the season, which adorned the church yesterday, were today distributed among the needy.

Plainfield

Plainfield—The Official Board of Plainfield Circuit held its regular meeting in the church on Tuesday evening with a representative attendance. The members were visited by the Presbytery committee of visitation composed of Revs. D. T. McClintock, chairman and R. E. Newman of Belleville. A layman who was a member of the committee was unable to come. The fifteen ladies and gentlemen present considered the visit a profitable one as the questionnaire reviewed concerning the work of the church proved very instructive and interesting. It is believed that such effort and interest on the part of the Presbytery will achieve considerable by way of unifying and improving the conditions existing on many charges.

At the close of the meeting the Plainfield ladies served a delicious lunch.

On Thursday evening Rev. J. F. Everson and Mr. Clarence Hall joined Rev. H. L. Morrison of Tweed at Thomasburg in making a similar visit to the Official Board of that pastoral charge. Between two and three hours were spent in kindly, frank discussion of the problems and needs of the work. Suggestions for improvement were received in the spirit in which they were given and it was felt that such an exchange of personal experiences could not but result in much good to the cause of religion.

Readers of the Missionary Review and New Outlook, periodicals published by the United Church of Canada will be interested in knowing that the General Council which met recently in Toronto, decided to amalgamate these two magazines and that the new paper which will be issued semi-monthly will sell for one dollar per year.

Mrs. J. F. Everson was called to Belleville on Tuesday to help her daughter Mrs. Harold Mason nurse her little son Bobbie, who was taken down with double pneumonia.

Rev. J. F. Everson attended the missionary rally held in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Wednesday evening and which was addressed by Rev. A. E. Armstrong, Secretary of Foreign Missions for the United Church and Dr. McKinnon of the Caribou.

Mr. James Henry Hall, who has been indisposed for the past several days is improved.

Mr. Roy Sills has been confined to his bed for several days as the aftermath of a heavy cold.

Mrs. Edward Kennedy is confined to her bed with a severe attack of bronchitis.

Baby Cronkrite, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Cronkrite is still quite ill.

Mrs. Floyd Thrasher who had the misfortune to break a bone in her left limb at the field day at Zion Hill in July is still suffering considerably.

Tweed

Tweed—Tweed milkmen are taking steps to pasteurize their milk in conformity with government regulations. Mr. Stan Tuft's plant is practically ready for use, while Mr. J. H. Foster will have his plant in operation in a short time.

Mr. J. Borden Rollins, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Rollins of Tweed won two tennis trophies in Montreal during the past few days. He won the singles title of the Montreal North-end Tennis League, defeating Jack Wilton and the singles title of St. Roche Tennis Club, defeating Gordon Jardine. He will be presented with the trophies at a banquet on Saturday. For many years Borden was the leading player in Tweed where he learned much of his tennis.

The following winners of the Canada Packers Hog Special in the grading at the Peterboro plant were: C. G. Wood, Crookston; Ross Ketcheson, Moira; Arnold Montgomery, Tweed; Clayton Fisher, Tweed. They were guests of the company on Tuesday and following a tour of the plant were entertained at dinner. Mr. T. C. Graham is the local Canada Packers representative.

On Tuesday evening the W.M.S. and Marion Coon Evening Auxiliary held a joint meeting in the United Church. Mrs. W. S. Gordon and Miss Hazel Grindell, B.A., were in charge of the program. Mrs. S. H. Connor sang a beautiful solo. She was accompanied by Mrs. George Frost. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Ed Way, followed by a reading by Miss Kathleen Jordon, B.A.

The meeting was featured by two fine addresses on "The Stewardship of Life" by Mrs. (Rev.) Farnsworth and Mrs. E. Osborne, secretary of Finance and Christian Stewardship of the Belleville Presbytery. Prayer by Mrs. W. S. Gordon brought the meeting to a close.

Syd Arber, fifth-year medical student at Queen's and a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Arber of Tweed, has been chosen as Chief of Police on the Alma Mater Society Court of Queen's University with jurisdiction over 1800 students.

Mr. Harford Palmateer and Miss B. Stevens have returned to Toronto after spending a few days with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Palmateer at Lodgeroom.

Misses Bern Rashotte, Toronto and Margaret and Joan Rashotte of Kingston spent a few days at their home in Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Maynes and son, Robert, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coulter spent the past week on a motor trip to Quebec City, Halifax and the New England States.

Mr. G. A. Meiklejohn and Miss Cosey Meiklejohn left on Friday to visit Mr. Roy Meiklejohn in New York City.

Miss Jennie Wright is holidaying in Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Quinn spent the past week with friends in Hamilton.

Master Cyril Trudeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Trudeau, has returned home from Hotel Dieu, Kingston, where he was operated on for removal of appendix.

Here Are 4 Proved Ways To Relieve Discomforts of Colds

1 Head-Cold Sniffles and Misery. Melt a spoonful of Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water, then inhale the steaming vapors. These medicated vapors loosen phlegm, clear air-passages, make breathing easier. Then, at bedtime, massage throat and chest with VapoRub; leave bed-covering loose around neck so the medicated vapors, released by body heat, can be inhaled freely during the night. VapoRub's direct action brings comfort—relieves local congestion—helps you relax into restful sleep. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

2 Coughing or Sore Throat due to the cold. Use steam treatment outlined above. Also put a small lump of VapoRub on the tongue. It melts, trickles slowly down—bathes the throat with soothing medication which brings comforting relief to the irritated membranes and checks tendency to cough.

3 Night Coughs due to colds—especially of children—can often be prevented by massaging VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime.

4 Chest Colds. Thoroughly massage VapoRub on throat, chest and back. Then spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. VapoRub goes right to work—two ways at once: (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct on the irritated air-passages as its medicated vapors are inhaled with every breath. This direct double action loosens phlegm—eases coughing—clears the air-passages—eases muscular soreness or tightness—relieves local congestion.

Children's Colds are always a problem to mothers. Neglect is dangerous, because it often paves the way for more serious trouble. But constant internal dosing is risky, too. It often upsets a delicate little stomach, lowers resistance just when it is most needed to overcome the cold and ward off complications . . . It is for these reasons that most mothers depend on VapoRub to relieve the misery of their children's colds. With VapoRub there's no needless dosing, no risk of stomach upsets. It can be used freely; as often as needed, on even the youngest child.

Many Other Ways in which VapoRub can help you are described in the medically-approved directions folder that comes in each VapoRub package.

Function Held at Central Butte Honoring Grandmothers of District

Central Butte—On a recent sunshiny day, happy and smiling grandmothers, 64 of them, came together at the United church hall, Central Butte, at the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Faulkner, formerly of Belleville, who have for 15 years provided this gracious entertainment in honor of the grandmothers of the district.

The register was attended to by Mrs. Teskey and Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Faulkner was assisted in receiving and introducing the guests by Mrs. G. Norman and Mrs. Runions of Central Butte and Mrs. Wrenshall and Mrs. Ed. Mills of Milden.

It was a grand and happy occasion, so the grandmothers thought; all care was forgotten, as they showed by their radiant happiness. The church hall was beautifully decorated with flowers from the garden of Mrs. Ernest Hough, which made a fine setting for the program, Mrs. Faulkner had arranged for their pleasure, the first item being action songs.

Mrs. J. Hawthorne drew attention to the decorated memorial table and scroll in memory of the departed grandmothers, three during the past year, Mrs. Raynard, Mrs. Jacob Kurtz and Mrs. Peterman, and closed her remarks with the quotation:

I cannot say, and I will not say
That they are dead, they are just away,
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
They have wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming, how very fair
It needs must be, since they linger there".

Mrs. Upshall, Mrs. Gibbons, Mrs. McLean, Mrs. Martin were the guests present who had attended the first "tea" 15 years ago.

Present to Lady of 90

Mrs. Faulkner presented a prize to the oldest grandmother, Mrs. McLean of Riverhurst, who is 90, who on receiving it told a humorous story of a Scotchman and the Scotch thistle.

Mrs. Stockdon, of Mawer, and Mrs. John Norman, of Lawson, who are 87, received a hearty handclap.

A prize, was presented to the youngest great-grandmother, Mrs. Hughson of Riverhurst, who is 73, and also a prize to the youngest grandmother having the largest number of daughters, Mrs. H. Halliday of Gilroy. A prize to the grandmother who had travelled the greatest distance went to Mrs. Evans of Seattle, Wash., U.S.A. A prize to the most recent grandmother went to Mrs. Ed. Mills of Milden.

Mrs. J. Hawthorne presented Mrs. Faulkner a prize from the guests for remembering them for 15 years. Mrs. Faulkner replied by inviting her guests to the "tea" in 1939, and wishing all health and happiness. The hall was quickly arranged as a tea room by Mrs. A. J. Lowe and her assistants, where refreshments were served at small tables.

Mr. Faulkner, Rev. Mr. Ambler and Ed. Mills, Milden, joined the guests and made happy comments. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner on behalf of the guests by Mrs. Cook, Lawson. The guests, as they left for their homes, were presented with flowers.

Weddings

McGREGOR—FLUKE

Thomasburg, (Special)— A quiet wedding took place at the United Church parsonage on Saturday evening October 8th., when Miss Margaret Addie Fluke, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Niles Fluke of Thomasburg, became the bride of Mr. Earl Alexander McGregor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean McGregor of Marmora. Miss Laura McGregor, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid while Mr. Ronald Fluke, brother of the bride, was best man. The young couple will reside in Marmora Township. Rev. H. B. Herrington performed the ceremony.

FOLLIS—NICKLE

Madoc, Oct. 17.— At high noon on Saturday, October 15, 1938, at the residence of the bride's mother, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne solemnised the marriage—of Margaret Elizabeth, daughter of Mrs. T. L. Nickle and the late Thomas Leslie Nickle of Madoc, to Mr. Francis John Follis, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Follis of Pembroke, at a very quiet and pretty home wedding in the presence of only immediate relatives and friends.

The bride who was robed in chiffon velvet of heavenly blue and carried an old fashioned nosegay of white roses and lily-of-the-valley, was given in marriage by her brother, J. Hubert Nickle. The register was signed by the father of the groom and the mother of the bride, while soft music was furnished by Mrs. Vernon Fuller of Hastings, an intimate friend of the bride.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums, gladioli, ferns, snapdragons and sweet Alyssum.

After the ceremony the young couple received the congratulations and well wishes of their friends assisted by the bride's mother who wore black velvet with a corsage of red roses. A dainty buffet wedding breakfast was served with Misses Jean Nickle, Marguerite Parks and K. I. Ross assisting. The groom's mother was absent through illness.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Follis left by motor to spend two weeks in Toronto and points in Northern Ontario and on their return will reside in Bancroft where groom is employed in the office of the Ontario Department of Highways.

GRILLS—SIMPSON

A very pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized at high noon on Wednesday, October 12th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hamilton, when Mary Elizabeth Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson of Havelock, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Everett George Grills, son of Mr. Joseph Grills and the late Mrs. Grills of Stirling, in the presence of a few immediate relatives and friends. Rev. J. W. Scott of Stirling was the officiating clergyman.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal chorus rendered by Miss Dorothy Elliott of West Huntingdon, the bridal party took their places under on arch of Autumn decorations and the conventional marriage bell and streamers. The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Edward Simpson, looked charming in a gown of Glory blue crepe with pink trimmings and accessories and carried a shower bouquet of pink and white Autumn flowers.

She was attended by her sister, Elsie, wearing a frock of vintage wine crepe with white accessories and carrying pink and white flowers.

Mr. Ernest Grills, brother of the groom performed the duties of best man. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Gowsell sang "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Miss Elliott.

After congratulations the guests repaired to the dining-room which was tastefully decorated in pink and white where delicious wedding dinner was served by Mrs. Hamilton, assisted by Mrs. Gowsell and Mrs. Clarke.

Later, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti and rice for a motor trip to St. Catharines and Niagara, the bride wearing a green ensemble with grey accessories. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Stirling.

DOYLE—FORESTELL

Marmora, (Special)—The Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, was the scene of a pretty Autumn wedding on Saturday, October 15th., at 9 a.m., when Bernice Kathleen Forestell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Forestell, became the bride of Leo Maurice Doyle, son of Mrs. Sarah Doyle and the late Patrick Doyle. The ceremony was performed and the Nuptial Mass said by Rev. Father Farrell, with a large number of relatives and friends of the bride and groom present.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father was gowned in a floor-length dress of pale blue net over taffeta, the skirt trimmed with small frills. She wore a shoulder length veil of pale blue net and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and fern.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Forestell, dressed in a floor- length gown of pink georgette and small black hat and who also carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and fern. The groom was attended by Mr. Michael Callery.

During the offertory Teresa Forestell and Frances Bertrand sang "On this day, O Beautiful Mother".

A sumptuous dinner was served to about thirty guests at the home of the bride's parents, after which the happy couple left on a motor trip to the United States, the bride travelling in a wine colored dress with matching hat and accessories and black coat. On their return they will take up residence on the groom's farm, near Deloro.

THE NEW furs hav ebeen handled with an eye to line and draping, giving even the simplest coat a dressmaker look. Broadtail is well in the lead since this fur is so thin and supple that it lends itself to such treatment. Persian lamb is still a leader, and the great coat of skunk is a welcome hold-over.

PLAINFIELD W. I.

The October meeting of the Plainfield Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jos. Gow on Thursday afternoon.

The President Mrs. E. Emerson was in charge and the meeting opened with community singing led by Miss Olive Hall.

The Ode was sung and a very appropriate reading was given by Mrs. E. Emerson followed by the Lord's pdayer in unison.

The motto was repeated as follows "Wilful waste brings woeful want."

The roll call was answered by "Things money can not buy". A number of business letters were read and discussed. It was moved and carried that the Institute send $6.00 to the Crippled Children's Hospital at Toronto. Mrs. Jno. Colden and Miss Olive Hall were chosen as delegates to attend the institute convention at Belleville on Oct. 20 and 21. The members decided to hold a Hallowe'en at home on the evening of Oct. 31. A contest "The most useful article made from 1-2 yd of cloth" was won by Mrs. H. Harrison. Mrs. C. Beatty and Mrs. D. Hall were chosen as leaders for the girls training school which is to be conducted during the winter months. The program was as follows: A solo by Mrs. R. Wilder, guitar; topic, beautifying the home by Mrs. Clayton Hall was very interesting; reading by Mrs. H. Harrison entitled "Why is Autumn so beautiful in nature." Reading by Mrs. Elliott entitled "Unfortunate Situation." Reading by Mrs. F. Prindle entitled "Beating Wings." The collection was taken and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

The Lunch Committee served a dainty lunch and a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Gow for her kind hospitality.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, October 18

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

ALTHOUGH this may be heralded as a day of great enterprise and high promise, judging by the lunar transits, there may be a condition of stress and strife, with sudden visitations that are likely to upset all calculations. Strange persons or propositions may appear, bringing hazard to excellent prospects unless they are manipulated with much acumen as well as finesse. Superiors and those in authority may be consulted.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of some excellent opportunities for advancement, profit and expanding fortunes, with the definite support of employers, superiors or those in power. At the same time, there may be peculiar or unexpected propositions from strangers. These seem surrounded by jeopardy to all favorable enterprise unless managed with much tact, sagacity or strategy. Move slowly for safety.

A child born on this day may be adventurous, enterprising and ambitious, possibly with ideas too large for practical purposes. It may have over-expansive and exaggerated ideas of success in untrodden fields.

When Child Decides for Himself

It's a Compliment To Parent If Youngster Disagrees With Him

(By LISA GRENELLE)

SOMETIMES YOUR own teaching kicks back at you. It's something of a shock especially to the vanity, but often it is an indirect compliment to you, at that. It's a compliment to the parent, who has fostered courage, independence and initiative in his child, when the child can disagree with him, not out of stubbornness, but because he has a mind of his own.

"I still think the boy's a fool," a fond father said to me, "but I'm beginning to respect him for standing up to me like that—sticking to his own guns."

Young Jimmie had been brought up to stand on his own feet, do his own thinking, make his own decisions, and shoulder his responsibilities.

In answer to Jimmie's childish questions, father was apt to say, "How about figuring that one out for yourself, Jimmie?"

Boy's Responsibility

"What will I do? Which will I choose, Father?" Jimmie would ask. "That's for you to decide, Jim. That's your decision, your responsibility," father would say.

But father believed in asking advice sometimes. Father felt that everyone could benefit by bit of advice now and again. Not just advice from anyone, but advice from an authority —some one, he counseled, that you have reason to suppose has had some experience or knowledge on that particular subject.

As Jim grew older he decided he wanted to write. When he was through high school, father secured for him a small job on a newspaper, as a surprise. It would give the boy some practical experience, he felt.

But James, much to Father's amazement, was not so sure he wanted the job. He'd heard newspaper work ruined one's style.

Father was furious. James was going precious on him! Weren't all or most of the best modern writers newspaper men first?

Professor Agreed

James listened respectfully to father, thanked him for his exertions on his behalf, but, true to his teaching, obviously intended to decide for himself. He told father he planned to ask advice of a literature professor in whom James had a perhaps exaggerated confidence and respect.

The professor agreed with James. He advised James not to take a newspaper job, but to work by himself at least for another few years, until his natural style had become established.

And though father raved against such theoretical teaching, James courteously but firmly decided to abide by the professor's advice.

It was a blow to father's vanity, at first glance, but it was also a great compliment to him. For, whether right or wrong, James fulfilled the basic hopes of his father's teaching. He made his own decisions, and sought good advice.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Double Ring Ceremony

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I expect to be married in the fall. The wedding will be a small one, either at the minister's home or at the home of the bride. We have been wondering about a double ring ceremony. Would such a ceremony be consistent with the simple plans mentioned above?

2—What kind of rings are used for this service now? Does the groom pay for both rings?

3—Will the fact that I probably will not be able to afford an engagement ring make any difference in the type of wedding ring used?

Thomas

1—Having a double ring ceremony is thoroughly consistent with any kind of wedding. It depends only on the choice of the bride and groom, principally on the groom's preference about wearing a wedding ring

2—If the double ring ceremony is decided on, the bride buys the bridegroom's ring, usually a plain gold band. It is customary now for the bride to go with the bridegroom when he buys the wedding ring, so that she may choose the style and width that she prefers. If the bridegroom wishes to wear a wedding ring, the bride buys his at the same time.

3—No, you and your bride-to-be should choose the type of wedding ring that she likes, regardless of whether or not she is to have an engagement ring. Most brides prefer a narrow band of gold, either yellow or white, or of platinum. Some brides prefer a narrow band of diamonds (this need not be as expensive as it sounds), especially if they are to have only one ring. But the band of diamonds should not be chosen by the bride who intends never to take off her wedding ring, for this kind of ring must be cleaned often, and sometimes a lost diamond must be replaced.

Entertaining at a Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have at least two showers for friends and I would very much like some information.

1—They will be in the evening and we wish to play bridge. Will you please suggest some entertainment?

2—I would like to know some new ways of presenting the gifts.

One shower will be a cup and saucer shower and the other has not as yet been decided.

Reader

1—With the deluge of thrilling "quizz" games—new-fashioned varieties of the old-fashioned "twenty questions"—you will be able to choose many entertaining pen-and-pencil brain-teasers. Or, if there is available space, you might have dancing, with radio music.

Many department stores now have adult games departments . . .and in spite of the name, here, and in five-and-ten cent stores, we find a display of not only adult games, but the children's games that are being revived to delight "weighty" minds! There should be prizes too, either consequential or amusing ones. And how about backgammon?

2—Take special care in planning attractive packaging of your shower gifts. Never have there been such beautiful wrapping papers, especially white ones, with off-white or silver decorations, giving a crystalline, some a jewel-like appearance. These packages, enclosed in a large box, also wrapped with festive paper, will give a bride-y air to the party.

After the cups and saucers have been presented to the bride-elect, why not have the guests use them, when the refreshments are served? The bride would, I am sure, love to have this friendly dedication of these gifts.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes a Successful Marriage?

Domestic Dictators

Those who crave the seat of power in domestic life, and feel entitled to be a dictator in the home should never marry.

After marriage, it's absurd to think any man or woman can lead the free, untrammeled life he or she led before. Successful modern marriage is made up of a series of compromises, although that wasn't so in grandpa's day.

Frequently, I get letters from elderly women recounting the joys of life in the good old days. Where the joys came in is always a riddle to me. Usually there is some such revelation as this: "In our home, father's lightest word was law; mother never crossed him. I can never remember a quarrel or an angry word."

You can't help but feel that poor mother must have been a good deal of a moron to preserve the peace of the household at such a cost.

Again, in the good old days, it was mother who wore the pants. And the extract reads: "Mother always had things her own way. She was a splendid manager, and father always gave in to her, having such respect for her judgment." There you have a picture of poor, cowed father, tiptoeing around the house in his bedroom slippers so that the slightest noise might not cause an uprising on mother's part.

If a nation can't exist half slave and half free, neither can a marriage. Marital slaves have their little dashes for liberty, their escapes, their grapevine news agencies, their secret runways, even as slaves have always managed these things.

A slave will always pit his wits against a tyrant of either sex, though the tyrant hugs the delusion of blind obedience. The happiest marriages are those in which a husband or wife feels free to be natural, where there is no editing or blue penciling of another's indivuality. Even a little joke at the expense of one's life partner in a sane household is greeted with laughter rather than sulks or tears.

Money is the source of nine-tenths of this domestic tyranny. The one who lays own the dollar feel entitled to lay down the law and own the dependent, body and soul.

During the depression, in homes where the husband was dismissed and the wife taken on, because she was willing to work for lower wages, in a good many instances she donned the pants. Even if she didn't and was generous and tactful, never letting her man feel she was the bread-winner, he imagined himself belittled."

Poignant letters have come to this column from men who once brought home the bacon but are now forced to eat the rasher of dependence. A good argument this, in favor of "equal pay for equal work". So many of the sordid tragedies of infidelity, aired in daily papers, have their source in domestic tyranny. A cowed creature, more hungry for self-esteem than love, will embark on a shabby sex excursion, to boost his or her ego.

There is no real love in a slave marriage. Love can't be browbeaten or commanded, bought or sold. The happiest marriages are the fifty-fifty kind, in which husbands and wives—within reasonable limits—are free to be themselves.

About the Baby

QUESTION: My baby, only three weeks old, is bow-legged and pot-bellied. What should I do?

Answer: Nothing. Normal young infants are like that.

Q. Why do some babies get the rickets?

A. For the want of enough sunshine or its nearest substitute, cod liver oil, or other deep-sea fish oil. Richitic children, when they begin to stand and walk, become bow-legged. Next time you see an adolescent or adult noticeably bow-legged you can say to yourself "Not enough sunhsine or cod liver oil in babyhood." Isn't it too bad that thousands and thousands of babies and young children who easily could have sunshine, do not, because their mothers do not know enough or care enough that they should?

Q. Can the thumb-sucking habit be prevented?

A. Yes; if the mother works on herself and the infant early enough —chiefly on herself— provided it has adequate diet. If she is calm and serene, never rebukes the infant for having thumb or finger in mouth, nor jerks it out; if during the early months the baby's hands are enclosed in a roomy sleeping bag, or very long sleeves of nighties, that are shut with drawstrings. Only a competent doctor may be able to advise the mother about the infant's diet.

Q. If the habit of thumb-sucking is long practiced, what may be done?

A. The longer the habit has been practiced, the less can be done by working on the child, and the more by the parents' working on themselves. The older the child, the more important it is to strive for a calm and serene atmosphere; and the less effective will mechanical devices be, as a rule.

If the child fightingly resists mechanical devices, you had better put no faith in them. Trust to winning the child's co-operation in a more satisfying atmospheré. And don't look for immediate cure.

Has Night Terrors

Q. My baby, almost two, gets night terrors. What should I do?

A. See a good doctor at once. See that he checks on the child's diet; also that he carefully examines the baby's nose, throat, ears. Inflammation of the ear, breathing obstructions, or digestive disorders sometimes cause night terrors. Much more often than not, perhaps night terrors are induced psychologically by day experiences. Protect this child from emotional shock and strain while awake. Let the radio be silent then. Adhere rigidly to schedule in all his routines, especially of his sleep. Work on yourself and the rest of the family for quiet voices and serenity. Rest more yourself. Neglect more things. Put yourself and the baby first.

Q. When my three-year-old boy gets angry he will bite anybody near him.

A. Spank him instantly with several lusty smacks by your bare flat hand low on his bare fat thighs. Make it hurt. The spank must be immediate or not at all. Be always present when other children are with him until the habit is corrected. Don't bite him back—too dangerous.

RECIPES TO PREPARE FOR FAREWELL GIFTS

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

SOME NATIVE peoples rub noses as a farewell. We give gifts and parties as send of gestures. And the food gesture is one of the nicest and most practical. It is nice to be able to present a surprise box of food to speed the parting guest on a day-long trip!

For a bon voyage box it is a good idea to choose a metal box with a tightly-fitting lid, and don't forget waxed and transparent paper for packing. Stuffed dates are perfect for a child or adult; they are a fruit and a confection all in one. Stuff them with nuts or fondant and roll them in sugar. Nuts, such as Brazil nuts or almonds, are nice, and if there is to be a party given in cabin aboard ship, then it is a nice gesture to send along a box of toasted nuts that can be served.

Candy made at home is always a nice gesture, so here is a good recipe. Brazilian toffee requires two cups sugar, one and one-half cups each dark corn syrup and thin cream, one half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, one and one-half cups chopped Brazil nuts. Put sugar, syrup, cream and salt into a heavy saucepan and stir till sugar is dissolved. Cook to 244 F. Stir mixture thoroughly to prevent burning. Add butter and cook to slightly brittle stage or 252 F. Remove from heat; add vanilla and nuts. Pour onto greased slab and mark into squares while still warm.

Right here is as good a spot as any to give a recipe for a splendid party lunch, nice to speed the parting guest or welcome home the vacationist. Ingredients include one-half cup sugar syrup, six stalks fresh mint, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-half cup canned grapefruit juice, one cup ice water and two cups ginger ale. To make the sugar syrup, put sugar and water in saucepon and stir until sugar is dissolved. Remove tips from mint and crush stalks in one-half cup of the hot sugar syrup; let stand half and hour then strain. Add fruit juices and water. Add ginger ale just before serving.

Coffee Imperial

Coffee imperial is another delicious drink, exotic and different. Ingredients include four two-inch sticks of cinnamon, six cups hot freshly-brewed strong coffee, one-third cup sugar, one cup whipping cream and chopped ice. Add the cinnamon to the hot coffee and allow to stand for about an hour. Remove the cinnamon, add the sugar (add more if desired) and one-half cup of the cream, then chill. Pour the mixture into six tall glasses and fill with chipped ice. Whip the remaining cream and add a little sugar, also, if desired, some almond flavoring. Place a spoon of cream in each serving. Incidentally, a nice gift, especially for the person who is off to far lands, is a nice big container of his or her favorite brand of coffee.

Pretty Hard to Knit a Shawl If Stitches Keep Unraveling

By MAX TRELL

"HAVE YOU always lived inside a clock Mrs. Cuckoo?" Knarf, the shadow boy, asked. When Mrs. Cuckoo had opened the door of her clock house to call out five o'clock, Knarf and his sister, Hanid, had slipped in to pay Mrs. Cuckoo a visit. She always served tea and cookies at that hour.

They were sitting on a big, old-fashioned sofa in the neat parlor of her house, having their tea and cookies while Mrs. Cuckoo, with her spectacles on, was doing her knitting.

"Yes," she answered, "I've always lived inside this clock. In fact, I was born here. That was many years ago. We're both pretty old now, the clock and I. But I like it here," she added cheerfully. "I wouldn't think of going out and flying around like your sparrows and swallows. Living in a tree top wouldn't please me at all, I'm quite sure. Besides, how would the clock get along without me? Who would call out the time of the day if I were gone? I suppose you're wondering what I'm knitting?"

"Is it a shawl Mrs. Cuckoo?"

Shes' Not Sure

"Well, to tell you the truth I,m not sure yet just what it's to be. Perhaps it will be a shawl after all. I've been knitting it ever since I can remember. I don't ever seem to be able to get it finished."

"But why not?" asked Knarf.

She smiled to herself. "It's very curious. I make a stitch every time the clock ticks. At the end of every 60 stitches I start a new row. And at the end of every 60 rows I start a new square. Then at the end of the day, I have 24 squares. But at exactly midnight, when I set it down to go out and call to everyone: "Twelve o'clock....day's done....twelve o'clock' something happens to it. For when I come back to start the 25th square — dear me! it has all unravelled itself. It's just a long thread, and I have to start knitting it all over again. And that's what happens, day after day. But,' and she chuckled softly to herself. "I really don't mind. I have all the time in the world."

Now isn't this all very strange.

I've always lived here.'

Dress of Black Velvet for Autumn

Black velvet dress.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

I'VE BEEN busy all day doing some last-minute shopping. Tomorrow I hope that everything will be here so that I can pack my trunk and suitcase, just leaving my dressing bag and a small extra case. Consuelo is plenty busy, what with conferences and interviews; so much so that she has asked me to attend to some things for her. I have her list and I hope to have that finished by tomorrow, too.

I have had a lovely time here but I am delighted to be going home. I am just longing to pitch in and do some work in the store and, of course, to see the gang. I'll be busy now every minute till we sail. I'm going out with some friends of Consuelo's tonight and tomorrow night the doctor is taking me out. The night before we sail, Eileen is having a little party for us, nothing exciting or pretentious, since we have to get up bright and early to make the boat train at Waterloo. Tomorrow we are lunching at the Savoy with one of the leading designers here, and the next day Consuelo is giving a luncheon party at the Ritz. So every moment is taken up, what with shopping, farewell parties and last-minute jobs for Madame.

Start Reducing

I guess I'll have to start a reducing campaign directly I get home, for I certainly have put on weight. I don't see how I can possibly model anything the way I look now, except a bulky fur coat. Well, the main thing is that I feel fine, in fact, have never felt better. Consuelo has put on quite a bit of weight, I notice, so I guess that I'll have company when I start counting the calories. Misery loves company, so if she goes on a diet, too, I'm sure to be successful.

I guess I'll have to start a slimming while I'm on the boat and have the chance to use the gymnasium and the baths. But the sea air makes one so hungry and the food is so marvelous that despite exercising all day long, the weight just piles on. I will try and go slow on the boat, but it is difficult to refrain from sampling the wonderful foods and stick to chef's salad and fruit.

Many a gal is grateful when autumn comes, because it gives her the opportunity to wear the most graceful of fabrics, black velvet. Here is a new and lovely black velvet dress, destined to play a stellar role in a smart wardrobe. It has smocking at the shoulders and waistline. A crushed soft leather belt in magenta shade makes the waistline look small. It had white embroidered linen collar and cuffs.

CARMEL Y. P. U.

The regular meeting of Carmel Y.P.U. opened with hymn 108, President Miss Olive Howes took charge of the business and offering was received. Mrs. Percy Reynolds took charge of the topic giving a short introduction on the New Study Book "The World in Canada". Miss Marron Waddell favored with a reading entitled "God in the Nation's Life."

Misses Margaret Reynolds, Hazel Hicks and Olive Howes gave readings on topic telling how different nationalities contributed to the progress of Canada.

Miss M. Wright took charge of the Worship Service which opened with quiet music by Miss Ferne Patterson. Miss Wright read a short piece on the value of music. Hymn 84 was sung. Miss Evelyn Fox read the Scripture Lesson. Psalm 96. Mr. Armstrong closed with prayer.

Child Won't Discuss All Matters

And If You Emarrass Him, You Will Erect Difficult Barrier

(By LISA GRENFLLE)

THERE WERE certain matters that Janie didn't wish to discuss with mother. She was delicate that way.

There were certain matters that Jimmie considered himself to be too old to be reminded of by mother. Jimmie was easily offended that way.

Children between twelve and twenty are apt to develop thin skins. Nor is it a pose—not by any means. If you embarrass a child too often, you build a wall between yourself and him, a good high wall that neither of you can scale.

But, of course, Mother at first thought it was a lot of nonsense as most of us do. Why shouldn't mother and daughter be able to talk about anything together, without embarrassment? And if a mother can't remind her twelve-year old son of certain matters, who can?

Can't Talk Frankly

Perhaps that is true. But the fact is, a mother can't talk frankly with her daughter upon certain subjects, not even if they're very, very close, without subjecting the daughter to extreme discomfort and embarrassment.

"Oh Mother! Let's not talk anymore about that".

"Now, Janie, don't be silly. You and I can discuss anything, can't we? And there are some things you ought to know, dear. And there also are some things I've got to ask you."

"Not now, Mother, not now," Janie always pleaded. Embarrassed she fidgeted and squirmed, keeping her eyes away from her mother's face, hoping for a chance to escape.

Mother lost her temper. "See here, Janie! Listen to me! Look at me! I'm not going to bite you."

But Janie couldn't.

After that, for a long time, Janie very obviously took great pains to avoid being left alone with her mother. She looked apprehensive even when mother so much as opened her mouth.

Grow Out of It

You can't generally talk children out of this ridiculous attitude, reason them out of it nor scold them out of it. You simply have to let them grow out of it, if they will. And they will, but only if you respect this absurd delicacy of theirs, which is at least painfully sincere, and take great care not to embarrass them.

There are ways, tactful, subtle ways. If you watch your chance and their moods, there are always times to drop a hint or a caution, to show an example without the embarrassment of intimate, personal talks, without the embarrassment of a personal reminder in front of other members of the family.

Today's Menu

Baked Potatoes
Cauliflower with Cheese Sauce
Pear Salad Peach Shortcake
Coffee

CAULIFLOWER WITH Cheese Sauce—Boil cauliflower in salted water until tender. Cut off stalk so that cauliflower will stand upright, and put it into a buttered baking dish. Make a cream sauce of one tablespoon melted butter, one tablespoon flour, mix smooth, then gradually add one cup milk stirring continually while cooking until it is smooth and thick. Season with salt and pepper, and add one-quarter cup grated or finely-cut cheese. Stir in a piece of butter—about a teaspoonful—then your mixture over cauliflower in baking dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake is quick oven for 15 minutes.

Pear Salad — Either fresh or canned pears may be used. Arrange two halves of pears on crisp lettuce, filling the cavities in the pears with chopped nut meats. Serve with any preferred dressing. In this menu where cheese is served with the cauliflower, I am not recommending that you use it also for the salad. Ordinarily, however cream cheese may be used to fill the cavities of the pears and then the chopped nuts are sprinkled over the salad.

Peach Shortcake—You can buy sponge cake at your favorite bakery to use for the crust of the shortcake. Toast the slices slightly, put one slice on each plate, cover with sliced and sweetened fresh peaches (or canned, if you prefer or it is handier), then top with another slice of toasted cake and finish with a dab of whipped cream. A rich biscuit dough may be preferred to cake for this shortcake.

BETHANY Y. P. U.

The regular meeting of the Bethany Y.P.U. was held on Tuesday evening, October 11th. The President Mrs. A. Miller conducted the worship service opening with quiet music, the call to worship and hymn 21, "O Worship The King" followed by prayer by Mr. Armstrong. Psalm 95 was read responsively.

Business items were then discussed. It was decided to hold the meetings in the homes from now on. The next meeting to be at Mr. Frank Easton's.

The topic of the Christian Fellowship program was, "What is the Kingdom of God". Mrs. Miller conducted a questionnaire on the subject and Mr. Armstrong led in an interesting discussion. Helpful readings were given by Mrs. Geo. Sills and Miss Edith Easton.

The meeting closed with hymn 506, "Listen the Master Beseecheth" and the Mizpah benediction.

Learn New Fall Colors For Glamorous Eyes

"From woman's eyes this doctrine I derive:
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire:
They are the books, the arts, the academies
That show, contain, and nourish all the world."

It was the marvelous article of "Eyes" in the September Harper's Bazaar written by the clever Elinor Guthrie Neff that lifted us into this poetic vein. We are that thrilled with the new makeup and lovely colored illustrations showing the new tints and frames in this season's eyes.

She ushers us along from the naive past, when eye makeup was considered just "Too, Too" for the nice girl, to the smart and sensible present of subtle eye beauty.

Miss Neff thinks the revival of coquetry, the romantic attitude and up-brushed hair make eye makeup a necessary theme in our beauty harmony. It must be deliberate but at the same time subtle and built up on aesthetic principles. A soulful expression and arch glance is not enough. Your eyes may be naturally beautiful, limpid as water and exquisitely set, but now with your brow bared and crowned with curls, they must be accented .They must hold their own against that scarlet exclamation point which is your mouth.

Think first of their framing. The eyebrows are the frames and must be clear, defined and gleaming your smooth skin. We no longer accent the frames and you will be deft in the coloring and avoid the firm, defined line, but paint light hair-like strokes with the well-sharpened pencil point. A touch of eyelash grower will assure the glamor to the arch and a suggestion of oil on the lids makes them youthful in their softness.

Eyeshadow is the rule for everyone who will apply it with restraint. Small eyes are made interesting with the shadow blended almost to the eyebrows.

Always keep the rim of the lids dark. This is done by a pencil that will easily trace the line at the roots of the lashes. Miss Neff reminds us to keep the shadow well within the outer tip of the brows when they are set far apart, but for the close-set brows it may be blended out toward the temples.

It takes practice to do the perfect eye makeup and for the new Fall colors we suggest that you look at the lovely illustrations in Harper's. There are also the names of the products for all eye beauty.

Rinso

Marvellous for tub washing too—SOAKS OUT DIRT SAFELY

● To the woman without a washer, the New Rinso is truly a wonder-worker. Its richer, faster-acting, longer-lasting suds soak out dirt without scrubbing or boiling. Women everywhere know that clothes come from a Rinso soaking at least 5 shades whiter than ordinary soaps get them; that washable colours stay bright and new-looking. Try this quicker, easier way to do the weekly wash. See if clothes don't last 2 or 3 times longer washed this safer "no-scrub" way.

Dishes come clean in a jiffy

You'll like Rinso for dishes and all cleaning. Just soak the dishes for a few minutes in Rinso's creamy suds . . . swish . . . rinse . . . and the dishes dry sparkling clean in a jiffy. The New Rinso is kind as ever to hands. Economical; a little goes so far. It is recommended by the makers of 26 famous washers.

Muscle Makes a Typical Unit To Study Process of Nutrition

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE CENTRAL thing that we do is to make our muscles move. Of course, it would be more logical to say that the central thing we do is to think. We are going to discuss that somewhat tomorrow and will reserve the debate until then, simply saying that movement of muscles is what all the processes of digestios and respiration and circulation are formed to produce. Digestion gets from food eases of digestion and respiration gets oxygen to produce the spark, the circulation brings them to the muscles, where the energy is to be utilized.

That, of course, is not all there is to this process of metabolism. But the muscle makes a typical site to study the processes of metabolism or nutrition.

Sugar From Starch

The movement of the muscle the thing that does the work, depends on the metabolism of sugar. Most of the sugar in the body comes from the starch in the food. In order to make a muscle contract, glucose sugar has to unite with oxygen in the body of the muscle itself.

When the muscle begins to grow or hypertrophy because there is more work to be done, then is protein required for metabolism.

In contracting, the muscles require certain minerals to be present in the surrounding blood in order to function smoothly. A lack of calcium will cause a purposeless contraction called "tetany" for instance. And vitamins affect at least the nerve impulses, if not the muscle fibers themselves.

So in this apparently simple process of the contracting of a muscle, we have the utilization of all the foodstuffs absorbed in digestion except fat. And it is quite possible that the metabolism of fat plays some part in muscular contraction. From astudy of the tension of muscles in which the carbohydrate had been reduced by insulni convulsion, Myernof and Gemmill concluded that part of the total energy is supplied by other material than carbohydrate, and that material must be fat.

Other Organs, Too

Metabolic changes, of course, go on in other organs and the fundamental foodstuffs and minerals are used by the brain and the bones and the visceral organs, as well as the muscles.

All of these metabolic processes may go wrong—each one in its own field. If carbohydrate mechanism fails, diabetes results. If fat metabolism goes wrong, obesity or emanciation ensues. If protein metabolism goes wrong, there is gout. The minerals also produce disease by not conforming to their proper function — we have already mentioned tetany as a result of calcium deficiency, and it is easy to recall iron deficiency as a cause of anemia.

In regulating all these intimate central processes, the vitamins in the food, and especially the secretions of the ductless glands are regulatory.

For the student of medical science, however, it is essential that the three functions of digestion, respiration and metabolism be considered as a unit.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

READER: "Can concestrated and crystalline Vitamin B be bought at drug stores? If so, just what does one ask for and which kind would be best for anemia?"

Answer: There are several coscentrated Vitamin B products sold. It is against the policy of this paper to be discriminatory and mention any ose, but any competent druggist can give good advice on the subject.

G. R.: "Does swimming have any effect upon a person who has had scarlet fever? I had this disease when I was seven years old; I am now 21. I have been kept from this form of exercise because of the idea that it may affect sight and hearing. Are such people more susceptible to mastoid and sinus trouble?'

Answer: These ideas are entirely erroneous. Scarlet fever, if it is going to affect the ears or eyes does so within a week or ten days at the most, of the eruption. It does not create any predisposition to mastoid or sinus disease, except just at the time of the eruption.

Welsh Border Towns Charming

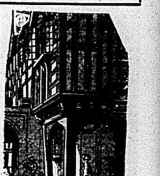
By TEMPLE MANNING

LETTERS from friends traveling in England ask, with some indignation, why I have not given a description of the district that is bounded by the hills of Wales in the west and by the hills of England, the Cotswolds, in the east. Some hundred miles from England to the west is Gloucester, Malvern, Hereford, Droitwich asd the Wye valley, and those who ask for nothing more than exquisite scenery, rural simplicity and sweet serenity, can do no better than to spend a little time there. The wide green floor of the Severn valley, the tangle of steep hills, woods and glades that is the Forest of Dean, the apple orchards and lush meadows of Herefordshire, with their red and white Hereford catlte ,the cathedrals of Gloucester and Hereford, the superb Norman abbey of Tewkesbury and glorious Tistern abbey, old castle ruins such as Monmouth and Goodrich, all make Choirs' music festival, both events up an exquisite experience. Then there is the famous dramatic festival at Malvern and the Three drawing crowds that somehow never seem to have time to linger awhile in the Valley of the Wye or in the beautiful Welsh countryside.

Delightful Town

Monmouth, a border town, is all delight. The valiant King Henry V of England, Harry of Monmouth, was born in the lovely old castle. But the town's proudest possession is Monnow bridge, a thirteenth century bridge defended by a fortified gateway, the only one we have ever seen. And in the town, too, is an inn that has sheltered a Stuart. Hereford is a more impressive town, for it is the county seat, and in Saxon times was the capital of the western kingdom of Mercia. In the seventh century cathedral there is a strange map, the Mappa Mundi a medieval map on vellum with Jerusalem in the center and Paradise on top. There are thousands of rare books, still chained to their shelves, as in medieval days. Malvern is a more fashionable and urbane place, for it is a health resort and it is the seat of the famous drama festival, an event that draws visitors from all over the world. We have seen a turbaned professor from India chatting with a well-known movie director from Hollywood, which should give you some idea! The town itself, with its hills, its gardens, its villas and the beautiful festival theater, is charming.

Gloucester is a town with a history. Because of its position, the Romans made it one of their chief cities. The Dokesday book was inaugurated there, and because of the resistance of the people of Gloucester, Cromwell won the war. High above the city is the beautiful cathedral, with its beautiful tower and cloisters and its marvelous stained glass windows. Along the streets are old timbered houses and shops with quaint mullioned windows, a real page from the book of the past. Near Gloucester is Tewkesbury, a delightful market town where the Avon meets the Severn and where stands one of the finest of Norman abbeys. Lovers of Dickens always visit the Hop Pole Inn, for there Mr. Pickwick dined in state with Bob Sawyer.



Old timbered houses, Gloucester.

Belleville Panthers Drop to Last Place in Loop Standing after Defeat by Airmen

From Standpoint of Stellar Football Game Left Much To Be Desired

"BREAKS" HELP

Pepper To Cole Forward Passes Were Well Executed

Trenton, October 17 (Special)—It isn't often, that a snap does most of the scoring in a rugby game or even a major share of it, but that is just what happened at Trenton Air Station on Saturday afternoon, when the Flyers took the fat end of an 18-7 score from the Belleville Panthers in a scheduled O.R.F.U. set-to there, and Loftus, snap for the Airmen, came through with two unexpected touchdowns to take the lion's share of the limelight.

From the standpoint of stellar football the game left much to be desired, but the crowd were not at all critical and from the standpoint of thrills alone they were well repaid for attending. The contest was a variable one with the Airmen leading for much of the way, but there were moments, and many of them, when the blue-and-gold-tinted Panthers were stalking their prey with ease. Not one of the four major scoring plays of the day was what the old timers would have called a legitimate one, and certainly two of them at least were "breaks" the kind that set one team on top of the heap and break the heart of the other.

First period play saw the Flyers featuring some nice end runs, that made good gains for them, in spite of the absence through illness or injuries of some of their best performers. Louis LeCompte was an absentee in the backfield, since the gods of football destiny decreed, that October was a good month in which to have appendicitis. The hockey-rugby stalwart was out at practice on Thursday night as usual but was not feeling up to par, and on Friday he was hurried away for an immediate appendix operation. Two others whose absence was felt by the Airmen were Smeede and Wilkie, quarter and sub-quarter respectively, and if you can imagine any more interesting combination of misfortune than the loss of both field-general and his aide-de-camp by a gridiron team, try it.

Ripley came through in splendid style, however, directing the destinies of the Flyers in veteran style, and in addition he was a consistent yards-gainer and spark-plug for the R.C.A.F. machine.

Belleville's entry on the other hand looked tremendously powerful, and impressed critics with their ability to drive through the line for steady gains McKee outbooted Ripley consistently all day long, the latter doing his best with a difficult assignment. Perhaps the prettiest plays of the day were a series of sweet forward passes, Pepper to Cole, several of which clicked beautifully to register long advances.

The major scores of the game were well interspersed, the first touchdown coming in the second quarter after a scoreless first period when Ripley intercepted a short Panther pass on the Belleville 5-yard line and made the touch which was not converted. Panthers tallied their touch late in the third when McKee plunged over from the R.C.A.F. 3-yard line after Winchuk fumbled a lateral pass and dropped it in reach of the nimble fingers of the Belleville backfielder. That score changed the complexion of the game and for a time it began to look very much as if the Panthers would take charge of the game. It was a blocked Belleville kick in the last quarter that gave Loftus his first touch as he fell on the loose ball behind the touch line, and he made another major try later in the same period when he intercepted a long Panther forward pass to race over the line standing up. All other points were amassed by the kicking powers of the booters and on converts after touches.

The Play

1st Quarter.

Panthers kick off, R.C.A.F. receiving, Brown and Ripley combined for a 30-yard gain on a sparkling end run, kick to Belleville 1-yard line; Belleville penalty 5 yards offside. Airmen intercept Panther pass. Flyers lose 15 yards penalty no yards to catcher. Skelcher goes through for neat 10-yard gain, Brown again scintillates on an end run for 25 yard gain. Airmen make yards twice on line plays. Winchuk plunges for 10 yards. Period ends with ball on Belleville 40 yard line, Panthers defending.

2nd. Quarter.

Ripley leads off after several plays intercepting a Panther pass on the Belleville 3-yard line and gets over for a major score, the convert fails. Panthers intercept Flyers pass on R.C.A.F. 30-yard line, press hard, make nice gains. McKee kicks over deadline for 1 point. Belleville penalty offside. Airmen lose 8 yards as Cooper nails Winchuk behind line of scrimmage. Belleville offside penalty. Panther back misses catch after kick but recovers. Panther forward nets 10 yards. Belleville offside penalty, too many of those. Airmen working the double-signals racket well. R.C.A.F. forward pass Winchuk to Staples nets 15-yards. Airmen penalized 10 yards for holding, interchange of kicks. Airmen intercept Panther forward pass. Ripley kicks over deadline for 1 point. Period ends with score R.C.A.F. 6; Panthers 1.

3rd. Quarter.

Short kickoff, Panthers almost clicked on forward Pepper to Cooper. Shaw intercepts Belleville forward in Panther territory. Airmen penalized 10 for high tackle. Belleville fumble and Airmen recover. Pepper and Cole combine for lovely forward pass gain of 25 yards. Airmen penalized 5 for offside. Pepper and Cole add another 15 by forward pass route. Winchuk intercepts Belleville pass, then becomes goat as he fumbles on his own 35 yard line and Belleville recover. Panthers get to Airmen's 3-yard line. McKee plunges over for try, P. Blaker makes the convert good. Airmen gain 20 yards on forward Winchuk to Shaw. Period ends with Brown running around end up to Belleville 28-yard line. Score R.C.A.F. 6; Panthers 7.

4th Quarter.

Ripley after two plays kicks over deadline for 1 point, after kicks Panther back misses catch and Airmen recover on Belleville 20-yard line. Airmen try forward but intecepted. Brown makes nice gain on end run. Panther kick blocked by Winchuk and recovered by Loftus who fell on it behind goal line. Convert put over by forward pass method Winchuk to Shaw. Panthers intercept Airmen pass. Several nice plunges. Flyers lose two forwards. Later intercept two Belleville passes. Subs come in often, squashed noses and barked shins much in evidence. John Haffey takes long pass for Panthers and gains 30 yards. Belleville forward goes astray and Loftus takes it in full stride to gallop over for the last touchdown of the day, convert failed. Final score R.C.A.F. 18; Panthers 7.

R.C.A.F.: Snap, Loftus; insides, Sleeman, James; middles, Cessford, Trepanier; ends, Davidson, Semple; flying wing, Shaw; quarter, Ripley; halves, Delmotte, Winchuk, Brown; subs; Daignault, Ullyot, Gaschler, Williams, Allen, Staples, Owen and Golding.

Belleville Panthers: Snap, P. Blaker; insides, Baker, Knott; middles, L. Blaker, Flagler; ends Cole, Cooper; flying wing, Odell; quarter, McKee; halves, Storey, Pepper, Grant; subs: Bradford, McQuaid, Jackson, C. Haffey, J. Haffey and Skelcher.

Referees: Chilcott and Armstrong of Toronto; timers Pilot Officer C. H. Willis, D. Burns of Belleville; head linesman, Flight Sergeant McGuire.

PETERBORO LOSES TO STRATFORD 9-4

Starting Hurlers Carrick And McNally Derricked Early In Game

Hamilton, Oct. 17 (Special) — Stratford Nationals are senior champions of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association once again, and once more the bid of Peterborough for a place in the association's hall of fame has gone aglimmering.

Wresting a 9-4 verdict over the Petes in the third and deciding game of the final series for the provincial title at the baseball stadium here on Saturday afternoon, the Nationals gained the highest niche in simon-pure ball in a game that was anything but a championship display, but the winners demonstrated their right to the title by uncovering reserve strength that gave them ample protection after a very wobbly start.

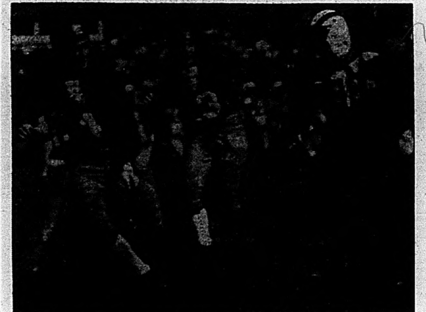
The Petes got off in front, with two runs in the first frame, but when the Nats broke out in the fourth and fifth they easily slid into definite leadership.

The starting hurlers, Carrick and McNally, were both wild and ineffective. Carrick gave nine walks until he was relieved by Craig in the fifth, and the latter halted the Petes cold, pitching cannily to the finish and allowing only two hits during his term on the hilltop.

McNally, who started for Peterborough, gave up runs in the first and second, four in the fourth and another in the fifth, and he was relieved in the eighth when the first two batsmen hit safely. Whitehill, who relieved, was hardly an improvement, and the Nats tacked on another pair of tallies.

The erratic hurling of the starting pitchers made the game a long-drawn out affair, and there was little fielding or hitting of truly championship calibre. Both teams played as though they were at the end of the trail and probably the only redeeming feature was Craig's fine relief work for Stratford and the consisting hitting of Kalmusky and Hanlon, for the winners'

Herb Westman Stars in Varsity-McGill Game



The superb kicking and tackling of Herb Westman, star of the McGill Redmen, featured the opening tilt of the Intercollegiate circuit in Toronto when McGill met Toronto Varsity. Westman consistently kicked the ball far down the field all the game and this, coupled with an alert defense, was responsible for the Redmen leading Steven's Boys in Blue 3-1 at half-time. Westman, 13, and Keefer, 4, are shown here as they prepared to nail a Varsity ball carrier in his tracks. McGill defeated Varsity, 10-7.

The money players, as a rule, are most fair about dealing with conditions of competitions. For example, if a player has unknowingly carried a club or two over the limit for a few holes and then discarded the clubs when learning of their presence in his bag the tournament committee has overlooked the infraction. But where a player shows signs of carelessness or scorn for the rules of the game, those having a word about the tournaments are apt to be quite severe. Some of the latter have threatened to look into the matter of clubfaces.

PROS THREATEN TO HAVE NEW CLUB FACES BARRED

It seems that some of the boys are getting too much backspin on the approach shots. The success with which they are able to stop the ball near the pin brings back memories of Jock Hutchison and his ridge face clubs. Deep grooves in the striking surface of the clubface produce backspin without any skill on the part of the player. For this reason they were barred by the U.S.G.A. some time ago. However, some of the new iron clubs are said to have lines cut in the clubface which are as effective as the deeper grooves.

The lines have so far passed the censorship of the officials but these gentlemen are going to be asked to examine the new clubfaces closely, if the boys without backspin have their way.

Herbie Westman Boosts His Squad To Major Upset of Season

NATIONALS SURPRISE

Montreal Squad Gains 12-12 Tie With Sarnia Imperials

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

The kicker is still the thing in Canadian football.

Of course it's nice when there is a powerful man on the team who can plunge like a 10-ton truck going through a wood fence, or a passer who can flip the ball into an end's pant pocket on the run. But the proper answer to a consistent 60-yard punter hasn't yet been found except if it is another such punter on the other side.

Take McGill for an example. They have a fine passing attack and such powerful plungers as Andy Anton, Bob Keefer, Bob Kenny, M. Telford and Ronnie Perowne. Yet their plunging and passing offensives were both in the background Saturday as long Herb Westman kicked them to a 10-7 victory over University of Toronto in one of the east's feature games

Undisputed Leaders

The victory, taken before 18,000 jammed into University of Toronto stadium, gave the Redmen undisputed leadership of the Intercollegiate Union, the only circuit with an individual leader after the second week's play on the eastern schedule. Sarnia Imperials and Montreal Nationals remained tied for the Ontario Union top after a 12-12 thriller at Sarnia, and Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders held the Interprovincial Union between them by romping over weak opposition.

Westman, sparking the best Red team from the Montreal University in a decade, shot Toronto Blues back into second place on a succession of long hoists that ranged from 55 to 80 years. He punted two swift points in the first quarter and Toronto never really threatened to overcome the lead.

Behind 3-1 after the first half, when they tried and failed to match Westman by ground gains and passes, Toronto weakened gradually in the final two quarters. Westman drove another two points with his kicking and Perowne smashed off 36 yards from scrimmage to set up Telford's touchdown from two yards.

Westman's Kicking Featured

Perowne's drive and the touchdown Toronto got from it were the only spectacular features of the game besides Westman's kicking. Russ Merifield fumbled the touchdown kickoff Toronto recovered on McGill's 25, matched another 15 yards on a talking penalty to Captain Lou Ruschin of McGill and Cam Gray fired a scoring pass to Ben Shuken over the McGill line.

There were only three minutes to play after that and the Blues, who made 15 first downs to McGill's five and completed six passes to McGill's one, didn't get out of their own territory as Westman hoofed them backwards, threatening to add to the McGill total.

Sarnia got superlative kicking too, from Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, who scored all their points in a gallant uphill fight to tie Nationals after Johnny Ferraro galloped 56 yards for a first quarter touchdown. It was the first time since 1938 that Imperials failed to win at home.

Failed on Convert

It was 7-4 at the half, Stirling having booted a single and placement and Johnny Riddel a single for Nationals. And when it seemed the Imperial ace was leading the team to more points in the third quarter Nationals snatched quickly at another opportunity. Burton intercepted a lateral on the Sarnia 20 and raced over unmolested for a touchdown Tommy Burns failed to convert.

Stirling, who got a point on the third-quarter kickoff, charged back after that, kicked a single and a few minutes later plunged over for an unconverted touchdown, making the score 12-11 for Nationals. Doggedly, Nationals fought to hold the edge in the fourth quarter but Stirling wiped it out with a 70-yard hoist. His try for the winning point on the last play of the game was only five yards short.

Western Comes From Behind

University of Western Ontario Mustangs also came from behind with a 77-yard touchdown march at the tail-end of the third quarter to defeat Queen's 10-7 and tie Toronto for second place in the college circuit. The champion Queen's winless in two starts, held a 7-1 lead at half time on a field goal, two singles and a safety touch.

Alf Hurley culminated the Mustang march by scoring the touchdown on a quarter back sneak on the first play of the last quarter. Clem Faust, Lyn Thompson and Wally Hilton were Western's stars.

There was little competition for the other three winners. Tommy Daley scored three touchdowns as Rough Riders swamped Hamilton Tigers 42-6 at Hamilton and Art West got two as Argonauts breezed past Montreal Cubs 25-2. Ab Box led Toronto Balmy Beach to an 18-2 victory over Peterborough Orfuns, scoring or leading the way to all his team's points with fine passing and punting.

WINLESS SEASON FOR EDMONTON TO HELP CALGARIANS

Can Win Western Title Without a Play-off If This occurs

SASKATOON WINS

Clubs Have Only One Game To Play To Complete Season

Winnipeg Oct. 17 (CP)— Carl Cronin, pudgy Notre Dame alumnus solemnly reflected today the disaster that nearly overtook his Calgary Bronks Saturday, and wholeheartedly desired a winless 1938 football season for the neighboring Edmonton Eskimos.

There's really nothing personel attached to Carl's fervent wish, but a winless season for Edmonton would set first place in the western Interprovincial Football Union, squarely in the laps of Cronin's bucking Bronkos.

Calgary, in scoring a 6-3 victory over Edmonton at home Saturday, narrowly escaped defeat. A last-minute touchdown drive by Eskimos was stopped inches from the goal-line and Bronks managed to stay even with Winnipeg Blue Bombers who travelled to Regina to defeat Roughriders 14-6.

Saskatoon Wins

In the Western Intercollegiate Union, University of Saskatchewan stopped University of Alberta 13-0 at Saskatoon, and North Shore Lions moved into first place in the Vancouver Big Four with a 21-0 win over Meralomas in the West's fourth game of the day.

Today Calgary is tied for Conference leadership with Winnipeg. Each has a single scheduled game remaining, Bombers meeting Regina, and Bronks facing Bob Fritz' Eskimos next Saturday. An Edmonton victory, coupled with a Winnipeg victory at Regina, would tumble Calgary into second place —an undesirable position under the Union's current play-off system.

Second and third place teams in the final standings meet in a sudden-death game for the right to meet the first-place team in the western final. If Calgary and Winnipeg both win their next game, then Calgary officially will gain first place honors because they have outscored Bombers 14-6 in the two games the teams have played against each other this season.

13 U. S. TEAMS SUFFER DEFEAT FOR FIRST TIME

Forward Pass Both As Weapon And Boomerang Vital Factor

MANY UPSETS

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—The forward pass, both as weapon and boomerang, rarely has been so vital a factor in any week end United States college football program as it was Saturday, when 13 of the country's previously unbeaten major grid powers crumpled for the first time this season.

Only the middle west—where Minnesota put on a last quarter drive to top Michigan, 7-6, and Pittsburgh swept past Wisconsin 26-6—and the Southwest came out of the day's battles without sustaining casualties among their favored contenders.

Alabama, confidently seeking another Southeastern Conference championship, was checked by Tennessee 13-0 and Kentucky fell before Washington and Lee 8-0. In the west the surprises were fast-rallying Stanford's 27-16 defeat of Oregon and Oregon State's fumble-recovering 13-6 victory over Washington.

Passes and pass interceptions figured prominently in each of these games except Tennessee's victory, scored on two long power marches and a stout defence, and the Oregon State triumph.

Two Princeton forwards gave the Tigers their first touchdown and the necessary jump to beat Pennsylvania 13-0. Syracuse struck through the air three times in the last quarter for all of its touchdowns and a 18-17 conquest of Cornell.

Similarly Yale set up and scored its touchdown on Gil Humphrey's passes and got in position for the winning field goal to edge out Navy 9-7; Colgate blanketed Sid Luckman and his receivers, intercepted one of his passes for the second touchdown and gave Columbia its first beating by 13-0; New York University bowed 7-0 to one brilliant stab through the air by George Stirnweiss, North Carolina quarterback, and favored Dartmouth employed passes for three of its five touchdowns in routing Brown 34-13.

The only defeat of an unbeaten eastern team in which aerials did not figure was also unbeaten Carnegie Tech's 7-6 victory over Holy Cross.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

There is one thing that must be admitted, when it comes to the art of tossing forward passes—the Belleville Panthers are about the most accurate tossers of the pigskin we have seen in many a moon, but all too frequently their forward passes line directly into the hands of their opponents. Eddie Schrieder's hopefuls attempted no less than 17 forward passes against the Airport on Saturday, two of which were completed. Of course numerous of these attempts were made in desperation when the Panthers were trailing, but no less than seven of the locals' forwards were intercepted by the opposition and two of these interceptions resulted in subsequent scoring. Loftus, the Flyers' snapback snagged one on the hoof and galloping over for a touchdown. In case you don't know it by now—the Flyers downed the Panthers 18 to 7.

It was a weird exhibition, not because the Panthers lost as our consensus was readily accepted by numerous of R.C.A.F. fans. Which squad fumbled the more consistently would be hard to relate as pigskin was on the ground almost as much as it was in the possession of either squad. The "Airmen" opened the scoring, after a scoreless first quarter, with a touch. Pat Blaker's attempted placement ultimately went for a single point and the Panthers were holding splendidly, but repeatedly fumbled the ball when in possession and for drastic losses of yards. McKee put the locals in the running with a major score, but twice in the last quarter attempted Panther forward passes were intercepted by Loftus and up went the balloon.

Minus their ace punster Louie Lecompte, who is confined to hospital due to an operation for appendicitis the Flyers got little distance with their aerial attack from Ripley, who thrice booted short and was outdistanced by Lionel Blaker all through the piece. The game was devoid of spectacular plays as the continued fumbling of the oval marred that expected razzle-dazzle of the gridiron pastime. The loss dropped the Panthers into the cellar position, but as we pointed out last week, Belleville is introducing a young and inexperienced team into the game, therefore, give the youngsters due credit even in their mistakes for tomorrow will see another day.

Manager Dufton, of the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" was a spectator at Saturday's game and during the intermission informed us the "Summer Town" squad actually "let up" on the Flyers when they won 14 to 0 on opening day. 'Let me tell you—in Gord. Meikle we have a real smart punter and an outstanding football player. The Ottawa "Roughriders" telephoned him seven times in the week previous to the opening of the Interprovincial trying to induce him to play with the Ottawa squad," related Mr. Dufton. In reply all we said was—"Don't sell this Garrison squad short." Although we stick with our previous convictions and say the "Galloping Ghosts" are all but into the intermediate O.R.F.U. finals.

It remains to have the lowly Panthers upset the dope in the Lake Shore grid group yet. The Cobourg squad are playing the sturdy Garrison team in Kingston on Wednesday of this week and return to meet the Panthers here in Belleville next Saturday. Two games in one week is a tough assignment for any football squad so maybe the Panthers will upset the lofty "Galloping Ghosts" after all.

About the only Panther to make any noticeable gains on Saturday was Bud Odell who ripped open a couple of wide breaches in the Flyers' line and carried for several fine advances. Brown and Winchuk proved a hard pair to stop when coming through the Panthers' backfield suggested he must be getting his mail addressed to him behind the Panthers' line of scrimmage.

Remember 'way back when beauty parlors were few and our women used a "prepared chalk" on the face and a "rat" for the hair.... and football didn't start until it was cool enough for "moleskins"?

Once again the Peterborough baseball club failed the C.O.B.L. in their quest for a provincial baseball title. Strange as it may seem the Petes just can't put over a win in that section. Incidentally every other C.O.B.L. champion to advance to the senior O.B.A. finals has won at least one provincial senior title, with the exception of the Petes. They've had three tries and three failures as the Stratford Nationals downed Eddie Murphy's Liftlock nine 9 to 4 at Hamilton on Saturday. "School teacher" Craig, Stratford silenced the Peterborough bats, while the Nationals made merry at the expense of two Liftlock hurlers. The Petes only got two stingless hits after the fifth. "And there was no joy in Quakerville; the mighty (?) Petes had failed again"

HODGE PODGE: It's a good thing Bummer Stirling was at top form on Saturday for if he hadn't been the Sarnia Imperials would have had red faces today. As it was the Montreal C.N.R. squad tossed a scare into the camp of the Imperials as the Quebec squad battled the Tunnel Town to a 12-12 tie ....McGill remains the only undefeated squad in the Intercollegiate Union and by beating Varsity, upset our weekly football predictions. Much of the credit for Western's victory over Queen's was heaped on the shoulders of Wally Hilton, who headed the Mustangs towards their victory drive. ....Hilton starred while Bud Johnson, in the Queen's backfield, received honorable mention as one of the spearheads of the "tri-color".... Some 4,000 saw the opening senior O.R.F.U. senior game at Peterborough, where a fistic outbreak gave the spectators added entertainment. Police quelled the riot.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Most United States football experts were knocked for a dozen or so loops this week end and still are groggy ....Columbia was due to get its bumps, but how about Princeton beating Penn?....For a team supposed to be a powerhouse, Duke is having trouble....Best it could do over Colgate was 7-0 and Saturday a bruised and battered up Georgia Tech club held them 6-0.

Cleanest football game this chronicler has seen in years was the North Carolina-New York University game....George Stirnweiss won the game for North Carolina, but the best back on the field was Ed Williams, the New York U. negro....Lee Tolley, the head linesman, said it was the first time in almost 20 years of grid officiating that he didn't call an off side penalty....The guy who really deserves the congrats is Ossie Solem of Syracuse....What a rally his gang put on!

Joe Louis is making movie shorts in Hollywood.... Lynn C. Doyle says in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: "The Yankees are set for five more seasons".... You can believe this fellow for he doesn't pop off and knows whereof he speaks....Mike Jacobs is due back from the coast any day now with an important announcement—it has to do wit' Baer and Louis. They're having a torrid battle for the football title in the west this year, with three teams, Calgary and Regina all pretty much on a par. Edmonton Eskimos, newcomers to the conference this year, are furnishing plenty of opposition, but hardly rate championship status this year. Here are the four men attempting to mastermind their charges into a title, the coaches of the four conference teams. Two of them go even further than mental labor, by taking part in the actual warfare. Dean Griffing holding down the snapback job for his team and Bob Fritz looking after the quarterbacking for the Esks. Cronin carried out a threat to play early in the season, but is not in the line-up regularly.

POLICE COURT

Within a very few minutes after he left his truck parked along the Canadian National Railway tracks on Pinnacle Street, and obstructed railway traffic, Campbell Wannamaker, 27 of Ameliasburg, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. in today's local police court charged with obstructing the traffic. A plea of guilty was accepted and Wannamaker paid one dollar and costs.

"I only left the truck parked a minutes or so I ran into a nearby garage to get a clutch," pleaded the accused but unfortunately the local C.N.R. yard engine was attempting to "spot" a freight car along the grand junction line at the time and Wannamaker's truck obstructed their line. Police were called and minutes late Wannamaker appeared in court.

Henry Hubbs, West Huntingdon, was convicted on two charges preferred by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine as the sequel to a motor accident when Hubbs collided with a hydro pole at Foxboro last week. Hubbs pleaded guilty to failing to produce an operator's licence and fined $2.00 and costs and was assessed $10.00 and costs after being convicted of reckless driving. "There was damage to the hydro company of some $200.00, I am told", added Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., as he revealed Hubbs' car was a total wreck also. The accused was given until the end of the month in which to raise the assessed fines.

Appearing for sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of the theft of scrap iron in a previous court, Gordon Mickel, Belleville, was given five days and a three months' suspended sentence. Mickel, having been incarcerated since last Thursday, was permitted his liberty today.

George Goodfellow, Latta, was fined $10.00 and costs after being convicted of a charge of cruelty to animals, a charge preferred by the Society for Prevention to Cruelty to Animals through Inspector Thos. Taylor, who investigated. Goodfellow, it was adduced in court tied two dogs behind his automobile, resulting in injury to the animals. "I did not think I was driving too fast to allow them to keep up with my speed," pleaded the accused. Inspector Taylor stated the front foot pads of both animals were torn loose.

Three inebriates appeared all of whom were apprehended on Saturday night. The trio admitted their guilt and were given one week in which to raise $10.00 and costs, the assessed fine. A case concerning a woman, which was held in camera concluded today's docket.

TWO ARE KILLED

Dentist Is Drowned.

Dr. Mark G. McElhinney, retired Ottawa dentist, drowned yesterday in Dow's Lake near Ottawa. His body was found in five feet of water near the houseboat on which he lived with a brother. No inquest will be held.

Six-year-old Elizabeth Luck drowned near a dock at the Kingston Club where her father is steward, Saturday night. Her father found the child's body in ten feet of water with the aid of a flashlight.

First hunting victim of the year in the Peterborough district, George McIver, 26, of Peterborough, drowned in Rice Lake Saturday when the duck-hunting canoe he was paddling turned over. A companion, Bud Evans, was rescued.

Raoul Kumushishie died yesterday in Sudbury Hospital of injuries suffered near Gogama Saturday when a tree pinned him to the ground. Employed by a lumbering company, the bush worker suffered a ruptured liver.

ACTOR BECOMES SOCIAL SUCCESS

Jean Hersholt Much In Demand To Talk About Quints

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 17 (CP)—Jean Hersholt, the character actor who plays the part of the country doctor in films featuuring the Dionne Quintuplets, has become a social success for the first time in his life.

"It used to be, when I went to a party," he said here, "that I could talk only about pictures, books and stamps—if I could get anyone to listen to me. But now I'm rated as a baby expert. Women flock about me as if I were a handsome, romantic actor. And the questions they ask."

Hersholt, who portrays on the screen the role created by Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the Quints, in real life, says he refuses to pinch hit for the little country doctor in discussing babies. He gives the women evasive answers.

Yvonne an Actress

Hersholt said he is convinced that Yvonne of the quintuplets is a natural actress. He declares also that Annette may be the most beautiful. Emilie is mechanically-inclined, takes everything she can get her hands on apart. Marie and Cecile, Hersholt said, seem to have unusual talent as singers.

The actors admits frankly that before his first picture with the quints he thought his goose was cooked as far as films were concerned. But his characterization as Dr. Luke has won him a new following, hundreds of fan letters, a radio program, and a fresh start in the entertainment world.

Hersholt returned recently from Callander, where scenes were made for the newest picture featuring the quints, called "Five of a Kind."

W. R. HINCHEY IS PAID HONOR

Retirement After 24 Years Brings Testimonial Today

At noon today, in the presence of fellow workers of the local postal service with whom he had labored so diligently and long, William Roy Hinchey, former clerk, whose retirement from active duties became effective in August was tendered the best wishes of the local staff and presented with a testimonial of honor and merit from the Acting Postmaster General.

The presentation was made in his office by local Postmaster J. V. C. Truaisch, on behalf of his former co-workers, and marked the end of twenty-four years of consecutive service in the Belleville district by Mr. Hinchey.

A letter from John A. Sullivan, Deputy Postmaster, Ottawa, which accompanied the testimonial paid tribute to the service of Mr. Hinchey:

"On the occasion of you retirement from the Postal Service after having completed over twenty-four years of continuous service, I take pleasure in forwarding to you the enclosed testimonial card, being a tangible expression of appreciation from the Postmaster General for the faithful service rendered by you during the period of you employment.

"I must also avail myself of the opportunity of conveying to you an expression of appreciation of the officers of the department of the service rendered by you during your period of employment.

"In closing, I wish to express the hope that you will be endowed with health, happiness and that you will enjoy to the full the leisure to which your active service entitles you," wrote Mr. Sullivan.

The testimonial presented by local Postmaster Truaisch, dated Ottawa, declared:

"To Mr. Hinchey:

"Sir—On the occasion of your retirement from the Post Office, I desire to express to you my appreciation of the faithful service you have rendered to the Dominion during a period of more than 24 years,

"Yours very truly,

"W. D. EULER,

"Acting Postmaster General"

The testimonial, beautifully engraved and suitable for framing, will be a constant reminder to Mr. Hinchey of the pleasant co-operation of the local staff and fraternal kindliness during his long service in the Belleville office, he expressed in his brief and sincere thanks, following the presentation.

LUMBER COMPANY GIVEN A CHARTER

A provincial charter has been granted to the Lennox Lumber Company, Ltd., with headquarters at Napanee, and an authorized capital of $25,000 has been announced. One of the incorporators is Geo. T. Tustin M.P. The new company will take over the established business of Robert Light of Napanee.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's waning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gold Is Where You Find It"

"Gold Is Where You Find It," an outdoor action drama dealing with the colorful war between the California farmers and hydraulic miners of the 1870's, is scheduled to be the next feature at the Capitol Theatre.

It is a Warner Bros.-Cosmopolitan production, done in the newest Technicolor, and co-starring George Brent and Olivia de Havilland. It includes, too, such sterling players as Claude Rains, Margaret Lindsay, John Litel, Barton MacLane, Marcia Ralston, Tim Holt and Sidney Toler.

"Gold Is Where You Find It," is based on the best-selling novel of the same title by Clements Ripley, which ran as a serial in the Cosmopolitan magazine. It was made almost entirely in the outdoors, on the actual locale of the bitter conflict which it portrays—in remote Trinity county, California.

The cause of that ancient warfare was this: The hydraulic miners, whose powerful streams of water tore away the hillsides, claimed that they had a right to search for gold in any way they chose. But the muck caused by their work(a combination of mud and sand and stone, called 'slickens") poured over the fertile fields and crops.

Conflict resulted. Battles were fought, many were killed. Finally, a Federal court decision declared in favor of the agriculturists and the hydraulic miners had to quit their operations.

"The Adventurous Blonde"

That clever young girl reporter, Torchy Blane—now depicted for the third time by the gay and laugh-provoking Glenda Farrell — is now at the Capitol Theatre in "Torchy Blane, The Adventurous Blonde," a comedy-drama.

Likewise will be seen her likeable but not-so-brilliant boy friend, Detective-Lieutenant Steve McBride, portrayed by that big he-man of the films, Barton MacLane.

"Torchy Blane, The Adventurous Blonde", is described as even funnier and more exciting than its two predecessors in the series, "Smart Blonde" and "Flyaway Baby," in which the same pair of players were the principals.

It is a tale about how a quartet of male reporters, irked by Torchy's scoring of so many "scoops" over them, try to get vengeance.

They hire an out-of-work actor to play the part of a corpse and give Torchy a lot of misinformation about a supposed murder. She hustles to her paper and writes a big story about the crime, and the framers chuckle when Torchy's sheet appears on the street.

But the gag boomerangs on the boys, because the fake murder turns out to be an actual murder, which Torchy and Steve solve, and the conspirators are the ones that prove out of luck.

Added Revival

As an added revival feature the never to be forgotten picture of the year "Prisoner of Zenda" starring Ronald Colman, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Madeline Carroll complete this splendid two feature program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Expensive Husbands"

Tonight at 9 p.m. at the McCarthy Theatre, Mayor Jamieson Bone, will draw from the large revolving drum container placed on the stage a coupon which will entitle the person whose name appears on the same to become the owner of a new 1939 model, electric tuning R.C.A. Victor Radio, absolutely free. This radio is a presentation of the R.C.A. Radio dealer in Belleville and coupons have been presented to every adult patron attending the McCarthy Theatre during the past two weeks also they have been given out at Weaver's Radio Shop, Front St. The coupons will all be placed in the drum tonight, as well as those that are given to the adult patrons at tonight's performances before 8.45 p.m. This is anyone's chance to be the winner of a new radio and we urge you to take advantage of another opportunity tonight to put in one more coupon. Your luck may change and if you have never won anything before, this may be the time, who knows.?

"Expensive Husbands"

In addition to the above, an exceptional fine romantic comedy feature entitled "Expensive Husbands" with Patric Knowles and Beverly Roberts, co-starring is being presented at the McCarthy Theatre, as well as an excellent program of short subjects that includes Edgar Kennedy in a sure-fire comedy riot "Ears of Experience" and also Ted Fio Rito and his orchestra in a swell musical offering entitled 'Music Will Tell" and last but not least an R.K.O. Radio "Pathe Parade" that brings to the screen something new in entertainment and which we assure you you will thoroughly enjoy.

AT THE BELLE

"MARIE ANTOINETE"

The long-waited filmization of "Marie Antoinette", four years in preparation with an unprecedented cast of 152 players headed by Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power in the co-starring roles comes next to the Belle Theatre, as one of the most ambitiously planned and spectacularly conceived motion pictures to be offered the public since the inception of the talkies.

The new picture casts Miss Shearer in a part she has waited four years to play, that of the little Hapsburg Archduchess who became the last Queen of France. As a backdrop to the dramatic story of the woman whose one moment of love reached heights that were to last her a lifetime is the fabulous era of Kings and peasants, unprecedented magnificence and extravagance, and the upheaval of an oppressed people from which the French Republic was born.

An eye-staggering array of big names fill the supporting roles, among them John Barrymore as King Louis XV with his disease-tortured body and warped brain, Robert Morley portraying the dull-witted clod who became Louis XVI Anita Louise as the Princess de Lamballe, Joseph Schildkraut as the Duke d'Orleans who plotted Antoinette's downfall, Gladys George as Madame du Barry the milliner who became the power behind a crumbling throne, and Henry Stephenson as Count de Mercey. Other famous historical figures represented include Napoleon, Lafayette, Benjamin Franklin, Robespierre and Danton.

In setting and costumes, "Marie Antoinette" reflects one of the most spectacular and lavish periods in all history. To authentically costume Miss Shearer, who wears thirty-four gowns and eighteen wigs, Adrian toured France and Austria last summer, doing research in Paris and Vienna. True to the period, they are of elaborate beauty and impressive dignity.

For the first time, permission was obtained from the French Government to photograph the Palace at Versailles as the background for a motion picture. From more than 12,000 photographs of the palace and other historically prominent buildings and streets in Paris artists created 98 settings to show in minute detail not only the pomp of the nobility but the degradation of the French people. The designs for the sets were more than a year in the making.

"Marie Antoinette" was filmed under the direction of W. S. Van Dyke II, who has contributed a memorable list of distinguished motion pictures to the talking screen.

Continuous Shows

During the engagement of "Marie Antoinette", continuous performances will prevail daily from 2.30 until 11 p.m. For your perfect enjoyment it is suggested that you see it from the beginning.

"Valley of the Giants"

Wayne Morris and Claire Trevor head the cast of "Valley of the Giants", the technicolor picture based by Warner Bros. on the famous Peter B. Kyne novel of the same name that delighted large audiences at the Belle Theatre on Saturday and is announced for presentation for the last times tonight, along with an unusually clever and entertaining revue featuring Helen Chandler World's Champion Ice Skater and enacted by a cast of outstanding artists. The popular Paramount Newsreel and a funny merrie melody cartoon, "The General Lied Till Dawn." It's Tip-Top entertainment, every unit a screen treat.

RESIDENTS REFUSE TO CROSS UDER LADDER

Just about one half of Belleville is superstitious.

Leaning from the walk against an upper Front Street building this morning a ladder on which a painter plied his busy trade offered omen-minded residents a chance to cross either on the inside or the outside of the walk and ladder. However, a few moment's survey revealed that in spite of dire events, which are popularly supposed to follow, just about one half of those, who walked chose to pass directly under the ladder without a pause in sctride.

CITY ENGINEER TO REPRESENT CITY

City Engineer Chas. A. Mott will represent Belleville at the fifth annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Sewage and Sanitation being held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on October 20 and 21st. Special invitation for the Mayor and city engineer to attend has been sent Belleville by Dr. A. E. Berry of the Provincial Department of Health.

FINDER CONTINUES TO PICK UP

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP)—Garland Reid, 54, railway machinist, is one bachelor who solved the button problem by making lady luck pay dividends. He picked up a button three years ago and nearby found a penny. A few hours later he found another button—and a dime. Becoming a "bit superstitious," Reid said he continued to search for buttons—and one night he found a $400 roll of bank notes.

ARE HONORED BY UNIVERSITY

Miss Jean Gunn And Prof. Graham Receive Honorary Degrees

Two natives of Belleville were among the eleven persons honored at the University of Toronto on Friday, Miss Jean Gunn, of Toronto and Prof. William R. Graham of Guelph, a brother of the late R. J. Graham of this city. Miss Gunn spent her early years in this district and Mr. Graham lived here until he was a young man.

In recognition of the service and scientific competence of the nursing profession, Sir William Mulock conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Miss Jean Gunn, O.B.E., superintendent of nurses, Toronto General Hospital. "The hospital and the nurses alike pay tribute to her power of organization, her progressive spirit, her soundness of judgment, her discipline compounded of honor, justice and strength, and her courageous leadership in upholding the highest ideals of the profession and in raising the standards of nursing education," said President Cody, in presenting her.

The degree of Doctor of Science (honoris causa) was conferred on William Richard Graham, professor of poultry in the Ontario Agricultural College, and on Thomas Leonard Walker, professor emeritus of raineralogy and petrography in the university and director emeritus of the Royal Ontario Museum. "Dr. Graham's knowledge of genetics laid the foundation of the selective breeding of poultry, whereby he was able to develop a breed of Plymouth Rock chickens good both for table use and for the production of eggs. The stock improvement which came as the result of his work has put millions of dollars of additional revenue into the pockets of the farmers of Ontario," declared President Cody.

Among others who received honorary degrees were Lady Tweedsmuir and Hon. E. Lapointe.

PARTRIDGE TURNS OUT TO BE 'TURK'

Prominent Gov't Official Also Loses Two Bucks In The Deal

The weather was perfect. So were hunting conditions, but the prominent Belleville government official with gun in hand had been searching in vain for nearly three hours, with not a partridge to his credit.

He scoured the woods, finally reaching a heavy undergrowth near Latta's Mills. To the rear of a farmhouse he saw heavy undergrowth, the natural home for partridge. Carefully he climbed the fence and entered the woods. His eyes lightened as he noted activity in a nearby clump of bushes. A bird's head showed itself for a second. The hunter raised his gun, and a shot broke the afternoon stillness, as a feathered body threshed in its death agony.

A smile illuminating his features the hunter strode toward his "kill". Then the smile vanished, a look of near-horror came over his features —for on the ground in front of him lay a handsome young turkey gobbler.

Even as he stared, disaster in the form of an enraged farmer descended upon him. Hearing the shot, the owner of the bird had hurried to the scene. In no uncer-

TO OPEN PRACTICE IN CAMPBELLVILLE

Mud

By HAZEL R. LANGDALE

The Petitcodiac river, whose bottle-shaped mouth where it empties into the Bay of Fundy is responsible for the world famed Bore is, at certain portions of its length, margined with steep banks of mud of such insidious, slimy slipperiness that to look at them has somewhat the same effect on the observer as the glistening eye of the snake on its bird vistim.

It had that effect on Marcia Makepeace who had come up from Boston to visit her grandparents.

For 19 years—that is to say, since the day of her birth, Marcia's life had been bounded by Massachusetts bay and the Charles river. Of course she had summered on the Cape and had motored through the White mountains. She had even spent a few weeks at Ogunquit. But none of these places not even the Cape Cod creeks or the flats exposed on the Maine coast at ebb tide., could offer the mud of the Petitcodiac and its tributaries.

"Looks like primeval ooze, doesn't it?" asked Barry Robins, between puffs at his disreputable old briar. Barry lived in one of the five white farmhouses that made up the hamlet of Ste. Stephanie and Marcia had been warned against him by her grandparents.

"It certainly does!" agree Marcia, amiably, but not for worlds would she have disclosed the horrid fascination those unbelievably smooth declivities had for her.

Barry had rather fallen in love with Marcia at sight and was trying to fall out again because it was evident on the face of it that he was a poor sort of fellow for a girl like her.

Three days after this conversation, Marcia, in hunting for a lost slipper in her trunk, came upon her bathing suit.

She pulled it out and shook it. Then she went to the top of the narrow flight of stairs.

"Oh, grandmother! Is there any place where one could go swimming?"

After a moment, her grandmother's voice came back doubtfully, "Why, I don't know. There's a pool down at the bend that the boys used to use. Kind of shallow now, I suppose."

Barry saw her go by his gate and guessed her destination from a pair of gay red rubber bathing shoes protruding from her coat pocket. He started up, then sat back again and slowly refilled his pipe. For some time he sat smoking and thinking.

If only Marcia had been just an ordinary girl with no material relatives in Back Bay, no Radcliffe diploma, no Cambridge accent, he would have felt more like going to her and saying, "Darling. I'm a poor devil of a writer who threw up a job as reporter to go off by myself and write a book. I was born in Pawtucket and I don't know the Common from Copps Hill burying ground. But I love you and will work my fool head off to keep the wolf from the door!"

Grabbing his hat and apology for a proper walking stick—an old length of what had once been a gate rail—he set forth along the dusty gravel road that skirted the river.

At the turn of the road the pool made by the widening of the river became visible, but in its depths no bright head was visible.

Suddenly his face blanched.

"Help! Help!"

He broke into a run. Yes, the cry had come from Marcia. Half way down the bank at the spot where it was steepest she could be seen in a condition that to any but a lover might have been unrecognizable. Petitcodiac mud coated her from head to foot.

Barry could see where she had tobogganed down by long slide marks. Halfway, she had sunk into the brown ooze and her struggles had only served to submerge her still more. Terrified, she had cried for help.

Gingerly, lest he make matters worse, by inviting a similar predicament for himself, Barry stepped to the edge, then down a foot or two, and extended his stick.

"Grab it!" he ordered. "Now hold it while I pull." The whole bank quivered and Barry went in halfway to his knees. Splashes of mud went over him. Then the smeared and trembling Marcia was hauled to safety beside him.

"Poor child!" he said, kindly. "But how did it happen?"

Marcia gulped. "I—I did it on purpose," she said sheepishly.

Barry just looked at her. Marcia Makepeace of Boston sliding down into primeval ooze for the fun of it!

"Oh, my dear, my dear!" was all he could say for a moment. Then, taking her in his arms, mud and all, he enlarged upon that theme until Marcia had indeed promised to become his dear.

CHAPTER XII
STRANGE FRIENDLINESS

"What we can't understand, Miss Jordan," Mrs. Parr said, as soon as Christine returned to her own cabin, "is why you didn't talk things over with us last night—especially as Miss Lind is Miss Crane's passenger. We've been kept in the dark—all we knew was what everyone knew this morning, that you'd been ashore without leave."

Christine glanced at the empty glass which stood on the dressing table, and guessed why they were no longer in the dark: Miss Crane had been up to the bar for her favourite nightcap, gin and tonic, and George had given her the latest gossip.

"You haven't exactly encouraged me to talk things over with you, have you?" she said quietly. "We've barely been on speaking teams lately, and if I had asked for your advice last night, you would have told me to go to Mr. Perrin."

"That's where you make a mistake, Miss Jordan," Mrs. Parr assured her, with an ingratiating smile. "At least, if we had advised going to Mr. Perrin, one of us would have gone with you, to back you up, for we all knew, not to pay too fine a point upon it, that Mr. Perrin would be only too willing to turn a blind eye to anything done by that passenger, however scandalous."

"No decent woman would hesitate to do what she could, in a case where a young girl was in danger," Miss Crane put in. "I agree with Mrs. Parr, Miss Jordan, that you should have consulted us—if you had—you would have been spared what must have been a very unpleasant interview with Mr. Perrin this afternoon, even if it is all going to come right for you in the end."

Christine stared at them in astonishment, for she couldn't understand why these two, openly her enemies from the very beginning of the voyage, had suddenly become so genial. She simply didn't believe that they would have backed her up if she had taken them into her confidence before going ashore.

Then it dawned on her that the [illegible] was buzzing with the rumour [illegible] somebody—probably the chef—was going to speak out plainly at the head office. Perrin's toadies, whose one idea up to then had been to keep in his good graces, on any terms, were beginning to wonder whether his reign was not going to be a very short one. Once an enquiry into his methods was started, who knew where it might not end?

"If anything of the same sort happens again," she told them, with a rather scornful little smile, "you shall know all about it."

"And I hope that now we've had this little explanation, we shall all be more friendly," Mrs. Parr suggested.

Christine whisked off to the bathroomwithout answering her, for she simply could not respond to these insincere offers of friendship, considering how much she had endured from Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane. They were both in bed when she returned, having evidently decided to leave her alone for that night.

When she went up to her own section, early next morning, Christine found that there certainly was a rumour that Perrin was to be reported to the head office. Perrin, himself was probably the only member of the staff who did not know of it.

Arthur Grant was in a state of suppressed glee, and Cator and Edwards, like the two stewardesses, were suddenly extremely friendly. It was almost embarrassing to Christine.

She was quite relieved when their arrival at Singapore, gave everyone something fresh to think about. This was the first port at which they were to lose any of their passengers, for none had landed at Penang, and they were kept busy helping the departing passengers to pack up. Christine herself was losing Miss Robins and the mother with two children in number four, and expected to have those two rooms empty until they reached Shanghai, for they seldom took on any extra passengers at Singapore or Hong Kong.

But half-an-hour after the Hay Tor tied up at the wharf, Perrin sent for Grant, who came back soon afterwards looking excited and amused.

"I'm to get number four ready," he told Christine, "and you'll never guess, if you try from now to sailing time, who's going to occup it. Get ready for a shock, Christine."

"I'm ready," she said cheerfully, "and you can tell me at once, Arthur, for I never was any good at guessing games. Is it a film star? We had one on the Brent once, and all the women on board went completely crazy about him, though he looked quite ordinary to me."

"It's somebody a lot more interesting than a film star, Christine—it's Mrs. Royde."

"Do you mean to say that Royde is married?" she gasped.

"Must be, for his wife is certainly coming to meet him. You know that we're crossing the Yes Tor here? Well, Mrs. Royde has come from Shanghai on the Yes Tor, because of the trouble there. The agents sent a message to Perrin to have a room got ready for her.

The Forgotten Wife

Christine's first thought was for Fay, who was so infatuated with Royde that she had refused to believe anything against him, even when the evidence was clear. She'd have to believe now. Christine was convinced that Fay had not the slightest idea that Royde was married, and that the arrival of his wife would be a most terrible shock to her.

"Is the Yes Tor here already?" she asked, wondering whether she would have a chance to warn Fay before Mrs. Royde actually came on board.

"Due in an hour. Passengers won't be rushing ashore here, Christine, except those who are leaving us—the news is sure to get round that Mrs. Royde is coming, and everyone will be hanging about, hoping to see the meeting between her and her husband. She's probably one of those sour, grim women—whatever she's like, I'm sorry for her."

Christine was in the port alley-way when Mrs. Royde came up with her husband, followed by Grant carrying her luggage. She was a woman of Royde's own age, not beautiful, but with an air of distinction and quiet dignity, perfectly dressed in pearl grey silk with a big black hat. Her shadowed eyes had a tragic look, as if, when Mrs. Royde smiled, the smile never reached those dark eyes.

"You are my stewardess?" she said kindly, as she passed Christine. "Could you bring me some tea up here?—just a cup of tea."

Martin Royde glanced quickly at Christine as he followed his wife into number four. Perhaps, until that moment, he had not realized that she was going to be Mrs. Royde's stewardess. When Christine came back with the tea, he was sitting on the settee, watching Mrs. Royde unpack, and talking to her in a rather embarrassed way, but he got up and strolled out of the room, very casually, while Christine was putting down the tray and taking Mrs. Royde's orders about bath times.

He was in the alley-way between Christine and the companion, when she went out, and there was no one else in sight.

"Are you still—incorruptible, stewardess?" he asked her, taking a well-filled note case out of his pocket.

"I am still quite determined not to take any money from you, for any services, Mr. Royde," she said calmly.

"You ought to be put in a museum, stewardess. It is so little that I am asking of you—only a quiet tongue."

"You asked that before, Mr. Royde, and I told you that I would keep silence, for Fay Lind's sake. And I think I have another reason for silence now."

"And that is?"

"Mrs. Royde," she said, meeting his eyes.

"To whom you have spoken, for about two minutes," he said, in a curiously moved voice. "You're a clever girl, stewardess, and a good one. You're right — Mrs. Royde would not be surprised, I am afraid by that incident at Penang, if you babbled to her, but she would be very badly hurt. And—she has been hurt so often."

"I will not babble with her," she promised, "but—it's all over the ship, Mr. Royde, not through me. The whole staff knows about it, and sooner or later it is almost bound to reach the passengers."

"If it does reach my wife, I will believe that it is not through you," he said gravely, and went back into number four.

Christine guessed that Royde dreaded any gossip reaching his wife about himself and Fay, not because she would be angry, but because she would be so badly hurt. He loved his wife, in his fashion.

Later, she saw them going ashore together for the evening, and noticed the odd gentleness of Royde's manner to his wife, so different from the coarse familiarity with which he treated Doria Smythe, or his subtly flattering way with Fay. They were talking quietly together as they went down the gangway, and Christine saw Royde stretch out his hand to adjust the collar of his wife's evening cloak, a natural little gesture which seemed, somehow, to be the symbol of years of close companionship.

It was stifling on board. The ship was coaling, and though canvas screens covered the windows, shutting out every breath of air, the whole place was gritty with coal dust. Some of the passengers were sleeping ashore in hotels that night to avoid the dirt and noise of all-night coaling, and the others had all gone ashore for the evening.

Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane both happened to have friends in Singapore, and they got permission to go ashore after dinner, on the understanding that for once Christine would attend to their passengers as well as her own—it was most unlikely, really, that anything would be wanted.

As soon as they had gone, Christine went along the alley-way to Fay's room. Fay had not been at dinner in the saloon, Christine knew, for Grant had told her that the only passengers at dinner were a thrifty couple who never missed a meal, even when the ship was in port. If Fay had been in her own room during dinner, Miss Crane ought to have reported it, but Miss Crane was so busy getting ready to go ashore that she might easily have forgotten to add Fay's name to the list.

A Woman Scorned

The room was dark, but when Christine turned on the light she saw that Fay was lying on her bed—she flung one arm across her eyes as the light went on. Christine sat down on the edge of the bed and took Fay's other hand in hers.

"I wish I could have warned you" she said softly.

"I wish someone had warned me," Fay murmured. "Christine—Doria Smythe told me quite suddenly that Mrs. Royde was coming on board. I—I don't think I gave myself away. She meant it to be a shock, and it was an awful shock, but I managed to smile, Christine, and say something about Martin's not having told me, that Mrs. Royde meant to meet him here. I don't think she guessed that I didn't know—that he was married."

"She must have known herself, all the time," Christine said, "for she and Martin Royde are old friends."

"That's why she thought, I expect, that Martin was trying to trick me in Penang — she didn't think he could be seriously in love with me. Oh, Christine, why didn't Martin tell me himself? He might have trusted me. He might have known that I'd understand."

"That you'd understand — what, Fay?"

"Why, that he was tied to a cold, hard woman who meant nothing to him, and that he wasn't free to ask me to marry him. She's at least forty, and not a bit pretty, and she looks so dull. They can't have anything in common."

"Except a good many years af married life. Fay, you've got it all wrong," Christine said, smoothing the fair curls back from Fay's forehead. "You're just fooling yourself, because you don't want to believe that Martin Royde has been deceiving you all the time. Mrs. Royde is my passenger, and she isn't cold and hard and dull—she's a very charming woman. And her husband loves her."

"He loves me," Fay cried, sitting up abruptly, and it was as though she was trying to convince herself as well as Christine. "I know he loves me, Christine."

"I don't think that he's in love with you now, dear. He's altered since Mrs. Royde came on board."

"He's hiding his feelings from her, and—oh, Christine, he must be wondering whether I hate him now that I've found out that he's married. I haven't even seen him, and I don't suppose I shall get a chance of talking to him alone, unless I watch out for it. She'll cling to him, she won't let him out of her sight for a single moment."

"Don't try to see him alone", Christine pleaded. "If Martin Royde has any explanation to make to you, he'll find a chance of making it, and if he hasn't . . . Don't force a scene on him." Fay, still crazily infatuated with Royde, had taken it into her head now that Christine was secretly delighted that all this had happened. It was a relief to her to be angry with someone—since she would not allow herself to be angry with Royde—and in a few minutes she had worked up a real grievance against Christine.

"You're still trying to interfere, Christine," she said pettishly. "It's your fault, in a way, that Martin has never told me that he was married — thanks to your interference before, we've never been alone together for long, for I've always been afraid that you'd come butting in, as you did the night we left Port Said. I've always felt like a child with a nurse in the background."

"After all, Fay, I did once come butting in at the right moment," Christine reminded her. "It would have been a pretty serious thing for you to be stranded with Royde in Penang—even if he had taken you to friends it would have caused no end of gossip. And I'm very likely going to lose my job on account of it, playing nurse to you hasn't been exactly a pleasure."

"You'll soon get another job," Fay said indifferently, and added with a touch of spite: "At least, if you're not going to come out to spy on me, every few months. I shall have a chance of living my own life in Shanghai."

Christine realized that Fry was drifting into one of those impossible moods of hers, when anything which was said to her made her more obstinately angry. It was no good being annoyed with her, for she was only venting her own pain and bewilderment on Christine, like a frightened kitten scratching anyone who tries to hold it. Christine stayed with her for a few minutes longer.

Fatal Words

For days past, Christine had seen nothing of John Stanhope, but she met him now in the alley-way. He was in shore-going uniform, and evidently in a great hurry, and he only paused for a moment to make some casual remark about the noise and dust of the coaling.

It was all very well, Christine thought wearily, throwing herself down on the settee, for her to give wise advice to Fay—Fay wasn't nearly so foolish as she was. Martin Royde had at least given Fay reason to think that he loved her, but Christine was fretting her heart out for a man who had never been more than friendly, even at the best of times, and who had treated her with cold formality for the greater part of the voyage.

Martin Royde and his wife were ashore most of the two days that the ship was in port, and Christine realized that Fay could not possibly have found a chance of speaking to him alone. She hoped against hope that Fay's pride would come to her aid, and that she would decide of her own accord not to attempt to have an explanation with Martin, but she was anxious, for she heard from the stewards that "little Miss Lind was moping about the ship."

Naturally, everyone on board was watching Fay, with a certain amount of cynical amusement. Royde's changed behaviour since his wife's arrival struck the stewards as funny, and they were almost hoping for an explosion of some sort, either between Royde and his wife or between Mrs. Royde and Fay.

The night after the ship left Singapore, Christine went up to her own section late in the evening, to make sure that Dion Farrant was asleep.

Dion was fast asleep, guarded by the little light which kept off tigers, and Christine tip-toed out of the room again. She glanced along the alley-way as she came out of number sixteen, and saw Fay, leaning against the bulkhead at the far end of the alley-way, her hands flat against the wall on either side. Something in the girl's pose, some hint of desperation, made Christine run to her.

Fay did not see Christine until she was close to her, for she was staring at the door of number four, Mrs. Royde's cabin. And when Christine touched her she started forward, pushing Christine aside.

"I'm going to her, Christine," she said, "and you can't stop me—I've made up my mind. I've never seen Martin for a moment without her and I'm nearly crazy with suspense, and I'm going to her."

"You can't possibly do such a thing," Christine protested. "If he hasn't told her himself—"

"She was in the lounge just now, alone. I'm going to have things out—if Martin hasn't told her, I will."

She shook off Christine's hand and took a step forward, and then suddenly stood very still, glancing with a guilty air over her shoulder. They had both heard the soft click of the door of the cabin de luxe close behind them.

"What are you doing here, Fay may I ask?" Martin Royde said quietly.

Fay answered with a pathetic attempt at defiance. "There's no reason why I shouldn't be here, Martin. I mean it's a public alley-way."

He stared at her very coldly, and then his eyes travelled from her to the door of number four, ten feet or so away.

"You weren't, by any chance, going to call on my wife, were you, Fay?" he said.

"Yes, I was," she gasped, suddenly losing her self-control. "I can't stand it any more, Martin."

Martin Royde laughed, and there was such insult in that low laughter that Fay shrank back.

"I love one woman in the world and that's my wife," he said. "You were good enough for a flirtation—just good enough—and you did throw yourself at me, didn't you, Fay?"

"I hate you — oh, I hate you," Fay cried in a strangled voice.

She turned and ran blindly towards the companion, stumbling as she ran, and sobbing under her breath, and her face was so stricken that even Royde was startled.

CHAPTER XIII
A Wife's Questions

"Go after her, stewardess—I've gone too far, and that girl may do anything," Royde said urgently.

Christine hardly heard him. She had been taken unawares by Fay's swift movement, but after only a moment's pause she followed her sister. When she reached the companion, she could hear Fay running up to the boat deck.

But Christine's foot was only just on the bottom step when Fay fell, stumbling again and then falling backwards with a choked cry. At the crash, an excited group of passengers came rushing out of the lounge, and in a few seconds a crowd had gathered round the girl who lay very still, her head on Christine's lap.

"Cator, fetch Dr. Stanhope at once," Christine called, glancing up and seeing the steward on watch.

It seemed a very long time to her before John Stanhope came, though Cator had found him in the smoke-room, and it had only taken a few moments to run along the alley-way. At first, Christine had thought that Fay was dead, but she knew now that she was breathing, though she was quite unconscious.

"The stretcher, and we'll take her straight up to the hospital," John Stanhope ordered.

But Miss Crane was on the scene even before the stretcher came, for the steward on watch with Cator had run to tell her that one of her passengers was injured. When Fay was lifted on to the stretcher, Christine had to stand back, and it was Miss Crane who followed the little procession up to the hospital—Fay was not Christine's passenger, and she had no right to go with her.

For one moment, she had thought of claiming Fay as her sister, but when she looked at the circle of eager faces she kept silent. She could do Fay no good by going up to the hospital with her, and if Fay was only slightly hurt, and would be coming back to the other passengers in a day or two, it would be cruelly hard for her to have to face the storm of gossip which such a public statement would cause.

Miss Crane came down to the stewardesses' cabin an hour later, to fetch her knitting and a pair of bedroom slippers. By that time, Christine was sick with suppressed anxiety, but her first glance at Miss Crane's face told her that Fay was not dead, or likely to die.

"Poor young thing. I've got to sit up with her until midnight, and then the doctor's taking over," Miss Crane said. "There are no bones broken, but she's got a touch of concussion, which is not to be wondered at considering the fall she had. Were you there, Miss Jordan?—did you see how she came to fall?"

"I think she caught her foot on her frock—it was rather long," Christine said. "She was running up the companion and she stumbled on the top step."

"I wonder what set her running," Mrs. Parr said, with a shrewd glance at Christine. "Was that Royde anywhere about, Miss Jordan?"

"He was there soon after she fell, but so were a great many other people—they came tearing out of the lounge."

"And Royde was in the lounge?"

"I hadn't time to notice where everyone came from," Christine said, trying to sound casual.

She went into number four early that afternoon, to collect some linen which Mrs. Royde wanted to send to the laundry. Mrs. Royde was lying on the settee, reading a book, but she laid it down when Christine came in.

"Stewardess," she said quietly, "Have you any recent news of Miss Lind? The doctor did not come in to lunch, so we could not ask him."

"Miss Crane, who is nursing her, told me half-an-hour ago, that she was going on very well," Christine said. "She is not in any danger at all."

There was still a question in Mrs. Royde's dark eyes, and Christine, who had picked up the laundry bag, paused before going out of the room.

"People always gossip over anything like this, I suppose," Mrs. Royde said in a strained voice, "and Mrs. Bugle told me a most extraordinary story—about you and Miss Lind and my husband. She says—that they would have been stranded in Penang, if you had not gone ashore to warn Miss Lind."

"To warn them both," Christine amended, with a smile. "Mr. Royde had made a mistake over sailing time—which would be quite enough to set people like Mrs. Bugle gossiping."

"And the Chief Steward sent you, instead of one of the men, so that if they did miss the ship, Miss Lind would have a woman with her?"

"Something like that," Christine agreed.

There was a little pause, and then Mrs. Royde said hurriedly, avoiding Christine's eyes: "Stewardess, I am ashamed of myself for asking you questions, but I don't want to ask one of the passengers—or my husband. You see, I may be worrying myself without a cause, just—just because some silly women have repeated a certain amount of gossip to me. They say—that Miss Lind and my husband have been carrying on a flirtation all the voyage, and that they quarrelled last night, which led to Miss Lind's accident. I expect—that you know the truth, stewardess."

"The truth is," Christine said steadily, "that young girls like Miss Lind often are—rather silly about middle-aged men. Mr. Royde danced with her sometimes, and took her ashore in Port Said, and she lost her head just enough to set people talking. There has been no harm done, Mrs. Royde. As for last night—no one was there when Miss Lind fell, except me, so anything that they may say is only rather spiteful guessing.

"I believe you—perhaps because I so much want to believe you," Mrs. Royde said, in a low voice. "And thank you for your kindness, stewardess."

"Fetch Her Sister"

And Christine knew, with a pang of pity, that Mrs. Royde had no illusions about her husband. Because she loved him still, in spite of everything, she even hid her own pain from him when she could, and pretended to be blind when she really saw only too clearly. That was why she had questioned Christine: she had to know the truth, and not from Martin, and though Christine had done her best, she had not concealed the truth from the woman who possessed such bitter knowledge of her husband.

When Miss Crane came down from the hospital, soon after midnight, she said that Fay had been conscious all day, but that she was very restless.

Although it was so late, none of the stewardesses were in a hurry to go to bed that night. Christine sat curled up in a corner of the settee, hardly hearing the extremely spiteful conversation with which the others were enthralled, but thinking her own thoughts about the same three people—Royde, Mrs. Royde and Fay. Dearly though she loved Fay, she knew that the only one of those three capable of feeling deeply, of suffering deeply, was the quiet woman with the tragic eyes, fated to love a man who was not worthy of her.

The door was half open, as usual in hot weather, and from her place on the settee Christine could look out into the alley-way, which was hidden from the others, who sat side by side on Mrs. Parr's bunk. When John Stanhope came along the alley-way, his rubber-soled shoes making no sound, and signed to her to come, Christine slipped out of the cabin unnoticed. She could hear the sharp,eager voices of Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane continuing their gossip without a break.

"I want you to come up to the hospital, Miss Jordan," he said, as soon as they were out of hearing of the stewardesses. "Miss Lind is asking for you."

"She's not—wor[illegible]?" Christine breathed.

"No, but she's worrying about something, and can't sleep — and she must sleep if she is to make a quick decovery. She has been tossing about restlessly all the evening and hardly speaking, but she has just asked me whether I would fetch her sister."

"She must have wondered why I did not come to her, but I couldn't come up to the hospital where she was Miss Crane's patient," Christine said.

John Stanhope had spoken so naturally that it wasn't until they had nearly reached the hospital that Christine realized that Fay had given their secret away—John Stanhope knew now that they were sisters.

Fay was lying very still in the narrow hospital bed, her eyes fixed on the doorway. She looked oddly childish with a white bandage across her forehead, hiding most of her curls, and without any trace of make-up. Christine went straight across to the bed and stooped to kiss Fay, who flung her arms round her neck and held her close.

"I couldn't come before, darling," Christine murmured, "but I've been thinking about you all day."

"And I've been thinking, too," Fay said, "and I had to talk to you to-night, Christine, even though it's so late, and you must be so tired. I'm sorry, I meant to wait until morning, but when Dr. Stanhope asked me if I wanted anything I couldn't resist asking him to go for you."

"I hadn't gone to bed — I was worrying about you, Fay."

"I've been a little beast to you, Christine—you've been worrying about me ever since we left. Sit down by me, Christine."

"It won't jar your head if I sit on the bed?"

"No, there's nothing much wrong with my head. I've had a terrific headache all day, but it was from thinking too much. It's almost gone now that you've come, Christine."

Christine sat down on the edge of the bed, and Fay, with a little sigh, snuggled up close to her. For a few minutes she did not speak, but pleated the edge of Christine's apron between her restless fingers.

"I wasn't really in love with Martin," she said at last, in a low voice. "I was just—crazy about him and I recovered all in a moment when he said what he did last night. I knew before that, Christine, that I wasn't in love with him, and it was just my pride that was hurt when I found out that he was married. Only—I was sort of play-acting with myself. I wouldn't admit, even to myself, that I was such a little rotter that I was throwing myself at Martin's head, because he was wealthy and flattered me."

"You didn't throw yourself at his head Fay," Christine said quietly. "He only said that to hurt you."

"It would have been true if it hadn't been for you, Christine. And that time in Penang—I know quite well that Martin did really fix it all up with Doria Smythe. I never even thanked you properly for coming ashore."

"I didn't want you to thank me, Fay."

"And there's another thing," Fay said slowly, still pleating the edge of Christine's apron. "Are you really going to lose your job, because you went ashore? I know you said so, but I didn't take it seriously somehow."

"I may lose it. Mr. Perrin is going to make a report—but this isn't the only job in the world, you know."

"Can't I do anything?" Fay asked earnestly. "Couldn't I go to the Captain. He's a dear old man, and I'm sure he'd understand, if I told him just how it happened."

"You needn't worry, Fay — it'll all be thrashed out at the head office," Christine said, smiling wisely to herself.

Stanhope Speaks Out

Fay was play-acting again, although she was so much in earnest, planning a dramatic reparation for the harm which she had done Christine; she would really enjoy asking the Captain for an interview and telling him all about it.

"And—what are you going to tell mother?" Fay asked, in quite a different voice—she wasn't play-acting now.

"Very little. I'll have to tell her why I went ashore in Penang, if there's a row about it, but I needn't tell her that it wasn't all rather casual and accidental, just a genuine mistake over sailing time. Mother isn't going to hear anything from me that will start her fretting about you. With things as they are in Shanghai, perhaps you will not be allowed to stay."

"That's what I've really been worrying about all day," Fay said. "I don't want mother to fret."

"Then you can go to sleep now?"

"If you'll stay with me, Christine, just for a little time. I wish you could nurse me instead of that old cat, Miss Crane—she's been trying to pump me, and if my head hadn't been aching so badly I should have been rude to her."

It was a long time before Fay went to sleep. Although she had said so emphatically that she hadn't really been in love with Martin Royde, Christine knew that she had endured a good deal during the last few days, even before her accident. To a girl like Fay, it must have been torment to know that all the people about whom she had been so scornful were talking about her and pitying her, in a gloating sort of way. She had been so unpopular with them that their pity couldn't be very heartfelt

Fay was much calmer than when Christine came up to the hospital, but every now and then she would rouse herself, just when she seemed to be dropping off to sleep, to murmur something about Royde—Christine couldn't catch half the things she said. When she did fall asleep at last, the little breez which came before the dawn was fluttering the curtain at the hospital window.

Christine stodd up quietly, turned off the light, and went through into the outer room of the hospital. John Stanhope, his elbows on the narrow window ledge, was looking out, watching the slow fading of the stars of the tropic sky, but he turned swiftly when he heard Christine.

"I've got some coffee for you," he said. "It only wants heating up — but are you so tired that you'd rather go straight down to your own cabin?"

"I'm not a bit tired, though I expect I shall be later on in the morning. I'm so thankful about Fay—we've been almost enemies all the voyage, and it's hurt me so bodly, but we've made it up now."

He pulled forward an armchair for her and began to heat the coffee over the electric ring which stood on a table in the corner. Christine watched him, but he did not speak.

Vary carefully, Stanhope poured the coffee into two cups and handed one to Christine, and then swung himself up into his favourite place on the edge of the table.

"Why did you tell no one that you and Miss Lind were sisters?" he asked abruptly.

"Because Fay was ashamed of it. It was by sheer accident that we had to sail on the same ship, and I promised her that I wouldn't let anyone know."

"Ashamed! Christine, you don't mean to tell me that that silly little girl was ashamed of you. Why, you're worth a hundred of her."

"Not—socially," she said, with a little smile. "My profession doesn't rank very high, you know, and Fay would have had rather a bad time if the passengers had found out. That's why I had to be so careful not even to let the staff guess, and of course it was easy, in a way, since Fay and I are only half-sisters and haven't got the same name."

John Stanhope began stirring his coffee slowly, as if he was entirely absorbed in that task. His face was very grave and intent, and she wondehed what was coming next.

"I've no right to ask you," he said at last, "but are you free, now to tell me where you were, that night when Miss Robins was ill and you left the hospital?"

"I went to Fay. I heard by chance, from Arthur Grant, that Fay was with Royde in the cabin de luxe, and I went—to frighten her into leaving him. She was terrified that I would claim her as my sister."

"From Arthur Grant?" he said thoughtfully, and then his manner changed suddenly, and he burst out: "Tell me the truth. There have been all sorts of vague rumours around the ship about you and Grant—Perrin himself repeated them to me. When you have been out of your cabin at night, has it always been on account of your sister, because you were meeting her secretly? I would not have believed a word against you, if I had not seen you and Grant with my own eyes, here in the hospital, and remembered that other time, when you could not explain where you had been."

"Grant told you the truth," she said, meeting his eyes. "He tried to kiss me that night, but he has never done such a thing before or since, and he apologized next morning."

"Then you don't—love him?"

"You didn't really think that I loved Arthur Grant, did you?" she asked quietly.

"I didn't know what to think. If—if it hadn't been so terribly important to me, I might have taken no notice of what Perrin told me, but as it was—it was all such a shock to me that I simply daren't hope that there was some other explanation."

"You daren't — hope", she whispered. "Why not?"

"Are You Proposing?"

"Don't you know that I'm in love with you myself, Christine?" he asked, almost aggressively. "I believe it all started on signing-on day, when I looked across the table and saw you waiting to sign — I couldn't get you out of my head after that. And then, when we were working together, it was all I could do not to tell you—I thought you'd think I'd gone quite mad if I proposed to you when we'd only known one another a few days, for that's what I wanted to do. I was just on the point of risking it when all this business blew up about Grant and I thought I hadn't a hope and that it would make things very awkward for you if I said anything."

"Are you proposing to me now, John?" she said softly.

"Of course I am, Christine. Though I shan't think much of your judgment, I must admit, if you accept a man who's been ready to swallow such silly gossip about you, I'm not at all proud of myself, Christine."

"I just can't help accepting you, John," she told him. "You see—the same thing happened to me on signing-on day, though I didn't know it until a lot later. I've not been proud of myself, either—because I thought I was fretting my heart out for a man who didn't care at all for me."

"We're a pair of fools," John laughed, and his blue eyes danced as he stooped over her, and then suddenly grew very grave. "One kiss, sweetheart," he whispered, "and then you must go. It's daylight already—we've talked the sun up the sky."

It seemed to Christine that she had waited all her life for John's kiss, which pledged her to him until death parted them.

They went out on to the boat deck together, into the fresh, salty air of early morning at sea, with the sea birds wheeling and crying over their heads. Below them, out of sight, some seamen were singing as they swabbed the decks, and though the song was really the latest film favorite, its accompaniment of wind and waves made it sound like some old sea chanty.

"We'll ask the Captain to marry us on the bridge, Christine, in true nautical fashion," John Suggested, looking up at the officer on watch, who was grinning at them as if he knew all about it.

"And we'll ask Mr. Perrin to give me away," Christine said, and laughed because she was so happy, and because nothing which Perrin could do could matter to her any more.

She belonged to John now.

DOCTORS CHECK KIDNEYS FIRST

Because they know that healthy Kidneys remove from the blood the waste matter—the excess acids and poisons, formed by the ever-changing human body as it decays and rebuilds itself. But if the Kidneys fail, illness surely follows. Backache, Rheumatism, Impure Blood, Lack of Energy, Too Frequent Urination, Sleeplessness, Headaches—all may result from faulty kidneys. As a health safeguard—as a wise precaution—regulate your kidneys frequently with Dodd's Kidney Pills—for over fifty years the favorite Kidney remedy—non-habit forming—safe. 105

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

MACAULAY AGREES WITH MR. HEPBURN IN HIS PROTEST

Justified In His Claim Respecting Setting of Wheat Prices

CRITICIZES KING

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP) — Leopold Macaulay, leader of the Conservative Party in the Ontario Legislature, supported the declaration of Premier Hepburn against the Federal Government's guarantee of a minimum price for Western Canada wheat in an address last night before the Toronto Eglington Riding Conservative Association.

"Sometimes I don't like Premier Hepburn's methods or the violent phrasing of his statements, but I think he is completely justified in his protests against the wheat bonus," Mr. Macaulay said. "I can't blame the administration for feeling that Ontario is being made the milch cow for Canada when western farmers get 85 cents a bushel for wheat and the Ontario farmer can get only 50 cents.

"There is discrimination, too, in

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Weather and paradise! Curiously enough, climate and weather greatly influence people in shaping their various conceptions of heaven. This is natural because we generally picture such a place as giving material comfort. Thus to the old Scandinavians, with their cold weather and wind-swept mountains, heaven is a place of comforting warmth, and hell a place of cold and mist. But in the warmer countries, like Palestine and Arabia, where there is plenty of warmth and even aridity, hell is a place of heat and eternal fire while heaven is cool with flowing water,

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Pressure is high over the Western Provinces and Northwest States, also Quebec and the Atlantic States; quite low over the northwest portion of the continent with a shallow trough of low extending from Lake Superior southwestward to Texas. Rain and snow have occurred in southeastern Saskatchewan, southern Manitoba and the Rainy River district. The weather is cool throughout the Prairie Provinces, and it has become somewhat cooler over Eastern Canada.

Lake Superior—Fresh winds, shifting to north and northwest tonight; unsettled with showers. Wednesday, fresh northwesterly winds; partly cloudy and cooler.

Manitoba — Fresh northeast to northwest winds; cloudy and cool with scattered showers or snowflurries. Wednesday, northwest and west winds; fair and a little milder.

Saskatchewan — Moderate northwest to west winds; fair today and Wednesday and becoming a little milder.

GRAVE CHARGE BY TORONTO MAYOR TO CITY COUNCIL

Communist Agitation of Single Unemployed In Toronto Claimed

READS REPORTS

Alleges Communists State They Have Toronto Council "Buffaloed"

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP) — Mayor Ralph C. Day carried his charges of Communist agitation in the ranks of single unemployed to city council last night. He repeated a statement made earlier in the day that Communists had extended invitations to single unemployed from all over Canada to head for Toronto and read confidential reports on the subject.

Mayor Day said Communists sent official statements throughout the country to the effect that the unemployed now had Toronto City Council "buffaloed" and "on the run".

The mayor named Alderman Stewart Smith as leader of the Communist party in Ontario, Alderman J. B. Salesberg, Communist Director for Trade Union work; Harvey Murphy, president of the Single Unemployed Association, and George Harris, secretary, as members of the Ontario Communist party executive.

Alleged Minutes of Meeting.

The mayor read a report of what he alleged to be minutes of meetings held by this association.

He read "Word has been sent throughout all the 'jungle' police stations, overnight stops, etc. throughout Canada, to head for Toronto, that the city council and provincial government are afraid of us and are going to provide a special building, supply beds, bedding, heat, food, etc., and give the association the running of it without interference.

"However, as only through a strong, fighting organization can we hold this, or gain any future concessions, we need every possible man here in Toronto. This is only the beginning; Vancouver will be a kindergarten beside this."

COBOURG MAYOR GIVEN BONUS

Council Passes Resolution Voting $300 As An Honorarium

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Cobourg town council last night passed a resolution voting $300 to Mayor Maurice Booth as an honorarium for his year's work. This is the first time a mayor has ever been paid in Cobourg although towns of the same size as Cobourg in other localities pay their municipal heads and councils. It was pointed out this was not by way of setting a precedent but to compensate the present mayor for the time he has expended on town business this year.

Councillor Mrs. C. Delaney suggested that at the next election the matter of paying councillors be raised.

Movement Launched to Fight Against Return of Colonies

Interests Seriously Perturbed Over Activity of German Reich

DEMAND PLEBISCITE

London, Oct. 19 (CP)—An organized movement, supported by powerful interests in South Africa, has been launched in England to fight against return of colonies lost by Germany in the Great War.

Leaders of the movement have drawn attention to Chancellor Hitler's statement during his historic conference with Prime Minister Chamberlain at Godesberg: "There is still the question of colonies, but that can be settled without war." South African spokesmen, however, insist there can be no negotiations with Germany on this issue without prior knowledge and consent of those most vitally concerned.

Pilot Chuck Austin, LEFT, found the missing plane two days afterwards and flew L. L. W. Ashcroft CENTRE, and Don Groome RIGHT, two of Sauve's passengers to Sudbury. Another rescue airplane flew Sauve and the third passenger, Joe LaFlamme, to safety.

F. Sprentall Suffers Shock on Hydro Pole at Stirling, Saved by Belt and by Assistant

Gordon Bailey Climbs Pole, Secures Superintendent Safely To Pole And Descending, Drives Some Distance To Throw Switch —Summons Doctor—On Return He Lowers Sprentall To Ground With Help —Doctor Gives First Aid And Orders Sprentall Taken To Hospital For Treatment For Shock And Burns

Stirling, Oct. 18—(Special) — Suffering from shock, burns and bruises, after narrowly escaping instant death from electrocution in Stirling late this morning, Frank Sprentall, superintendent of the Stirling Hydro-Electric system was taken to the Belleville General Hospital at noon today, where his condition was reported as "fairly good."

Engaged with his assistant, Gordon W. Bailey, also of Stirling in the erection of a new power line to the municipal well on Henry Street in the village, Mr. Sprentall had been at work on one of the tall poles. It is believed by his assistant, that while tightening one of the connections, his foot slipped. Attempting to avert a fall, he is believed to have clutched one of the wires carrying a heavy power load. The following shock rendered him almost immediately unconscious, and flung him away from the pole where he hung, suspended precariously upon his safety belt, and also clutching the 2,400 volt line.

Acting immediately, Mr. Bailey, his assistant, in spite of the threatened danger, climbed the pole with a section of rope, carefully secured the limp form of the superintendent to the pole, then descended and commandeered a passing motorist travelling to the central power station where the switch controlling the power was located. En route through the village, he summoned Dr. E. A. Carleton to the scene.

Arriving back where his superintendent was still hanging unconscious, Mr. Bailey with hastily summoned help, lowered the still unconscious form of Mr. Sprentall following which first aid treatment was given by the doctor, and consciousness restored. He was at once taken to the Belleville General Hospital, where he is at present recovering.

Surgeons to Wear Colored Gowns

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Men in white are to become men in light green, light blue or pale purple.

This change from classic white for medical garb was explained to the American College of Surgeons today by William Engal, M.D., of the Cleveland Clinic.

The reason—to get rid of glare. Surgeons, Dr. Engel explained, are pioneering the new style. Rapid increase in the candlepower of light available for their operations has brought cases of terrific eye strain.

The strain can be avoided by doing away with the snow-white walls, white gowns and uniforms and white "drapes", covers over the patient. A few surgeons already have begun to wear colored gowns.

LOADED REVOLVER AND $2,000 FOUND AFTER THE RAID

Woman Companion Charged With Receiving Stolen Goods

MONEY IN BATHROOM

Provincial Policemen Under Inspector Hammond Make Arrest

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Melville Campbell, 35, was arrested today by Windsor and Provincial Police in a raid on an apartment here. Police charged him with the robbery last Thursday of the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank of Canada and a Richmond, Ont., bank last July.

Miss Byrne, 22, found in the Campbell apartment, also was arrested and charged with receiving stolen goods. John Donaghue, 32, of Windsor, also found in the apartment was held for investigation. Two loaded revolvers were found in the apartment. One was identified by police as having been stolen in the Mount Brydges holdup when $4,000 loot was obtained.

Sum of Money Alleged Found.

Police said $2,000 in stolen money was recovered in the raid. A warrant was out for Campbell's arrest since soon after the robbery of the bank at Richmond, Ont., near Ottawa when $20,000 loot was taken. Oscar Campbell, a brother of Melville was sentenced to 12 years in Kingston on the Richmond bank robbery.

Campbell and Miss Byrne, police said, have been living in the Windsor apartment since Aug. 22 as Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Thompson.

Provincial police took Campbell and Donaghue to London where J. W. Flatt, manager of the Mount Brydges bank, and R. A. Norman, bank teller, will view them in a

Dr. Eduard Benes To Lecture at Chicago University

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP)—Dr. Eduard Benes, who resigned as President of Czechoslovakia after the republic's Sudeten area was ceded to Germany, has accepted an invitation to become a visiting professor at University of Chicago.

President Robert Hutchins announced yesterday he had received a cablegram of acceptance from Dr. Benes and that the Czech leader would deliver a series of lectures on democratic institutions.

"I know of no one better qualified to expound the significance of democracy in world affairs today, and to arouse interest in democracy," the university president said.

Dr. Benes' lectures will be under the sponsorship of the Charles Walgreen Foundation. He was expected to arrive as soon as he disposed of problems arising from his resignation. His predecessor and first president of Czechoslovakia, the late Thomas Masaryk, was a lecturer at the university from 1901 to 1903.

Slogan on Truck Calls 'Religion Snare and Racket'

Fort Erie, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Police today studied the Criminal Code here to ascertain what clauses, if any, applies to a written complaint laid by Rev. Captain Henry Cotton, local minister, of the presence of a truck being operated nightly by a religious sect in the Fort Erie business section. The truck bears slogans in large print, "Religion is a snare and a racket" and is equipped with a loud speaker.

Rev. Captain Cotton seeks passage of a bylaw which will cover such cases. Fort Erie Council turned over his complaint to the police department.

Acting Chief Walter Kent today said if that section of the Criminal Code regarding blasphemy, etc. covers the condition complained of, police plan to act on the complaint.

The liner brought 1,601 passengers and $25,000,000 in gold from Europe.

Four Mounted Men Armed With Shotguns Hunt for Big Bear

Marmora, Ont., (Special)—Shades of the good old days. Four mounted farmers armed with shotguns scoured the woods on the farm of Lindsay Neal near here, the other day, searching for a bear that earlier in the day had frightened twelve-year-old Tommy Neal.

The boys with his two dogs came across the bear while walking in the woods. The dogs attacked the animal but the boy called them off and hurried to his home where he informed his father and three brothers of the proximity of Bruin. Grabbing their guns, and each mounting a horse, the quartette of Neals returned to the spot where Bruin had last been seen, but they lost the trail in the darkness and the bear ambled on in safety.

'GIGANTIC FRAUD' CAPT. TINTELEIN DECLARES OF PACT

Ex-Agent of German Service Says War Threat of Hitler Bluff

ARMY HEAD OPPOSED

London, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas) — Captain von Tintelein, said to be a former agent of the German Intelligence Service, said last night in a speech at Bromley that the Munich four-power settlement was a "gigantic fraud" because Germany would not have gone to war.

"The affair of two weeks ago was a gigantic fraud and a bluff, and both England and France fell for it," said Captain von Tintelein. "I have positive and definite information and evidence of it. It was never a question of war or peace at all.

"The German high command was opposed to war throughout, and if war had come something would have happened in Germany that you would never have thought of."

War Debts to U. S. Settled After U. S. Elections?

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP)—The financial newspaper, Agence Economique et Financiere, predicted today that British and French war debts to the United States would be settled after the American elections next month.

The newspaper, close to the Ministry of Finance, said France then "would, moreover, benefit from the possibility of obtaining important credits" in the United States.

"In view of the evolution in attitude of governing circles in United States as well as in England," said the newspaper, "it seems normal to consider that after the elections to be held Nov. 8 in the United States, it will be possible to examine and settle the problem of war debts with the entire breadth of view necessary."

France owes more than $4,250,000,000. (Great Britain's debt is approximately $5,000,000,000.)

Radio Songbird, Ruth Etting, Sued for Love Theft Damages

Mrs. Alma Alderman Enters Suit After Shooting Affray

SNYDER GIVEN BAIL

Los Angeles, Oct. 18 (AP)—Ruth Etting never sang a torch song so full of woe as this day held for her.

To add to the troubles of the radio songbird, after her first husband shot her second mate, the latter's second wife sued flaxen haired Ruth for $150,000 love theft damages.

Mrs. Alma Alderman, a willowy blond, charged that Myrl Alderman, Miss Etting's one-time piano player, has been living with her as husband and wife "under a pretended marriage".

It was pretended, the plaintiff alleged, because her own divorce from Alderman does not become final until Dec. 2.

An explanation was not immediately forthcoming from Miss Etting, who had said after Alderman was wounded in her home last Saturday

Britain Must Organize for Defence, He Declares in Answer to Hitler

Eden Declares World Is Rearming To The Teeth Organized For War

UPHOLDING STANDARDS

Broken Promises Mean World Like Zoo With Animals Loose

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—Anthony Eden today replied to Chancellor Hitler's oratorical attacks with the declaration that "there are no war-mongers among us."

Speaking at the 122nd annual meeting of the International Peace Society Mr. Eden, who resigned as Foreign Secretary Feb. 20 in protest against Prime Minister Chamberlain's policy towards the dictators, at the same time presented the case for an all-party government to replace Mr. Chamberlain's ministry.

He declared Great Britain must organize for defence or "our authority will continue to decline in a world which is rearming to the teeth and organized for war."

All-Party Government.

If this can be done more efficiently and speedily by "a government in which all parties are represented, then the case for such a government is surely unanswerable," he declared.

The former Foreign Secretary's reference to "war-mongers" was in reply to Hitler's Saarland speech Oct. 10 when he said "there are those abroad who do not want peace. . . . Supposing after Chamberlain there came Copper or Eden or Churchill? They are the men who would like to make war."

These three — Mr. Eden, Alfred Duff Cooper, and Winston Churchill —have been the leaders of opposition within the Conservative party to Mr. Chamberlain's foreign policy.

Impose Will to Uphold Standards.

Mr. Eden in his speech today urged that Great Britain use her strength "not just to impose our will as to the fate of this territory or that, but to uphold certain standards in the conduct of foreign affairs.

"If the sanctity of contract between nations is no longer respected, if we are to turn a blind eye to even the grossest breach of international faith, if all the nations are to break all their promises all the time, the world will be degenerate until it will resemble a zoological garden in which all the animals have been loosed at once."

Eucharistic Congress Opens at New Orleans

New Orleans, Oct. 18 (AP) — A solemn High Pontifical Mass conducted by George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago formally opened the eighth National Eucharistic Congress here today.

A chorus of five hundred men's voices chanted for the Proper and the Ordinary Mass.

Six Catholic Priests Now Under Arrest

Vienna, Oct. 18 (AP)—Six Roman Catholic priests and an employee of Theodor Cardinal Innitzer were under arrest today in continuation of what Nazis declared were measures against the "treasonable" attitude of the clergy toward the Nazi Party and Chancellor Hitler personally.

Those arrested, Nazis said, were suspected of organizing a demonstration before St. Stephen's Cathedral Oct. 7, during which Catholic youths chanted, after the Nazi fashion, "we want to see our Bishop", using the word "bishop" instead of the customary "Fuehrer".

They also were believed to be suspected of having a hand in the distribution of leaflets setting forth the Catholic side of Nazi-Catholic incidents which reached a climax the night of Oct. 8, when a pro-Nazi crowd stoned Cardinal Innitzer's Palace.

BRITISH TROOPS DOUBLED GUARD AGAINST ATTACKS

Afraid Modern City of Jerusalem Would Be Bombed

APPROACHES GUARDED

Aim Will Be To Recover Territory Now Held By Terrorists

By JAMES A. MILLS

Jerusalem, Oct. 18 (AP)—British troops doubled guard strength today lest Arab rebels attack the modern districts of Jerusalem after a night of terrorist bombings in the old section of the city.

Columns of British armored cars and truck loads of police patrolled streets outside the old city's walls. (The new city, grown up since 1858, lies chiefly to the northwest of the ancient citadel.)

The situation in the old city became so critical shortly before midnight yesterday that authorities had to rush military and police reinforcements to protect the Jewish and Armenian quarters, which were understood to be the only parts of the old city under complete government control.

All Approaches Guarded.

Other troops guarded every approach to the city.

Outlying garrisons deployed to recapture insurgent-held towns, preliminary to a punitive expedition by the full strength of 20,000 British troops and police to crush the estimated 10,000 Arab forces. They protest Jewish immigration sponsored by Great Britain under her League of Nations mandate to govern Palestine.

Officials set for the British force four main objectives, all aimed at recovering territory held by the Arabs:

1. Repair, occupation and control of widely sabotaged railroads.
2. Restoration and maintenance of telegraph and telephone communications badly disrupted by the insurgents.
3. Re-establishment of security on all highways, many now strewn with land mines.
4. Occupation of the more active rebel centres and punitive measures against the recalcitrant Arab villages.

The present garrisons, in line with the fourth objective, now are campaigning to recapture the towns of

TWO FACE CHARGES UNDER EXCISE ACT

Matthew Stone and George Baumhour, Monk Road residents near Bancroft, were arrested over the week end on charges of violations of the Excise Act, to wit the manufacture of illicit liquor. Stone and Baumhour were apprehended by R.C.M.P., after a still, suitable for the manufacture of "moonshine" had been confiscated by the Federal authorities. The pair were arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and remanded in custody to appear in County Police Court at Bancroft this week.

CONSTRUCTION WORK REPORTED EXCELLENT

The present season has been one of the best 'construction seasons' in years, it was reported this morning by one of the city's contractors who reports business in alterations and other work, which at this season is generally halted by weather conditions, extremely good. As if to support the statement, a downtown hardware shop reports a heavy sale in cement and other building products.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

At the annual meeting of Port Hope District No. 9 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation held at Port Perry, E H. Grigg, Campbellford was named president of the district branch for the ensuing year.

REV. E. M. LEACY APPOINTED PARISH PRIEST AT NAPANEE

Announcement has been made that Rev. E. M. Leacy, for many years parish priest of St. Vincent de Paul Church, Deseronto, has been appointed parish priest of St. Patrick's Church, Napanee. It was also announced that Rev. W. P. Healy, for nearly three years curate of St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, will take over the duties of Father Leacy at Deseronto. The change will take place the latter part of this month.

ENGINEERS GET FINE CATCH OF PICKEREL

R Taylor and D. Thoms, engineers on the Bancroft road, wound up the fishing season with a fine catch of pickerel at Clear Lake over the week end. Their catch consisted of fourteen pickerel and two fair sized 'lunge.

LARGE STOCKS COAL HELD BY DEALERS

Coal dealers of the city though off to a poor start this season, apparently are confident of a cold winter it is evident by the huge piles of coal now observed on the docks south of the city. Not for some time have dealers been as well prepared for business, it is reported by one dealer. More shipments by water into the local port are also expected.

COMMERCIAL FISHING AT LOW EBB IN BAY

The present fine weather may be ideal for the majority of residents of the city, but to fishermen of this district it has meant considerable loss. Several of them who have been hoping for rougher weather for days past have found the job no longer lucrative, and are reported to have picked up their nets in the eastern section of the Bay of Quinte until colder weather. One owner of two large gangs of nets reported a catch of but two whitefish, two pike and two carp for a couple of days' fishing. A second fisherman reported the catch of but two whitefish in two days.

HOME ON LEAVE FROM ARCTIC POST

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Muffitt of Coe Hill are this week making preparations for the visit of their son, Ted who is expected home within the next few days from the Arctic regions where he has been stationed as a member of the Canadian Mounted Police. Mr. Muffitt's last post was at Pangnurtung near the Arctic Circle. He arrived by boat at Halifax recently, and then proceeded to Ottawa where he will be stationed for a few days. He has been granted three months' leave.

FROST AFFECTS MARKET ATTENDANCE

"It's funny what the frost will do to this market" a vendor stated this morning, commenting on the small quantity of produce offered and the noticeable lack of shoppers." It seems the minute the frost eliminates fresh vegetables, sales drop off, yet we have large stocks of fruit, and other harvest produce."

The market today was, as the vendor stated one of the smallest of its current season. Only a few vendors offered stocks of vegetables and fruits despite the fact that perfect Autumn weather prevailed.

Apples and grapes predominated the fruit offering, with potatoes and staple vegetables in bushel and peck-lots featuring the small vegetable display. Prices were steady at week-end quotations. A few eggs were offered with "A" selects selling at thirty-eight cents per dozen.

RETIRED ENGINEERS TO BE BANQUETED

Retired engineers of Belleville Division, 189, B.L. of E., of the Canadian National Railways will be honored this evening at the third annual banquet being arranged by members of the lodge at Johnstone's Academy. The banquet which has become one of the more ambitious annual events arranged by railroaders of the local division will be open to the public generally this year.

STRANGELY DRESSED YOUTHS ON PARADE

Pedestrians along lower Front Street last evening at first stared then backed into doorways to watch the strange parade go by. ade go by.

The parade consisted of two strangely dressed youths, dressed in the height of ill-fashion, in ensembles of whitewash-splashed trousers rolled almost to the knees, displaying sections of hairy calf, odd-fitting coats turned inside out, blazing red neckties, and topped with flopping hats which appeared to be resurrected from some distant ash heap. A bouquet of artificial flowers carried in the hand of one completed the strange illusion.

"What is it?" gasped one feminine onlooker as the youths strode by, oblivious of the glances.

"Just an initiation some place, probably", surmised a male companion.

S. A. WILL HOLD MUSICAL FESTIVAL

Included in the number of talented musicians who will appear in Belleville at the Salvation Army Citadel on November 8th., special Musical Festival Day for the local Corps, will be Ted Robbins, 18-year-old euphonium player, of the Toronto Salvation Army Corps. Lt. Commissioner Dalziel, now of Australia, wrote a euphonium solo in three octaves to demonstrate the possibilities of this instrument, especially for this young bandsman when he was sixteen years old.

The Deputy Bandmaster of the Dovercourt Citadel Band of Toronto, will render one of the Salvation Army's most difficult trombone solos.

Bandmaster J. Robbins of the Earlscourt Citadel Band of Toronto, will conduct some of the band items, and there is expected to be a large number of visitors from that city who will take part in the local program.

MISHAP COSTS DUCK HUNTER TWO TEETH

Nelson Broughy, local resident, is recovering from a duck shooting expedition near Massassaga, yesterday afternoon which not only resulted in the loosening of two front teeth, but was responsible for a thorough dousing in the cold water of the bay.

Hunting along in a small duck boat borrowed for the occasion, he had lain in a hastily built blind until nearly dusk when he sighted the first flock of ducks approaching anxious to get a better view he arose in the boat, lost his balance and fell. As he fell he discharged both barrels of the gun, the recoil of which struck him in the face, loosening the teeth. He recovered the gun and himself in about four feet of water.

HARVESTS 1300 BAGS OF POTATOES

Though prices in this district may rise in sympathy with an advance in other sections of the Province, there is no scarcity of potatoes in this central section, according to reports of growers. Mr. Geo. Adams of Wooler, one of the larger growers, reports harvesting a total of 1,300 bags on his farm yesterday. They were of the Carman variety. Other district growers report a good crop of the potatoes. A general decline in production this season, however, is reported in the country by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, which estimates this year's potato crop the smallest since 1916.

Frank Murray Winner of Radio

Frank Murray, Cannifton Road, was the holder of the winning ticket drawn last evening at the McCarthy Theatre for a 1939 R.C.A. Victor radio, electric touch, console model, presented by the W.W. Weaver Company, Front Street. The young man was present to claim his win. The theatre was filled when the drawing was made by Alderman Laurie Lewis, who spoke of the enterprise of Mr. John C. McCarthy, owner of the McCarthy Theatre, in erecting so fine a place of amusement.

"The more places where people in these days can meet to enjoy themselves with entertainment the better," he declared. He offered congratulations to Mr. Murray as he came to the platform and to the Weaver Music Store.

Mr. T. A. Tucker, manager of Weaver's, spoke briefly as the radio set was being brought to the stage and the coupons presented at the McCarthy Theatre and at Weaver's Store were prepared for the drawing. Reference was made by him to the fact that the sound equipment in the McCarthy Theatre is a product of the R.C.A. high fidelity sound equipment.

On behalf of the management of the theatre, Ald. Lewis also drew coupons and as a result three persons, Len Fozard, Bridge Street, Gordon Demill, Foxboro, and Jack Barrett, John Street, will receive tickets for the picture showing "Nothing Sacred."

There were 9,400 coupons issued at the McCarthy Theatre besides those issued at the Weaver Store in the 15 days.

Mr. Vince Freeman, manager of the theatre, was in charge of this interesting event in the program.

FINAL TOUCHES PUT ON KARNIVAL BY COMMITTEE

Kiwanis Show Is Ready For Inspection of City And District

MAYOR TO OFFICIATE

Wealth of Entertainment Being Provided For The Public

Tonight's the night!

Within the space of a few short hours, the doors of the Armouries will be thrown open, and the 1938 edition of the Belleville Kiwanis Club Annual Karnival will be declared officially open in all its colorful glory.

Colorful is a mild superlative. To attempt to describe the many attractions that go toward making this year's Karnival one of the most outstanding since the inception of this popular form of entertainment would be unfair to the members of the club's committees whose untiring efforts in bringing it to Belleville and district residents reach a climax tonight.

MISS DIANE PERKIN

"Miss Toronto", who will be featured guest of the Kiwanis Karnival Committee during four days of their show in Armouries.

All day they have been making final preparations, and putting last touches on the many phases of entertainment, amusement and education which form part of the colorful program.

Finishing Touches

And early this afternoon they put their touch of approval on their show. It is all ready, and as was mentioned before within a few hours no doubt one of the largest crowd to attend "first nights" will be in evidence to place their seal of approval not only on the fine program of entertainment but on the worthy cause for which the Karnival is being held.

And the Armouries is en fete for the occasion.

Colored bunting, banners and flags are festooned across the spacious hall. Business men's concessions are a riot of color with decorative displays enhancing the beauty of the merchandise being paraded for the benefit of a discerning public.

A large dance floor that will be used as seating room while the "show goes on" is in readiness for the dancing tripping feet of youth and age, who will enjoy the dance from the shuffle of the "Big Apple" to the stateliness, of the waltz.

Fine Entertainment

Bill Gardens troupe of artists extraordinary put the final touches on dress rehearsals this afternoon. Outstanding in their different phases of entertainment, Mr. Garden has spared no pains nor effort to bring to Bellevillians the very best that vaudeville can produce. Mirth, melody and song, dancing, acrobats, comedians, instrumentalists, and trapeze artists go to make up one of the most variable group of artists ever to perform within the confines of this city.

Bud Haines and his Commodores orchestra are ready to go. New tunes and old ones; sweet music and the rolling rhythms of swing are but part of the repertoire of this fine musical aggregation.

A pulsating bevy of Belleville beauties, the last word in feminine pulchritude are ready to parade in a moving panorama of style and fashion that will exemplify the latest in milady's apparel.

Kiwanians, in charge of the several booths announce that all is in readiness, insofar as their part of the program is concerned. There will be fun, amusement and laughs galore, for Dad and Junior, Uncle Tom and Aunt Maggie and even Grandma and Grandpa as the colorful entertainment unfolds.

Mayor to Officiate

Not a dull moment, is the proud boast of members of the Kiwanis Club as with optimism they await the opening of an entertainment and show that will they hope eclipse all records in point of attendance and value of attractions.

At sharp seven-thirty tonight, His Worship Mayor Jamieson Bone will declare the Karnival officially open. Then the fun begins. "Miss Toronto" a Queen City beauty, who won her title over the cream of Toronto Queens will be there in person. A 7-tube table model automatic tuning radio is being given away by the Home Appliance Stores on Friday night. All you have to do is go to the booth and fill in a ticket with your name and address. There will be an entire change of entertainment every night.

Mary Forster's clever talented group of dancers will perform every evening. Following is the program for tonight:

Mayor Bone, and official opening Fashion Parade; Slim Jonson, magician extraordinary; Fashion Parade; Mary Forster's group; Fashion Parade; Carl Thorenson, Comedy Juggler and Impersonator; Fashion Parade; Zena and Audre, specialty dancers and other numerous acts.

CYCLISTS AGAIN WARNED BY POLICE

Cyclists, who persist in the violation of traffic regulations in this city and more particularly in the vicinity of the footbridge, will find themselves in the clutches of the law enforcing bodies, Chief Kidd revealed today.

Examples were made of cyclists, who violated the city's ordinances relative to riding their 'bikes' on the sidewalks, some months ago, but according to complaints received by police recently, this practice has become a menace to the safety and welfare of pedestrians on the footbridge and also the approaches.

Yesterday local police took the names of five cyclists, who were found riding their bicycles on the footbridge, and charges will be preferred. Four juveniles and one adult were included in those found violating this city bylaw.

"This practice of riding bicycles on sidewalks must stop," warned Chief Kidd today.

PARTRIDGE TURNS OUT TO BE 'TURK'

Prominent Gov't Official Also Loses Two Bucks In The Deal

The weather was perfect. So were hunting conditions, but the prominent Belleville government official with gun in hand had been searching in vain for nearly three hours, with not a partridge to his credit.

He scoured the woods, finally reaching a heavy undergrowth near Latta's Mills. To the rear of a farmhouse he saw heavy undergrowth, the natural home for partridge. Carefully he climbed the fence and entered the woods. His eyes lightened as he noted activity in a nearby clump of bushes. A bird's head showed itself for a second. The hunter raised his gun, and a shot broke the afternoon stillness, as a feathered body threshed in its death agony.

A smile illuminating his features the hunter strode toward his "kill". Then the smile vanished, a look of near-horror came over his features —for on the ground in front of him lay a handsome young turkey gobbler.

Even as he stared, disaster in the form of an enraged farmer descended upon him. Hearing the shot, the owner of the bird had hurried to the scene. In no uncertain terms he aired his opinions of hunters in general and especially those who do not know a turkey from a partridge.

"This will cost you two dollars," he shouted. The luckless one heaved a sigh of relief. "Not bad," he thought. "I get out of this mess rather easily, and besides the bird is worth it".

Putting his hand in his pocket he withdrew a two-dollar bill. The farmer snatched it, and while his unwelcome guest stared with unbelieving eyes, picked up the dead turkey and strode away in the direction of his home.

On Friday evening a large crowd of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fair in honor of their daughter, Alice (bride-to-be). After all had arrived the following address was read by Miss Edith Harry:

Dear Alice and Albert:

We, your friends and neighbors have gathered here this evening to express to you in a tangible way the esteem in which you are held in our community. You were always willing to help in church and Sunday School work. We will miss you but we know you will carry on in your new home and community. We ask you to accept these gifts and with them go best wishes for a long and happy married life and may you always remember your friends at Bayside. Signed, Edith Harry, Muriel Jones.

Alice and Albert expressed their appreciation for the gifts and inviting all to visit them. Refreshments were served.

Madoc

Madoc—Mrs. Ward of Belleville spent a few days with her sister Mrs. Carl McCoy.

The annual thank offering meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, was held in the lecture room of the church on Wednesday, October 12, at 2.30. The president had charge of the meeting. The opening hymn "We praise thee O God" was the one used at the council meeting in Toronto when the news came of peace in Europe. The 135th psalm was used as a responsive reading and Mrs. E. Watson led in prayer.

The treasurer gave her report and the report of the expense fund was also given. 10 visits to sick and shut in's were made. Arrangements were made to attend the Presbyterial rally in Tweed. After a hymn was sung Mrs. E. West led in a prayer of thanksgiving and for peace. The collection was taken and the dedicatory hymn "We give thee but thine own" was sung.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Bunting of Belleville who had been a missionary in Manchuria under the China Inland Mission. She gave a fine address on the evangelistic work done there. The president expressed to Mrs. Bunting their appreciation of her address. The hymn "Go labor on" was sung and the president closed with a prayer. A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. E. West, Mrs. O'Hara, Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Ethel Reid.

Shannonville

Shannonville—The first of the semi-monthly euchre parties sponsored by the Women's Guild of the Trinity Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mark on Friday night with a good number in attendance. Euchre was played from eight-thirty until ten-thirty after which the prizes were awarded to those having the highest points and also to those having the lowest points. Following the award of the prizes a delicious lunch was served by the members of the Guild.

The prize-winners were: Ladies—First, Miss Polly MacFarlane, second, Mrs. Fred Lewis, consolation, Mrs. K. R. Vivian.

Gentlemen — First, Robert Bell, second, Gerald Lewis, consolation, Mr. Earl of Belleville.

Agricultural Meeting

FORMER RESIDENTS HONORED

Citizens and former residents of Belleville have reason to be proud of two well known public persons, Miss Jean Gunn, O.B.E., whose work in hospital and in nursing has made her known over the continent, and Prof. William R. Graham, of Guelph, the noted poultry expert at the Ontario Agricultural College, whose efforts at stock improvement have put millions of dollars into the pockets of the farmers of Ontario, according to President Cody of the University of Toronto. A few days ago Miss Gunn and Prof. Graham were among the eleven persons honored with doctor's degrees from the provincial university.

Their lives can well be an inspiration to the girls and boys of today. Both have made noble contributions to the life of this country, and their examples should be models for those who are looking towards the futuure in which to carve out their destiny.

AN ECONOMIC INSTITUTE FOR PEACE

King Leopold of Belgium, at the dedication of a memorial to his father, King Albert, in Paris, made a plea for international peace based upon economic realities. He pleaded for the removal of the economic causes of war. He has favored an institute of nations to be set to work on the economic obstacles which threaten peace. He it is said favors a world economic organization, continually adopting itself to constantly ever changing economic needs. He would have it free from politics, universal in appeal, and free from governments.

The young King is a hard worker who takes his position as one of great responsibility as well as of opportunity to serve. Herein like the northern democratic monarchies he is sharply differentiated from the dictators, who use one formula alone—the only one dictators know, absolutism through themselves. Young King Leopold would start the world aright in a democratic way.

Principles of this kind may seem almost frail as set against the iron forces of dictator lands, yet it will not be surprising if his plan should in the long run succeed, while that of the dictators which seem so distasteful to those who have once experienced the liberty enjoyed in democracies, will fail because they are the will of one man while that which would create an economic organization for the world counts upon and requires freedom of opinion. The one is hard and set in its attitude, the other is a living organism because it is in actual operation able to adjust itself to ever changing conditions.

To carry out his plan he looks not so much to governments but to the backing of great social, and philanthropic organizations as well as religious denominations.

POPEYE'S CREATOR DIES

Creator of the comic strip "Popeye the Sailor" is dead. He was one of a remarkable company who have made a large place for themselves in comics. From a start as motion picture projectionist, he moved to house painting, sign painting and paper hanging. He was versatile as a musician and as photographer, but all the while he was thinking of cartooning.

At last he made a heroic start at this without any previouus training. He did not at first succeed and he took a correspondence course in this subject. Finally he found himself. He had breadth of interest, which he showed by adding new characters in his work on newspapers. He attained fame with the Thimble Theatre. His hit in "Popeye" was surprisingly sudden.

In the full flush of his life in comics, "Popeyethe Sailor" is bereaved. His creator [illegible] only 44 when he died.

Segar drew most of his characters out of his imagination, it is said.

The world owes such men a debt of gratitude.

VANDALISM

So often one sees the hand of the vandal destroying what really is his own property or at least that of the municipality, to whose upkeep he contributes. Today New York City has to consider the destruction of nearly a quarter million dollar damage to playgrounds and equipment in parks every year.

It is not only large cities which have evidences of such anti-social attituude on the part of a small portion of the population which destroys evidently for the mere pleasure of smashing. Every small or large centre has experiences of this kind.

This problem is a serious one. Vandalism is something which people cannot understand, because it is so much against common sense. An example of this is to be found in an Ontario city where twelve or fifteen gravestones have been turned over or upset. That these marked the resting place of the honored dead of the community did not prevent this vandalism.

If offenders are caught they will learn something of the severity with which the courts look upon such actions.

THOUGH FRIENDS BE FICKLE

Though friends be fickle as a hireling's tears,
And for a purse, a song, a flirting eye,
Will shun the door they smiled to enter by,
And stab the love they nursed for precious years,
There is one comradeship that soothes and cheers,
And never withers; in the lakes and sky,
Hushed forests, and ravines where waters cry,
And the green vastness where the rock-cone rears,
One may find constancy, and hear the psalm
Of that old friendliness which no man's mood
Of flouting or of envy ever mars.
For the wise hills are always firm and calm.
The canyoned pine trees share one's solitude,
And truth burns nightly from the faithful stars.

BRINGING UP FATHER

When I was a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years. — Mark Twain.

PREVENTION IS BETTER THAN CURE—and that's the reason for Fire Protection Week. Belleville firemen, under direction of Chief Lynch, have made a thorough inspection of possible fire hazards, and have made recommendations for better protection against the possible outbreak and spread of fire. In an age of gasoline where so much inflammable and explosive material is stored on every hand, and familiarity with danger has bred contempt, it is advisable to provide all possible protection and the idea of Fire Protection Week is good. City Council might devote a few hours to ascertaining if every possible precaution is being taken to prevent fires of possible large proportions. Remembering that it was the simple kick of a cow, so legend says, that started the disastrous fire that practically wiped Chicago off the map a number of years ago.

"THE HAPPY WANDERER" is the title adopted by a blind man who visits Belleville occasionally in his endless tour of Canada. He is well dressed and clean, gray-haired, and sports moustache and imperial. Saturday he entertained passersby with his piano-accordian, at the entrance of the footbridge gangway. As an extra attraction he had a choir of young Belleville girls singing to his accompaniment. The girls, who happened to be together, for some holiday purpose, were attracted by the accordian playing and contributing their good deed for the day began singing the tunes he was playing to the great delight of a large crowd which gathered. The girls sang The Maple Leaf Forever, Springtime in the Rockies and other popular ballads and hymns and the coins rattled persistently in the box provided for the purpose, giving the Happy Wanderer cause to be happier than ever. The incident was out of the ordinary and very pleasing to those fortunate enough to witness the scene and listen to the fresh young voices in the songs we all like to hear.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 16TH, 1918

Mrs. I. Sills, Coleman Street, and Mrs. J. Latta, Yeomans Street have returned home from Toronto where they visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clinton of this city are visiting friends in Bloomfield.

The Rev. Rural Dean Swayne, Rector of Christ Church, and Mrs. Swayne, have returned from Newburgh.

Six members of the local post office staff are victims of the prevailing influenza epidemic.

In common with all other industries the Belleville papers are hard hit by the influenza epidemic and the working staffs are greatly reduced. The indulgence of readers and advertisers is asked by the publishers during this trying time.

The Rev. W. A. Wylie, B.A., Postmaster at Kamloops, B.C., is the guest of Dr. Marshall in this city.

30 YEARS AGO

OCT. 18TH, 1908

The handsome cup donated by Dr. Yeomans to be competed for by Public and Separate School baseball teams in this city will be held this year by the Separate School team. In the deciding game between No. 2 Public School and the Separate School teams which was played on the diamond at Coleman's Flats, there was a large number of spectators. At the start of the game the boys of No. 2 School took a decided lead, but were finally defeated the score being 26 to 25. The following composed the teams: No. 2 School Roy Crunk; Ross Bell; W. Boyd; E. Hagerman; L. Harris; G. Thompson; A. Symons; A. Harris; and A. Spoone. Separate School, J. Smith; J. Kelleher; T. Barrett; A. Gay; F. Goyer; E. Whalen; E. Eustace; D. Doran and G. Monaghan. A. P. Allen made a satisfactory umpire.

Mr. Fred Keeler of Chicago, Ill., is visiting his brother, Mr. E. O. Keeler, Charles Street.

Mrs. Rebecca Calswell, Evans Street, has returned home after visiting her sister in Detroit, Mich. for some time.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 18th., 1898.

Mrs. W. A. Chown, Mrs. C. E. McIntyre, Mrs. James Anning, Mrs. William Galbraith and Mrs. James Anning of this city are attending a meeting of the Women's Missionary Society in connection with the Methodist Church at Kingston.

Work on the extension of the Coleman Street embankment is proceeding steadily.

The local members of the C.M.B.A. went to Kingston today to attend the consecration of His Grace Archbishop Gauthier.

Sod and earth from the excavation made for the new rink on Pinnacle Street, is being drawn to Victoria Park and used for levelling.

Mr. Will Covert is home from Rochester, N. Y., on a short visit to his parents.

Mr. Percy O. Pitney is spending his vacation with friends in Kingston.

Mrs. William Hopkins and her son, Cecil, have returned home from Chicago, Ill., where they visited relatives.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 18th., 1888.

The cells at the police station are being renovated and repaired. They needed attention.

The ladies of Bleecker Street Methodist Church will hold an anniversary tea on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. William Johnson of this city has been placed on the nominating committee at the Provincial Sunday School convention in connection with the Methodist Church.

The water works system has given entire satisfaction so far; no complaints of any kind have been received at the office. This speaks well for those who performed the work and also for the efficient manner in which the service is being conducted.

Hunters report ducks scarce.

The wood work of the post office building is receiving a coat of paint.

New twenty five cent pieces, bearing the date of 1888 are now in circulation.

Diseased Tonsils and Eye Infections

I have spoken before of an expert air pilot who began to make poor landings. On reporting to his medical officer it was found that he had infected tonsils. After the tonsils were removed his landings were perfect.

Unfortunately, unless an individual has a sore throat from time to time, he does not suspect his tonsils of causing trouble; though small, they may contain pus which poisons the blood stream.

Dr. M. Martyn Kafka, Brooklyn, N.Y., in Medical World says:

"There may be such complicated cases from infected tonsils as acute arthritis (rheumatism), acute middle ear infection; acute heart disease, acute bronchitis, and acute sinusitis. If the infected tonsils are not removed, the acute complication (bronchitis, sinusitis, middle ear disease) may become chronic and thus make a periodic invalid of the patient."

Among the eye conditions found by Dr. Kafka due to infected tonsils are inflammation of the eyelids and eyeball, interference with the lens thus affecting the eyesight, and disturbances in color vision.

"In order to test properly an eye disease it is not only necessary to test the effect of treatment on the eye disease itself but one must also search for the possible point of infection elsewhere." Patients are urged to get rid of this other infection before the eyes are treated. There are, however, patients who refuse to have their infected tonsils removed. In such conditions the treatment for the eye condition fails.

When the infected tonsils are large and the patient says that he gets frequent colds and sore throats and that usually he is tired and weak, he is usually willing to have the tonsils removed.

When the infected tonsils are not large and sore throats do not occur often, the patient is usually unwilling to have tonsils removed. These are the patients who are most frequently in danger during an eye infection; pus can usually be squeezed out of these small tonsils. In these cases Dr. Kafka advises a very careful search for other possible points of infection so that the patient finally realizes that the infected tonsils are the one and only cause of his eye condition.

"Infected tonsils should be removed when a chronic eye condition is present."

Quotes From Meeting.

Quoting from the association's minutes of a meeting here Oct. 7, Mayor Day read: "Toronto is to be the meeting place. The association has the city council and provincial government buffaloed. And all that is necessary is that every man on the road come to Toronto at once and he will be assured food, clothing and shelter for the winter. It is expected that next week the matter will come to a head and a heavy show of power in a demonstration form may be necessary."

Mayor Day then read from what he said were minutes of a meeting Oct. 12 in a house on Ontario street here. He said: "The young Communist League has recruited a unit in the organization of forty transients, ranging in age from 16 to 21. They are under the leadership of Joseph Haurin, former Loyalist soldier recently returned from Spain, and Wally Dent of the Y.C.L. They meet every Friday at 7 p.m. at 386 Ontario street."

Mayor Adamant.

From what he said were minutes of a meeting held last Friday the mayor read: "Developments today at the city hall have caused much elation within the ranks of the organization. Walker and George Harris say that the city is now on the run and that the councillors are afraid of us."

Mayor Day told a deputation of unemployed yesterday the city would care for its bona fide single unemployed but not for men from out of town.

LEONARD MARACLE FACES 3 CHARGES

Arrested By Traffic Officer After Incident Near Marysville

Leonard Maracle, 17 year old Tyendinaga Reserve youth, appeared in local police court facing three charges preferred under the H.T.A., all a sequel to a motor accident which happened three miles east of Marysville on Highway No. 2 shortly before midnight Saturday night. Two women sustained injury, considerable property damage resulted and Maracle disappeared from the scene of the accident. Maracle was arrested by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine on Sunday and arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. As the accused refused to plead when charged, His Worship remanded him in custody for one week.

Maracle was driving a dilapidated old sedan along Highway No. 2 on Saturday night, when the engine stopped and the lights failed to function. While Maracle was endeavouring to repair the motor, a new Dodge sedan, driven by Harry Campbell, Clear Creek, came upon the stalled vehicle, which was without lights, and although Mr. Campbell swerved his car to avoid collision it collided with Maracle's parked car causing damage to the amount of $250.00, Constable Ervine stated today. Mrs. Wm. Lindsay, Deseronto, sustained facial lacerations, while Mrs. Campbell sustained several fractured ribs. The injured persons were attended by Dr. Blackwell at Deseronto.

At the time of the accident it is alleged that young Maracle ran across the fields and abandoned his automobile, which had no lights while parked on the highway. Today before Magistrate Butler Maracle was charged with leaving the scene of an accident; failing to notify the Highway Department of the change of ownership of a motor vehicle and failing to produce an individual operator's driving licence. Maracle refused to plead when charged by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., showing indifference which resulted in His Worship enlarging the case. It was later disclosed by Constable Ervine, that the lad was suffering from a severe case of nervousness.

INSPIRATION OF BIBLE IS THEME

Miss Sims, Evangelist, Demonstrates 'Plenary Inspiration'

In the course of her Message on "Jonah, God's Answer to Modernism.," delivered to an appreciative and attentive audience in the Moose Hall, Miss Sims said in part:

"The God who numbers everything (Job 14; 16; Ps. 147; 4; Math. 10; 30). has not neglected to entrench His word in an impregnable fortress of pure mathematical relations of such evident design and amazing ingenuity as to prove its authority and direct emanation from Himself beyond peradventure, because as Pastor Panton puts it, "There is no arguing with mathematics!"

Panin has demonstrated from the actual letters forming the Hebrew and Greek text, the FACT that God Himself inspired, numbered and arranged the Order of those letters and of the words, sentences and books they go to form.

Ivan Panin (converted Russian Nihilist) proves that every letter of the Bible as originally given is numbered and occupies its own separate and special place in the order of total number of letters in the word of God, the slightest variations of orthography being all God ordained and carrying a special spiritual significance. Since every Greek and Hebrew letter has a numerical value, every word, phrase, paragraph or sentence has a definite sum. Panin's Bible Numerics, establishing the practically infinite series of complex systems, sequences, combinations, ratios, etc., in the Original Hebrew and Greek Text all following a uniform design from Genesis to Revelation is undoubtedly God's answer to and vindication of His Book touching the assaults upon it and its infallible authority by Evolution, Modernism or any other device of Satan contrary to sound doctrine."

Belleville Goods Shipped on First Air Mail Flight

Another milestone in the history and progress of Canada was noted this morning with the inaugural flight of the Trans-Canada Airways which emanated out of Malton Airport, Toronto. On the first 'plane to officially incept the Trans-Canada Airways "Air Express" made-in-Belleville goods were shipped to mark the latest milestone in Canadian progress.

Three local business houses shipped good via Canadian National Express to Toronto over the week-end, the goods to be delivered at Malton Airport today for transportation on the first official Trans-Canada Airways aeroplane. The first local firm to express goods from Belleville to Vancouver was the local Cheddar Cheese Company, shipping a quantity of their heralded made-in-Belleville product to the west coast. Miss Dorothy Quick, local florist, billed a shipment of flowers while the J. & J. Cash Company expressed additional made-in-Belleville goods on the initial flight of the Trans-Canada Airways Ltd.

Mr. George Griffin held the Belleville branch of the Canadian National Express Company in readiness to accommodate last-minute customers who desired to ship goods in this latest method of tranportation in Canada, namely the Trans-Canada Air Express. The initial 'plane left Malton (Toronto) Airport at 11.11 a.m. this morning and is scheduled to arrive in Vancouver at 5.20 a.m. Tuesday. In the march of progress of Canada, Belleville takes her place along with other centres across the Dominion in helping to inaugurate this latest and most up-to-date service.

Youth Wants a Job Youth Wants to Marry

Problems of Youth Discussed Before Rotary Club— 240,000 Canadian Young Men Unemployed

The problems of youth are many, and their difficulties seem at times insurmountable looking out upon a world of no jobs and apparently no future. Youth and their problems was the subject of an interesting talk before Belleville Rotary Club Monday by R. S. Hosking, B.A., B.D., newly appointed General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. National Council of Canada. Mr. Hosking relinquished the position of Judge of the Family Relations Court in Toronto to take his present position believing that the Y.M.C.A. will be a great factor in helping to solve the problems of the youth of today and assist them in getting the right perspective of life, realizing that this is a friendly universe and that youth has a definite mission to fill. Mr. Hosking has had close contact with the youth of Canada and understands their problems and ambitions. Two of the principle ones are: a job, and getting married. Going into these problems in detail the speaker gave the standpoint of the boy and the attitude of the man, the latter sometimes too harsh and marked by lack of understanding. What youth needs is a friendly fellowship and partnership with their elders and what their elders need is a fellowship and close partnership with youth.

Science Has Failed

Formerly science was considered the answer to all of life's problems, but this has been found a delusion for the same science that provides power and better homes and speedy transportation—adding to the pleasures and comforts of life, provides sudden death and torture to thousands through the deadly aerial bomb of modern warfare. Science has failed and in the speaker's opinion, there is only one way to solve present day problems and that is a return to religion, the religion of our fathers. Character points the way to better things, and the work of the Y.M.C.A. centres on the building of character, education and physical development.

70,000 Never Worked

In August of this year there were 670,000 young men in Canada between the ages of 16 and 21. Of these there were 240,000 unemployed, including 70,000 who had never worked. This constitutes a problem which must be solved, or the progress and prosperity of Canada will be but an empty phrase.

The mission of the Y.M.C.A. in this crisis of youth is to impart ambition, courage, good health, clean vision and the resolve to face the world and find a useful place there. It is the right of youth to have a job and to be able to marry and support a wife and family.

Riding The Rods

Thousands of youth hitch-hiking the highways, riding the rods of trains and stowawaying on ships in prosperous Canada forms a serious problem which must be met and faced and solved. Realization of the problem of youth by their elders will help solve the problem—helpful sympathetic assistance by the elders is the first essential.

Introduced by Joe Shortt, Rotary appreciation was expressed by Harry Ackerman and President Mac Haig.

Guests present included Dr. H. Britton, Gordon Friesen, Russell Wotten. Birthday honours were accorded Rotarian Tom Hutchinson.

Mrs. Frank Insley of Trenton spent Friday and Saturday at William Insley's.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Charlton visited her sister Mrs. Gilbert Cronk of Mountain Grove on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Juby and Mrs. A. Woodcock visited friends in Napanee on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Woods and Donald of Belleville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Scott.

Mr. Frank Tulk was called to Montreal early Friday morning by the death of his father. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Tulk.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Slade spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Sid Woods of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy and daughter of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Fowler.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Files and sons spent Sunday with her parents at Elm Tree. Mrs. Files and Douglas remained for a holiday.

A large number from here attended a birthday party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller near Centreville on Friday evening. The occasion was Mr. Miller's 66th birthday. Guests were present also from Cobourg and Deseronto and Belleville.

Everyone is enjoying the wonderful autumn weather. In the woods and fields the trees have received their colored dress and the sumach bushes add beauty to the country scene.

Heavy fogs the last few evenings have made driving rather bad.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. MacLaughlin and Marjorie spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Merton Dafoe near Stirling. Mr. MacLaughlin reports red raspberries along the fences which they picked and ate.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Adapted from the
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER
Picture by
GERTRUDE GELBIN

"This Louis—is he as strange as we have heard?"

"France is fortunate—so is my grandson."
"I thank you with all my heart, Sire."

"I'll be King some day. You'll be Queen."

"I didn't ask to have you for a wife."

Marie Antoinette (Norma Shearer), young, vivacious, beautiful daughter of the Royal House of Hapsburg, is to become a pawn in the political intrigue of Europe. Her mother, Maria Theresa (Alma Kruger), Empress of Austria, has crowned her career as diplomat by arranging the marriage of Marie to Louis August (Robert Morley), Dauphin of France. As an Empress, Maria Theresa has schemed for the French Alliance with her astute ambassador, Count Mercy (Henry Stephenson). As a mother she is troubled, having heard stories that Louis is a strange creature and no fit husband for her daughter.

But Marie Antoinette knows none of her mother's diplomatic schemes or concerns. She knows only that she is to be married. She sets out for Paris, filled with happiness at the prospect of being a bride, and childishly elated that her husband-to-be will some day be a King; that she will some day be a Queen! Her arrival in Paris is the occasion for brilliant celebration. The beauty and lavishness of the French Court electrify her. Her joy receives its first setback when King Louis XV (John Barrymore), the decadent, aged Monarch of France all but disrobes her with his eyes.

Marie Antoinette conquers her momentary distaste for the King in her eagerness to meet the Dauphin who will be her husband. Instead of the charming lover she had hoped for, the man she is to marry is a dull-witted lout, boorish in manner, repulsive in appearance, and filled with a stupid timidity that is almost animal in quality. Almost at first meeting she senses that he is terrified at the thought of marrying her. But Royal Decree has ordained that they marry. And so Marie Antoinette and Louis August are united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

They are left alone together for the first time on their wedding night, when she discovers he hates her. He is completely dominated by his world-weary Grandfather, King Louis XV and ridiculed by his elegant brothers, by the crafty Duke D'Orleans (Joseph Schildkraut) and the vicious Du Barry (Gladys George) the King's Mistress. He considers the marriage another plot against him. With an abrupt: "I didn't ask to have you for a wife," he leaves the bewildered, tearful and completely disillusioned Marie Antoinette. Read the next chapter.

PHILLIPS—BEAUDRIE

Frankford, (Special)—A quiet wedding took place in the United Church parsonage on Saturday afternoon, October 15th., when Christine Adeline Beaudrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Beaudrie, became the bride of Morley Wesley Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Phillips, Sidney Township. Rev. J. F. Lane was the officiating clergyman while Mrs. J. L. Lane and Mrs. Claude Wyatt witnessed the ceremony.

TURPIN—MAITLAND

Picton, (Special)—Beautiful flowers and ferns decorated the altar of West Lake United Church, on Saturday morning, October 15th., when Alison Maitland daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Maitland of West Lake, was united in marriage to Augustus A. (Gus) Turpin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Turpin of Picton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. M. Sharpe of Belleville, uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard. A large gathering of relatives and friends filled the church for the ceremony. Mrs. Chauncey Mullins played the wedding music.

The bride wore a dress of pink and navy blue crepe with navy accessories. Her flowers were pink snapdragons and fern. Mrs. Leo McQuaid, sister of the bride was matron of honor. She wore navy sheer over dotted taffeta, and carried bronze snapdragons. Mr. Thos. Turpin was groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. Mrs. Maitland, mother of the bride, in navy crepe, and Mrs. Turpin, mother of the groom, in wine crepe, received with the bridal couple. A buffet lunch was served to thirty relatives. An interesting part of the occasion was the fact that the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Turpin, were on that day celebrating the fortieth anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Turpin left on a motor trip to Flint, Michigan, and on their return will take up residence on Main Street, East Picton. For travelling the bride wore a smart navy ensemble with tan accessories.

KEMP—WILSON

A pretty wedding took place at Bridge Street United Church parsonage on Saturday afternoon at four-thirty o'clock when Alma Opal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson of Mountain View, became the bride of Mr. Emerson Rossland Kemp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kemp of Lakefield, Ontario. The Rev. Dr. James Semple officiated.

The bride wore a lovely ankle length gown of violet chiffon velvet with matching turban and sable cape. She carried yellow roses. Miss Barbara Wilson was bridesmaid, and was attired in wine satin, with black hat and accessories. Her bouquet was of pink roses. Mr. Harold Griffen of Peterborough, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the bride's home which was artistically decorated in pink and white snap-dragons and roses, and streamers of the same shades. Mrs. Wilson, mother of the bride, wore black crepe with touches of white, matching hat and accessories,. while Mrs. Kemp, mother of the groom chose wine sheer with matching hat and accessories. The bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Rochester and Buffalo, the bride travelling in a brown and rust frock, rust coat and matching hat and accessories. Upon their return they will reside at Lakefield.

Out of town guests at the wedding included—Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sturgeon, Guelph; Mrs. Wingett and daughter, Betty, Hull, Quebec; Dr. and Mrs. Carveth, Toronto; Miss Alice Wilson, Bernice Aisthrope, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Gratton Kemp, Toronto; Mr. John Blewett, Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Wilson, Roger and Ilene, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wilson, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Max Wilson and Daniel, Buckhorn.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, October 19

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A FAIRLY active and promising day is read from the lunar figures. There seems to be a situation in which feminine influence is to the fore, either in connection with promoting business or in relation to matters of domestic or social well being and comfort. It is probable that the element of secrecy may enter into such co-operation or understanding, or that affairs may profit by such intrigue.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a fairly active year in which, however, feminine influence or co-operation may be paramount. Progress may be assured by using such assistance through quiet transactions or secret understandings rather than open agreements or contracts. Intrigue may be necessary to gain secret ends.

A child born on this day may be versatile, active and have fine intellectual as well as social qualifications for success and a happy career.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Entertaining in a Small House

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Very soon my husband and I will be married twenty-five years. Our many friends are urging us to have "Open House" on the evening of our anniversary.

1—Now this is my problem. Our house is small and we'd like to carry out this affair in an informal manner, with nothing pretentious or extreme. Our daughters would act as hostesses so would it be necessary to invite the guests by written invitation or could the girls take care of this by telephone or personal contact?

2—In view of the fact that it will be informal, would it be correct for my husband to wear a business suit (brown or gray) and could I wear a simple lace dress?

3—We have thought of serving ice cream, wafers and punch, but there again we have the problem of confusion in regard to serving in so small a place. Therefore I am wondering if paper plates and cups which could be disposed of so easily and quickly, would be too out-of-the-question?

We are both college graduates so there would be old classmates and friends and neighbors who will "drop in". Therefore, any suggestions which you may have to make the evening pass smoothly in such a small house, and as simply as possible, will be greatly appreciated.

L.

1—I am delighted that you are planning to follow your friends' suggestion in having a party to celebrate this so-important milestone. Don't worry that your home is so small and that space will be at a premium . . . with such a wealth of kind and "friendly friends" and with just a little wise planning you can offer a charming hospitality. And the occasion will, I am sure, be a memory-making one!

First let's have invitations which will be simple but which will have the grace of appropriateness. You and your husband are the hosts and so the invitations should be in your names. Of course it is charming to have your daughters as co-hostesses, but having them telephone the invitations, or give them verbally, would be unsuitable, too casual, and you would lose an opportunity to make the proper first bow to your guests.

So, on either semi-note paper, or on the convenient "Informals", write gracious little notes, perhaps like this:

Dear Mary,

You and John would make Tom and me very happy if you will come to an informal little party we are giving on Tuesday, the first of December, to celebrate our twenty fifth wedding anniversary. Do say that you will come in about eight, or as soon after as you can. We are all looking forward to welcoming you two dear friends.

Affectionately,

2—Yes, these would be appropriate for your informal party.

3—I would like to have you avoid using paper plates and cups just as much as I believe you would like to avoid using them. You can add to your own supply of china and glass, by buying very inexpensive plates and cups and glasses. Also, I am sure, a few of your close friends would be most happy to lend you some extra plates and cups and glasses. You might add to your menu a generous supply of slim, dainty sandwiches, which can conveniently be eaten in the fingers.

Another suggestion: If you are ordering the ice cream from a caterer, he will rent you, at very small cost, any items of china and glass (and a punch bowl and punch glasses, if you wish). Still one more suggestion: I think that you should add hot coffee or hot chocolate to your menu. There should be a hot drink as an alternative to the punch.

4—If you are setting your buffet table in the dining-room, you might like to use a silver paper as a table-cloth (in honor of the occasion), a silver novelty paper of some interesting type, or cellophane. And your centre-piece might be of white flowers, chrysanthemums perhaps. This white-and-silver background is inexpensive and very effective.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Ideal in Every Way But His Clothes

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year I've been keeping company with the most wonderful boy in the world. He is ideal in every way, except that he does not know how to wear his clothes well. So often I compare him with the other boys in my office who are natty dressers. Could marriage with a man of this sort be happy, or would I do better to marry a boy who keeps his trousers pressed?

In Doubt

If your thoughts run in that direction, I should certainly advise you to pick a tailor's dummy instead of a real man for a husband. From your letter I get the impression that you think more of how a man's clothes fit than whether he has brains or character. But don't marry a man who is indifferent to his appearance and then nag him because he doesn't send his clothes to be pressed.

Take him, unpressed clothes and all, or leave him in peace. Oftentimes a wife knows how to go about seeing that her husband looks smart without seeming to pester him about it.

Is it Wise to Marry a Man Almost a Stranger?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a young man, who is six years older than I am, and I am 30. We are engaged to be married, and as this was my first proposal, perhaps I've been too hasty. I really don't know much about this person, as he comes to see me once a month for a few days, and the rest of the time I know nothing at all about him. He lives in another town. I am sincerely in love with this man, but doubt very much whether I should marry him.

"Old Maid"

It is very natural for you, having fallen in love to begin to wonder a little about the person to whom you have promised yourself.

Before your emotions ensnare you any further, please remember that numbers of women have become involved in serious unhappiness, even in danger, through marrying agreeable strangers. Insist on meeting your sweetheart's family and friends. If he refuses this request, it is best to forget him and turn your thoughts to new acquaintances. My best wishes to you.

The Cat-and-Mouse Game

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and very much in love with a girl who is a year younger than I am. I'm sure she knows that I really love her and no one else. Sometimes she tells me that it doesn't make a bit of difference to her whether we go together or not. Often I wonder if I did right in letting her know so soon what she means to me, when she's so indifferent. I think she cares for me.

We've been going "steady" for over a year now, and we have spoken of marriage. When she gets peeved about something, she tells me that we're never going to be married, but when she's in good mood, we have lots of fun talking about our future lives together.

I have a good job right now, but feel as if I can't support her properly on what I'm making. And then on top of this, she threatens to break off with me unless I can get a job which pays more, and will try to find someone who can care for her. Please tell me what to do, and I'll appreciate it very much.

Blue

The main trouble with you is that you take this girl and her changing moods too seriously. Some like to play this game, and they're very fine girls too. You've watched a cat play with a mouse haven't you? She'll lead the victim on—make it thing it's getting away with some plan of its own. Then down comes her paw. Try to show a little more independence of character, and you'll have more luck.

Instil Habit of Give and Take In Your Child, Writer Urges Parents

(By LISA GRENELLE)

WE ALL know the Mrs. White who has given up everything for her children. She is a model of unselfishness; her life has been just one sacrifice after another. And what does she get for it? Selfish children.

Then there is Mrs. Smith, whose children are so thoughtful and unselfish, considerate and controlled. And what an inconsiderate lady Mrs. Smith has always been! She never had a thought for anyone but herself; everyone had to accede to her wishes and whims, or else—.

They give you a sort of bitter, what's-the-use, sort of feeling—things like that, don't they?

What's the use in being unselfish with children, if all it does is make them selfish?

But it needn't not if you temper your unselfishness, use a little judgment and don't carry the thing to excess.

Must Be Unselfish

I think a good mother must be unselfish, but not too obviously so; at least, never in a way that the children learn to take advantage of it.

Children are never born unselfish, nor unfortunately are they apt to develop an unselfish nature automatically, unless it is demanded and expected of them.

This situation is one in which example is not apt to show the way; on the contrary, it often leads one astray. The example of a consistently unselfish mother is not likely to make an unselfish child, but a selfish one.

However, that is only when mother is so obviously unselfish that the children cease to think of her as an individual at all, with individual desires. The example of unselfishness counts constructively only when it is not taken for granted.

It isn't necessary to be spoiled, selfish mother to have an unselfish child. It works that way often. But it is not the best and the most normal way of achieving such results. Children of selfish parents may have learned unselfishness, but they usually also have learned bitterness, and have lost both their love and respect for their selfish parent.

Neither Respected

Neither the extremely selfish parent nor the slavishly unselfish parent is apt to be respected by his children. And when a child cannot respect his parent, he not only has missed something, but he starts out in life on the wrong foot; he can't help it.

In fairness to a child, you not only must constantly give and give up to him, but you must constantly DEMAND of him, ask his help, his consideration expect him to come through.

Guide him gently into a habit of give and take. Let him realize that you are his friend and willing to be generous with him, to co-operate with him, help him, but never that you are his slave.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Written by DEAN HALLIDAY

For Central Press Canadian

WHILE WE may slow up a little in our battle with many insects at this time of the year, no quarter should be given where leaf hoppers are concerned. Leaf hoppers seem to attack with renewed vigor during the cool-weather of early fall.

The leaf hoppers are tiny sucking insects which do damage to plant foliage similar to the depredations of the lace bug. The various hoppers always leave their trade-marks. As shown in the Garden-Graph some leaves when attacked by leaf hoppers turn whitish and transparent due to the fact that the insects have sucked all of the vital juices from them. Other types of leaves, under the attack of the hoppers, turn brown on the ends and appear as though they had been severely burned.

In addition to the actual damage they do to the foliage they feed upon, leaf hoppers are dangerous in the garden as carriers of plant diseases. The best method of fighting them is to spray the plants which have been attacked with a contact insecticide.

Seeds of larkspur, cornflower and Shirley poppy, if sown early in September, will make sturdy little plants. These will generally winter over safely under a light covering, and be ready to start growth as soon as the snow is gone in the spring.

Recent Crisis in Europe, Inner Workings of League Described by Nellie McClung

Noted Canadian Authoress Heard In Address At Bridge St. Church

TELLS OF SCENES

Sudetens In Czechoslovakia Not Satisfied, Speaker Declares

Speaking in the simple eloquence for which she is famous, Mrs. Nellie McClung, noted Canadian authoress, lecturer and Parliamentary representative to the League of Nations unfolded a graphic word-picture of the swiftly-moving events that stirred the entire world during the recent European crisis, enhancing the colorful verbal panorama with a vivid description of the inner workings of the League, and the cure for world-ills as exemplified in the famous conference at Interlaken, to a capacity audience at Bridge Street United Church last night.

Perfectly at ease, with a thorough knowledge of her subject at her finger-tips, the noted Canadian held the engrossed attention of her listeners as she told of the dramatic sequence of events that led to a near world-catastrophe.

In simple language without flowery superlative or unnecessary adjective she described the League of Nations and the splendid work it has done, and is doing in an effort to keep the world in peaceful state. She took her listeners to that historic building in a thrilling colorful description. She told of the many questions and problems that confronted national representatives in session.

Tense, Dramatic Moments

The tense, dramatic moments when Europe hovered on the brink of war, the near-terror stricken populations, the preparations made in case of an emergency, and the joyous reaction, when the good news was flashed around the world, that war had been averted; and the speaker's reaction to the remedy for world ills as seen at Interlaken, were threads that wove a colorful pattern throughout the address.

Criticism of the league, the speaker pointed out, had been most marked by the nations now at war. Dr. Wellington Koo, noted Chinese representative was sad that "all the League did was send resolutions, while our sister nations in the League sold war materials to Japan."

"Remember," Mrs. McClung said, "we in Canada sell lumber to Japan in British Columbia. We sell them copper and scrap iron. And they are not paving streets with these things."

Blood Flowing Freely

Spain asked the League to remember that Spanish blood was flowing freely for the right of small nations to live out their own destiny. "We are not getting any help from the league," she said.

Austria 'disappeared from the league overnight because she had been absorbed by an aggressor. "Let me pause," the Spanish representative said, "and glance at the empty Austrian seat with a look of sorrowful indignant protest."

Charging that had full sanctions been applied to Italy, and had at least a show of force been made by member nations of the league the Ethiopian disgrace could have been stopped, Maxin Litvinoff, Soviet representative criticized the league in bitter terms." There was a time when Mussolini had only sufficient oil to last him a week," he said.

Mrs. McClung gave a splendid description of the working parts of the League at Geneva. Comprised of forty-seven nations (the aggressor nations have withdrawn) the League is maintained by member nations. Canada pays $200,000 per year "and it is well worth it," she said. Six hundred people work there in this beautiful building that is outstanding with its magnificent rostrum, its glistening walnut doors, its huge boat-shape, a classic building yet modern in its simplicity.

Splendid Work Done

Splendid work is being done by the League, the speaker pointed out, especially that of a humanitarian nature. Child welfare, labor troubles, it has practically abolished forced labor and slavery in the world, and gained control of the illicit sale of drugs.

"The sale of opium in producing countries has been cut down to actual medicinal needs, thanks to the League," Mrs. McClung said.

She urged that people take more interest in the work of the League in this respect.

Turning to the European situation of a few weeks ago, the speaker charged that we in Canada are "too much inclined to be spectators, but I believe the recent scare will bring us out of this class."

"I always thought the Sudetens in Czechoslovakia were satisfied until I talked with a few of them," the speaker declared. "I discovered they had a grievance. The Czechs taxed them heavily; they were policed with Czech officers and Czech officials held all high positions. There was a great deal of discomfort and unrest."

Then came the crisis. Hitler spoke in Berlin. The next night came a "blackout" in Geneva. Being neutral Switzerland would be forced to resist in order to maintain her neutrality, and the people were afraid it would be their good friends the French, Mrs. McClung said. Hitler issued his famous ultimatum, but the people feared he would not abide by it. Always they had that fear of uncertainty.

"I spoke with a former war veteran," Mrs. McClung said, "and he said sadly, 'I do not want it again. I dug in ruins for my relatives—and found them. I think the happiest people are the dead ones.' "

Considerable Excitement

"People seemed certain war was coming," the speaker continued, "they rushed into banks to draw out money. In Paris all was excitement. Two million people had been evacuated to safer places. Trains were packed. Luggage crammed every compartment. Civilians guarded railways and bridges. All through the night one could hear the tramp of feet, both men and horses as France mobilized."

In the Cafe de la Paix, Mrs. McClung met a woman who had sat in the same place when war was declared in 1914. "I wonder if I will see it again," she mused.

Then came the good news. People were so relieved they could not cheer. "You could fairly feel the relief in the air," the speaker said. Tremendous crowds waited to welcome Premier Daladier. "It was there I was told that Mussolini had not mobilized his troops," Mrs. McClung told her audience, "because King Victor Emmanuel had refused to sign the mobilization papers. He had the heart of the Italian people, and Mussolini dared not force the issue," she added.

Papers Full of Praise

The French papers were full of the praises of Chamberlain. They offered editorially to buy him a beautiful home, to establish a large fund of money for him, and name an avenue after him. The churches were crowded with people offering prayers of thanksgiving.

"Women in silk rubbed shoulders with those in rags and cotton, the democracy of grief," the speaker added.

Mrs. McClung told of the frenzied preparations for defence made in England. Prominent London thoroughfares were entrenched, and sandbagged. England spent twenty-five millions of pounds on safety preparations. People advertised "nice cosy dugouts." Some said they would accept children to take to the country "with or without manners." Everyone was mobilized. But when the good news came the general impression was one of intense relief. People heard little or no criticism of Chamberlain, "and I was surprised to find so much later on," she added.

At Interlaken, Mrs. McClung stated, she met people from all over the world. Here was a different atmosphere. Here humility, love and justice were advocated as being the remedies for the world's ills.

Saw Three Great Things

"I had seen three great things," she pointed out. "Nations held in the grip of fear. The League of Nations with its machinery of human wisdom, that is beyond all praise, but unable to keep peace. It can show them what to do, but they cannot make them do it." And at Interlaken I saw the Power of God. I saw traditional enemies. Germans, Czechs, French, Hungarians, Japanese and Chinese mingling with each other with no show of resentment."

"Great miracles were wrought here," she continued. "Tremendous meetings were— held. I was but one of twenty thousand people who went on bended knee and asked God in His mercy to give us time to see if we cannot turn back the billows of sin and selfishness, that are engulfing the world. People prayed that civilization would not crack. That prayer was answered—but what are we going to do about it."

Great Opportunities

"In Canada we have the greatest opportunities of any nation on earth," the speaker said, adding that her heart was full of pride and love of country "as I steamed up the St. Lawrence".

"All this world needs is God's guidance. It is not His fault that nations are bound up in suspicion and greed. He made a beautiful world and man messed it up".

"We cannot explain all by blaming Adolph Hitler. We must take our share of the blame", Mrs. McClung said, declaring that "I think you all know, that the Treaty of Versailles was an iniquitous one. Some Germans told me of the Army of Occupation; of poverty, of the food blockade, and of the sufferings of little children. We gave them reason to hate us," she added. "We haven't been blameless. We have a lot to answer for."

"People have not thought that God's grace is for national questions. We should invoke Divine aid in all problems of national importance no matter what they be. What Canada needs today is a national turn to God. We are loved by all the nations, none of them hate us. We have a clean church filled with fearless men, and we should see that we instil the love of God in all our doings whether they be national or otherwise so that Canada will shine as a beacon light to all the world".

Introduced by Pastor

Mrs. McClung was ably introduced by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of the church, who in his remarks paid sterling tribute to the speaker in that "she has taken a splendid part in the moral movement in Canada; was a woman, that the Prime Minister of Canada saw fit to represent his Parliament at Geneva, and because of her brilliant literary work."

Dr. Semple recalled his first meeting with Mrs. McClung in Yorkton, Sask., twenty-five years ago on the occasion of a Methodist Conference.

"She is a distinguished member of the Church of the Living God", he said, "and is prepared at all times to give witness to what the Church means to society."

Gordon Finlayson, head of the Young People's Union of the church under whose auspices the address was given, was chairman for the evening, with appreciation of Mrs. McClung's forceful address being given by the Rev. L. S. Wight.

Travelogue Illustrated With Colored Pictures Given Club By Former Resident of City

Women's Canadian Club Hears Mrs. R. J. P. McCulloch

TRAVELS IN EAST

Breakfast in Asia, luncheon in Africa, afternoon tea in Europe, so one travels the ancient worlds in the modern manner when sight seeing is over and one nears journey's end, explained Mrs. R. J. P. McCulloch, Toronto, formerly of Belleville who was guest speaker last evening at a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club held in Christ Church Parish Hall. Mrs. McCulloch gave a travelogue in different style, illustrated with natural color motion pictures she herself had taken of a trip, that had proved fascinating and exciting.

Visiting Cairo with her husband, who was attending a medical convention in December last year, Mrs. McCulloch wished to venture into India, but the matter of time proved to be a handicap until the idea of air travel from Egypt to India solved the difficulty. A series of beautifully colored reels, brought to her audience the glories of the world's architectural masterpieces, the holy places of the East, and the contrast in peoples and customs, while the speaker herself told all the intimate little details of her trip, unerringly answering the questions uppermost in the minds of her hearers and fully satisfying the curiosity, that various parts of her adventures aroused.

Tombs of Early Kings

Exploring about Luxor was one of the interesting moments of the trip, and the visitors were amazed by the complete equipment of the tombs of the early kings. That of Tut-Ankh-Amen was particularly absorbing, the articles that were found in his tomb alone, filling nearly one floor of the great museum at Cairo. The Jewel Room of the tomb was a treasury of gems. Five types of sarcophagus, fitting into each other, one after another like a nest of boxes, covered his body, the final enclosure being of solid gold, the largest piece of gold in the world, brilliantly decorated with enamel pictures of the life of the king.

At Cairo those attending the convention were entertained at a reception given by King Farouk of Egypt. The young king had prepared a marvellous program, a play dramatizing an old Egyptian legend, a ballet, and one act of La Boheme, that took place in the ballroom of the Palace. The gorgeously appointed rooms were bewildering in their beauty, while the repast which followed was beyond the imagining of any of the Western guests. Table after table was laden with every conceivable delicacy. Whole roast lambs were ready for serving. Fowl of every kind had been prepared, and as one unusual part of the table decoration there were arranged pyramids of lobsters, with a light in the centre to enhance the design. The King, being a devout Moslem, no beverages save fruit juices were served and the guests drank orange juice, of fruit grown in the King's own garden, in a golden goblet delicately engraved and chased. At the reception, Mrs. McCulloch met a direct descendant of King Tut.

Crossed River Jordan

In the Holy Land, the travellers stopped at the well known towns and cities sacred alike to Christian, Jew and Moslem. They crossed the river Jordan, paused in Jericho, visited Bethlehem and the Church of the Nativity, built over the very place, where Christ was born, and not long ago used by British forces as a site for cannons to quell the riots.

Finally the time came to "take off" for India and the Canadians boarded a Douglas plane of the Royal Dutch line, for the incredibly short two-day trip, which brought them to the heart of India. Below them was the panorama of color and beauty that is the East. In her pictures, Mrs. McCulloch seemed to have captured something of the mysticism of the land and of the strange appeal it has for the tourist.

At Jodphur, Dr. and Mrs. McCulloch had the pleasure of meeting the maharajah, who was an aide to King George at his coronation and whose munificence at London was the wonder of the capital. He rented a house at Kensington, installed his retinue in the finest suites of London hotels furnished each room with a radio equipped with television, and provided his servants with the best seats along the route of the Coronation procession. He brought back home all manner of gifts. One was a shaggy sheep dog for which he paid over eighty guineas. When questioned as to how the dog could possibly exist in the heat of India, he said he had arranged air conditioning in the kennels so that it would have English climate all year 'round.

Maharajahs have their housekeeping troubles, and one of the great problems confronting this ruler was the disposal of hundreds of garments richly embroidered in silver, that had belonged to his ancestors. Finally he had them burned, and reclaimed the silver. He pointed out a dainty silver bowl to a guest one day.

"I have four hundred of those. They were made from the silver in my ancestors' costumes," he said.

Bad Railway Conditions

Continuing their journey, the visitors found that railway conditions in India are sadly behind times. It takes twenty-four hours for a two or three hundred mile trip. As the natives insist on taking most of their wordly goods with them, even on the shortest excursion, the crowding is painful.

Exceptionally fine views were obtained of the Taj Mahal and the breathless beauty of this architectural perfection was faithfully reproduced in the pictures. the Pearl Mosque at Delhi was also shown. The wonders of the Benares river, Calcutta, in all its splendour were the subjects of other pictures. Finally the party began their air journey again. They stopped off in Rome, however, and th's part of the travelogue was equally interesting, combining the examples of ancient and modern Rome. Then the visitors took to sea once more and returned at last to New York and to Canada.

The sincere thanks of the club for Mrs. McCulloch's address was tendered by the president, Mrs. Wright, who had also welcomed the speaker to her native city and presented her to the club audience.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gold Is Where You Find It"

"Shall California belong to the wheat-growers, who bring food-crops from the soil each year or to hydraulic miners, whose terrific streams of water tear away the hillsides and ruin the adjacent farming lands?"

In the 1870's that was the burning question of the day. Men fought about it. Many were killed. Bitter hatreds were engendered. The peace of the whole Golden State was disturbed.

This situation forms the basis of "Gold Is Where You Find It," a magnificent motion picture coming to the Capitol Theatre. It is a Warner Bros.-Cosmopolitan production, made with the newest Technicolor process—a great, sweeping drama that held audiences spellbound.

By far the larger part of the action is outdoors, in nature's own tints. Warners had an outdoor picture in Technicolor last year called "God's Country and the Woman," which achieved a tremendous success throughout the world. "Gold Is Where You Find It" is much superior—which is indeed high praise.

Co-starring are George Brent and Olivia de Havilland: Brent as an Eastern mining engineer in charge of the hydraulic mining, Olivia as the daughter of the leading wheat-grower of the region, Claude Rains.

There are plots, counter-plots, battles, floods, dynamitings and constant turmoil before they reach their ultimate happiness. Taking part in all this action are such fine players as Margaret Lindsay, John Litel, Marcia Ralston, Barton McLane, Tim Holt (husky young son of the veteran Jack Holt), Sidney Toler, Henry O'Neill, Willie Best, Robert McWade and a score of others, plus thousands of extras.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Nothing Sacred"

Of anguish as Tchekov describes it, Carole Lombard is ignorant. Hers is suffering on a less heroic, less exalted scale—the indignities borne by innocent ligaments torn from their moorings, maltreated shins and yes—a battered rear. In short, here is one actress who really means it when she cries "Oh, the pain of it all."

Miss Lombard, five feet two inches tall and weighing 112 pounds, has had more tumbles, fights, skirmishes and wrestling matches before the camera, than any other screen luminary in her weight class. Her physical liabilities at the completion of a film if laid end to end, would form an arnica-stained trail from here to Hollywood.

"Nothing Sacred", David O. Selznick's technicolor comedy adapted for the screen by Ben Hecht and co-starring Fredric March, is Miss Lombard's newest ordeal by battle. For sheer hand-to-hand combat it makes every other experience of its kind look as dangerous as shadow-boxing, claims the actress.

There is one scene—a gruelling, long-drawn out battle in a hotel bedroom, in which the co-stars swing punches, hit the floor, bounce into flower vases, sail across a bed, clinch, wrestle and shove to the point of exhaustion. It took eight hours of rehearsal and shooting before it was recorded on film, leaving the players so enervated that they were given a half-day's leave in which to recuperate.

Although thoroughly rehearsed, not only for the difficult lines between blows which required split-second timing, but also to avoid serious injury through misjudged punches, the scene was probably the most vigorous between a man and a woman, ever recorded by the camera. Miss Lombard's forearms were blue, March's wrists were scratched, and both players were gasping for breath by the time the last close-up was completed.

Fortunately for Miss Lombard, she had arrived at this post-graduate stage in man-mauling through a preparatory course of hard knocks. There was, for instance, the scene in "Love Before Breakfast" when she went to bat with Preston Foster, finally winding up with a black eye.

And remember "My Man Godfrey"? There was nothing ladylike about that tussle in the shower, during which she was doused in ten gallons of cold water.

Up to "Nothing Sacred", however, the prize for violence went to "We're Not Dressing" in which Bing Crosby pursued the blonde star. In one sequence the nimble-footed Lombard scampered too fast for Crosby and in order to catch her he used gridiron tactics—a neat flying tackle. His victim landed with a thud—and six strained vertebrae.

In "Twentieth Century" our heroine was kicked by John Barrymore, and in "Virtue" she was knocked cold by Pat O'Brien. The logical deduction is that she can take it.

"Nothing Sacred" which was directed by William Wellman, comes to the McCarthy Theatre through United Artists release. In addition to Miss Lombard and Fredric March it features Walter Connolly, Charles Winninger, Hedda Hopper and Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight boxer.

AT THE BELLE

"MARIE ANTOINETTE"

Superb in every essential of a truly great motion picture, "Marie Antoinette", which is at the Belle Theatre is the peak of two careers, those of Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power.

Convincing in every scene, passionately romantic, thrillingly dangerous and grimly tragic, their co-starring for the first time in the picture that resumes Miss Shearer's brilliant career is the perfect teaming.

It is their story, this revealing, often breathless and always enthralling drama of the last Queen of France and the one man who could completely love and trust, the handsome, gallant Count Axel de Fersen.

Their romance is woven like a golden thread through some of the most spectacular scenes ever filmed, Antoinette's arrival at the Palace of Versailles, her marriage the gay gambling hall where she entertained her fair - weather friends, the Duke d'Orleans Ball, the escape of the Royal Family to Varennes when revolution threatened and mad Paris when the guillotine heralded the birth of the French Republic.

In the brilliant supporting cast are John Barrymore, as Louis XV, Robert Morley as Louis XVI, Anita Louise as the Princess de Lamballe, Joseph Schildkraut as the Duke d'Orleans, Gladys George as Madame du Barry and Henry Stephenson as Count de Mercey. Other performers too numerous to mention are equally effective in their portrayals. W. S. Van Dyke II has given the production outstanding direction.

'Marie Antoinette" should go on everyone's "must see" list.

During the engagement of "Marie Antoinette" at the Belle, continuous performances will be presented daily from 2.30 till 11 p.m. For your perfect enjoyment it is suggested that you please see "Marie Antoinette" from the beginning. The Belle News of the Day and a clever cartoon precede the feature attraction.

Belleville Golf Club Holds Presentation of Prizes, Elects Officers at Annual Meeting

Harry Ridley Club Champion For 5th Consecutive Time

W. O. WALDORF PRES.

Mrs. Waldorf Wins Ladies' Club Title This Season

Culminating the club's most successful season on the links, the Belleville Golf Club held its annual banquet, presentation of the season's prizes and concluded a most enjoyable evening with the election of the officers for the year 1939 in their club house last evening. Nearly 100 members graced the banquet tables while the evening's entertainment concluded with a social evening and bridge.

Wm. O. Waldorf, veteran Belleville golfer, was elected President of the Belleville Golf Club for the ensuing year, following which other officers were named and a general discussion pertaining to the general advancement of the club, greens and playing conditions for another season. The result of the election of officers for the Belleville Golf Club for 1939 resulted as follows:

Past President: W. J. Tyers.

President: Wm. O. Waldorf.

Vice Pres.: Jos. E. Cather.

Sec.-Treas.: Harper McElrath.

Men's Captain: Tommy Carruthers.

Vice-Capts.: Harry Ridley and H. Drew.

Greens Chairman: W. J. Tyers.

Directors: George Laughlin and Frank Tounsett.

Harry Ridley Repeats

For the fifth consecutive year Harry Ridley won the Belleville Golf Club championship, defeating Tommy Carruthers, runner up this year. The club house was gayly decorated with suitable Hallowe'en decorations, which were prominently in evidence at the distribution of club championship prizes, which continued as follows in the men's section.

Club Championship: Harry Ridley.

Runner-up: Tommy Carruthers.

Club Handicap: Tommy Carruthers.

Runner-up: Al Walters.

Junior Championship: Ralph Wickerson.

Junior Handicap: Ralph Wickerson.

Runner-up: Lionel Blaker.

Senior Challenge Trophy: Tommy Carruthers.

Field Day Championships: Geo. Laughlin.

Other trophies and prizes won throughout the season were distributed to the respective winners of such tournaments. During the course of the banquet retiring President W. J. Tyers lauded the splendid work of Jock Mitchell the club professional, for his untiring efforts in making the 1938 golf season one long to be remembered. Efforts to afford Mr. Mitchell additional help in keeping the greens and fairways in condition for championship play next year were voiced, but subsequently left in the hands of the incoming club executive. The vote of thanks was also extended to the ladies of the club for the splendid banquet provided.

Ladies' Champions

Keen competition marked the ladies' section of the club throughout the numerous tournaments held throughout the season. Following the distribution of prizes the Belleville Golf Club presented Mrs. Harry Drew, convener of the entertainment committee, with a beautiful table model lamp. The ladies' prizes were presented by Miss Helen Sulman, ladies' captain, while Harry Drew presented the men's.

The results of the ladies' championships of the Belleville Golf Club:

Club Champion: Mrs. W. O. Waldorf; Runner-up, Mrs. Temple.

Club Handicap: Mrs. Len Fozard; Runner-up, Mrs. O. R. Thompson.

Club Championship: Second Flight, Miss Leona Riggs, Runner-up, Mrs. R. Neale; Third Flight, Miss L. Curry, Runner-up, Miss Thelma Green.

JOEY ARCHIBALD NOW IN DEMAND

Featherweight Boxer Pointing Toward Armstrong's Crown

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)— Joey Archibald, a youngster from Pawtucket, R.I., who never had a case of sunburn from basking too long in the limelight, probably is the most sought-after boxer in the featherweight division today.

It's all because Henry Armstrong decided he didn't want to keep the featherweight crown when he had two better ones. Joey took a large piece of that title last night when he pounded out a decisive 15-round victory over New York's Mike Belloise. And now he's in a position to do the dictating about further title awards.

Archibald's victory over Belloise earned him recognition as champion by the New York State Athletic Commission. The National Boxing Association refused to concur, but Joey figures prominently in its plans for picking a successor to Armstrong.

The Marsh Trophy is awarded annually to Canada's outstanding athlete, amateur or professional, while the Crowe Trophy goes to the outstanding amateur athlete. Coy won the discus throw at Sydney and placed second in the shot put.

BUDGE OFFERED $75,000 FOR YEAR

Tennis Star Says He Will Turn Pro. For $100,000

Sportoakland, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP)—J. Donald Budge, the world's leading amateur tennis player, said today $25,000 was all that was keeping him out of the professional ranks.

Budge said he had been offered $75,000 for a one-year tour, but wants at least $100,000. The offer was made by Jack Harris, Chicago sports promoter.

"I told him I wouldn't accept for less than $100,000" Budge said. "That looks good to me. He said he would call me back later. He said he would think over my terms and for me to think over his and that maybe we could get together."

TORONTO LEAFS HOLD WORKOUT AT GALT ARENA

Start Preparations For Opening of N. H. L. On November 3rd

39 IN CAMP

Jerry Connell, Amateur, Signed Last Winter, Has Broken Ankle

Preston, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and their minor-League relations, Syracuse Stars of the International-American League, settled down today to hard work—with a little play—in preparation for the opening of the 1938-39 season little more than two weeks hence.

Thirty-nine players, 15 Leafs, 16 Stars and eight amateurs, were in camp. For an hour daily the big squad will perspire through still physical exercises followed by nine holes of golf and an hour and a half of bruising hockey. Nights will be free but the players must be abed by 11 p.m.

The players motored from Toronto yesterday and just couldn't wait to get on the ice. Before arriving in Preston, training camp headquarters, they stopped at nearby Galt and worked the kinks out of their legs in a lengthy practice in the arena. It wasn't a stiff workout; the teams won't get down to serious business until this afternoon.

Coach Dick Irvin, starting his eighth season with Toronto, watched the impromptu work-out—it was the first time most of the players had skates on this season—with "pleasant surprise." He has high hopes his youthful but experienced team, N.H.L. champions last winter, will bring Toronto its first Stanley Cup victory since the 1931-32 season.

Jerry Connell defenceman from Port Colborne seniors last season, watched the practice from the sidelines. Connell was signed by the Leafs late last winter. He played lacrosse for Orillia Terriers during the summer and three weeks ago fell heavily during a game and fractured an ankle. He is not expected to take to the ice before December.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

The word is out that Montreal Canadiens will be among the hottest things in the National Hockey League this coming season. Everyone has known all along the Frenchmen would fly again, after getting six additions from the defunct Montreal Maroons, but now goalie Wilf Cude is calling them to finish first or second.

Cude, who has played behind some great combinations in his years with Detroit and Canadiens, declared after yesterday's workout at Lachine arena that "this team should be out in front all season, barring too many injuries." He qualified that by admitting the Habitants might finish second, but the little Welsh jitter-bug couldn't see them doing worse than that.

Wilf had to predict through a gashed lip, which he used to block a rising shot from rookie Wilf Hoch in practice Sunday. The cut needed six stitches and the goalie is still taking all his nourishment through tubes.

New York's two clubs Rangers and Americans, are gathering steam in training faster than any of the other N.H.L. teams. The Americans will leave their headquarters at Saskatoon this week to begin a six-game exhibition series with the Rangers Thursday at Winnipeg, where Lester Patrick's Blueshirts have been drilling.

Patrick already has designated his son Murray, to replace Joe Cooper on the Ranger defence and apparently has decided on Dutch Hiller to take Bobby Kirk's forward berth. Cooper and Kirk have been relegated to the Philadelphia farm.

"I didn't care about getting any other amateur this year as long as I got Joe Benoit," Manager Red Dutton of the Americans said at the recent league meeting. And Benoit, a forward with Trail's Dominion senior champions last season, is one of two amateurs Dutton has had working out with his 1937-38 regulars. The other is Pat Egan of Calgary who with Wilf Field from Seattle is seeking the defence spot left vacant by departure of Ching Johnson to manage Minneapolis' American Association entry.

Toronto Maple Leafs couldn't wait when they headed for their training quarters at Preston, Ont., yesterday, so they stopped at Galt for an ice workout. The big Leaf squad will commute between Preston and Galt during the preparedness campaign.

Detroit Red Wings were balked by the October heat wave, which melted the ice in Detroit Olympia. The unusual weather already had cut chunks of weight from the Wings, who have been working like trojans to regain the pedestal from which they thudded last winter.

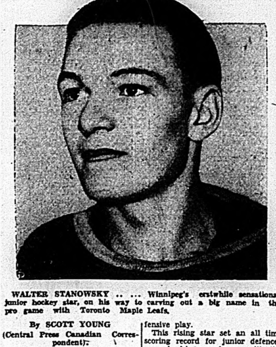
Only Eddie Shore was missing when Boston Bruins took the ice for their first workout at Hershey, Pa. The veteran defenceman is en route east from his Prairie farm, where the barley crop has just been brought in.

Completed Forward Pass Snapped on Its Way from Passer to Receiver

It's not often that the camera catches a forward pass in the making, but here's an excellent shot with the ball in flight. It comes from across the line, taken as Columbia played Colgate in New York. Sid Luckman, being touted as an all-time, all-American by the neighboring scribes, is at the LEFT, and has just thrown the ball. The receiver is Stulgaitis (39) at the RIGHT, seen moving forward to a point where he eventually caught the pigskin, which can be seen in the air. The two Colgate players near Stulgaitis look as if they might be able to grab the ball in the picture, but they couldn't, and the pass went for a big gain. The blocking can also be seen very plainly.

West's Sensational Junior Puck Star Starting Career With Toronto Maple Leafs

Walter Stanowsky, Star of Canadian Junior Finals, Journeys East to Pro Loop



WALTER STANOWSKY .. ... Winnipeg's erstwhile sensational junior hockey star, on his way to carving out a big name in the pro game with Toronto Maple Leafs.

By SCOTT YOUNG

(Central Press Canadian Correspondent).

Winnipeg, Oct. 18—Walter Stanowsky, western Canada's Goalmouth Express, carries his growing fame to Toronto within the next few days. Stamped by western hockey observers as the greatest prospect for bigtime hockey to come out of the west in the past decade, Stanowsky will report to Conny Smythe, Toronto Maple Leaf major-domo, for preliminaries to what promises to be one of the greatest professional hockey careers of all time.

Stanowsky electrified eastern hockey fans in the spring as the main cog in a great St. Boniface Seal junior hockey machine, champions of Canada, after a terrific series with Oshawa Generals—a series that saw Canadian single game attendance records, professional and amateur, smashed.

Spied by Irvin

It was at a time when Toronto Maple Leafs were struggling with Chicago Blackhawks in a disappointing series. Dick Irvin, deep in the troubles of the Leafs, saw Stanowsky for the first time and brightened. "There's the solution," he said, "have you got any more Stanowskys out west?"

Stanowsky's spectacular rushes from his left defence position sent Toronto fandom wild. Every time he picked up the puck the crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens knew plenty of action would follow. In addition to his scoring potency, Stanowsky was dishing out body checks with the best of them, and was a definite standout on his defensive play.

This rising star set an all time scoring record for junior defencemen, in his second year with the Seals, their championship year. In that league season of 16 games, Stanowsky scored eight goals and assisted in another 3 for a total of 21 scoring points. That in a league branded later by Seals as containing two teams as tough as any they faced along the trail to the Dominion finals. In his first year of junior hockey Stanowsky then only 17 years of age, scored seven goals and assisted in six. In 21 play-off games this spring he was specially instructed to concentrate on defence. He did, but still found time to register 10 goals and 13 assists.

Still Eligible for Junior

Stanowsky, 19 years old, could play another season of junior hockey if he wished. He will be 20 on April 23 of next year. Conny Smythe wants to use him as a forward with Syracuse Stars for one season, possibly on right wing. According to the youthful star, Smythe has mentioned using him with Oshawa's Billy Taylor and Pete Langelle, another Winnipeg boy, who played with Stars last season.

Stanowsky weighs 178 pounds stripped, and is in the best of condition. He was a plunging star with Winnipeg Y.M.H.A. juniors, runners-up to the Western Football championship last season. This season he has been a backfield sensation with the same team unbeaten in 1938 in five games, potential Western and Canadian junior titlists. They will miss Stanowsky when he goes east.

BRUINS, LEAFS MEET IN OPENER

Montreal, Oct. 18 (CP)—Intense rivalry between Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs, something which had the turnstiles clicking merrily all last season, finds a renewal Nov. 3 as the two teams meet at Toronto in one of two games which open the National Hockey League schedule of 1938-39.

The world champion Chicago Black Hawks start at home the same night against New York Americans, according to the new schedule released today by league President Frank Calder. New York Rangers will be the last team to swing into action playing Nov. 13 at Detroit against the Red Wings.

A "natural" touch is given the Boston-Toronto opener, however, by the fact the teams undoubtedly are the greatest rivals in present day professional hockey; that each team finished first last year in respective sections; and because they are high-goal scoring outfits and play heavy hitting hockey defensively.

TRAYNOR SIGNS YEAR'S CONTRACT

Leader of Pirates Also Given An Increase In Salary

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (AP)— Although the Pirates missed out on the gold and glory of this year's National League pennant, Manager Pie Traynor has signed a new one-year contract at an increase in salary the Pittsburgh club announced today.

Traynor mailed in the contract from his Brockville, Ind., home just before he left on a hunting trip in Wisconsin's forests.

President William Benswanger, in announcing the hiring of Traynor for his fifth full season, said:

"We feel, and other baseball men of the country also feel, that Pie did a good job in 1938. It was only an unfortunate break that prevented him from winning the pennant."

Informed observers said the salary probably would be around $17,000 or $18,000.

with

Ken J. Colling

Prof. W. G. Hardy, President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, issued a stern warning statement to Canadian pucksters, who are contemplating migrating to the U.S.A. Canadian hockey players may be suspended if they play for the newly proposed Miami, Fla, promoters in the proposed "Sunshine Hockey League." It seems the Miami promoters have been attempting to induce Eastern Canada players to perform in the Florida city this winter. Dr. Hardy, in his warning to Canadian players, pointed out that the new Florida loop must first join the Amateur Hockey Association of the U.S.A. "Secondly we are going to request, that the new Florida promoters must prove, by posting a bond for return transportation for such players as they want, that they have enough financial backing to ensure that Canadian hockey players will not be left stranded in Miami. Unless these conditions are complied with all players in the Miami League will come under suspension placed on the promoters if they fail to meet our requests," stated Dr. Hardy. This means such players would be suspended from amateur as well as professional hockey.

The day of miracles is far from past. When George Pepper, Belleville's gift to the motorcycle racing world, was residing at home about his most remote thought concerned a young lady's company, but believe it or not George Pepper is married. His parents received word of his marriage recently. It seems George met a very fine young woman in England and the inevitable happened —George popped the question and the reply was immediately in the affirmative. Our congratulations to the happy couple. Incidentally George is the captain of the Newcastle motorcycle racing team and is leading his team in points won during the season's racing. Only last week we received a photograph of George astride his motorcycle, which appeared in the Newcastle Evening Chronicle. G. Pepper has gone far in his chosen field of sporting endeavours and today is considered one of the ranking dirt track riders in England, where from 10 to 30 thousand jam the large arenas to witness these races.

Golfers at the Belleville Golf club can expect more stern and rigid tournament rules and regulations next year, that is after listening to the threats of team captain Tommy Carruthers and his assistants — Harry Ridley and Harry Drew. It seems the club tournaments and championships have been continually delayed of late, a practice that is to be discontinued in the future. "If I'm to have anything to say in the matter next year, all matches will be concluded on schedule, or those in default will be disqualified," warned Harry Drew.

With a large gathering of golfers at hand, the Belleville Golf Club elected "Wally" Waldorf as president of the club for next year. Honors were also paid to Harry Ridley and Mrs. O. Waldorf respective club champions for 1938. The annual Belleville Golf Club closing banquet election of officers and presentation of prizes were all held in conjunction last night. Incidentally when Harry Ridley won the 1938 club championship it marked the fifth consecutive time he had accomplished this feat for a remarkable fine golfing effort. Harry was given keen competition by Tommy Carruthers in the finals, however.

Strangely boxing holds little interest for Promoter Mike Jacobs other than from a purely business angle.

Mitt-slinging for Mike is just a means of making a living. He'd spend just as much time building skyscrapers or running a truck farm if he could make as much money. Which he couldn't.

Regardless of how widely discussed his feature bouts may be, no matter how great the crown, Mike is only half interested in the outcome.

His first association with the business came with Tex Rickard many years ago. Tex was the showman, promoter and front man. Mike taught him how to distribute tickets. He showed him how the money from an advance sale might be put to work to sell more tickets.

When Tex died Mike might have quit the game, but he didn't. Being a sound business man, he stayed on where gold was available.

Connie Mack as guest of Judge J. P. Scallen, Detroit, was instrumental in freeing Jack Berry, former Detroit mascot, charged with drunkenness. Hailed before another judge there recently, Berry was given 30 days by the jurist who said, "Just as soon as Connie left town you let him down".

Apparently Bill Terry is not going to get caught in another epidemic of ailing arms next season. Two of the New York Giants hurling staff have already undergone arm operations, King Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher, both having "loose body" removed from their hurling arms. The 1938 baseball season will go down in history as the most drastic, insofar as epidemics of sore arms is concerned, in the history of baseball.

In our football references yesterday we missed Jimmie Folwell whose trusty and educated toe swung into action as O.A.C. downed Varsity seconds by a large score. Incidentally all the "farm college" boys have to do to repeat as group champions is to win over Western seconds next Saturday.

For the next few weeks there'll be plenty of pre-season hockey ballyhoo here, there and everywhere. Even including Miami, perhaps.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Note to Van Lingle Mungo, Pageland, S.C.: That bum arm you developed last season is going to cost a two-thirds salary slash....Brooklyn Dodgers will offer you $5,000 instead of the $15,000 you drew last season .... Every time Army hears where "Broncho" Brunner of Tulane ran wild in the South it gives them a headache for "Broncho" turned down an appointment to West Point last summer.

Hack Wilson, who used to hit all those homers for the Cubs, is working in a Brooklyn floor show for coffee and cake money.... Bill Stewart, National League baseball umpire and hockey manager of Chicago hockey Black Hawks, will make his radio debut Nov. 2

After Syracuse's surprising victory over Cornell, reporters naturally went looking for Coach Ossie Solem....They finally found him playing hand-ball with Bill Boelter, his first Lieutenant....More dope from Syracuse says the contract with Duke makes it clear the negro star, Sidat-Singh will not be used against the Southerners.... Which is a break for Mr. Wallace Wade, if you go by last week's results.

Why doesn't some Major League Club grab a smart baseballer like America pickers should keep their America pickers should ekep their eyes glued on Bill Dwyer halfback of the New Mexico University team ....The word from Detroit is that Schoolboy Rowe is on the way back, better than ever. Let's all hope so, for the Schoolboy is a regular.

Wrestling is on the old blink around here....Frank Murray the former Marquette coach, is doing a swell job down at the University of Virginia.

Police Blotter

Frank Simpson, 25, of 14 Bay Street, was arrested at his home yesterday on charges of theft. Simpson is alleged by city and Canadian Pacific Railway authorities to have stolen a large quantity of metal angle bars, the property of the railway.

Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard, in company with Inspector Sutton, of the C.P.R. special police, apprehended Simpson after finding a number of the stolen angle bars at a local junk dealer's establishment. The accused, who had only recently been released from the county jail, was today remanded in custody.

Provincial Police have been asked to assist in the recovery of a tan mottled handbag, inadvertently left alongside highway No. 2 near Westbrook yesterday. The bag, bearing initials M.X.A., was the property of Murray Alderman, of Syracuse, N.Y.

Touring through Ontario, Mr. Alderman and family were forced to stop their automobile near Westbrook, owing to some clothing igniting and smouldering in the rear seat. All of the goods in the vehicle were removed when a top coat was discovered smouldering. The fire extinguished, Mr. Alderman replaced his belongings in the vehicle, but forgot the bag. Provincial Police are seeking its recovery.

A transient, who police say is Albert Schafer, was arrested in Belleville on charges of intoxication last evening. The accused is reported to have used abusive language towards local citizens.

Roslin

Roslin—The October meeting of the Roslin Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon, October 13th at the home of Mrs. Wm. Bates with an attendance of twenty-three. As the President, Mrs. W. White was absent, the Vice President, Mrs. N. Sills presided.

The meeting opened in the usual way. Reports were given and correspondence read. Discussion followed. It was decided to give a donation to the society for relief of Crippled Children. Members voted against the proposed change from the magazine Home and Country to a National Magazine. The Roll Call was answered with "The name of something every woman buys and where it is made." Mrs. F. C. Beazer gave a short talk on the motto "Education that one does not use in making himself and his fellowmen better is like money locked up in a chest and stored away." Mrs. Slingerland sang a solo. Miss L. Wilson read a paper which had been prepared by Mrs. White on the topic "How to be a good buyer." All those present joined in a spelling match. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

On Sunday afternoon the Children's Day service which is observed annually on the third Sunday in October was held in the Anglican Church. During the service the children sang a special arrangement of "All things bright and beautiful," and Misses Margaret Harrison and Kathleen Coulter sang solos.

The Rector, Rev. F. C. Beazer, delivered an appropriate sermon for the occasion from the text "Remember thy creator in the days of thy youth." The church was nicely decorated with autumn leaves and flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Chisholm entertained a number of their neighbors at the dinner hour on Wednesday evening when Mr. Spencer of Napanee gave a demonstration of cooking vegetables, fruit and meat without water.

The majority of the farmers have finished digging their potatoes and while the yield is good, many report finding tubers affected with rot.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Furmidge of Corbyville and Mr. Fred Harris of Burnt River spent the Thanksgiving Holiday with their sister Mrs. W. Slingerland.

Mrs. J. Chisholm, Mrs. E. Burlingham and the Misses Wilson spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. H. Chisholm.

Mrs. Miller has returned to her home in Belleville after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. H. Sayers.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reid, on Sunday, October 9th, a son.

Mr. John White spent the Thanksgiving week end in Toronto and Brampton.

Miss Marion Harrison, nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital who has spent the past two weeks holidaying at her home here, will spend the next three months in a hospital in Montreal.

Mrs. W. White attended a W. M. S. meeting in Tweed on Thursday.

HUNGARY TURNS P-tM

Hungary dealt a new blow to hopes of stabilizing Czechoslovakia's position when they broke off negotiations with the Praha government over the proposed new boundary between Hungary and Czechoslovakia. The shaded areas on the ABOVE map shows the area which the Praha government proposed to cede to Budapest. The Hungarian delegation turned down this proposal and it is expected that an appeal will be made to the signatories of the four-power Munich agreement to settle dispute.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma and she stopped in front of a waying machine saying on it, Your weight and a reading of your caracter, one cent and ma said, I know I haven't gained any wait because I've been so careful with my calories, of course I suppose I haven't gone so far as to lose any, so I imagine I'm still exactly a hundred and 39 well, a cent will tell the tail.

And she got on and put one in, and a little card shot out of the slot so fast it fell on the payment and I stooped down to pick it up and it said a hundred and 40, and there was another one saying a hundred and 38 laying right alongside of it on account of somebody having proberly threw it away and I quick stuck the right one in my pocket and handed ma the wrong one to make her feel better.

Wich it did, ma saying, Well of all things, I knew I was feeling lighter and now I know it.

And she turned the card over to see her caracter on the back, being. You have a generous nature and are inclined to trust your friends, ma saying, Well that's true enough, it's queer how they get these things rite with apparently nothing to go by. Well I just believe I'll celebrate by treating myself to an ice cream soda, she said.

And we started to go into a drug store, ma saying, Well G, ma how do you know that scale wasn't a couple of pounds slow or something? and her saying, Because I know, so please dont start waving any wet blankets.

And she had a strawberry ice cream soda and I had chocklit, and after supper I told pop and asked him if I ought to tell ma to keep her from more ice cream sodas and he advised me to forget it but not to do it again, so I tore up the right card, the caracter on it saying You are a modest person and yet not averse to judicious praise.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 18—(AP)—After a forenoon tumble, leading stocks came back in late dealings today and substantially reduced or transformed into modest gains initial losses running to two or more points.

Anaconda and American Smelting were under pressure, along with other coppers, as the export price of the metal along with scrap and futures slipped following yesterday's abandonment of production restrictions by the International Cartel in London.

Quiet strength was exhibited by aircrafts, distillers and a number of specialties. Transfers were about 1,900,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto Oct. 18 (CP)—The Toronto share market braced itself in the last hour today and moved ahead to wipe out most of the early losses. The close was up for the golds and just about level with the previous close for the base metals and the industrials. Base metals had displayed definite weakness at the opening. Slight heaviness marked the western oils at the end of the session. Volume was under 800,000 shares, off a little from the previous session.

GENEROUS RESPONSE AT ANNIVERSARY

Holloway Street United Church is enthused over the generous response to the Anniversary Appeal. Six hundred and fifty-four dollars were placed on the plate and one hundred and forty-four promised, making a total of seven hundred and ninety-eight dollars.

Butter and Egg Prices Firm

Toronto, Oct. 18.— Prices held steady to firm in butter and eggs under prevailing light offerings on the local produce market yesterday.

With the exception of some accumulation in pullets, the limited volume of receipts met ready absorption on the egg market. Quotations were firm, with grade A-large showing a little improvement in the graded division. Exports to the United Kingdom for the current season are slightly above the 1937 level, but are well ahead of 1936. For the week ended October 15, 4,117 cases were shipped, as compared with 3,750 cases a year ago and 2,622 cases two years ago. Total shipments for the season, Sept. 1 to Oct. 15, amounted to 24,515 cases, against 24,051 cases in the same period of last year, and 9,622 cases in 1936. Yesterday, graded shipments sold for 41c for grade A-large, 39c for medium, 30 to 31c for pullets, 26 to 27c for B's and 21 to 22c for C grades.

Small demand was keeping the continued light arrivals of fresh supplies fairly well clear on the butter market. Traders were purchasing merely for their day-to-day requirements. Ontario creamery solids sold at 23c for No. 1 grades, 22 1-4c for 38 score.

Montreal Eggs Higher

Montreal, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Shortage of first grade eggs boosted the offered price of A-large and A-medium a full cent on open produce market here Monday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. The butter market was a little easier and somewhat quieter.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24 1-2c to 25c a pound and creamery solids for 24c to 24 1-2c.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 42c to 43c a dozen for A-large, 40c to 41c for A-medium, 31c or A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, 21c for C. Receipts: 529 cases.

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Bacon-hog prices moved lower at Ontario markets today while Hull reported unchanged prices. Declines ranged from 10 to 20 cents at Peterboro, Chatham and Barrie up to 55 cents at London. Kitchener and Stratford dropped 25 cents and Brantford liveweights 40 cents.

Liveweights — Brantford $7.35, Chatham $7.60, Hull $7.65, Peterboro $7.65.

Dressedweights — Barrie $10.65, Chatham $10.40, Hull $10.45, London $10, Kitchener $10.25, Stratford $10.25, Peterboro $10.20.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Trade was too slow to establish prices on weighty steers and butcher cattle on Toronto Livestock Market today but the general trend was lower. Calves, sheep and lambs traded at former levels while no hog price was set by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Monday was 3,000 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1,320; calves 420; hogs 1,580; sheep and lambs 1,520.

A few medium to good weighty steers sold at 4.65 to $5.65. Small lots of butcher cattle brought $3.50 to $5.25. Good butcher cows were $4 to $4.25 with common downward to $3. A few bulls made $3.25 to $4.

Fed calves moved slowly at a general top of $9 with medium quality as low as $5.50. Stockers were fairly active at $4 to $5.25 cwt.

Choice veal calves were priced at $9 to $10 with heavies down to $5. Grass calves traded at $4.50 to $4.75.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $7.75.

Good ewe and wether lambs were $7.50 delivered by rail and $7.25 by truck. Other grades were $6 to $6.50. Sheep ranged from $1.50 to $4.50 cwt.

12 CANADIAN PRIESTS TO LEAVE FOR CHINA

They will hear a farewell sermon here Sunday by Archbishop J. C. McGuigan of Toronto.

Included in the group, largest in the history of the mission, are: Gerard McKernan, Brantford, Ont.; Allan McRae, St. Raphael, Ont., and John Kelly, Eganville, Ont.

Beecher Barrett is Elected Pres. P. E. Teachers' Institute

Featured by an address by Inspector of Public Schools Dr. C.E. Stothers, the annual convention of members of Prince Edward County Teachers' Institute attracted more than one hundred to St. Andrew's Church, Picton, on Friday last.

Dr. Stothers' address on the new course of study preceded brief talks on various phases of education by Miss M. Graves, H. Rupert, E. Taylor and M. Marshall, and Messrs. Albert Reed and Jack Blakely.

The program also included devotional exercises by the Rev. Dr. Boudreau, an official welcome by His Worship Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon, and reports of the secretaries of the various groups of the Institute.

Beecher Barrett was elected President of the Institute for the coming year in the election of officers that was a feature of the afternoon program. Helen MacDonald was elected Vice-President Laurence Hicks, second vice president, Mary Dunkley, secretary, Clara Hill, treasurer, Edith Taylor, Carl Reid and Lloyd Minaker, members of the executive, and Arthur Fennell and Gordon Osborne auditors.

Miss Keitha Stark was appointed delegate to the O.E.A. convention, with Donald East as alternate.

ALBERT RICHER HELD IN CUSTODY

Nominal Charge of Vagrancy Laid Until He Appears In Court Friday

Found in the possession of a large quantity of cigarettes, tobaccos and sundry articles, a transient, who police say is Albert Richer, 23 of Hamilton, was arrested in Belleville early today on a nominal charge of vagrancy. Richer was later remanded in custody.

While patrolling the out-lying sections of the city in the police cruiser shortly after 3.00 a.m. this morning, Constables Ellis and Arnott apprehended a transient on Albion St. Unable to give a satisfactory account of his actions, the man was taken to the police station, where he gave the name of Albert Richer.

Found in Richer's possession were 17 various sized packets of cigarettes, a quantity of cigars, gum and other cigar store sundry. Police also found a newspaper clipping on Richer's person, which contained news to the effect that he and another man had been arraigned in court on charges of the theft of tobaccos. The other man was convicted while Richer was dismissed for the lack of corroborated evidence.

Richer appeared before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, today and was remanded in custody until Friday.

WOMAN INJURED AS CAR UPSETS

Mrs. J. Ellenor of Toronto Brought To Hospital In Belleville

Campbellford, Ont., Oct. 18 —(CP)—Relatives were informed today that Mrs. John Ellenor of Toronto was in critical condition in hospital at Belleville after an automobile accident yesterday on Highway 39 near Hilton. The car turned over when a rear tire blew out.

John Ellenor, the driver, suffered a minor leg injury and a passenger, Miss Reid, escaped with body bruises. Mr. and Mrs. Ellenor were returning to Toronto after visiting their daughter, Mrs. Raymond Connor, here.

Hospital officials announced this afternoon, that Mrs. Ellenor was resting comfortably. Dr. Clark Brighton, is in attendance.

Baghdad, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas)—Interest of the United States in the Palestine situation in accordance with the Anglo-American convention of 1924 aroused protests today in Arab Nationalist circles in Iraq.

The Palestine defence committee sent a telegram to President Roosevelt protesting the "critical attitude" of Washington while similar representations were made to the United States Legation here.

The Arab Nationalist press also showed its dissatisfaction with editorials advising the United States to "avoid allowing itself being nominated, like England, by the Zionist yoke."

Locomotive Crew Observes Large Meteor

Described as of "dazzling brightness and speed", the flaming meteor which flashed over Ottawa district on Saturday evening, was also observed over Napanee district at the same time, it was reported by T. C. Wilson, Canadian National Railways engineer of Patterson Street, this city.

When sighted near Napanee, the meteor appeared to be heading in a south west direction. Dr. Meldrum Stewart, Dominion astronomer, Ottawa, declared the celestial visitor to have disappeared either into the St. Lawrence River, or had fallen on some isolated section of New York State near the border.

Mr. Wilson was piloting a train to Belleville early Saturday evening when he saw the meteor about three miles east of Napanee. He communicated with Dr. Stewart of Ottawa on his return to Ottawa on Sunday after reading an account of the meteor in the evening papers. He declared the meteor lighted up the sky in high brilliance, despite the fact that atmospheric conditions were hazy. It was also seen by his fireman, R. W. Richardson, and his brakeman, E. N. Smith, also of Belleville.

BELLEVILLE MAN GORED BY BULL

N. Piccion Saved By Prompt Action of Addison Lloyd, Express Driver

SEVERELY BRUISED

Pinned to the ground by the horns of an infuriated bull after the animal had tossed him over its head in a pasture field north of the Canadian National Railway tracks yesterday afternoon, N. Piccion, Station Street resident, was saved from serious injury by the prompt action of Addison Lloyd, city express driver, and Paddy Collins who answered the man's screams for help while a group of horror-stricken spectators looked on.

Lloyd left his express truck, and with Collins dashed across the field where the angry bull was attempting to gore Piccion who was pinned to the ground by the animal's horns. Hurling a large rock at the bull that met with little success, Lloyd, realizing the man's plight, seized a short piece of rope dangling from the animal's horns, and diverted its attention sufficiently to allow the injured man to make his escape to the safety of a nearby fence. By his time the owner of the animal arrived on the scene and led the now quiet animal away.

Piccion, it is said, had been leading the animal across the field, had tied it to a fence and turned away when the bull suddenly went berserk. Lowering its head, it threw Piccion, a man weighing two hundred pounds, clear over its head, and while he lay on the ground savagely attacked him. Yelling for help, Piccion retained sufficient presence of mind to grasp the animal's horns as it attempted to gore him.

Lloyd and Collins, who were at the station, heard the screams for help and without hesitation dashed to the rescue.

As Lloyd turned the head of the bull away from its victim, and as Piccion rose to his feet, the animal turned on him again, ripping his clothes with its horns in a final attempt to gore him.

Piccion was taken to his home where he is recovering from severe body bruises.

FINE MUSEUM APTLY DESCRIBED

Ford's Village Near Detroit Educational, Inspiring, Says Speaker

Greenfield Village, Henry Ford's world renowned museum near Detroit, was the educational and inspiring topic of a discourse portrayed by Mr. W. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, to the Belleville Y's Men's Club at their weekly luncheon in the Y.M.C.A. on "visitors' night" last evening.

"In this village now being created by Mr. Ford, he has endeavoured to bring together all initial inventions and old relics depicting the early history of the United States and Canada. The first motor car first steam train, binder and bicycles ever manufactured on this continent are a few of the interesting articles to be found in the buildings covering the 200 acres, which comprises Greenfield Village", explained Mr. Morrison as he took his audience on a word-picture tour of the famous "Edison Institute", the building in which Mr. Ford has gathered all of the early inventions of the late Thos. A. Edison, whom Henry Ford terms as the greatest inventor of any era.

"Henry Ford, who once said he did not believe in history, now says —'the farther we can look backward, the farther we can look ahead'. Mr. Ford is a great believer in the fundamentals of early education and has established a school for children in his Greenfield Village, where the pupils have the advantage of Mr. Ford's museums, factories and teachers at their disposal to further their education, "explained Mr. Morrison as he continued to give a word-view of the entire village which includes the Court House in which President Lincoln practised law and also the home of Thos. A. Edison's parents which was moved intact from near St. Thomas, Ont., to Greenfield Village. Mr. Morrison advised all those present to visit Greenfield Village if ever in the vicinity of Detroit. "It is perhaps one of the most interesting and educational sites on the continent," concluded Mr. Morrison. The speaker was thanked on behalf of the Y's Men's Club by President Harold Vaughan who is also a member of the O.S.D. staff.

During the evening Rev. A. G. Sinclair was present and bid farewell to the Club previous to leaving for Western Canada. The entertainment was provided by Mr. Charles Kilgour with two delightful piano solos.

3 FRESHMEN QUIT AFTER HAZING

One of Them Declares Some Students Had To Go To Infirmary

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Hazing as it is carried out at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, was described today by James Bell of Toronto as one reason why at least three students left the college this fall. Bell was one of them.

Bell said in an interview that "a large number of fellows had to go to the nurse and infirmary following the morning 'exercises' which continued for two weeks."

Worst punishment inflicted on freshmen, Bell said, was "morning exercises".

"We freshmen were awakened at 5:30 a.m. by the rolling of garbage cans down the corridor, and sophomores next appeared in the freshmen's rooms ordering us out of bed. We had just time to pull on a shirt and a pair of pants.

Forced To Lie On Wet Grass

"We were paraded out on the campus and ordered to lie down on our backs in the wet grass. It was quite chilly. The grass was soaking wet and we had nothing to eat or drink. Then we were put through exercises. I never went through anything so strenuous in my life."

Before it was all over Bell said the freshmen had to round a half-mile and later circle the campus five or six times. Bell said he was nauseated after the running.

"Quite a few had to go to the infirmary the first day and I know everybody felt pretty sick, though not enough to go to bed," he said.

Bell declared he quit the college because he didn't like the courses.

TWEED SCHOOLS RE-OPEN YESTERDAY

Public School classes of Tweed returned to their studies yesterday morning after a ten-day enforced holiday due to a slight epidemic of scarlet fever. Dr. M.G. Dales opened the school when no further cases had been reported after one hundred children had been tested and a large number inoculated.

With no new cases being reported over the week end, the town took on a normal atmosphere again. Storekeepers, and business establishments reported, that during the scare business dropped off considerably but today people resumed their ordinary activities and business is gradually approaching normal levels.

Bone Deplores 'Extravagance' Reiterates Stand on Problems

Deals With R. R. Issue And Question of High School Teachers' Salaries

'SAY WHAT I THINK'

Convinced that ample time had elapsed to permit a reply from those most interested, following his speech last week to Toronto Real Estate operators at the Albany Club, Toronto, in which he charged that taxation costs for education in this country were excessive, and that locomotive engineers were also too highly paid, commensurate with their services, Mayor Bone today further clarified his stand on these matters.

Mayor Bone reverted to the period before his election as Mayor of the City of Belleville.

"Then I was just a citizen of Belleville. As such I stood little chance of making my voice heard above those of the others who have been claiming that tax rate reduction in this country was necessary. I believed that as Mayor, I might be able to not only make myself heard, but also try to assist in bringing about a reduction, if such a thing were possible," he declared this morning.

Claims Extravagance in Canada

"Since taking office as Mayor, I have tried to point out that a continuance of our present extravagance in Canada, can only lead to further depression and despair. Britain, Australia and South Africa are enjoying the greatest prosperity ever attained and our case is simply pathetic. I have tried to show where conditions can be improved, and while I undoubtedly have the support of the thinking people, still there is tremendous opposition from vested interests, and from those who have much to gain by fooling the public one way or another.

"People tell me I must soft pedal this or that if I wish to be popular or get anywhere. I do not wish to be popular or get anywhere, but I would like to see Canada and the people of Canada got somewhere, and all I can see at the moment is further depression, loss of jobs, municipal defaults, confiscation of property and finally government default on its railway indebtedness.

Refers to Railway Problem

"To listen to such rubbish as "the people's railway!" It is not our railway; we had it forced on us to save somebody else from swallowing the colossal loss and in trying to swallow it ourselves, it surely makes us gag. By act of parliament (1937) we swallowed $627,088,577.00 of the debt—written off as uncollectable. More than half the debt (1936—$1,656,978,867.00) was created SINCE THE C.N.R. WAS TAKEN OVER BY THE GOVERNMENT, and it is still costing our ten million people $25.00 every ten seconds. How long do you think we can keep this up? A loss of $1.26 for every mile their trains run. But our politicians will do nothing about it and soon it will collapse of its own weight, and the jobs and the country with it. Then we may do something but it will be too late. I notice today that the properties are very much run down. Some of the stations between here and Toronto haven't had a coat of paint in 10 years. C.N.R employees would be doing themselves and the country a great service in urging reforms here and elsewhere instead of simply getting mad everytime anyone mentions the crumbling C.N.R. Property handled and with co-operation on municipal questions, the railway could yet be put on its feet and made to pay and employ thousands more than it does today. Great economies are necessary to start with, but as we stand, with the freight on Pennsylvania soft coal costing twice as much as the coal, and with passenger fares being at impossible figures compared to auto transportation costs, there is in my opinion, not the slightest hope for the future. Just reflect that our Canadian Railway took in 85 millions in paid passenger fares in 1923, but by 1937 this had taken a staggering drop to thirty-one millions," claimed Mayor Bone.

High School Teachers' Salaries

"Now as regards Secondary Education—there is just as little hope here. Here are some figures on salaries paid to High School Teachers in Toronto. They are a little less here, but very little less.

North Toronto Collegiate
26 men, average salary	$3250.00
13 women, average salary	3075.00
Central School of Commerce
29 men, average salary	3780.00
17 women, average salary	3400.00

Other high schools are in proportion and these figures are from the government blue book (1937). Increases were granted 1938 totalling a further $120,000.00 for Toronto. Besides that they have frills like, Art & Physical Culture teacher (woman) $3500.00; Part time bricklayer $2900.00; Woodworker $2900.00; Plumber $2800.00; Dressmaker $3200.00; Sewing Woman $2900.00 and 7 Draughtsmen at $3600.00 each. The people responsible for these salaries should be severely censured and the people who meekly stand by losing their homes in an effort to keep this sort of thing going are very stupid and apathetic.

Will Say What He thinks

"Will the government do anything to save your homes or promote the building of new ones? No, they have not the necessary desire, stamina or brains. They are sound asleep, and if I create a little noise to try and wake them up don't worry about it it might do some good. Strong arm methods or bulldozing will not silence me as it does 75 percent of the population. I intend to say what I think and expect other people to do likewise," added the Mayor.

G. M. C. Reemploys 35,000 Extra Workers

New York, Oct. 18—(AP)— The General Motors Corp. announced today it would reemploy 35,000 additional workers within the next two weeks.

At the same time Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman, said salary cuts made last winter would be restored.

The increase in employment, it is said, was in connection with expansion and production of 1939 models.

Sloan added "that the trend of consumer buying when retail deliveries of new cars can be made to customers in volume will be found to be substantially improved over that existing during the past few months."

"Therefore," he continued, "the corporation feels justified in increasing its current production schedules by revising upward the plans made last summer, as well as in readjusting its general operating program to a higher level of volume."

The salary adjustments, it was explained, will take the form of restoring compensation of those receiving $300 a month or less to the level of existing February 28, 1938, when the reduction became effective.

PARTRIDGE FLIES INTO SIDE OF HOUSE

Shannonville, Ont., (Special)—You don't have to shoot partridge to get your "bird" on the Tyendinaga Reserve here.

The other day William Bell, a resident of the Reserve, stared in surprise when a handsome partridge whirred over his head to crash into the side of his house. The bird fell to the ground and lay still. Rushing to see if it were hurt, Bell discovered it had suffered a broken neck, dying instantly.

As London Tries Its Balloon Barrage

Interested spectators watch as one of the balloons in the London balloon barrage squadron is sent up from the moat at the tower of London. It marked the first time that the barrage against raiding aircraft was flown over the rooftops. The balloons, each tethered by a thin steel cable that could cut through the wing of a raiding bomber, were sent up from about 40 selected spots that form the "inner ring" of London's defences. Although the wind was comparatively light, seven balloons broke away, some trailing more than 4,000 feet of cable, and caused damage in certain places.

Two of a Kind

By THERESA KRASTIN

Judy sniffed the keen air appreciatively. A glorious spring morning had dawned after a rain-drenched night. The warmth of the bright sun soon absorbed the wetness; and as Judy carefully made her way by the side of the narrow country road, all traces of the storm had disappeared, except the deep puddles which still settled obstinately in the ruts.

Judy felt supremely content with the world and herself. Eighteen is a delightful age to possess, particularly if that eighteen is adorned by a mass of curly auburn hair and a brand new tailored suit. Also — further reason for contentment — Judy was on her Easter vacation, and home for the first time since entering college the preceding fall.

Absorbed in her thoughts, the girl failed to hear the rumble of an approaching automobile , beyond a bend in the road. As the car rounded the curve, it ploughed through the deep ruts, sending up a shower of muddy water which completely enveloped Judy, new suit, dreams, and all.

For a moment she stood still in wordless rage, helplessly watching the car disappear from sight. Then she sank weakly on a stone by the roadside.

"Yes," she said aloud grimly, "I don't doubt that they would like me in this outfit. Oh, if I only had him here! I'd pluck him to pieces—I'd—Oh, well, what's the use?" she finished, as two big tears trickled haltingly down her cheeks.

In spite of her unhappy accident Judy could not resist going to a dance given in her honor that evening. Her hostess, after taking her wraps, whispered hurried words in her ear: "Cousin Spud Davis — college out West — he's on vacation—heard lots about you—dying to meet you — let me introduce him."

Judy was soon dancing easily with the young man. Good looking, but very bashful for one who had been "dying" to meet her, was her thought when she noticed how quiet her partner became, after the first words of greeting.

Spud looked down at her at the end of the dance. "Tired?" he asked.

She nodded her head. "A little bit. It's so warm in here."

Spud fell into the trap. "Perhaps you would like to walk in the garden for a little while," he suggested. "I'll get your wrap."

When Spud returned, she was so busy devising plans that she did not notice the determined look in his eyes. A moment later they stepped into the fragrant mildness of the night.

Judy had expected that she would need to prompt this shy young man, but he surprised her. Not in vain had he listened to lectures on the power of the will, which, his psychology professor had solemnly assured the class, if properly manipulated, could be used to obtain the desire of one's heart.

Spud prefaced his campaign by remarking on the loveliness of her hair in the pale moonlight. Before she had recovered from this comment, he secured permission to call her by her first name; shortly after that, he extracted a promise that she would write to him; and finally, he offered to take her home in his car.

When they approached Spud's car however, she gave a little exclamation of surprise. "Spud, is that your car?"

"Why, yes. Do you like it?"

Judy was staring alternately from the car to its owner. "Like it? Like it? I wouldn't ride in it with you if you were to ask me on your bended knees!" Without another word she fled into the house.

Spud sat down on the running-board of his scorned machine and sighed deeply. "I know I'll never be the same again."

Judy sat on her suitcase, with a set expression on her face. "Mother, there's absolutely nothing the matter. Of course we didn't have a quarrel;; and truly, I had a wonderful vacation."

As the train came steaming down the track, Judy turned around for a final glance at her town. Suddenly, her blue eyes grew big. She grasped her mother's arm. "Look," she cried, "am I seeing things, or are there two cars exactly alike over there?"

"Yes, one belongs to Mr. Allen, and the other to Spud. Mr. Allen bought his since you've been away."

"And I've been thinking that Spud was the reckless driver—what a proud little idiot I've been. Tell him—" Then she saw Spud standing before her, twisting his hat nervously.

"Judy," he began, "are we friends again?"

"Oh, it was all my fault. I'm sorry I was so mean and—"

"All aboard," called the conductor.

"And will you come to the Prom next month?"

"You bet I will, Judy." He looked at her earnestly.

Judy took his outstretched hand, gave it a little squeeze, kissed her mother, and was gone.

MOVEMENT

Message Is Sent.

A lead in the anti-restoration campaign was given by the Tanganyika Mandates Committee in a cable sent through the joint East African Board in London to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Purporting to represent the popular viewpoint of residents in the former German colony, the message said:

"All British, European, Indians and natives, loyal subjects of his Majesty in Tanganyika, are seriously perturbed by the prospects of the early development of German colonial claims. In view of the repeated pledges that Tanganyika is essentially part of the empire, we request you to approach the Secretary of State to obtain an immediate assurance."

Growing Anxiety.

Meanwhile despatches from South Africa stress growing anxiety lest Britain should commit herself to a colonial settlement with Germany.

On this point the Standard of Nairobi is quoted editorially as follows "Will East African public opinion be consulted, or will this territory be presented with a fait accompli as in the case of Czechoslovakia?

"Mr. Chamberlain is gravely mistaken if he assumes that the views of the majority of the people in Britain regarding the future of Tanganyika coincide with the views of British people not only in that territory, but in Kenya and South Africa."

Demand Plebiscite.

Reports from Southwest Africa also declare British subjects are demanding a plebiscite forthwith irrevocably to decide whether Southwest Africa should be annexed to the Union of South Africa as a fifth province, or returned to Germany.

Durban, Natal, South Africa, Oct. 18 (AP)—A mass meeting of 2,000 persons headed by Mayor Fleming Johnston of Durban today pledged strenuous resistance to any effort to return to Germany war lost Tanganyika territory.

In recent addresses, Premier Hepburn has criticized the action of the Dominion Government in setting 85 cents a bushel as the minimum price to be paid western farmers by the Canadian Wheat Board for No. 1 Northern Wheat, basis Fort William. The premier also has charged discrimination exists between railway freight rates in eastern and western Canada.

He charged that Prime Minister Mackenzie King's handling of Canada's foreign policy during the recent international crisis was "slipshod and negligent" and claimed the Conservative opposition should have been kept informed of developments.

Mr. Macaulay said Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Dominion Conservative leader had told him "the prime minister did not telephone or write a single syllable of what was going on, even though reams of information was reaching him by cable almost hourly."

BANDIT ROBS CAFE

Prescott, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP) — A lone bandit robbed a lunch room of $15 here last night and after warning the manager, Austin Primeau, not to move until he was gone, rushed out of the store and disappeared.

Primeau told police the man backed him up against a wall and helped himself to the contents of the till. He said the man threatened him with what he believed was a gun protruding under his sweater.

police lineup.

Twenty Take Part.

Twenty provincial police arrived here yesterday to prepare for the raid. Inspector E. D. L. Hammond said police received the tip three days ago that Campbell was here. He would not disclose source of the information.

When police broke into the apartment, they found Campbell and Miss Byrne. Officers said there was a loaded .38 revolver under a pillow and the other gun was in a dresser drawer.

The room was littered with beer and whisky bottles.

Campbell's face bears only slight evidence of the gunshot wounds he was said to have suffered in a police ambush last August when he drove away from his brother Oscar's hide-out near Ottawa. Police said there was about twenty wounds on his body. All indicated, they said, he had received correct medical attention.

Expected To Give Self Up.

Provincial police had expected Campbell to give himself up for five days, but when he failed to do so, they raided his apartment. They said they found $2,000 in the water closet in the bathroom

Provincial Police who conducted the raid said Campbell jumped out of bed as soon as they entered, then kicked a screen out of the window and prepared to jump when another group of provincial policemen below ordered him back at the point of their revolvers.

Brother Held in Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Howard Campbell, brother of Oscar Campbell who recently was sentenced to twelve years in penitentiary at Ottawa for bank robbery, was arrested here today and held on a vagrancy charge.

Police refused to discuss details of the arrest.

A third brother, Melville, was arrested at Windsor and charged with robbery of the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank of Canada last week.

Campbell was remanded in police court until Oct. 25 by Magistrate Tinker. The magistrate said bail would be discussed later in the day.

Halfway Measures Are Out Says Daily Telegraph

London, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas) — "There is no time for halfway measures and expedients and small scale planning," the Daily Telegraph (Conservative) declared today in an editorial entitled, "Days of Decision".

The Daily Express (Independent) declared a ministry of supply should be created and "equipped with powers of compulsion".

"It is said we are to have a ministry of supply," the Express said. "Very good. But if this ministry is a necessity of our situation, let us be sure that we get a Department of State that can do its job, not one that will exist merely to deceive the public.

"And a ministry of supply that is going to reorganize the production of munitions must be equipped with powers of compulsion. Without such powers, it means nothing."

"It is commonly said," the Daily Telegraph, stated, "that in these days democracy will not accept the yoke of willing subjection to discipline except for a cause which its conscience can approve. Such a cause presents itself today.

"All portents point to a (decisive) moment now—and it is for democracy to justify itself. The responsibility on the ministers today is great—but the opportunity is commensurate with it."

"Products advertised in the Local Daily are easier to sell" says MR. W. D. MARTIN

"A wholesaler is in a position to measure the effect of a manufacturer's efforts to move his goods. I find that when the Local Daily begins to carry advertising for a product, that product immediately moves faster from our warehouse. One manufacturer who cancelled the Local Daily two years ago and confined his advertising to other media, resumed substantial schedules in the Local Daily a few weeks ago. A definite increase in demand for this manufacturer's products has developed since this advertising reappeared."

Hinted Alleged Robbers of Bank' May Have Been 'Hijacked'

BABY TEETHS EARLY

Philadelphia, Oct. 19 (AP)—Subway motorman George Jackson can say without boasting that his three-months-old son is "one in a thousand." The baby already has two teeth, with two more coming in. The family physician, Dr. Lewis Karl Hoberman, says this happens only once in about 10,000 cases.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Climate and population! Only about six per cent of the earth's surface is climatically desirable for supporting large populations. Of all the continents, Europe has the largest proportion or land suitable for agriculture. Dense populations are necessarily dependent upon climates favorable to intensive cultivation. China, India, Japan, and Java, which are distinctly agricultural countries, contain about half the people of the world. These countries, with Europe and northeastern United States, lie mostly in the mostly in the North Temperate zone with climates characterized by ample rainfall and warmth in the growing season.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—A moderate disturbance, moving eastward across Northern Quebec, has a trough extending southwestward across the lower lake region, while pressure is high off the Atlantic coast and over British Columbia, the Prairie Provinces and the Western States. Showers are occurring in Ontario and Quebec, while in the Maritimes it has been generally fair. It has been fair with somewhat higher temperatures in Alberta and Saskatchewan but continues quite cool in Manitoba.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh north and northwest winds; partly cloudy and cool. Thursday, northwest and west winds; partly cloudy and cool.

Manitoba—Fair today and Thursday and becoming milder.

Saskatchewan—Fair and somewhat milder today and Thursday.

Alberta—Fair today and Thursday; not much change in temperature.

GERMAN - FRENCH TALKS ARE BEGUN OVER SETTLEMENT

Hitler Seeking Air Pact With Numerical Predominance

FRENCH VIEWS UNKNOWN

Germany May Ask For Return of Colonies, Togo And Cameroons

Paris, Oct. 19 (AP)—Preliminary negotiations looking toward a "full settlement" of differences between France and Germany were reported in informed quarters today to have been started by both governments.

Premier Edouard Daladier conferred with Count Johannes von Welczeck, German Ambassador to France, yesterday on the latter's return from Berlin, and the envoy arranged to talk to Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet today.

Andre Francois-Poncet, French Ambassador to Berlin who has been named Ambassador to Italy, flew in a special airplane at Chancellor Hitler's invitation to Berchtesgaden, the German Chancellor's Bavarian home.

German Air Predominance.

The first draft of Hitler's terms, which informed sources said were submitted to the French leaders, was reported to include an air pact in which France would recognize Germany's right of numerical preponderance in military aircraft.

France also would promise to assure Germany a free hand in central and eastern Europe with the renunciation of her mutual assistance treaty with Soviet Russia. France would promise to return Togo and the Cameroons, pre-war German colonies, to the Reich.

In return Hitler would guarantee all French frontiers against attack.

Although it was believed extremely unlikely such terms would be acceptable to France in their entirety, it was reported by deputies that Daladier was prepared to make strenuous efforts toward reaching an agreement with Hitler soon.

Conditions Appear Favorable.

AGED RESIDENT BURNED IN HOME

W. W. Pittard, Former Mayor of Almonte And Newspaperman Victim

Almonte, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)—William Wilson Pittard, 88, former mayor and for a number of years owner and editor of the Almonte Times, a weekly newspaper, died in a fire which partially destroyed his home here last night.

Explosion of a coal oil lamp was believed to have caused the blaze in the old frame house where Mr. Pittard, a bachelor, lived alone. In the habit of retiring early, he evidently fell asleep before extinguishing the lamp.

Born in Carleton Place, Ont., Mr. Pittard served as councillor here for a number of years before he was elected mayor in 1914. He was returned in 1915, 1916 and 1917. A veteran of the Fenian Raid of 1870, he was the last survivor of that company in this district.

SCHEME TO FORGE PRESIDENT'S NAME IS TOLD INQUIRY

WOMAN AT HOUSE

Tried To Secure Plans of Proposed Aircraft Carriers

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—A scheme to forge President Roosevelt's signature to White House stationery in order to procure information about the United States navy was described in federal court today by Guenther Rumrich, 32-year-old army deserter and confessed German spy. Rumrich told Judge John Knox and a jury he had expected to get a lot of money if the plan was carried through.

It was his third day on the witness stand testifying against Erich Glaser, former United States soldier; Johanna Hofmann, hairdresser on the German liner Europa, and Otto Hermann Voss, airplane mechanic. Rumrich was indicted with them and fourteen others but pleaded guilty.

The ex-dishwasher, who became a $40 a week "mail order" spy told of a night when Karl Schlueter, an alleged messenger for the spy ring, came to his home in the Bronx with Fraulein Hofmann.

Asked About Aircraft Carriers.

Schlueter asked him what he knew of the aircraft carriers Enterprise and Yorktown

"He said the German navy was now going to build some aircraft carriers and that it would be very useful for his superiors to obtain plans of these carriers' construction," Rumrich testified.

"He suggested that I write to Hamburg and suggest that I be furnished with some stationery that would show that it was official White House stationery."

JAPANESE SLASH CHINA'S DEFENCES

Way To Canton Threatened From Northeast And East

Hong Kong, Oct. 19 (AP)—Japanese columns gathered new momentum today and appeared to have slashed their way through Chinese defences to threaten Canton from the northeast and the east.

Terrific air bombardments aided troops of the invaders at the outset of the second week of the Japanese South China offensive which started Oct. 12.

It was stated authoritatively one column had reached Sheklung, on one of the four islands in the East river crossed by the Canton-Kowloon railway about 35 miles east of Canton.

To the north, and there were highly conflicting reports on this "back door" phase of the campaign, another mechanized detachment was said to be steadily nearing Tsungfa, 40 miles northeast of the Canton objective. Still another column was said to be within 25 miles of the Bocca Tigris forts, some 30 miles southeast of Canton, which guard the river approach to the metropolis.

Enveloped in Flames, Pilot Safely Lands Airlines Plane

Eleven Passengers And Three Crewmen Escape Death

HEROISM PRAISED

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 19 (AP)—New hero of the airways was acclaimed today, as a mass of burned wreckage marked where Pilot Dave Hissong, with flames lapping about him, brought eleven passengers and three crewmen safely to earth in his burning Eastern Airlines plane.

With one voice of gratitude the passengers testified: "He saved us."

The 14-passenger twin-motored Houston-to-New York ship burst into flames near midnight a few miles from Montgomery, and though his hands were seared, the fuselage burned and one motor dropped out, Hissong stuck to the controls and put the craft down in a dark and strange field.

A moment after passengers alighted the flames destroyed the ship.

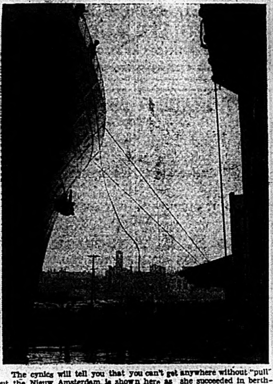
Among the passengers was J. V. Connolly, general manager of Hearst Newspapers, New York, and E. D. Rivers, Jr., son of Georgia's governor.

Connolly said "the heroism and fine work of the pilot simply were beyond description". Young Rivers said "if it hadn't been for that pilot I wouldn't be here."

W. O. Foote, Eastern Airlines manager and also a passenger, said Hissong "was a real hero".

Pilot Hissong and his co-pilot were helped from the control compartment. Pilot Hissong said a damaged propeller probably caused vibration of a motor in a way to start the fire.

Success Without a Pull



The cynics will tell you that you can't get anywhere without "pull" but the Nieuw Amsterdam is shown here as she succeeded in berthing herself at Hoboken without the aid of the customary tugs. A tow boat strike tied up the harbor shipping and the Nieuw Amsterdam had to wait for a slack tide. A big crowd on the dock enjoyed the free show of the liner docking without the puffing and panting tugs.

BRITISH START CLEANUP DRIVE IN OLD JERUSALEM

Coldstream Guards March Into Moslem Section After Martial Law Proclaimed

TO LIFT FOOD FAMINE

Jerusalem, Oct. 19 (AP)—Coldstream Guards marched into Jerusalem's old city today in cleanup operations against rebellious Arabs holding the Moslem section.

They marched in shortly after a form of martial law was proclaimed throughout Palestine to aid 20,000 British soldiers in their attempt to crush the uprising of an estimated 10,000 tribesmen.

In preparation for the cleanup drive, platoons of troops had surmounted scarred walls of the ancient city while others guarded against any possible attacks in modern sections of Jerusalem.

Jewish and Armenian quarters of the old city were understood to be under complete British control but from the Arab quarter rebel riflemen kept up intermittent sniping attacks.

In his exile home at Karnayel, Syria, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, set forth meanwhile the minimum demands which he said must be met before he would order his Arab followers to stop fighting.

ALL SIGNS POINT TO DISARMAMENT APPEAL BY HITLER

Trial Balloons Already Sent By To See Way Wind Blowing

NO DIRECT APPROACH

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, Oct. 19 (CP)—All signs point to a disarmament appeal by Chancellor Hitler to the British government in the near future. The German controlled press already has sent up trial balloons to give the Fuehrer and his advisers a chance to see which way the wind is blowing, not only on an arms limitation pact, but on the return of the former German colonies.

No direct approach has been made to the British government but it would not be surprised to receive from Hitler a suggestion that Great Britain and Germany call a halt in the arms race. In recent speeches Hitler has pointed to the Anglo-German Naval Agreement as indicating his peaceful desires and intentions.

The British government faces two alternatives: To wait until Hitler makes his appeal or beat him to it with a plan of its own.

Hitler might suggest an air pact of three planes to one in his favor, the approximate reverse ratio of the Naval Agreement. It is practically

CZECH TROOPS KEPT ON DANUBE

Jomarom, Hungary (at the Czechosovak border), Oct. 19 (AP)—Heavy concentrations of Czechoslovak troops were kept along the Danube river today awaiting the next move in the dispute over cession of Czech territory inhabited by Hungarians.

(A Budapest foreign office spokesman said the territorial negotiations would be resumed through regular diplomatic channels. A dispatch from Prague quoted reliable German sources that Germany had indicated willingness to return parts of occupied Sudetenland to Czechoslovakia.)

Truckloads of troops moved into border areas, particularly in the vicinity of Dunajska Streda. Hundreds of soldiers were seen near the highways, ready for the order that eventually might mean giving up

L. MARLER ISSUES $300,000 SUIT

Makes Father, Sir Herbert Marler, And Dr. Stevenson Defendants

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—A writ asking $300,000 damages was issued yesterday in Ontario Supreme Court by Leonard Marler against his father, Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Washington, and Dr. George H. Stephenson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at London, Ont.

The writ was issued in Marler's behalf by John R. Green, attorney.

Young Marler's statement of claim alleges that his father and Dr. Stevenson wilfully and by collusion caused him to be detained in the London hospital from Feb. 17 until Sept. 20, 1938. He alleges he was deprived of his liberty during that period and was obliged to labor with work gangs in the hospital.

Inspector Hammond Effects Arrest of 'Dolly' Quintin At Windsor

London, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)—The events leading toward solution of the armed holdup of the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank last Thursday moved quickly today.

Melville Campbell, 37, of Toronto, who faces two charges of armed robbery, in connection with the Mount Brydges holdup and one in connection with a Richmond, Ont., holdup last July, was brought up in county police court and remanded for a week.

Another Arrest Made.

Inspector E. D. L. Hammond, of the Criminal Investigation Department, directing the police work, then rushed to Windsor to continue investigation there and bring back Raymond (Dolly) Quintin, arrested last night and charged with armed robbery.

However a hint that this was a complex crime, in which one group of bandits held up the bank robbers after they had successfully held up the bank, was given credence today as rumors spread that Campbell was taken from the jail here to Windsor. At the same time the black car, believed to have been used by the bank bandits was reported recovered in Windsor.

Campbell was taken from the jail in the custody of Provincial Constable L. L. Shipley of Strathroy, who was detailed to make the trip to Windsor with Inspector Hammond and his driver Bruce Lindsay,

Several By-Elections Likely To Be Held In Near Future

London, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chemberlain met his cabinet today to chart a course of peace on the changed European map.

A report on the present stage of negotiations for an Anglo-American Trade Treaty also was before the Ministers who gathered for the first of two session expected this week.

The most pressing matters were reports of the September crisis showing gaps in British defences and Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald's considered conclusions as to what should be done to end weeks of Arab-Jewish strife in Palestine.

Plan Unworkable

There was widespread belief that both the Colonial Secretary and the members of the newest Royal Commission to Palestine were convinced a plan to split Palestine into Arab, Jewish and British sections would

JURY REFUSES TO INDICT SLAYER

Police Guard Over Prisoner Ordered Removed By District Attorney

Mineola, N.Y., Oct. 19 (AP)—Refusal of a Grand Jury to indict Harry Johnson, 65, for the self-confessed mercy killing of his cancer-stricken wife left the bedridden oyster dealer a free man today.

The Nassau County Grand Jury reported last night it would not return an indictment. District Attorney Edward nearby ordered a police guard over Johnson, confined to a hospital by a heart ailment, removed.

Johnson told officials he had agreed to put his 63-year-old wife to death Oct. 1 after she pleaded with him to save her from further suffering. She had lived in agony for years and doctors had told her she was incurable.

Johnson said he piped illuminating gas into the room with a garden hose. "She begged me to do it, begged me over and over again. She knew what I was doing. Her eyes were happy at the last, and she smiled."

Kamal's Condition Remains Grave

Istanbul, Oct. 19 (AP)—Condition of Kamel Ataturk, President of Turkey, remained grave today with his death feared at any moment.

Though physicians said the President, suffering from an old liver ailment, spent a fairly good night, the Turkish cabinet was in constant session.

FIVE SHOPPERS DIE IN AUTO COLLISION

Duanesburg, N.Y., Oct. 19 (AP)—Five Cherry Valley, N.Y., housewives, returning from a shopping trip in Albany, were injured fatally near here last night in a collision of two automobiles.

Mrs. Daisy Heatherington, 57, died in hospital after an emergency operation. The others killed were Mrs. Florence Pearson, Mrs. Johanna H. Willsey, Mrs. Mary B. Sherman and Mrs. Martha Blumenstock.

BOMBS DAMAGE BRITISH SHIPS

Barcelona, Oct. 19 (AP) — Two British ships were struck and damaged today in a raid by ten planes which dropped bombs in two sections of the city. The Lake Hallwill was damaged in the bow and the African Explorer was damaged in a hold. Several persons were slightly wounded in the raid.

BOMBERS CRASH, 6 PILOTS KILLED

Possible 'Suicidal Sabateur' Aboard One of The Planes

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—Air Ministry authorities investigated today a crash of two big Royal Air Force bombers in which six died and sought an explanation for a scrawled note found near the wreckage of one plane which read: "What will this plane look like in a few minutes?"

Six bodies were recovered this morning from the smouldering wreckages. Since Jan 1, 174 British airmen have been killed in 93 accidents .

Eye-witnesses said the planes plunged in flames almost immediately after the collision.

The possibility the note was written by a passenger after the crash was thus ruled out. It was also considered impossible that it was written just before the collision because it seemed unlikely a person would write such a message in the face of imminent death.

The Air Ministry remained silent on the possibility that a "suicidal sabateur" was aboard one of the planes. Eye witnesses said one crewman apparently tried to secape by parachute.

The victims were identified as Pilot Officer E. C. Wheelwright, Sgt. R. Prosser, Sgt. W. C. Cunnington, Acting Sgt. J. C. Irwin, Sgt. E. M. Walker and Aircraftsman T. M. Boyd.

ON WAY TO ENGLAND

Col. C.E. Morgan, One of First to Trek Up Zambezi, is Dead

His Party of Explorers Lost 150 Donkeys From Tsetse Fly Bites

PRIVATE IN GREAT WAR

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)—Col. C .E. Morgan, late superintendent of the Six Nations Indians, a veteran of the South African War and founder of the "Springboks", the South African War Veterans, died this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. J. Campbell, Cayuga.

The deceased had an outstanding military career being a veteran of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. He served in the South African and Great Wars.

Born in London, England, he came to Canada as a lad joining the noted Royal Northwest Mounted Police in 1886.

After serving several years on the force, he resigned and went to South America, working in the gold fields. Returning to England he became a captain in the Tenth Staddforshires, going to Bulowayo, South Africa, where he was in the Matabele campaign. After the campaign he spent some time in the diamond diggings in the Transvaal. He was one of the first traders to make the trek up the Zambesi river to Victoria Falls.

During the trip, his party lost 150 donkeys from disease caused by the Tsetse fly and had to make the return journey on foot.

While in South Africa, the Boer War broke out and he served with distinction as a captain in the Rhodesian Horse. One engagement in which he took part was the celebrated relief of Mafeking. Later he was staff officer of transport.

In 1913, with his wife and daughter, he came to Canada again, taking up residence in Winnipeg. When the Great War broke out, he enlisted as a private with the Fort Garry Horse and while with this unit was called to England by the War Office and given the command of a battery in the 50th Brigade R. F. A. After serving for some time in France, he received his Lieutenant-Coloneley and was made Camp Commandant at Cambridge, England. Demobilized in 1919, he returned to Canada and resided in St. Catharines until his appointment as superintendent of the Six Nations Indian Reservation, when he took up residence on Tutela Heights. He retired from the superintendency in 1935 and after residing at Mount Pleasant for a time took up residence with his daughter, who survives him. He was honored by the Cayuga Tribe of the band with an honorary chieftainship, his name being Ga-ne-da-gen-rah, in English "White Tree".

ALD. BARLOW WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE FOR 1939 COUNCIL

A definite announcement that he would not again run for office in city council was given last evening by Alderman J. W. Barlow, chairman of the local relief committee, at the third annual banquet of the B. of L.E. held in Johnstone's Academy.

One who spoke briefly during the evening, Alderman Barlow concluded his remarks with the statement that at the end of December "he would be through with office in city council. I do not intend to run again," he told his listeners.

HURTS BACK FROM FALL OFF BICYCLE

Charles Stapley, Olive Street, sustained a back injury when he was in collision with motor car on Pinnacle Street, yesterday afternoon. Stapley was riding his bicycle north on Pinnacle Street, when he was in collision with a motor car driven by Ross Juby, Point Anne. Juby was proceeding westerly on Bridge Street when Stapley collided with the front of the motor vehicle. The force of the impact knocked the cyclist off his 'bike' and he struck his back when he fell upon the rear fender. Stapley received attention at the surgery of Dr. J. J. Robertson and was later able to proceed home on his bicycle. Juby reported the accident to the police, however.

WILLIAM BURKE DIES AT OTTAWA

William Burke, 73, retired Separate School principal of Ottawa and father of Captain Desmond Burke, noted Canadian rifle shot who died in Ottawa yesterday, was a native of Marmora and had taught at Peterborough and Calgary, before taking up residence at Ottawa. His son, Captain Burke, won the King's Prize at Bisley when but nineteen years old and has been a member of the Bisley team for twelve years. The late William Burke leaves one other son, Edmund, and a daughter, Mrs. Langdon, both of Montreal.

TWO EX-MEMBERS OF KILTIES BAND PAY VISIT HERE

Members of the Belleville Municipal Band had a pleasant surprise last night, when two ex-members of the famous Belleville Kilties Band, in the persons of L. F. Addison and Duncan Reid, secretary of the Ex-Members Association and five members of the Toronto Symphony orchestra dropped in at their regular rehearsal.

Mr. Addison, who is the conductor of the Toronto Symphony Band, and an outstanding musician in the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, wielded the baton during the rehearsal, a gesture which was greatly appreciated by Lieut. Fred Jobson and his musicians.

The guests were entertained at an impromptu social hour by officials and members of the Municipal Band following the rehearsal.

WARKWORTH FARMER RAISES FOX LITTER

Elmo Chatterson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Chatterson of Warkworth, has turned fox tamer.

It all happened this spring when Elmo was plowing a field on the farm of McTavish Campbell near Castleton. He was surprised to see what he thought to be six little police dog pups following him through the furrows. At first he paid no attention to them, but later he became curious. He stopped the team, went to the house, got a bag and returned. He found the little animals quite tame and had no difficulty catching them. The pups were barely eight inches long, he stated. Later they were put in a pen and fed carefully. Neighbors came from considerable distances to view the captives. A discussion arose as to whether the little animals were foxes or wolves.

Now however, there is no difficulty in distinguishing the breed, the animals have grown into sturdy, active foxes which have become quite tame for that breed.

MORE RAIN NEEDED

Today's rain, the first in many days, though hardly more than a light drizzle during the morning, was just what is needed on farms of the district it was reported at agricultural offices this morning. The country, it was pointed out, had become exceedingly dry during past weeks of warm weather, and wells and cisterns on farms had become very low. Dry land had also resulted in heavier fall plowing for many. "We need about two days of good rain before cold weather", it was stated.

To make first plans for the reunion a meeting of the local Club is being called for next Monday evening in the Armouries, October 24th at which complete details will be discussed.

PROPERTY OWNERS ASSOC. TO MEET

The matter of reassessment in the city which is soon to be started, the construction of a new firehall addition and other matters affecting property owners will be fully discussed at a meeting of the Belleville Property Owners' Association at the city hall this evening to which all ratepayers are invited to attend. The meeting will be presided over by Mayor Bone. Alderman Laurie Lewis is also expected to be present and give his views in the matter of the firehall addition, and outline economies which are expected to follow as the result of the merging of the departments.

FIREMEN SUBDUE BLAZE IN OLD CAR

An old piece of rag, stuffed in the engine of a Model "T" Ford car nearly spelled ruin for the vehicle when it caught fire while parked outside Gillespie's Tobacco Store, Front Street last night.

Prompt arrival of city fire squads saved the ancient vehicle from destruction. The owner of the car could not be located while the work of extinguishing the blaze was going on.

MANY-TOED CAT IS PRIDE OF FAMILY

When Highway Traffic Officer Jack Hatch, of Marmora, is not on his trusty bike fulfilling his official duties, he takes time out to play with "Ginger" a handsome cat, that is the pride of the Hatch home.

"Ginger" boasts twenty-five toes eighteen of which are evenly divided between her two front feet, and one hind one, while the other foot boasts seven digits.

Her maternal ancestor proudly boasted twenty-four toes, while four brothers and sisters had numbers of digits that ranged between twenty and twenty-five.

MOTORISTS WARNED OF CHILDREN PLAYING IN LEAVES AT CURBS

With trees in the city and the countryside rapidly shedding their leaves, a new source of danger involving children has been brought to the attention of motorists.

At this season of the year much pleasure is found by the children in gathering leaves into piles and then tunnelling through the mass. It is not uncommon for tots to gather the leaves on the side of the curb into piles, then conceal themselves within to their own danger. One instance of a narrow escape from injury on Church Street last evening is reported by a local motorist.

"I was just about to run the car into the curb against a pile of leaves when I saw a small head emerge through the top. If I hadn't stepped on the brake immediately, that child would have been badly hurt", stated the car owner.

MALE PHEASANTS ONLY TO BE SHOT

Shoot Opens On Amherst Island On Friday of This Week

Last minute preparations for the week end pheasant shoot on Amherst Island have been completed, Inspector Herb McCabe announced today. The Game and Fisheries Department is permitting open season on male pheasants on Amherst Island on Friday and Saturday of this week, each hunter being permitted to shoot three such birds per day. One hundred and fifty hunters will be permitted shooting licences each day of the hunt, making a total of 300 hunters during the two-day shoot. Inspector McCabe issued a note of warning to hunters anticipating the shoot, however. "There are large flocks of privately owned turkeys on Amherst Island and such flocks should be protected by the hunters", revealed Inspector McCabe, who added there were ample birds on the island to accommodate each hunter's individual bag if the hunters shoot the maximum number of birds permitted by the department.

Condition of Injured Man is Improved

Slight improvement in the condition of Frank Sprentall, superintendent of the Stirling Hydro-Electric system, who received severe burns and shock yesterday when he came in contact with heavily-charged electric wires following a fall while engaged in his work, was reported by hospital authorities today.

Following a dramatic rescue from his perilous position in the wires by Gordon Bailey, an assistant, Sprentall was rushed to Belleville General Hospital by Martin's Ambulance of this city where he is being treated for injuries and shock.

Y's Men's Activities

A special committee of the Y's Men's Club met in the office of the Y.M.C.A. last evening and developed four features of their season's programme: (1) Hallowe'en Party; (2) Junior Y's Men's Club (Boys); (3) Armistice Night Dance at Johnstone's; (4) Handicrafts.

The big Hallowe'en Party where five hundred or more are entertained and participate will be held — The parade of costumed youth, the judging of costumes, awarding of prizes, amusing stunts and tests, prizes for individual impromptu numbers of any kind, open to all.

The annual Fall party on Armistice night at Johnstone's will be of a high order. Music, decorations, favors and programme will be looked after by efficient committees now at work.

A new group of Junior boys', twelve to fourteen years of age will be taken under the wing of the club. Gym swim, club meeting and handicraft will form part of the programme for these boys under supervision of Y's Men.

The handicraft class (open to all boys in the membership), in cabinet working, wood carving, weaving basketry, airplane, etc., will also receive leadership from members of the Y's Men's Club.

It will be a busy season for these young men who meet regularly each Monday evening for dinner at the "Y".

Police Blotter

Local dog owners, who have failed to heed previous warnings relative to the purchasing of their 1938 city dog licences, will find themselves facing police court charges later this week, Sergeant Arthur Harman revealed this morning.

The names and addresses of such delinquents have been provided the authorities and summonses were issued to those in default of the payment of their dog taxes today. "Although the city has sold approximately as many dog tags as in former years the department was reliably informed that a large number of dog fanciers have not as yet purchased their 1938 dog licences", added Sergeant Harman.

Sneak thieves entered the home of Harold Baker, 9 Earl Street and stole the contents of a kiddy's bank yesterday. Police investigated the matter today and are convinced it was the work of juveniles.

A transient who gave his name as Joseph Donnehy, was arrested yesterday following complaints of citizens to the effect they were being approached and insulted by a stranger. Donnehy was remanded in custody on a charge of vagrancy. Police stated today the accused had been drinking and was panhandling.

Not Only Surprised But Very Grateful!

There was not a more surprised person in the large crowd that thronged the Armouries at the opening of the Kiwanis Karnival last night than Mrs. Bob Miles, 184 Front Street, when she heard the number of her ticket (184) called out from the stage, that won for her the twenty-five dollar door-prize, a feature of the nightly performances of the Karnival.

Mrs. Miles modestly refused to tell what she intended to do with the money, but said she will be back again tonight to see if her luck holds good.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARIA THOMPSON (Detroit)

Mrs. Maria Thompson, widow of Thomas C. Thompson, and a former resident of Belleville, died on Tuesday, Oct. 18th., at the residence of her niece, Mrs. T. J. Johnson, in Detroit, Mich. Her illness was of brief duration.

The late Mrs. Thompson, who was in her 88th year, was born in Montreal, Que., her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. David Andrews. At an early age she moved with her parents to Belleville and resided here for many years. In the year 1903 she went to reside in Minneapolis and made her home there for thirty years. For some time past Mrs. Thompson resided with her niece, Mrs. T. J. Johnson, in Detroit.

This past summer Mrs. Thompson spent some time at Bradleys Bay with her brother, Mr. William Andrews of Belleville and she had returned to Detroit only a short time when she was taken ill.

During her residence in Belleville, Mrs. Thompson was a member of Christ Church. Old friends in the city will regret to learn of her death.

Surviving her are two brothers, Mr. James Andrews of Minneapolis, Minn., and Mr. William Andrews of Belleville. Her husband passed away sixty years ago.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Sideshow Spectator Steals the Show

In a tented show at Marmora Fair yesterday, where strange feats such as glass-eating and snake-swallowing were advertised as being the main attraction, the performance went merrily on before a group of wide-eyed spectators.

The glass-eating was all right, but when the performer washed it down with a wriggling concoction of snake, that was too much for a male member of the audience.

He rolled his eyes upward and promptly fainted, twisting as he fell heavily to the ground near the stage. Spectators picked him up and carried him outside where fresh air and cold water quickly revived him. But his troubles were not over. Giggles from a group of young girls, loud guffaws from some small boys, and quiet smiles hidden behind horny masculine hands, caused him to investigate.

Following the glances of the amused spectators, he discovered that in his fall, that part of his trousers that usually receives the heaviest wear, had separated.

Hurriedly clasping his hands behind his back, with a dull red suffusing his face, he dashed for the safety of a nearby tree, where with the aid of a few safety pins he made the necessary adjustments.

MOTOR INDUSTRY CHEERS BUSINESS

Re-hiring of 35,000 Men By General Motors Seen As Favorable Sign

Detroit, Oct. 19 (AP)—The automobile industry, generally a reliable barometer, moved into production at a faster rate today and aroused widespread hopes for a general business upswing that may extend beyond the near term.

Yesterday's announcement by General Motors Corporation of the rehiring of 35,000 factory workers in the next two weeks and the restoration of the salary level existing before last February 28 for 30,000 white collar employees gave substantial backing to the theory that the general industrial outlook has improved beyond summer expectations.

The General Motors announcement supplements notice of increased employment by other motor makers and by producers in steel, textile and other fields.

Although the seasonal aspect of the pickup was emphasized by many observers, special significance was attached to the statement by Chairman Alfred Sloan, Jr., that General Motors Corporation felt justified in "revising upward plans made last summer" when, presumably provision was made for an autumn bulge.

President Homer Martin of the United Auto Workers Union, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, remained skeptical about the potentialities of the motor industry as he conceded the importance of Sloan's announcement.

VERDICT GIVEN AFTER 4 YEARS

265 Lives Lost In 1934 In Cresford Colliery Disaster

Wrexham, Wales, Oct. 19 (CP)—Four years after the Cresford colliery disaster which claimed 265 lives a coroner's jury today returned a verdict the deaths were due to coal gas poisoning, the result of an explosion, and that there was no evidence to show the cause of the explosion in the case of the eleven bodies recovered.

The inquest had been adjourned from time to time as unsuccessful attempts were made to enter the pit to investigate the cause of the explosion and retrieve the remaining 254 bodies. The coroner was told the pit still was dangerous and there was no immediate prospect of further exploration.

RUMRICH SAYS INTEREST SHIFTED

Secret Agent Refers To Nazi Interest In Industry In United States

By Mary Elizabeth Plummer
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 19—(AP)— The United States government's star spy case witness—Guenther Gustav Rumrich, army deserter who turned secret agent—told Judge John C. Knox and a federal court jury today that Nazi Germany's interests shifted from American military secrets late in 1937 to industrial information.

He was so informed by two of the agents with whom he had contact, Rumrich testified.

One of those, he said, he knew only as "Wiegand;" the other was "Schmidt."

Rearmament Information

"Wiegand," he said, apparently was important for he showed him a photograph of himself allegedly taken at the German embassy in Washington purportedly in company with Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff and Captain Fritz Wiedemann, adjutant to Chancellor Hitler.

"Wiegand", he said, first apprised him of Germany's shifting interest from military to industrial information, particularly that kind which had to do with American rearmament.

"Schmidt" later asked him if he knew of the new orders, he said.

Orders Changed

"He said this change of orders was due to an agreement between someone in Washington and someone in Berlin," explained Rumrich, who pleaded guilty to the espionage charges, leaving three co-defendants, Erich Glaser, Otto Voss and Johanna Hofmann to face trial.

"He did not say who these parties were, but said it was a shame the order had been put in effect.

"Schmidt asked me if I knew anyone employed in either the Bethlehem Steel Plant or the Dupont plant. I said, 'no,' but I would do my best to get in contact with someone.

"He said some of the letters in his possession were for someone in Brooklyn and that this party in Brooklyn was getting $2,000 for certain plans he or she had provided."

Rumrich said he was skeptical since he had been receiving only $40 or $50.

Two $100 Bills Shown

"Schmidt" showed him the money in one letter.

"It was two $1,000 bills," Rumrich said.

"The party in Brooklyn," as Rumrich erferred to the operator there, had discovered some information about a kind of gyroscope, and "the plans" allegedly had been sent to the naval ministry in Berlin.

Burr's

Burr's—Burr's Ladies Aid held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Ross Burr with a good attendance. The president opened the meeting with the hymn "Sing to The Lord of Harvest". Mrs. Gerald Brooks read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Parsons offered prayer. A hymn, "Search me o God and know my heart" was then sung and Secretary read minutes of previous meeting and Treasurer gave her report. The roll call was responded to by a verse containing the word love; and the word for next roll call is "shine." The theme song was then sung. Mrs. Keith Blakely kindly invited the Aid to her home for the November meeting.

Business

Moved by Mrs. Ross Burr, seconded by Mrs. Brooks that $36.00 be paid on minister's salary.

The President passed ballots to vote whether they would have a fowl supper or not. Result, 4 for one and 15 against. (So the roosters may crow a while longer) It was decided that Mrs. Burr and Mrs. Murney Parks collect to raise funds instead of a supper. Objective $80.00.

It was moved by Mrs. Vancott, seconded by Mrs. Cook that $2.00 be paid on the parsonage fund.

It was next decided to hold their annual Hallowe'en social on Nov. 2nd, lunch to be be, pies, sandwiches, pickles and coffee. It was moved by Mrs. Hubbs seconded by Mrs. Vancott that the buying committee get prizes for best costumes. The penny bags are to be handed in at next meeting. Hymn "Wonderful story of love" was sung and the business part of meeting closed by all repeating last verse of 19th psalm. Collection was then taken.

Programme: Reading by Mrs. Van "The Heavenly Mansion". Solo by Mrs. McHenry "An Evening Prayer". Piano duet by Mrs. Huffman and Margaret Huffman. Mrs. Parsons gave a very helpful talk. Song by Mrs. Lorne Burr "The Cathedral in the Pines." Mrs. Ross Burr put on a contest. A delicious lunch was then served by the hostess and her assistant.

ON A GENEROUS SCALE

That the spirit of the Canadian people would be built on the same generous scale as nature has given this country in its vast areas and in its mountains was the hope expressed by one of the leading Canadian women, Nellie McClung, at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening.

That prayer should be the prayer of every Canadian, who should try to give it expression in his or her own life.

Nature has done a majestic task in Canada, one that will feed millions yet unborn, that will make it possible for this land to make a vast contribution to the world in its wealth of resources. Canadians have been born into this heritage and are provided therefore with the finest opportunity they could ask.

Nature has moulded and will continue to mould the spirit of peoples. Britain's insular position has made her a seafaring nation and some of the ancestors of the British people were numbered among the greatest seagoing races in history. Switzerland is a land of people of heroic mould, even in the earliest days of history when the Helvetians as they were named were one of the most valiant foes of the ancient Romans. They were lovers of liberty all through their history. Nature helped them and the ruggedness which was called for in the people found answer in generation after generation.

The same has been shown in the independence and resourcefulness of the Canadian as he revealed it in the Great War. Nature helped to make him and he had learned nature's lessons.

Mrs. McClung in that reference to Canada's riches and the desire for a manly, and Christian people, sounded a note which every Canadian should repeat. There is no advantage in a vastness of wealth in the rocks and in the soil, in the lakes and rivers and in the timberlands and the fields, if the people do not use these natural blessings unselfishly. A nation that does not make the best use of a great heritage fails in its duty and may become a menace to others.

Canada has been pressed to the front in this age by the great waves of change which are sweeping the world and it is the duty of her people to be as great as the Dominion is in her mountains. She has the example of the pioneers who opened up this country with the most meagre tools and with hard work. The work may not be just the same, there are vastly different tools in the hands of the people today, but the task is still hard and requires unyielding fidelity.

PERSONALITY

The religion that fills men with something supremely beautiful is the builder of a great personality, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Church, New York, said in a recent sermon. This type of religion, he said, was indicated by the philosopher Bergson when he compared the "closed" religion imposed on man by set creeds and negative commands to the "open" religion that puts within a man something supremely beautiful.

"The central fact of life is that we have ourselves on our hands. We may run away from a thousand disliked tasks and responsibilities, but when our frantic escapes have all been achieved, still, there we are again with ourselves on our hands. From that indissoluble relationship there is no divorce, from that innermost demand of life there is no relief. Nothing that we do in any other realm matters much unless we answer constructively the deepest command of life: be a real person.

"Personality is partly a gift and partly an achievement. In one sense we are persons by nature, self-conscious organisms, that is, gifted with capacities for memory, intelligence, love and purpose. In a deeper sense, however, personality is an achievement. A person is the only element in the universe that can consciously help to create and organize itself. We do not grow merely as a tree grows. We consciously and purposely do something about the organizing aims and dominating traits of our characters. In the fine phrase of Wordsworth, 'So build we up the being that we are.'

"Personality is the most mysterouis element in the universe. To start with, it is invisible. We never saw our friends, only the outward integuments and physical masks that at once reveal and conceal them. We never saw ourselves. No mirror is strong enough to show a man to himself, his thoughts, dreams, loves, hopes, purposes. We human personalities now inhabit a realm as invisible as God.

"Personality is thus the profoundest, most mysterious, most potential factor in the universe, and each one of us has been trusted with it. This is the central fact of life. Don't make a failure of that, life says to us. Nothing in any other realm matters much if we do not handle well this deepest and most critical affair.

"One characteristic of all great personality is clear: whether you think of a saint like Paul or of a musician like Toscanini, there is something inside a man that it is his joy and pride and liberation to live up to. To furnish this interior standard and criterion, that Paul called 'the spirit of life in Christ Jesus,' is the function of great religion."

LET THE LOWER LIGHTS BE BURNING, as we sang back in Sunday-school days, but let the upper lights be turning, faster than they do now, is the song of motorists held up at the corner of Front and Bridge streets by the vagaries of the traffic lights. Red light stays on a much longer time than necessary, and the yellow light seemingly tries to make it an endurance record with the red for it stays on so long it seems a permanent fixture. Green behaves itself better, but what is one little green spot among the other bad actors. Seems as tho' the traffic lights need adjusting. At rush hours such as between five and six the line-up becomes so long waiting for the light that before the last cars can get up the light changes again and they are halted for another long wait.

WHEN IN ROME DO AS THE ROMANS DO is pretty good advice and if taken as prescribed generally saves a heap of trouble. British ambassador to Egypt had an experience which leads him to believe that it is wise when in Egypt to do as the Egyptians do. His country villa was infested with snakes, hooded cobras, and he failed to get rid of them, as the native servants refused to go near them or invite them to battle. They advised sending for the official snake charmer, which the ambassador finally did. The snake charmer brought his flute and a bag. As he piped a weird tune the snakes came out of hiding, and weaved in time to the music, while the snake charmer grabbed each one and put it in the bag, until ten cobras in all were captured, the last and largest actually crawling into the bag without assistance. Now it couldn't be that the snake charmer planted those trained cobras there for his own personal profit? Some racket, we'll say, with ten cobras in the villa. Wonder what the Government auditor at London will say when the bill comes in for expert advice and skill in capturing and expelling ten hooded cobras from the country villa of Sir Miles Wedderburn Lampson, British Ambassador to Egypt?

CHICAGO AIRPORT WENT DARK ONE NIGHT RECENTLY, a power supply cable having failed. Radio was also dead and a dozen planes due within the hour. Planes on the ground were requisitioned and radio signals sent out from them to the incoming planes, some of which detoured to Milwaukee, some grounded with the aid of their own searchlights, while one from Fort Worth with fifteen passengers slowly descended to the field dimly illuminated by lanterns. Suddenly the ground lights flashed on and the tension was over. Speed seems so much in demand these days that even darkness does not stop the airliners of the United States.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 19TH, 1918

In compliance with a request from Mr. Arthur McGie, Chairman of the Belleville Board of Health, an emergency meeting to consider ways and means of organizing the city for volunteers in nursing and performing other duties in combating the influenza epidemic, was held last evening in the parlors at the Y.M.C.A. and was well attended. It was decided to organize the city for work on the line of volunteer help and the following officers were elected: President, Mr. Arthur McGie; Secretary, Mr. P. F. Brockell; Assistant Secretary, Miss M. Fraleck; Executive Committee Messrs. D. V. Sinclair, J. O. Herity, A. G. Davie and Dr. Clinton. At the Y.M.C.A. building a register will be kept of the names of all persons who require help, also the names of those volunteering to aid. Prompt action is needed to stop the epidemic; many citizens are suffering and need assistance, entire families being prostrated with the disease. Physicians and nurses are working night and day. All willing to help should report at once to headquarters at the Y.M.C.A.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

The Test For Epilepsy

It is sometimes difficult to tell whether a patient is hysterical or having an epileptic attack or 'fit'. However in epilepsy the patient is always unconscious and may do harm to himself—biting his tongue or others if not protected. In hysteria the patient is not unconscious and is aware of all that he is doing and all that is going on about him. He is usually, but not always, trying to be the centre of attention. This is called a defensive mechanism.

While the cause of epilepsy is still unknown, investigators have found that food is a factor in causing attacks as a group of 11 epileptics, having one or more attacks a day, were kept entirely free of attacks by being starved for ten days. Other investigators then found that if liquids were reduced the epileptic attacks stopped, occurred less often or were not so severe From this finding— excess water in the tissues —causes epilepsy, a test for epilepsy has been discovered.

Drs. McQuarrie and Peeler, in Journal of Clinical Investigation, tell of their study of the effects of using extract of the pituitary gland in cases of suspected epilepsy. This extract—pitressin—has the effect of preventing the escape of water from the tissues by way of the kidneys. The patients were forced to drink great quantities of water and were then given the pitressin. In cases of true epilepsy this forced drinking of water and the keeping of it in the body by means of the pitressin brought on epileptic attacks. A series of other individuals who were forced to drink large quantities of water and were also given pitressin did not have any attacks.

The point then is that before giving the regular treatment for epilepsy to patients, it should first be learned, by this method, that the case is really epilepsy.

The present successful treatment of epilepsy is:

1—Cutting down by one-half on all starch foods—bread, sugar, potatoes, pastries.

2—Cutting down by one-half on milk, cocoa, soft or hard drinks.

3—Increasing the fat foods—butter, cream, fat meats.

4.—A daily dose of phenobarbital as prescribed by a physician.

Letters to the Editor

Replies to Mayor Bone

111 Lingham St. Belleville, Ont.
Oct. 14, 1938.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Would you please allow me space in your valuable paper to reply to an article which appeared in your paper August 12th re Teachers and railroad engineers responsible for high taxes.

1st. "New Artistocracy Created," declares Mayor Bone. "Why not?" says Ald McAninch of Niagara Falls, Ontario. "Such public servants as teachers who are educating our children and laying the foundation for their future careers, their value to our country can never be weighed in dollars and cents. To protect the youth we save the nation, to neglect we destroy it.

2nd. As for our engineers the history of their valuable services to the country needs no one to defend it. Only those ignorant of the hazards and perils which accompany the services of the railroad men would have the gall to criticize the moderate salary they receive Quotation "Education rather than relief was the greatest burden borne by real estate maintained," Mayor Bone.

Stupidity in the public managment of our country's affairs is the evil responsible for high taxation. Just think of it, a country with ten million people have ten governments, with all their branches and parasites on our backs, until every seventh employee in Canada is a government employee in non-productive capacity; (say nothing of the money-lenders, insurance agents etc., who live off the profits created by those who serve in such productive capacity as teachers and railroad engineers).

If the money now going for unnecessary high interest rates and unnecessary government upkeep were released for social services for which real estate is now being taxed, the property owners' troubles would be solved.

As for taking the vote away from the unemployed I would like to remind Mayor Bone and others who feel like him on this matter (if there be others) that there is nothing that he has contributed in securing for the generation, this most precious democracy. It was a security gained for us through the struggle and sacrifice made by our forefathers. May Mayor Bone and all men unemployed or otherwise use the ballot intelligently.

Respectfully yours Ald. J. A. McAninch of Niagara Falls, Ont.

BRITISH

Must Stop Immigration.

The "brains" and "guiding spirit" of the Arab "Holy Rebels", the Mufti declared that before peace came to the Holy Land England must stop immediately all Jewish immigration into Palestine; grant complete independence and a national government to the Arabs in Palestine, and abandon the idea of a Jewish national home in the Holy Land as embodied in the Balfour Declaration of Nov. 2, 1917.

He also imposed as peace conditions in the revolt which has claimed nearly 2,000 casualties in the past twelve weeks demands that the British mandate over Palestine be ended, that further sale of land to Jews be prohibited, and that an Arab-British treaty similar to the Anglo-Egyptian treaty be concluded. Under such a treaty England would set up an Arab state in Palestine and Jews would have only minority rights.

Opposed to these conditions were Britain's objectives in the campaign to bring under control the irregular warfare which found its origin in conflicting Jewish and Arab claims to Palestine as a homeland and the British plan to divide the Holy Land into Arab, Jewish and British sections.

Establish Security.

The British are resolved to bring under control sabotaged railways, restore crippled communications systems, occupy more active rebel centres, and establish security on the highways.

To accomplish this, control of the entire country was placed in the hands of an army backed by planes, tanks and artillery. British military authorities took over command of the Palestine police force under the modified martial law order.

In making known his peace terms, the Grand Mufti declared that "no pressure or aggression by the British or the Jews can re-establish peace in the Holy Land" and added that his terms were "the only ones the Arabs will accept for a settlement of the conflict."

Terroristic Acts in Progress.

Last night bomb-throwing, sniping and other terroristic acts were in full progress in the old city. The situation then became so grave that military authorities decided no time should be lost in recapturing the old quarter, restoring security for its 20,000 inhabitants, and lifting the food famine which has been particularly acute in Jewish and Armenian quarters.

No food has entered the old city since the start of the siege.

This morning planes dropped proclamations on the new city of Jerusalem, outside the walls of the old city, warning everyone to stay indoors all day because of the military operations. The proclamation was signed by Major-General Richard O'Connor, named military governor and commander of the Jerusalem district yesterday. All schools sent their pupils home.

a foregone conclusion that the British government would turn down any lop-sided ratio of this sort and run the risk of Hitler repeating that Great Britain had spurned his overtures of peace. He might even take it as an excuse to repudiate the naval accord.

Parity In Air Desired.

On the other hand, the British government might think it advantageous to offer Hitler an all-embracing military pact which would mean parity in the air, three to one in Britain's favor in sea tonnage, and three to one in Germany's favor on the standing army.

The political effect of any offer of this sort is difficult to judge although it obviously would be fairer than any attempt to bind air defences at their present ratio, which would place Great Britain in a decidedly disadvantageous position.

The colonial question is more complicated. South Africa holds under mandate the old German colony of Southwest Africa. Australia holds New Guinea and New Zealand has Western Samoa. None of the three has shown the least readiness to give up the territory. Tanganyika and parts of the Cameroons and Togoland are under direct British control but no one believes Hitler would be satisfied with their return even if the British government were willing to part with them.

Spoke of Colonies.

At their Godesberg conference Hitler told Prime Minister Chamberlain "there is one awkward question, the colonies, but that is not a matter for war," and later, "there will be no mobilization about that".

Despite these assuring words the British government is being pressed at home and in the three Dominions concerned not to yield to any pressure from Hitler to return the old German colonial empire. So far Hitler has not advanced concrete proposals and it is quite evident Great Britain is sitting tight until he does.

CZECH TROOPS

Komarno to Hungary or fighting.

Situation Has Changed.

A marked difference was presented by towns along the Danube to that of a week ago when thousands of Hungarian flags were displayed as Hungarians momentarily expected the entry of their troops.

A breakdown of negotiations between Hungary and Czechoslovakia last week, however, brought a new feeling among Czechoslovak Nationalists. Hundreds of Hungarian flags were torn down in Komarno and other towns, and pictures of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Hungarian Regent, disappeared from windows of homes and business establishments.

To Line Up Rumania.

Bucharest, Oct. 19 (AP)—Rumanian official circles said today that Germany was making great efforts to line up Rumania in her southeastern European economic sphere.

These circles said that despite such pressure Rumania, fearing that political dependency would follow in the wake of economic change, has shifted her economic policy only slightly if at all.

Oil and coal are the main items Germany is eager to obtain, and she already occupies first place in purchases of the two commodities from Rumania.

During September, German exports to Rumania amounted to 600,000,000 lei ($4,380,000); British, 67,000,000 ($489,100); French, 66,000,000 ($481,000); and nUited States, 87,000,000 ($635,100).

leges that his intended marriage was hindered; although it was authorized by the issuer of marriage licences at London on Feb. 8, 1938.

Damages are also sought because, it is alleged, he was forced to remain with some 1,700 mental patients in the hospital "and for maltreatment of the plaintiff while a patient in said hospital and unjust punishments by the defendant, Stevenson."

Dr. Stevenson, named with Sir Herbert Marler as a defendant, was the central figure in a Royal Commission inquiry into administration of the London hospital that concluded last week. Immediately following the inquiry Dr. Stevenson was reinstated as superintendent after being under suspension during the course of the hearings.

Charges against the hospital administration and Dr. Stevenson were made by John R. Green, St. Thomas, Ont., lawyer and a former patient at the hospital.

May Call Parliament Before Christmas to Ensure Early Closing

Ottawa, Oct. 19 (CP)—The government is considering calling parliament into session before Christmas in an effort to assure prorogation before the visit of the king and queen early next summer.

Following the regular weekly cabinet meeting yesterday, Justice Minister Lapointe, acting Prime Minister, said no definite decision has been reached but the question of an early session is under consideration. Parliament generally assembles in January or February.

The rumored possibility of a special session to deal with the pending revision of the Canada-United States Trade Pact was ruled out when Mr. Lapointe said if parliament is summoned before Christmas it will not be a "fall session".

The minister said it would be desirable to have parliament prorogue before their Majesties arrive in Canada and there would be little possibility of sitting while they were in the Dominion.

If the government decides to begin the session earlier than usual, parliament probably will assemble late in November. This would enable the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne to be completed before Christmas adjournment and allow the legislators to start consideration of the trade treaty when they return, providing it is signed by that time.

Two judicial appointments and two federal grants to fire-devastated areas were announced by Mr. Lapointe. Mr. Justice Lucien Cannon of the Quebec Superior Court was made Judge in Admiralty for the district of Quebec and Fred H. Barlow, Master of the Ontario Supreme Court, was appointed Judge in Admiralty for the district of Ontario.

A $25,000 grant was made to Canadian Red Cross Society to aid fire sufferers in the Fort Frances area of Northwestern Ontario and a $15,000 grant ordered to aid other fire sufferers in St. Luc de Matane, Que.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

CHAPTER 1

Waking early on that fateful Monday morning of enchanting Indian summer that ushered in her twenty-fifth birthday, there was no happier young woman in San Francisco than Antoinette Goddard.

Sunlight filigreed on Brock Milbank's picture in its hadsome silver frame on her dressing table. The perfume of Brock's roses filled the air with lingering scent. Petals were scattered like drops of heart's blood on the great white bearskin that made an island on the parquet floor. Well, what matter? There would be more roses—her favorite flower—from Brock on this morning of her birthday, and presently the telephone by her bedside would be ringing and the man she was going to marry would be telling her that he could scarcely wait till their luncheon today at the St. Francis, and she would thrill to the endearments that made this polo-playing scion of the old San Francisco Milbank family the fascinating lover he was.

One's twenty-fifth birthday! Lacking a Brock, it would be the right moment to do a little mental stock-taking. In France, for instance, passing this landmark meant to coiffer Sainte Catherine — make one's official entry into old maidhood, if unwed!

Antoinette laughed aloud at this, for her, impossible situation! Life had run very smoothly for the only child of the old pioneer family whose timber interests were far-flung in the Northwest.

"And to think I once worried about a career, wanting to be a writer, a singer, a painter!" she addressed Brock's picture from the dreamy depths of her bed. "But the moment you popped the question, I knew the real, the only career for a woman is giving herself to the man she loves, making a home with him, making him happy, and to the devil with careers and all the stupid makeshifts that girls kid themselves with!"

It had been six years since her debut. Previous to that, there had been two years in France. Later, a trip to Honolulu, Tahiti, and the Orient. Oh, she had traveled! More, she had surprised everybody, including herself, by winning her diploma from the University of Stanford, majoring in French and English literature. That had been a year ago. It had been fun attending the university with its gracious campus, cheerful coed spirit and gay parties. The university was within easy reach of her father's ranch.

It was at her graduation festivities that she had renewed acquaintance with Brock Milbank — red-headed, captivating Brock of the chameleon moods and sophisticated air. Debonair! That was the word to describe him. And he was oddly good-looking, despite his small head and rather close-set eyes that were flecked with brown. When one of her friends had told her that he could turn charm on and off like a faucet, Antoinette had been indignant. To her Brock was utterly winning. His moods only lent him a fascinating mystery. When he had proposed to her on that never-to-be-forgotten week-end at Ded Mone, she had accepted him immediately.

Now, as she lay in her bed in the solid old mansion on Nob Hill that had been built by her great-grandfather in the "days of gold," through the open windows over and beyond Brock's picture she could look far down to the blue water of the Bay, hear the sirens of innumerable craft, and by sitting up in bed, she could glimpse the Golden Gate leading to other lands.

"But home is where the heart is!" thought Antoinette. Was ever a city so magical.

Home!

They would live in San Francisco, she and Brock. Here they knew everybody who was anybody. Theirs would be the pleasant life of the so-called idle rich. Why cavil at the term? Why scrabble for gold as her great-grandmother had done, when bride and groom had plenty?

As befitted the union of a Milbank and a Goddard, they would entertain. Perhaps a yacht. Polo at Santa Barbara. A summer camp at Lake Tahoe. Golf at Mont[illegible].

She rose, a slender, long[illegible]mbed girl in blue silk pajamas. Slipping her feet into mules, she walked over the bearskin rug to Brock's photograph, lifted it and kissde it.

Over its silver rim, she smiled at herself in the glass. And what she saw mirrored there, would have given almost any woman in love confidence.

Luminous dark eyes, deep-set and dreaming, and fringed with incredibly long lashes, gave back her mouth that was like a bright red flower.

Her throat was long and slim and white, and she had a proud manner of carrying her sleek, dark head. There was something of the smoothness of the wild duck's in its polish in its quick, nervous turn, its glossy flatness atop, though here the resemblance ended for sleekness gave way to a riot of curls at the nape of the neck.

"Partician! That's the word to describe our Toni", her father had more than once proudly said to his wife. And indeed, there was breeding in every feature of the face that was not exactly pretty, but something more—something that had a touch of the exotic mingled with nobility, something that seemed to flow hrough the long slim lines of her body, something that had overcome the hitherto impervious Brock Milbank when, to his own surprise, he had proposed to her that day at Del Monte.

Under her outer coolness an inner fire, a quiet excitement about Toni that might escape a woman, but could blaze a disturbing trail on a man's senses.

And she was utterly unconscious of this quality of sex-attraction . . magnetism . . call it what you will. But the woman who has it doesn't have to be good-looking or patrician, for the gods have given her the supreme gift in a man's universe—a weapon to undo a Sampson — to pull his world about his ears while singing the song of the siren —though Toni herself, despite her degree in literature, would have been the last person to liken herself to Cleopatra or Delilah.

While standing idly before the mirror, she patted the curls on the nape of her neck. Her hands were lovely, and beautifully cared for. She had sat for a San Francisco sculptor for her hands, and once in Paris for a needy artist. Both exhibits had won prizes, and fame for the sculptor and the artist.

She was taking physical stock of herself now. Wondering what it really was that Brock saw in her. San Francisco society teemed with lovely girls, pert debutantes, chic matrons slightly bored with life, and avid divorcees from the East or Middle West, 'r'arin' to go — to China, or Tahiti, but preferably into the arms of matrimony again.

Jessica Payne, of the Payne Pork Packing Products of Chicago, an exquisite, unscrupulous blonde who had come to San Francisco some weeks ago by way of Reno, made no secret of her predilection for the Milbank son and heir. Not that Toni minded, since Brock gave Jessica small encouragement. She had even gently chided her fiance for his ludicrous imitations of the merry widow behind her back that was so nakedly exposed at numerous San Francisco gatherings.

Yes, Brock was hers, and the fact that other women liked him, she decided, was flattering to her. Jealousy was belittling, a confession of inferiority. Just the same, in the secret places of her heart, Toni had been tinglingly aware that she had felt it.

CHAPTER II

There had been no Brock yesterday—a Sunday—and no word from him. But then, independent and a "man's man" as he was —or had been till he met her—he was occasionally given to a sudden disappearing act! She had a definite luncheon date with him today. As she brushed her hair before the mirror, she decided she would set the date today for their wedding. Thanksgiving would be appropriate.

There was a tap at the door and then in walked Nora, Irish maid of the Goddards who had worked in the old house on Nob Hill for a number of years. Nora had instituted the prebreakfast cup of tea —an Irish custom—for each member of the family. She set down the tiny tray in front of Toni without speaking. Drew her bath. As she moved to adjust a shade in the bedroom, Toni noticed that Nora's eyes were red-rimmed, as though she had been crying.

"Not quarreled with Pat O'Hara again?" she inquired ightly, knowing full well that courtship was dotted with partings, quarrels and reconciliations.

"That wan! Why wuddent I? He's a heart-scald, yet he's that fonny, he'd get a laugh out of ye if ye was dyin'." Nora added darkly: "Shure the way things is turnin', 'tis small choice I have but he merrid to Pat O'Hara. I wonder Mistress Goddard wudden't let me stay on wit' her ennyway." And to Toni's amazement, the usually cheerful Nora, bolting for the door, burst into tears.

Well, that was love! They were sisters under the skin. As Toni dresesd, a fog crept over Alcatraz, and the ship's sirens in the Bay seemed to take on a warning note. Thanksgiving! Today she would set her wedding date for them. Brock would fall in with it, naturally.

When she entered the breakfast room, it struck her as extraordinary that neither of her parents remembered to give her a birthday greeting.

"The bird in the nest too long?" she thought whimsically. She'd remedy that. Brock and she—

"Sit down, Antoinette," said her father heavily.

She noticed then how gray he looked, and that his face was curiously drawn, and a wave of compunction swept her that in her absorption with Brock and the crowd she had given little time to the quiet provider who had, since she first saw the light of day, made all good things possible.

Her anxious gaze flew to her mother.

Her mother's food lay untouched on her plate. The hand that raised the coffee cup shook. Her mother's eyes were red, just as Nora's had been, and there were circles about them that betokened a sleepless night. Toni's compunction deepened.

But outwardly flippant, in the manner of her generation and her class, she contrived to say, as she seated herself: "Regular blue Monday, isn't it?"

"Your father has something to tell you. Anthony, please, as gently as you can. Poor Toni—"

Toni's dark eyes widened as she looked from one to the other. Brock? Had anything happened to Brock? The day before, he'd flown to Santa Barbara and —had the plane crashed? Or his polo pony, the new gelding of uncertain temper? Oh, she couldn't bear it if anything had happened to Brock! Why, it would kill her! The whole room seemed to be whirling.

From far away she heard her father's voice. So far away that only the one word: Crash!" reached her.

It was the plane, then! He was dead! Dying! Her hands gripped the edge of her chair to keep herself from falling.

"Brock!" It came in a breathless gasp, faintly, half smothered.

Then her mother's voice, a note of triumph, of reassurance in it: "You still have Brock, my darling!"

Her own voice was so queer that it seemed like some one else's. "He isn't hurt? You said—a crash?"

"Our money, Toni—the mills—the bank foreclosed on dad's mills."

Often afterward, she was to remember how the relief had been so sudden, so overwhelming, that it was all she could do to keep from laughing hysterically in sheer reaction.

What was money in comparison with love? Why, when Brock and she were married, they would, if necessary, help out her mother and dad What matter which of them had the money so long as they had each other? Brock was generous, an easy spender. Anyway, besides, the old mills there was an overflowing stream of cash in the family bank. Ever since her coming of age four years ago, instead of a stuffy allowance, she'd had her own checkbook. They had trusted her not to be too extravagant.

CHAPTER III

"But you'll get the mills back again. Or you'll build other ones, won't you?" she said quickly to her father.

He smiled wanly at her. Shook his head.

"But you don't mean you've lost everything? I mean, as people did in the earthquake? That would be too fantastic!"

"As far as we're concerned, daughter, there has been an earthquake—a financial cataclysm. New laws, new heavy taxation, plus the long-drawn depression have taken their toll."

He spoke with resignation.

"But you've thousands and thousands of acres of wonderful timber!" she protested. "Why, at my coming-out party I remember a lumber man telling me it was worth all of ten million dollars, darling! There hasn't been an earthquake! You're just being funny! The property's still there!"

'And no longer mine. I tell you, the banks have taken it over. And the mills, too, Antoinette. Financially, we're through."

Across the table, her mother put her handkerchief to her eyes. Toni rose impulsively, ran round to her, and put her arm about her. "Cheer up, darling. You still have this lovely old house and the ranch."

"Not the house, Antoinette. That, and everything of value in it, is to be taken from us as well." Her father spoke with a kind of tired patience, as though he had rehearsed what he would say to her, as doubtless he had been saying it to her mother during the long, wakeful hours of the past night.

And she had slept so happily, ignorant of the tragedy that was occurring under her own roof. Dreaming of Brock and her marriage and her own selfish happiness. Well, she wouldn't be selfish in the future. This shook one out of selfishness. Tears ran down her cheeks as she assured her parent that she would do everything and anything possible to help them.

"You have your own life to lead, Antoinette, your future all before you. It is a comfort to us to know that you will be well taken care of. As for your mother and me, the ranch will be our future home. I'm thankful that it is still left us. I'm not as young as I was, you know." His smile tore at Toni's heartstrings. "At sixty-two one may find oneself learning to accept, even to welcome, tranquillity. Your mother will have her housekeeping and her flower garden and her chickens and if I can put the fruit trees on a paying basis, that will be something useful as well as a hobby to kill time. It'll work out all right."

"But— Brock —" she stammered. "His family have lots of money. I mean, after all you've done for me, surely I can do just a little in return."

"The Milbank family have felt the depression too," said her father quietly. "Besides, my dear child, the old must not be a burden on the young."

It was an incredible morning. A restless one. Ears keyed to the sound of the telephone which so far as Brock was concerned, did not ring. Her father and mother had presents for her. The white satin lingerie set and boudoir robe from her mother looked awfully expensive. Toni whispered: "Don't you think, in the circumstances, we should return it?"

A hurt look came into her mother's eyes. "For your trousseau, darling!"

At eleven o'clock, Toni 'phoned Brock's office. She was told that he hadn't come in yet.

But he was expected any minute. He had a twelve o'clock appointment, and a couple of afternoon appointments. Her spirits lifted. Soon she would see him.

But it was a considerably sobered Toni who dressed in the burgundy fall suit, the smart velour hat to match, the dubonnet suede shoes. Brock loved her to dress well, and noticed every tiny detail. She sighed as she remembered that now her trousseau would be a scant one.

About to hail a taxi, she again remembered altered circumstances, and walked three blocks to one of the funny little street cars that fly up and down San Francisco's steep hills. Arrived early at the hotel where she was to meet Brock, she waited in the lobby, watching the slow hands of the clock, wondering how Brock would take the news of her changed family fortunes.

She felt he had suspected that her father would be affected by the new taxation as, in a lesser degree, his own father had been. This suspicion became a certainty when one of the girls in her set, passing through the lobby, stared incredulously at Toni as though amazed that, to-day of all all days, she had dared to show herself in public when she ought to be at home, comforting her parents!

"Toni! You here! Why, Toni — I —I'm frightfully sorry! You could have knocked me down with a feather! I—I just saw it in the papers! It's an awfully raw deal!"

The girl's shocked concern touched Toni. Tears sprang to her beautiful dark eyes.

"That's awfully kind of you, Frannie." She contrived a shaky smile. "But every cloud has its silver lining, and I've got mine ahead of me." Immediately she said the words, she regretted them. They sounded mercenary, as though Brock were to restore the family fortunes.

The girl stared as though she imagined Toni had lost her mind. Then with a nervous: "You're marvelous! Simply marvelous, taking it like that!" she moved away, murmuring something about luncehon with Jim.

CHAPTER IV

One o'clock. Five after one. Ten after. One-fifteen.

Was it her imagination, or were acquaintances —girls and boys she knew casually—avoiding her as she sat in the lobby of the hotel where she had been wont to entertain so lavishly?

Avoiding her, and then looking over at her surreptitiously, whispering about her, some with pitying looks and some with thinly veiled sneers.

Did the loss of one's money mean, so quickly, the loss of prestige and of so-called friendship? Were they afraid she might try to borrow from them? That she was here without an invitation, trying to horn in on a luncheon or something?

Toni's head went high, and two red spots burned in the clear pallor of her cheeks.

The lobby was emptying now. She felt conspicuous.

She'd walk over to the newsstand. Glance at the papers. If Brock didn't come in another five minutes, birthday or no birthday, she would leave.

On the front page of the Call-Bulletin were eye-compelling headlines:

"Young San Francisco Blueblood Elopes with Chicago Divorcee."

Her glaze flew to the lower caption, froze to the ghastly words that seemed to grow bigger and more terrible before her eyes. Her world crashed about her!

"Brock Milbank and Jessica Payne Married This Morning in Santa Barbara"

she read.

It wasn't true! There must be some horrible mistake!

It couldn't be true!

Brock had a cousin in Santa Barbara. His name was Jeffrey Milbank. Why, there had been a mix-up! A silly misprint of course!

Brock was engaged to her, Antoinette Goddard! He was so fine, so true, so devoted, it was utterly impossible that he could do this thing to her!

But the headlines dancing before her eyes, a warning inner voice, a terrifying voice, reminded her that, the world over, it had happened thousands of times before.

Jilted! Without even notice!

If only her leaden feet could impel her to the door of the fashionable hotel. Or to the ladies' lounge, where she could hide while reading what lay below the headlines.

But she was terrified to read it!

She felt the compassionate eyes of the girl in charge of the news-stand on her, remembered that this very girl must have seen Brock and herself meeting here, innumerable times. Her fingers fumbled in her pocketbook for the pennies to pay for the paper. Couldn't find them. Blindly she flung down a quarter, and without waiting for the change, hurried out of the lobby and into a taxicab.

She stammered to the driver: "Fisherman's Wharf, please."

As the taxi bounded forward, she drew a deep breath. Courage! Where was it now? Afraid to read a paper? Her heart thumping ,she found the column.

"The surprise wedding 'in Santa Barbara this morning of the beautiful Jessica Payne of Chicago to Brock Milbank, only son of the John Pierce Milbanks of San Francisco will be of great interest to society not only on the Pacific coast, but throughout the Middle West.

"The bride, who resumed her maiden name after her recent Reno divorce and inheritance of one-fifth of the Payne estate from her late grandfather, met the groom during her three months' stay in San Francisco, during which time many parties were given in her honor.

"This reporter, on calling on the happy couple this morning, decided that Jessica undoubtedly is the most beautiful bride of the season. As for the handsome Brock, he wore a smile that looked as if it would never come off.

"After a wedding trip to the Orient, the couple will make their home in San Francisco."

There was a sickening, smothering sensation in Toni's chest. She slumped back in the seat, closing her eyes.

Was this death? —she asked herself. No, it was worse than death! Death was forgetfulness. A quiet slipping away from the world and its horrors.

But pain tore at her heart like the claws of t tiger.

Brock! Her Brock, who had told her he adored her!

Married!

There was no rancor yet. Only shock. And agonizing pain.

Why had he done this to her, knowing how she loved him?

The pitying looks, whisperings in the lobby of the hotel, came back to her. Explaining now, in the light of this appalling cataclysm. How he had humiliated her.

But, the motive? Where was the motive?—she wondered. Why, over and over in her presence, he had laughed at Jessica Payne! Laughed at her background, her splash of money, her ostentation. Condemned her flashy clothes, her showiness.

Had it all been a blind, to hide his real attraction to her? Toni wondered. To pull the wool over her eyes?

But no, he had really loved his fiancee. Else why propose to her? Be so devoted? Perhaps his own family as that morning dad had suggested, was hit too. That being so, they had brought pressure to bear on Brock, maybe urging a wealthy marriage on him in preference to marrying a girl whose family had lost their money. The Milbanks, Sr., were worldly people, who had long since lost the idealism of youth.

But whatever the reason, nothing made it bearable. On this, her birthday, her whole safe happy world was in smithereens!

CHAPTER V

"Here we are miss," said the taxi driver, drawing up along the famuos Embarcadero. "Here's Fisherman's Wharf."

Here she had come often, with Brock Milbank. Giggling like two children, they had consumed endless rosy shrimps from the 'shell at the quaint open-air stands. This Old World place had intrigued them, and they had often stolen from parties to visit the water front and chat with the quaint fisherfolk in woolen tams and baggy trousers and long rubber boots smelling overpoweringly of the day's catch.

Mechanically, Toni paid the driver and, as in a bad dream, wandered by the water's edge.

If she could only hide forever! Board one of those weatherbeaten windjammers, or preferably a great freighter set for foreign ports, far, far from San Francisco! Never to return.

Or, better still, slip into the cold water, down into eternal oblivion!

Even now they were bandying her name, discussing her in the clubs and smart meeting places from here to Santa Barbara, and back again! There was contempt in people's pity for a girl who had been jilted. A psychological, cruel twist in people's minds that dug out reasons for the breaking of engagements. The woman got the blame. It was her fault. She couldn't hold her man!

Seating herself on a bench near the water, Toni stared with dim eyes out over the busy harbor. A niche for everyone in the world but Toni Goddard! Gulls swooped and wailed about her, like banshees moaning the utter desolation of frustration and lost love.

In a panorama, the whole course of Brock's courtship of her passed before her mind. She had taken his love so for granted. Trusted him completely.

Now, this horrible ending! Brock and Jessica! It was too fantastic. It was a bad dream. She, Toni Goddard, couldn't have had this happen to her.

The woman had followed him to Santa Barbara. Last night inveigled him out on a party. Got him drinking. Deliberately, and knowing his weakness, planned his befuddlement. Like so many men of the rich, leisured set, Brock was apt to take too much. Jessica, the unscrupulous, had traded on it.

But, in the printed report, there was no hint of an all-night revelry preceding the marriage.

"The most beautiful bride of the season."

"Brock wore a smile that looked as if it would never come off."

These were knife-turns in the wound!

Over her heart, her pride, they had stepped to their happiness!

They would make their home in San Francisco! She would be compelled to meet them! So-called friends would take malicious pleasure in the situation. Some might pity. Others sneer at the girl who couldn't hold her man. Tribute went to the strong. Jessica, the bride, would be feted everywhere.

Helpless tears ran down he cheeks, so that the harbor water blurred and an old fisherman who was mending his net near by seemed like a phantom.

Time passed. She didn't move. She was numb, robbed of volition.

What did one do when the savo of life had gone forever? Make th gestures? Carry on? The old saw about pride helping one were stupi and futile!

What was pride in comparison t love? What did one do when lov failed one? Hide one's head? Craw into a dark corner, like som wounded animal?

But one couldn't hide the story It would be bandied from lip to li The wedding announcement mad the gossip writers would seize on th jilting. Printed comment would b made. Her family was too prominent, as was Brock's to let this morsel slip. In later editions of th papers, tonight, tomorrow mornin the columnists would cast thei inuendoes. Worse than that perhaps, offer their sympathy.

Presently she was no longer alon on the bench. The baggy-trousere old fisherman had come to smok his pipe, his work of mending completed.

"Beautiful day, miss," he observed politely.

She thought: "Of all remarks surely there was never one mor ironic!"

Didn't the very sunshine mock he as she sat there, her world about he ears?

"I don't find it beautiful," she sai shortly, hardly conscious that sh spoke her thought aloud.

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Adapted from the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture by GERTRUDE GELBIN

SYNOPSIS: Marie Antoinette is married for reasons of state to Louis August, Dauphin of France. Her marriage is a crowning achievement in the diplomatic life of her mother, Empress Maria Theresa of Austria. Marie Antoinette discovers on her wedding night that her husband hates her and has no intention of regarding her as a wife.

NOW READ CHAPTER TWO—BELOW

"Conquer Paris—and you conquer DuBarry."

"I see Marie Antoinette—the most beautiful woman in Paris."

"For a moment your kiss had me fooled, Madame."

Until the arrival in Paris of Marie Antoinette (Norma Shearer) and her subsequent ill-fated marriage to the Dauphin, only one woman has controlled the French court — Du Barry (Gladys George), the vicious Mistress of King Louis XV (John Barrymore). Du Barry knows that as future Queen of France, Marie is a rival for her power. She begins a subtle campaign against Marie, demanding an heir, knowing full well, by reason of her palace spies, that Louis August (Robert Morley) has refused to live with Marie as her husband. Unaware of the intrigue against her, Marie Antoinette tries without success to find favor in the Court.

The vivacious, lovely Marie becomes a lonely and forlorn figure in the Palace of Versailles. Her only friend is Princess de Lamballe (Anita Louise), a flighty young girl who, nevertheless, has not yet been corrupted by the Court life, and who admires and loves Marie devotedly. When Du Barry quarrels openly with the Duke D'Orleans (Joseph Schildkraut), and he feels his power is waning, he decides upon a brilliant plan—he will play Marie Antoinette against Du Barry, thereby winning the favor of the former and lessening the power of the latter.

Denied the love of a husband and the counsel of wise and trusted friends, Marie becomes a tool in the hands of the unscrupulous D'Orleans. He assures her that all Paris is eager to pay her homage—that her object should be to out-shine Du Barry in every way. "Conquer Paris and you conquer Du Barry," he advises. Marie follows his advice. Under his tutelage she becomes the most infamous woman in Paris. She finds escape, excitement and thrills in a series of flagrantly wild parties. She loses fortunes at the gambling tables and races while the French people become more oppressed by poverty.

Marie Antoinette becomes the glittering product of the decadent French Court—a woman whose escapades are on every tongue. At a riotous affair in a gambling house, she is instructed to find a Russian —or forfeit her diamond necklace. She calls in a stranger from the street and asks him to pretend he is a Russian. In reality, he is the dashing Count Axel de Fersen (Tyrone Power), a Swedish nobleman. He does her bidding. As a reward, she kisses him. He is scathing in his denunciation of her, telling her first he knows her identity, then spurning her kisses. Read the next chapter.

Girls Can Train Boy Friends to Come Across with What's Expected of Them; Mistake for Girls to Furnish All Entertainment.

(Copyright, 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Chatfield:

We are in a pocket and we don't know how we got in or how to get out. My sister and I used to have by friends that took us out to the movies and to dances and to sports events. Gradually we have reached the point where we sit at home, play ping pong, listen to the radio and talk. We never have a bid to go out. We are sick of it and while we aren't mercenary and aren't gold diggers in any sense we feel that the boys are taking a mean advantage of us. Please help us for we are desperate.

Sisters.

Regardless of how you got is the pocket, the way to get out is to break out and do it with a bang. Either your present crop of beaux is composed of tightwads and deadbeats, or they are ignoramuses who don't know what's happened of a boy friend. If they are worth teaching you might try that plan first.

Everybody knows that a ping pong table and a radio and a victrola are good boy bait and it's grand idea for girls to set them out; but when the boys continue to take the bait and leave the hooks bare, this is time to fold up the table, cut off the radio, hide the victrola, and tell the dates that you are movie hungry that you can' tkeep your feet still another evening and that you think it would be fun to have a late snack after the dance.

If they don't take the first hint you should go out and get some new boy friends which I know is more easily said than done. You have made the mistake that is frequently made by sisters nearly the same age, you have chummed with each other and neglected to make girl friends. Yet this is the best way to widen your acquaintance among the boys; get into a group of girls whose dates know what's expected of them. Gradually you can ease out your positions as hostesses, always at home to a bunch of bait eaters.

Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield

My husband and I have an adopted boy ten years old and we just cannot bring ourselves to tell him the truth. Ever since he was old enough to understand we have discussed it, planned how we would do it and then when time came our hearts failed us. Can we safely postpone it longer and will it be a shock to our boy?

Mrs. R.

My dear lady the chances are that some schoolmate or some officious neighbor has already told your little boy that he is adopted and I suspect that when you get up the courage to speak to him, you will discover that he is acquainted with the facts.

I'm sure that a tender, tactful foster mother could impart that information in such a way that the child would love her all the more. Certainly she has a grand argument in explaining to him that he is not her child by the accident of birth but that he has gone out and chosen him because she loved him at sight and wanted him for her very own.

Caroline Chatfield.

GIRL'S BODY SEEN

Port Credit, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)—A body, believed to be that of Gertrude Ferguson of Toronto who drowned Sept. 4, was stirred to the surface of Lake Ontario, yesterday by the propeller of the tug Ajax. Attempts to find it later were fruitless.

The girl set out in a dinghy with Alex Wheelan of Toronto Sept. 4. The boat was found floating on its side the next day and Wheelan's body was recovered.

RACE POSTPONED

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP)—The third scheduled race between the Canadian defender of the International Fishermen's Trophy, Captain Angus Walters' Bluenose, and the Gloucester challenger, Captain Ben Pine's Gertrude L. Thebaud, was postponed today when Bluenose's steering gear became disabled just before starting time. Each schooner holds one victory in the best-of-five series.

Variety In Chicken Salads

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

HERE ARE some new variations on the old theme of chicken salad, some of them from Brazil. Many recipes use Brazil nuts, something that is a fine addition to the chicken salad family.

Amazon salad is the first variation, and it is good. One cup diced chicken, one and one-quarter cups diced celery, one-third cup coarsely-chopped Brazil nuts, one-half cup cooked salad dressing or mayonnaise will yield four servings. Combine the ingredients in order given, mixing lightly. It's nice as a sandwich filling, or a salad on lettuce.

The next salad uses a cup of diced, cooked chicken, one cup cucumber, pared and cubed; one cup chopped Brazil nuts, one cup small canned peas, French dressing, mayonnaise and lettuce. Marinate chicken, cucumber, nuts and peas with French dressing. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. It's an especially nice salad for a "company" luncheon, or for a supper buffet.

Chicken Salad Rio

Chicken salad Rio is as exotic as the city in which it originated. It calls for a pint of diced, boiled chicken, one cup diced celery, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-half cup Brazil nuts, one cup fruit salad dressing with whipped cream, lettuce, salt and pepper. Mix lemon juice with chicken, celery and Brazil nuts, season and let stand. Have everything cold and, just before serving mix lightly with fruit salad dressing with whipped cream. To make this dressing you will need two tablespoons lemon juice, two eggs or four egg yolks, beaten; one-quarter cup water, one-third cup sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice, two eggs or four egg yolks, beaten; one-quarter cup water, one-third cup sugar, two tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon paprika and one cup cream, whipped. Mix dry ingredients, add egg, lemon juice and water; cook over boiling water, stirring constantly. Add butter, cook until thick and cool. When ready to use, add the stiffly-beaten cream.

Another Variation

The next chicken salad variation calls for one-quarter cup cooked chicken, sliced and cut into tiny squares; Chutney mayonnaise, one-half cup artichoke bottoms cut like the chicken, two tablespoons truffle cut in small pieces, one-half cup cold, boiled potatoes cut like the chicken, cucumber cups and lettuce. Mix chicken, potatoes, artichokes and truffle with mayonnaise. Serve in cucumber cups on lettuce. To make the chutney mayonnaise, add one and one-half tablespoons chutney to one cup mayonnaise and stir until thoroughly blended. This is a very nice salad for a bridge luncheon or buffet.

Weddings

CARTER—TRUMAN

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday evening last in St. Michael's and All Angels' Church, Toronto, when Lillian Gay Muriel, younger daughter of Mr. Thomas Truman, and the late Mrs. Truman, of Belleville, became the bride of Vernon Claremont Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Carter of Belleville. Rev. C. E. Clarke officiated.

The bride wore her travelling dress of tree bark shade with matching accessories and carried bronze and yellow 'mums. Miss Alice Stewart of Toronto, was her attendant wearing brown with British tan accessories and carrying yellow 'mums. Mr. Arthur Burnett of Port Carling, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter will reside in St. Thomas.

BRIDE-TO-BE HONORED

In honor of Miss Donna Smith, bride-to-be, a delightful shower was held at the home of Miss Doris Hess, Sidney Township, last Friday evening. Miss Smith was presented with a handsome silver tea set by twenty girl friends, and address read by Miss Edith Hagerman.

Dear Donna:

We who are here tonight representing many others have come to express our regret at severing the ties of happy social relationships which we all enjoyed with you. The stream of time flows swiftly on, bringing many changes, some pleasant, some sad, and yet your going to leave a gap which will be hard to fill. Just accept these gifts as a slight token we pray, of the love and esteem we shall bear you always.

The evening was spent in cards and at 11 o'clock a delicious lunch was served and a pleasant evening was spent, wishing Miss Smith very much happiness.

ROSLIN GUILD

The Women's Guild of St. Paul's Church, Roslin, held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. William Cockins on Wednesday evening, Oct. 12, with 16 present. In the absence of the president, Mrs. (Rev.) Beazer took charge, the meeting was opened in the usual manner with prayer, hymn and creed. Roll call was answered with a verse from the Bible containing the word "Grace". Mrs. Alford had charge of the program which consisted of the following: Solos by Rev. Mr. Beazer, Mrs. Ed. Colden, Mrs. George Goodfelow and readings by Mrs. F. Coulter, Mrs. Beazer, Mrs. John Hart. The meeting was closed with a hymn and Mr. Beazer gave the Benediction. Mrs. Cockins served a lovely lunch and a vote of thanks extended to her for her hospitality.

Jump Rope to Fill Out Muscles

MARIAN SEMLER
Jumps rope to keep her calves trim and shapely

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

FATTED calves and spindly shanks can be brought to a normal condition by jumping rope. Haven't done it for years? You're missing something. More fun than making faces at somebody you don't like.

A child's jumping rope will do. It will strengthen and fill out muscles on thin legs. It often happens that the same exercises that reduce surplus measurements add to those that lack inches.

Stand holding to a table, see how high you can kick your foot up your back. The leg must be rigid, not bent at the knee. This exercise has a tendency to reduce thighs that have gone beyond the bounds.

Have a regular time for your beauty chores. If you don't you'll forget them. Ten minutes night and morning of the calisthenics described will do much toward correcting figure defects.

With skirts short, hosiery of spiderweb transparency, no Pity Sing can endure fuzzers on her legs. Knowing that she is not fur bearing, she doesn't see why she should have them.

Depilatories come in various forms; they will remove the horrid threads. Or, if one prefers, the growth can be bleached so it will not reveal itself though the filmiest stockings are worn.

Measure out a tablespoonful of peroxide, add only two drops of household ammonia; more ammonia may cause discomfort. It is added to speed up the bleaching process. Apply twice a day until the hairs are almost white. Don't forget that peroxide that has stood for a long time or been exposed to the light loses its chemical properties.

POPULARITY CONTEST IS GAINING FAVOR

The race goes merrily on. As the deadline approaches the six girls contestants in the Kiwanis Karnival Popularity Contest that reaches a climax in the Armouries, Friday night, are staging a strenuous eleventh hour drive for the coveted honor and prize.

Indicative of the evenness of the contest is the fact that last night's standing reveals only a small margin of difference between the various entries. All are putting their best foot forward in an effort to come under the wire ahead of the field, and it should prove an exciting contest by the time zero hour draws near.

The standing up to last night, sees Eva Hogle out in front with a slight lead, with Nellie Dorlan and Gladys Knox all tied up for second place. In fourth position is Marion Clark with Marguerite Hebert and Jean Ramsay in the order named.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Too Much Goes to the Beauty Parlour

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My wife is undeniably pretty. And she'd be just as good-looking if she did her own facial, hand-painting, frizzing, curling and nail-tinting. But all these things she has to have done for her make a pretty big hole in my weekly pay envelope.

Apparently she is satisfied with me and hasn't an eye out for any other fellow. Why does she feel obliged to have her primping done for her? She doesn't have to court me so hard.

Losing Interest

I wonder if the signature you've given yourself doesn't explain matters, in spite of what you tell me. Does she think you're losing interest, and does she have her hand-painting, frizzing, nail-tinting done to keep you? Why don't you tell her, as you have me, that you're satisfied with her without all these embellishments?

Also, remind her of the adage that when you've once caught the street-car, you stop running.

The Stout Girl's Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a sophomore in high school and on a visit from another state. The only trouble with me is that I'm too fat. Nearly all my friends are only half my size. My "steady" back home says he won't take me out if I don't lose ten pounds, but instead of losing, I gain five. The friends I am visiting are all terribly thin, and are trying to gain weight, so they have rich foods, desserts and things that send the calories up.

Most of the boys like me because I'm a good dancer, but they won't take me out as I'm too fat.

Girl Sophomore

I wouldn't do anything about dieting until I had consulted my family doctor. It is impossible for some people to become thin because of glandular difficulties.

If your trouble is glandular, I'm afraid you'll have to put up with it. If your doctor says it is not, brace up and positively decline all desserts, cut out bread and butter. Instead eat butterless whole wheat bread toasted, fruit, spinach, lettuce etc. Dress your salad with mineral oil. It's seasoned highly enough to kill the taste, and will not add calories.

Father Opposes His Desire to Study

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For two years I've been working in a grocery store and have been saving like a miser to pay my way through a radio and television school. Now that I've got enougn money to go to school my father wants me to open a grocery store of my own. He says I'll be wasting my time and money to go to school, where there are so many trained men, and I wouldn't have a chance.

I know I could make a go of the store, but I wouldn't like it, or the long hours that go with it—even on Sundays. My mother is not for the store business. Being the oldest of a big family, I don't ever remember being a kid.

H.A.T.

I hope this will not bring the wrath of your father down upon my head, but I'm strong for letting boys and girls follow the bent they're keen on, as you are about this radio television. You've saved the money for school, and I agree with your mother that it's only right and proper you should have this chance.

If you shouldn't make a success of it, you could always go back to the grocery business.

Gossiping Neighbours

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My sweetheart and I were going together very happily, when the neighbours started talking. I am 18, he is 19. And they told his mother there would be trouble because I did not belong to the same faith as he did. But what is the difference, Miss Fairfax, when we believe the same things?

She told her son he would have to stop going with me, and as he wasn't working he couldn't afford to have a girl friend. But jobs are pretty hard to get today, and I don't want him to spend any money on me. I have been told that mothers of his nationality run their sons' lives. And when she ordered him to stop going with me, it seemed to take all the heart out of him, just as it did when he told me about it.

He said he would try and see me sometimes, but not as often as we have seen each other in the past. He said perhaps I'd better forget him.

A Reader

I can't understand why sensible people pay so much attention to gossiping neighbours. And a difference of religion is not the insurmountable barrier today that it was formerly. If you care for this boy as much as you think you do, why not "wait 'till the clouds roll by", as that old song as hit.

GOOD MANNERS

Trousseau Tea Procedure

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My mother and I have received an invitation to a trousseau tea, and we would like to know the correct procedure for such an occasion.

2—When should the wedding gift be sent?

G.

1—At a trousseau tea you and your mother do just as you would do when you go to any other type of tea, plus looking at and commenting admiringly about the trousseau. When you enter, you will probably find some one near the door to direct you to the room in which you are to leave your wraps. Then you go to the room in which the hostesses are receiving. They greet you, shake hands, and you and your mother make some pleasant comment about the happiness of the occasion, your delight in being there. Then you and your mother join your friends, to chat for as long as there is time or inclination. You will probably be 'escorted' by a relative or friend of the family to the room in which the trousseau is being displayed. At any time you wish you go to the dining room for your tea. When you decide to leave, you go to the hostesses to say goodbye, to thank them for inviting you to the party, and to say what pleasant time you have had. You do this before you go to put on your wraps.

2—We should send our wedding gift to the bride-to-be as soon as we possibly can after we have received the wedding invitation. This is the thoughtful thing to do, since it gives the bride-elect time to write us a thank-you note before she leaves on her wedding trip.

R.S.V.P.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I received a church wedding invitation and at the bottom are the following letters, "R.s.v.p." Kindly tell me what these letters mean?

C.

R.s.v.p. are the initials for the French phrase Responde s'il vous plait, which, translated, means Reply, if you please.

Therefore, if the invitation is, as I judge, a formal invitation to the church wedding, you write your reply on the first page of double-sheeted letter-paper, to read and to be spaced like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Clark accept with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morrison's kind invitation for Tuesday, the tenth of November at The United Church at four o'clock

Use of "Jr" After Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Allen just became the parents of a son and they are puzzled as to his name. Mr. Allen was named for his father (now deceased) and they thought it would be a nice gesture to call the new baby John J. Allen, third.

Please let us know through your column whether it would be proper to call him John J. Allen, third, inasmuch as John J. Allen first is now deceased, or would it be proper to call him John J. Allen, Junior?

Daily Readers

When your husband's father was living, he was John J. Allen and your husband was John J. Allen, Junior. On the death of the Senior John J. Allen your husband became John J. Allen, dropping the junior. Now your son becomes John J. Allen, junior.

Retired Engineers Banqueted Also Presented with Canes by Members of the Brotherhood

Leading Officials of The C.N.R. And Many Visitors Present

SHORT ADDRESSES

Civic Welcome Extended To Assembly By Ald. McLean Haig

Leading officials and visitors of the Canadian National Railways between Sarnia and Montreal, and officers of the Canadian Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers from equally distant points, helped swell the attendance at the most successful third annual banquet tendered by the local Lodge 189, B. of L.E. to retired engineers of the Belleville Division of the C.N.R. at Johnstone's Academy last evening.

Most sincere in its best wishes of good will and friendliness, the third annual event eclipsed previous efforts of the same nature, events which have become of especial yearly significance to members of the running trades of the local division.

Five retiring veterans of the division were honored last evening by the presentation of gold-mounted walking sticks, but only three open presentations were made. Honored publicly were James Barlow, Rufus Wensley and A. (Col.) Bonisteel, who have retired from active work. Two other brothers, who were unable to be pesent through illness will be given their presentation by members of the Lodge privately, they are John Muir and Jos. Elliott. With the presentation of the walking sticks, a second gift by Mr. Geo. Naylor, head of the local committee was also made each veteran.

Civic Welcome Given

A civic welcome to the visitors and members of the local Lodge was tendered by acting Mayor Mac Haig introduced by Geo. Naylor, chairman of the evening, a sincere welcome, which followed the annual one minute of silence and reverie in memory of the departed brothers whose places were left vacant by their recent deaths.

In his welcome acting Mayor Haig recalled the time when he, too, had been privileged to work on the railroad in his boyhood days, hard work which consisted in laying ties on the Joliet division in Quebec.

"But my particular function tonight is to welcome you all to Belleville a city, which needs no introduction, because its daytime beauty speaks for itself, and whose night time beauty is reflected in the beautiful faces of the women and the handsome countenances of the men," declared Alderman Haig.

Alderman Haig congratulated the retiring brothers who were being shown such esteem by their former fellow wokers.

"It must be a source of great satisfaction to retire and be congratulated by those with whom you have worked so long," he declared. "A gathering like this shows the solidarity of the men, who are bound together for a single purpose."

Original organizations such as the Brotherhood which was so well represented, he continued, were formed to fight the oppression so marked among workers of past ages. Trade unionism is an effort of an organization to become a great social movement interested in influencing the world for good and the higher ideals of labor, he stressed.

Means a Lot to City

"This Belleville division of the Canadian National means a lot to Belleville. It takes or means no small part in the business life of this city. Its loss would be heavily felt here," declared Alderman Haig in again congratulating officers of the local lodge for their efforts in continuing the annual event.

Mr. T. Skelly, Ottawa, general chairman of the B. of L.E., for the Central Region, in his remarks paid tribute to veterans who had gone on ahead, but who had laid a foundation of organization truly and well. "A foundation which has been left for us to build upon," he cited. "Each year your annual banquet becomes stronger in success and numbers," he added, stressing the fact that the B. of L.E. had helped in a great measure for employees to have the benefits which they at present enjoy.

In his tribute to Belleville, chairman Skelly declared he knew of no better place in which to enjoy that rest and contentment which was the privilege of those, who are retired.

Brings Fraternal Greetings

Howard Chase, Montreal, Grand Chief in Canada of the B. of L.E., in a brief address brought fraternal greetings of the Grand Chief of the B. of L.E., who is at present in Washington, D.C., "battling to avoid having to take the fifteen per cent. reduction in pay they are trying to bring about over there," he informed his hearers.

"And we may hope, that the fight over there is a good one", added Mr. Chase. "Because if they are successful over there in a reduction, it is not unlikely that there will be one on this side. And if that threatens here, it means, that your grand officers will take up the fight, and anyone who undertakes to disturb the wage rate here would find plenty of resistance.

"For, in spite of the claim made by some that railroad wages are too high, they are not too high. They should be higher. They say the engineers get too much; they don't get enough.

"But remember this, in our fight, your officers are no stronger than the men who are behind us, the men who make up our organization".

Paid Tribute to Officers

Mr. Chase paid tribute to the worthy effort of officers of the local Lodge 189 in carrying on the annual banquet for retiring enginemen. "It's a nice thing to pay tribute to these retiring workers, to get together and tell them what good fellows they are while they are still alive to hear it. Because I never was in favor of flowers on coffins where the recipient can't smell them."

A word of advice was conveyed by the speaker to the retiring guests. "Take that pass the railroad gives you when you retire and use it to see your country. Don't get in a rut after you quit work. Don't shrivel up. The engines will still keep running even if you are not there to see them. Get out and enjoy things while you may," he advised.

Officials Toasted

To Wm. Fairbairn of the local division fell the honor of offering the toast to officials of the C.N.R. system.

"What has been said by your Chairman, Mr. Naylor, in a few words has been true: 'We have the best officials, that any railroad or any body of workers could have,'" agreed Mr. Fairbairn.

He recalled from memory conditions on the local division back in the days of 1890 when he joined the railway as a wiper in the round house. He referred to the then Superintendent, W. D. Robb, "a man who was keen on discipline," and who would not tolerate slackness in work or idleness.

"He was the sort of man who would fire you today and hire you tomorrow", recalled Mr. Fairbairn. "Yet he was just and fair. That is the system under which we now work, fairness has been exemplified in all our dealings with the officials who are over us. They're not out to get you. Often they lean over in their efforts to help the worker. Yet they have their own rules and regulations, and they must be guided by them," stated Mr. Fairbairn.

Superintendent Responds

J. F. Pringle, Toronto, superintendent of the Southern Ontario Division, in his response to the toast to officials declared that always officers of the system had tried to be fair. There are certain rules for both officers and men which must be put into effect if a system is to be maintained, he agreed. "The men try to co-operate with us, we know, and we try to co-operate with them"

"This annual recognition of retiring workers is a splendid one. The men responsible are to be congratulated. And the same congratulations should be offered those who are retiring," continued Mr. Pringle. "At the age of 65 the worker has earned a rest. It should not be looked upon as the end of things; rather this retirement should be looked upon in the manner of a promotion. He has taken a step to a better life, a more leisurely one in which he may find time to do the many things he has often wanted to. Before him should lie many happy years of life and I desire at this time to wish every one of the men retiring the best prospects to enjoy this life.

Difficult Years

"We have passed through difficult years recently, years which felt the same recession here that was felt in the United States. There car loadings fell off and there were not so many to move. When this happened men of the running trades and other trades were affected. But now conditions appear better. We have had good harvests here and in the west. Prospects are exceedingly brighter and we can look forward with considerable optimism. But our earnings and employment on the road are dependent upon the service we give. We need the 'On Time' performance of freight and passenger service steadily. And I am glad to say that this service is being given most efficiently in the central region, for which the office desires at this time to thank you."

Mr. O. Duff, local divisional superintendent declared that while his stay in Belleville had as yet been short, he hoped in time to become personally acquainted with every man of the local division. "In my old division I knew the first names of every engineman I had. I hope that I will be able to say the same in Belleville soon. That is the only satisfactory way to run a division, to know intimately all the men with whom you work," he stated.

Door Always Open

Mr. Duff reminded his fellow workers at this point that the door of his office was "always open," and every workman was free to visit him at any time.

In his toast to the retired engineers, F. A. Pinkston pointed out that since the inception of the annual event the local lodge had enjoyed the unique record of retaining nearly all its members at each annual banquet. He paid tribute to the early pioneers of the lodge in the city, declaring them to have laid the foundation for the benefits, which all enjoyed at present. "We cannot thank them adequately enough," he added.

J. W. Barlow congratulated officers and members of the lodge for their effort in arranging the banquet year after year. He congratulated also the retiring guests and stressed the fact, that since he had been found "too old to continue railroading," he had worked harder than ever before.

Play the game with officials of the line and they'll deal fairly with you, Alderman Barlow advised. "They are but human, and the old days when the only way to get out of trouble was to lie out of it, were gone", he added.

"Nowadays the officers of the line know just as much about railroading as you do, and more. If they didn't they wouldn't have the jobs they are in."

Presented With Canes

In his presentation of the canes to the retiring guests, Mr. Skelly declared that the canes were not a symbol of anything else but that of youthfulness. "We are not giving them to you because we think you need canes, we are giving them to you to use when you step down the street with a jaunty air and youthful appearance. Get out and use them", he advised.

A toast to the visitors proposed by Thomas Crozier, was responded to by Rodney McLea, Montreal, Edward Hone, Brockville, and Robt. Hay, Stratford, all of whom spoke briefly.

Other guests present were: Allan Beardshaw, superintendent of motive power, Toronto; A. Jones, local divisional locomotive foreman; A. Saunders, master mechanic; Wm. Rogers, assistant superintendent;

During the evening the Radio Four, assisted by Sandy Burrows, and by Leo Riggs at the piano, rendered many delightful numbers and individual efforts. James Lazenby as female impersonator, was distinctly the novelty of the evening. Mr. Geo. Cornish also attained to the heights in impromptu entertainment.

Officers responsible for the annual banquet were: Chairman Geo. Naylor, assisted by the executive: T. A. Crozier; F. A. Pinkston; A. Clark; H. Leavitt; James Walden; W. Fairbairn; Thomas Lynch; Frank Parsons; Robert Orne; Charles Doran, W. Lavery, S. Cherrie and Robt. Muirhead.

Dancing to an early hour to the enjoyable rhythm of Tommie Mason's orchestra, and a social evening concluded the most successful third annual gathering.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

PERFECT WEATHER GREETS VISITORS TO MARMORA FAIR

Splendid Exhibit of Livestock, Poultry And Fruits

SPLENDID RACING

Midway And Evening Performance Provides Entertainment

Marmora, Ont., (Special)—Blue October skies and other ideal weather conditions formed a perfect atmosphere setting in Marmora's natural Fair Grounds yesterday when four thousand people took advantage of the splendid program, exhibits and other attractions provided by officials of the Marmora Agricultural Society in the last Fall exhibition of the year.

Livestock

Outstanding in the many attractions were the splendid exhibits of livestock, poultry and swine. Blue-blooded bovine aristocracy, representative of the fine herds of dairy and beef cattle for which breeders of the district are famous, equine beauty exemplified in Clydesdale, Percheron and other heavy draft breeds, and proud Hackneys; the scions of famous swine sires and variable poultry display rounded out an exhibit that compared favorably with any of previous years.

Building Exhibits

Arranged in the Exhibition Buildings were dairy products of high standard, chief of which was the display of thirty cheese. An attractive collection of works of fine art pointed to exceptional talent in the community. Of special fascination for the feminine visitors were the many splendid entries in needlework of all kinds, the beautifully finished quilts and cleverly designed candlewick bedspreads being a feature of the showing.

Fine Midway

Productive of many variable attractions dear to the heart of the average fair-goer, was the midway. Here the crowd milled and jostled as photographers, candy-sellers, weight and age-guessers and other vendors shouted their wares. Tented shows, musical acts, the inevitable merry-go-round, singers provided a panoramic fair of enjoyment. Warm sunshine had its effect and soft drink and hot dog stands did a land-office business.

Vaudeville Show

One of the outstanding attractions of the afternoon was the vaudeville show presented on an open air stage on the grounds by the Affiliated Theatrical Offices of Canada. Against a musical setting offered by a grostequely-painted clown band several high class acts drew the acclaim of a large crowd that milled about the stand. Jim Marks, clown trick bicycle rider, the Austin sisters, two clever banjoists, Santo, famed European juggler who electrified his audience with his dexterous manipulation, Estrellita, a charming young tap dancer and other acts provided fine entertainment.

Night Performance

Climaxing the day's entertainment was the "Paris by Night" Revue, a musical, dancing show composed of twenty-two artists that filled the Town Hall to capacity at night. A dance followed the performance.

Horse Racing

The weather again proved a prime contributing factor to the exhibitions of speed held on the track. A free-for-all and classified races were keenly contested and supplied excellent racing.

"Miss Toronto" Instant Hit at Kiwanis Karnival

She is a shy, modest, attractive young lady, and one would not think by the demure manner and downcast blue eyes as a reporter attempted to "draw" a story from Miss Diane Perkin, recently crowned "Miss Toronto" in which she defeated the cream of the Queen City's feminine pulchritude, that she has been subjected to the white glare of publicity ever since the laurel wreath of victory in a contest with Toronto's prettiest was placed on her pretty brow.

Yet in spite of her modesty, she is possessed of a sincere charm, a lovely ultra-feminine personality and a poise and carriage that makes the male of the species "turn for a second look."

Reservedly, almost to the point of shyness, she spoke with a reporter in the humming activity of the Kiwanis Karnival at which she is a special guest, last night.

Perfect teeth, gleaming in the brilliance of multi-colored light flashed in a charming smile as she talked. Occasionally, when such subjects as romance, or marriage were delicately injected into the conversation, a lovely pink suffused her creamy complexion.

"Husband?" she laughed, "Not yet. I am not ready to take on any such liabilities. Boy Friend? Well—yes, and no."

Picture of Loveliness

Dressed in ultra-modern feminine apparel, Miss Perkin looked a picture of loveliness. Shyly she admitted that she "thought I was dreaming when the judges declared me winner of the beauty contest in Toronto."

Miss Perkin defeated over three hundred of the Queen City's most beautiful girls on that memorable occasion, being returned the winner over sixty-seven beauties in the final contest.

"Er—how old are you, Miss Perkin," and it was the reporter's turn to blush. But quickly she came to his aid with a soft-voiced "twenty."

She is a lover of sports but in a conservative way. She has never gone in for athletics but loves to swim and take part in other healthy outdoor divertisements. And she loves "small towns". Belleville is her idea of the small city, the type in which she would like to live. (The line forms up on the left, boys).

"Don't you think that is always the way?" she queried. "I think people in the big cities like the smaller places and vice versa."

In Demand As Model

Her victory in the beauty contest has brought her plenty of offers, although she did not say what kind. She has been in constant demand as a model and at the present time is working at that interesting work.

She had never before appeared in a beauty contest, and had no idea when she entered that she would be crowned queen of the beauty parade. She is just an ordinary girl, like any other, and the glare of publicity has not turned her pretty head.

Miss Perkin made an immediate hit with all whom she came in contact with last night, and her charm and personality, her simple, modest bearing has made her a popular favorite with Bellevillians of all classes.

New Record is Achieved As Kiwanis Club Opens Doors On Annual Kiwanis Karnival

Fashion Show, Games And Display Booths Greatly Admired

GAY DECORATIONS

Program of High Quality And Whole Performance Runs Smoothly

Seldom, if ever have the drab walls of the Armouries reflected the brilliancy of hundreds of lights, and colored festoons, or echoed to the laughter and enjoyment of such an enthusiastic crowd as they did last night when the Belleville Kiwanis Club presented to a large representative attendance the opening performance their 1938 edition of their famous four-day Karnival and Parade of Fashion.

There isn't one slightest doubt that the show in its entirety lived up to all advance notices. A rippling panorama of beauty, rhythm and color that moved in a sequence of events that kept the audience in a continuous state of merriment, admiration and joviality it left the most rabid critic with the feeling that the members of this noted city service club had exceeded all previous efforts in their own unique field of entertainment.

Colorful Melange

For they paraded in a colorful melange of beauty, music, style and entertainment, one of the most variable entities of enjoyment that has seldom been seen in this city.

They catered to every taste. Beauty, adorned in the latest fashion creations, in superb style and grace of model, won its way into the hearts of the many women present. Clever acrobats, dancers, musicians and jugglers, performed in a whirl of stage entertainment that drew the well-merited acclaim of an appreciative audience. Dance music of a variety that pleased all, played in modern swing and "sweet music" tempos by Bud Haines and his Commodores echoed in the late hours as exponents of the dance indulged in their favorite entertainment.

Perhaps one of the outstanding features of the Karnival is the colorful array of merchandise, that exemplifies in every booth the progressiveness of the live-wire merchants of Belleville. Never before perhaps has such an exhibition of the advancement of the times as seen in the products of business and manufacture been brought before the eyes of an admiring public. And the merchants themselves have not forgotten the decorative art. Each booth is colorfully bedecked in harmonizing shades and schemes that add an additional touch to the color of the background.

Practically every phase of the business world is represented in a manner, that reflects great credit on the foresight and enterprise of these merchants, who form part of the business backbone of the city.

Many Games

And nothing has been forgotten in the way of games and other attractions. Every night a handsome door prize of twenty-five dollars is given away—but you have to be there in order to win it. If not then the money is added to that of the following night and so on. There are games galore, presided over by an enthusiastic, jolly number of Kiwanians. The ever-popular "Bingo" with prizes that fairly make one gasp with their value and general attractiveness, drew a record attendance last night after the fashion show and vaudeville had ended.

There are wheels that whir; dizzily carrying the hopes of many on the fall of the number. Cigarettes, and other prizes are there for the taking.

And the inner man is not forgotten. Booths cater to the wants of the hungry with appetizing hot-dogs and hamburgs ready for immediate consumption.

A bevy of beautiful young ladies, entries in a popularity contest move among the crowd soliciting aid in their drive for the handsome prize, that awaits the fortunate winner.

Lower Admission Charge

Announcement was made at a late hour last night by the committee in charge, that the admission charge would be lowered from twenty-five cents to fifteen cents for adults and ten cents for children for the remaining nights of the Karnival. This decision was reached after careful consideration on the part of officials.

Shortly after eight o'clock Mayor Jamieson Bone was introduced by President Ab. Boynton of the Belleville Kiwanis Club. His Worship prior to declaring the Karnival officially open in a brief address paid tribute to the Club for the splendid work they were doing for the children of the city.

"The Kiwanis Club is a very live aggregation of Belleville business men who time and time again have given unstintedly of their time and funds to a cause, that is devoted to their community, and I am glad to take part in an affair of this nature that tends to benefit this city."

"Their principal endeavour is to promote child welfare', His Worship continued. "They finance a Baby Clinic or the Victorian Order of Nurses besides their children's playgrounds and other child endeavours and I earnestly commend their efforts to you. They have provided a splendid entertainment for your benefit and I hope you all enjoy it to the utmost". Mayor Bone then declared the Karnival officially open.

The Parade of Fashion

Eager to make each season's Karnival Fashion Show the finest of its kind, the committee in charge had the idea of giving each firm taking part, a place on every night's program, and the result last evening was a series of lovely creations, the ultimate in the designers' art, presented by four charming Belleville girls, assisted by the lovable Miss Toronto (Diane Perkin).

The firms represented were the J. A. McNabb, Ltd., Wotten's Limited, Kroch Bros., showing afternoon and evening frocks, cloth coats and sports wear; Woodley's completing the costumes with hats, furs, and displaying fur coats; Angus McFee, jewellers, adding to the beauty of the ensemble with jewels, and bags; the Mayfair Beauty Salon creating coiffures of distinction, and Lattimer's, enhancing the charm of the mannequins with "Charles of the Ritz" beauty preparations. The models, whose grace and poise made their every appearance a delight to the eye of the beholder, included in order of their appearance, Miss Helen Doyle, Miss Maisie Parry, Miss Helen Wotten, Mrs. M. Brooks and "Miss Toronto" (Diane Perkin). Miss Mary Forster, greatly assisted in the success of the fashion show by describing each costume as it appeared.

Show Runs Smoothly

Following the official opening of the Karnival by His Worship Mayor Jamieson Bone, the Master of Ceremonies, Kiwanian Fred Whyte was introduced by President Boynton and the program swung briskly into action. Against a beautifully arranged background of pastel shaded drops, and baskets of golden-yellow chrysanthemums, and with soft music supplied by Bud Haines and his Commodores, the Parade of Fashion began.

The first collection of gowns was for afternoon wear, from the McNabb store. In street length a black cocktail dress revealed a French lame top that was very effective. Of deep green the second offering was a Deja model showing the Victorian influence and brightened with touches of gold kid. It was followed by a Deja in black friendship crepe with novel metallic trim on the wide sleeves. Perfect for the matron was the Blackshire gown of the fashionable grape shade.

The appearance of "Miss Toronto" in a chic teal blue gown, with full, action back, and embroidered bodice, and fetching little doll hat from Woodley's was the signal for a sustained applause. Mr. Whyte presented the lovely guest to the audience, and the unanimous opinion of the crowd seemed to be that Miss Toronto was truly the "height of fashion and the queen of Queen City beauties." The Fashion Parade was halted for a few minutes as the master of ceremonies briefly interviewed her. He learned that Miss Toronto, although living for sixteen years in Vancouver, was really a native of Toronto, and—surprise!—that her mother was a native of Bancroft, which, everyone agreed, practically made Miss Toronto a Hastings County girl. Miss Perkin has recently been elected Drum Major of the Argos football team and will make her first appearance in that capacity on Saturday. Then with a smile that captivated the audience, Miss Toronto gracefully returned to her role of mannequin.

Beautiful Coats

McNabb coats followed next in the fashion presentations. A fitted black model was distinguished by a double silver fox fur from Woodley's. Boucle with ring-tail opposum trimming was a regal creation, while the Langeburne ensemble of rust-tone fine wool dress, and matching coat with honey beige wolf collar was a stunning costume. Bearing the Printzess label was a handsome black British wool model with mink, while the final coat was of black nubby wool, richly furred with Persian lamb.

Proving that fur coats are no longer an unattainable luxury but practically a necessity of the smart woman, the beautiful models exhibited last evening by Woodley's won the admiration of the audience at first glance. There was the favourite French seal, adroitly trimmed with Bombay lamb in tuxedo rever effect that, at will, became double breasted style, faintly edged with the lamb. There was a two tone swagger grey chiciang lamb coat that featured the squared shoulder effect. These were followed by a French seal with skunk sleeves, the ultra fashionable combination for this season. Hudson seal in classic style was also shown and a silvery raccoon coat whose smart lines explain why this fur is staging such a powerful come-back for 1938-39. The neckpieces worn by the models with afternoon frocks were also from the stocks of Woodley's, and the chic hats, matching to perfection the gowns and coats, showed the temperamental hand of Dame Fashion who has decided, after all, that anyone can have any kind of hat they want. So it's doll hats for the new coiffures, tailored, brimmed styles for sports and lavishly trimmed millinery for formal occasions.

Clothes For Sports Wear

Distinctly different in the fashion presentation was the inclusion of sports wear de luxe, from Wotten's Limited, in co-operation with the Deacon Company, Limited. Grenfell ski suits for women were worn by the models and these wonderful examples of the beauty and utility of the modern sports ensemble captured everyone's fancy. The first was a black suit with mittens, cap and trimmings of white, the second was in orange and white and boasted the parka hood, perfect for winter days on the ski run. Royal blue and white made another dazzling combination, and in this case the trimming of fur on the parka made a lovely frame for a lovely face. For golfing a Grenfell jacket was shown in a soft yellow tone and the display concluded with a white and blue ski suit, with tucked-in blouse, colorful fringed sash and Scotch cap.

Throughout the Revue, the costume jewelry of exquisite beauty and the handbags, perfectly adapted to the ensemble with which they were worn were displayed by Angus McFee, Jeweller. The crowning item of this display was the marvellous ring set with a marquise diamond, valued at four thousand dollars, truly a magnificent gem.

Beautiful Evening Gowns

The return to the days of the gay nineties was evident in the evening gowns, shown by Kroch Bros. when the wide skirts, the Victorian lines of the gowns, and their old world loveliness caused much admiration. The first of these was a taffeta gown in wood violet and mauve worn under a slim fitted evening coat of black velvet trimmed with white bunny fur, also from Kroch Bros. Black taffeta with candy pink quilted jacket, and low cut decolletage, (a feature of this season's evening wear) was most effective as was the midnight blue taffeta, of appealing charm. Wine lace in a combination evening and dinner gown was graceful and handsome while the fontaine blue taffeta model with its nosegays of pink flowers was reminiscent of colonial days.

Becoming Hair Styles

The becoming hair styles worn by the models and the new upsweep coiffure was the work of the Mayfair Beauty Salon and was perfectly arranged for the individual type each model represented. The models wore, also Charles of the Ritz beauty preparations, from Lattimers the make-up being exactly the right tone for each coloring and accentuating the natural loveliness of the mannequin's appearance.

Between the various groups of style presentations a splendid vaudeville program was produced. The first number was an act of magic, with Slim Johnson as the magician and two Belleville boys as his helpers. The wit of the magician, no less than his incredible tricks kept the audience in high spirits, and the boys increasingly bewildered. Dancers of marked ability, Zena and Audre, gave a series of strut and tap numbers attired in smart costumes and their dexterity and precision were applauded again and again by the audience.

Pupils of Miss Mary Forster delighted those present last evening with three well rendered numbers. Mary Lou Pidgen in a graceful toe tap, Joyce Cooper in a beautiful waltz version and tiny Barbara Diment, the miniature glamor girl who danced on roller skates and sang "A tisket a tasket" in swing rhythm, provided an interesting interlude.

The vaudeville program was stolen however by the Lowells, an acrobatic balancing team, whose wonderful feats topped that of any ever visiting Belleville. The young man and girl, were seen in a series of acts that were the ultimate in presentations of this nature. In this case, the girl was the supporting member of the team, and easily balanced her partner on her hands, her shoulders, her feet, at the same time moving and balancing herself with ease and grace. Storms of applause greeted this number which was the highlight of the entertainment.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

PLENTY OF SPEED SHOWN BY LEAFS IN OPENING WORK

Bob Davidson First Casualty Sustaining Badly Gashed Knee

OUT FOR A WEEK

Starr And Leafs To Play Number of Exhibition Games

Preston, Ont., Oct. 19—(CP)—You can take manager Conny Smythe's word for it. Or coach Dick Irvin's or that of Eddie Powers. The Toronto Maple Leafs look good in their pre-season workouts.

Canny Conny looked over a squad of 39 in the first official practice of the training season yesterday, conferred with Irvin and Powers and announced all were agreed: "The whole squad looks good and very, very young. The younger lads have come along fine."

That was as far as the three hockey mentors would go in expressing opinions. The players, for the initial work-out, showed "plenty of speed." Their style was all that could be desired. But none of the "Brain Trust" would prognosticate on the outcome once the National Hockey League season gets under way Nov. 3.

Training With Stars

The Leafs are training with Syracuse Stars, Toronto's farm team of the International-American League. With eight amateurs who seek to jump to the professional ranks, the players skated through two stiff games, half the squad playing in one and the others in the second game. The "Blues" won both contests, 4-2 and 6-3.

But little more than half-an-hour after the practice began Bob Davidson became a casualty. The big left winger fell over Gord Thoms and suffered a gashed leg above the knee. Today he hobbled about with six stitches in the wound.

Davidson won't play again for a week.

Drillon Scores Four

Gordie Drillon was the only player to perform in both games. And the leading scorer of the N.H.L. last season showed he had lost none of his timing by scoring four goals —one in the first match and three in the second — in lightning rushes down right wing.

Exhibitions between Toronto and Syracuse are scheduled for Galt, Owen Sound, Midland, Toronto and Syracuse.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

Oldest player with the New York Rangers and a National Hockey League veteran at the ripe old age of 30, Cecil Dillon would be just a young fellow coming along if he played with New York Americans. The Americans' average age is 30 and six of their number won't see that milestone again.

Manager Red Dutton's veteran brigade moves into Winnipeg today for tomorrow's opening of a series of six exhibition games with the Rangers, who think the nicest way to treat age is to step on its beard. Dutton can watch out, too, because Manager Lester Patrick of the Blueshirts is hopping mad at the league in general for the way the schedule starts.

The Rangers don't open until Nov. 13, just 10 days after the season begins. Patrick was burning up the wires without success last night trying to arrange exhibitions to fill in the time.

Lynn, the elder of Patrick's two playing sons was taking things a little easier, reading a sports magazine in which a hockey story appears under Lynn's by-line. "Say, that's interesting," he said when he'd finished. "Honest, fellows, I didn't know I had it in me."

Patrick announced Tuesday all Rangers have signed their season's contracts and at the same time coach Herb Gardiner of Philadelphia's International - American League Ramblers, Ranger farm, said all his players are signed.

Eddie Shore, who was voted most valuable player in the league last winter for the fourth time, arrived at Boston Bruins' training camp in Hershey, Pa., in prime condition. The veteran defenceman said he had been harvesting on his grain ranch from dawn to dusk for two months. They say Eddie found a new outlet for his barley crop this year through eastern distillers.

A struggle for positions means a lot on any hockey club and Montreal Canadiens are bound to be at a peak when Manager Cecil Hart finally picks his starting team. The six players he got from the defunct Montreal Maroons are making last year's regulars step to hold their places and now Hart is looking with an approving eye on three recruits, Wilf Hoch of Kitchener, and New Haven, Alex Smart of Winnipeg and Hugh O'Leary of Port Arthur.

"I've never seen Conacher in such good health or condition for years," Jack Adams declared after Charlie Conacher's first workout with Detroit Red Wings. Adams denied he would convert Charlie always a right winger with Toronto, into a defenceman. He likely will line up on an experienced attacking formation with Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis.

Adams is likely to retain Bob Whitelaw of Winnipeg and Syd Abel who played last winter with Flin Flon Bombers. They're the pick of the amateurs trying out at Detroit.

Pete Langelle, a star with Winnipeg's Dominion junior champions two winters ago and with Syracuse of the Int.-Am. League last season, gets his big chance today. He will be tried out at centre between Pep Kelly and George Parons of Toronto Maple Leafs in their ice workout at Galt, Ont.

Cannot Hold Puck Against Boards Unless Player Being Checked

(By Jack Calder Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—That shrill disturber of the hockey wars, the referee's whistle, will be heard a little less often this season if all the new rules in the book do what they're supposed to do.

The National League code changers, a worried little group paced by Art Ross of Boston Bruins and Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs, keep popping up every fall with as many innovations as the automobile manufacturers. Their apparent purpose is to keep the game as stream-lined and speedy as this year's car.

Ross came to the recent semi-annual meeting with a batch of ideas. Most of them went through, along with suggestions from other managers, and were accepted for both professional and amateur hockey everywhere.

Because the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association agreed on the alterations, every rink in the country will have to make its blue lines one foot wide and paint the goal-posts and all lines except zone lines red.

Cut Down Offsides

The wider blue lines and one other item are designed to cut down offside plays. A player will not be considered offside unless his skates are over the blue-line edge nearest the goal. That means he may reach over the line with his stick for the puck so long as his skates don't cross before he touches the rubber.

A minor penalty will be imposed on any player, except the goaltender who holds the puck against the boards unless he is being checked by another player. A penalty shot will be awarded if the goalie holds the puck more than three seconds, drops it into his pads or tosses it into the crowd. These things formerly called for a painful whistle blast and a face-off. Now they come under the head of "stalling" and should occur less often.

An offside will be called when the defending team ices the puck from its area and the rubber crosses the penalty-shot line in the other team's area; formerly the puck had only to cross the far blue line to be called "iced." The referee, however, will not call the play until he is sure a goal cannot be scored on an iced shot.

GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

Body Balance

Since these articles will not appear in your paper during the winter months I am going to devote most of the remaining days to work that you can do on your own. When it comes to selecting the things which will improve your game and enable wou to make lower scores, the choice is not hard to make if you are willing to be the least bit logical.

Here is how you can arrive at what to do; simply figure that your swing is the first thing that needs attention. Then check over the various stages of your swing. In this check you can go by the order in which the various positions and movements gone through by your body, head and hands. And I believe that the latter is the best way to get at the real source of all your troubles, so we'll follow it.

DON'T UNDER CLUB YOURSELF WHEN PLAYING AGAINST WIND

The first thing to work on is body action and balance because the rest of your swing can be no better than this part. In short, you can make the most out of the time you give to improving your game by working first of all on balance. This point would be too obvious to mention in connection with other activities but in golf it is necessary because it is the one thing which most players lack.

In my next article I will give you a means of improving your body balance.

Heel and Toe

In this, the first of a series of exercises which I am going to leave you with for the winter, the matter of body action for all swings will be covered. As I have stated before, body action and balance are the first things to be considered when checking over your swing.

HEEL AND TOE BALANCE DETERMINES BODY ACTION

Most players, when looking at the positions and movements of the body see them only from the front or a point opposite the ball. In this way they are afforded a check on just two dimensions. They observe the movements from side to side and up and down, but what happens in the way of movement toward and away from the ball is seldom noticed.

This third dimension is the most important of all for it determines what will happen in the other two. In other words the heel and toe balance is at the bottom of what you do in moving from one foot to the other during your swing. If your heel and toe balance is good then the side motion of your hips and the turn of your waist are bound to be smooth and correct. The way to acquire such a balance is to practise rolling your feet from side to side without swinging a club.

Without the club you can stand fully erect and thereby get your weight back toward your heels far enough so that it is evenly divided between the heel and ball of each foot. When you can keep it thus divided throughout the exercise you will have the correct balance and body action.
